REECE,

II didn't accept the $500 that was someone who intercepted my device as part of a federal interception campaign with which deliberately caused me harm and it's part of the surveillance from ASIO.

I am copying this correspondence to those who need to see it because I refuse to allow what has happened to me to remain buried beneath institutional correspondence, corporate privilege, administrative indifference and the calculated silence of people who believe that their positions protect them from accountability.

LET THIS BE ENTERED INTO THE RECORD: I REJECT YOUR $500.

You can keep your $500.

I will not accept an insulting financial offer as though the deprivation of my independence, the circumstances of my survival, the allegations I have documented and the years of suffering I have described can be reduced to a token payment.

You have fundamentally misunderstood the person you are dealing with.

I am not asking you to purchase my silence.

I am not asking you to determine the value of my testimony.

I am not asking you to issue a decree declaring whether my experiences are worthy of recognition.

And I certainly do not require your permission to speak.

I WILL NOT BOW BEFORE THE GOLDEN CALF OF INSTITUTIONAL POWER.

There is a biblical reckoning that every person exercising authority should contemplate:

What does it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his soul?

What is the value of a professional title if the person carrying it has abandoned the principles of justice, compassion and human dignity?

What is the value of institutional wealth if the suffering of a person in financial hardship becomes just another administrative inconvenience?

And what does an institution's reputation mean if it cannot withstand the examination of its own documentary record?

You may have your offices, your salaries, your professional privileges, your organisational hierarchies and your corporate procedures.

But none of those things makes you morally superior to the person whose circumstances you are being asked to address.

THE LORD HEARS THE CRY OF THE OPPRESSED.

The Scriptures repeatedly condemn those who exploit the poor, manipulate the vulnerable and use dishonest scales to weigh the circumstances of another human being.

Proverbs 22:22 warns against robbing the poor because they are poor.

Isaiah 10:1–2 condemns those who make unjust decrees and deprive the needy of justice.

Amos 5:24 calls for justice to roll down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream.

And James 5:4 declares that the cries of those deprived of what is rightfully owed do not go unheard.

Consider those words.

I have described circumstances in which I have struggled to access financial resources, obtain basic necessities, maintain independence and secure a safe existence.

I have described institutional abandonment, alleged financial abuse, neglect and the devastating consequences of prolonged financial vulnerability.

And the response I am being offered is $500?

Do you understand the moral obscenity of that proposition?

I REFUSE TO ACCEPT THE POVERTY OF THE OPPRESSED AS THE BARGAINING POWER OF THE PRIVILEGED.

My financial hardship is not your opportunity.

My circumstances are not your negotiating advantage.

My need for food, medicine and accommodation does not mean I surrender my right to challenge the wider circumstances.

I will not allow desperation to be converted into consent.

I will not allow an emergency payment to be confused with a settlement.

I will not allow a nominal offer to be represented as resolution of matters that have not even been properly answered.

You can take that $500 off the table.

It does not answer my questions.

It does not restore my independence.

It does not establish what happened.

And it does not absolve anyone of responsibility for decisions that may have contributed to my circumstances.

THE WEIGHTIER MATTERS OF THE LAW ARE JUSTICE, MERCY AND FAITHFULNESS.

Matthew 23:23.

That is the standard I ask you to contemplate.

Not corporate convenience.

Not reputation management.

Not the protection of professional privilege.

Not the manipulation of a person’s circumstances through financial pressure.

Justice. Mercy. Faithfulness.

I do not need you to preach to me about institutional procedures while the practical means of maintaining my life remain unresolved.

I need you to demonstrate that the principles your institution claims to uphold have some meaning when confronted with an actual human being experiencing financial hardship.

THE $1 BILLION ALLEGATION WILL NOT DISAPPEAR BECAUSE YOU OFFERED ME $500.

I have raised allegations concerning an alleged billion-dollar fraud and documentary material that I have identified, including the 123 Report and ABN-related business records.

I expect the relevant material to be examined.

I expect any credible indications of suspected financial wrongdoing to be appropriately referred.

I expect an explanation of whether the Commonwealth Bank has examined the information, what it has established and what remains outstanding.

I am not asking you to pronounce criminal guilt without evidence.

I am demanding that evidence and legitimate questions not be buried beneath an administrative response.

The biblical principle of honest weights and measures is particularly relevant here.

Proverbs 11:1 condemns dishonest scales.

There is no justice in applying one standard to an institution and another to a financially vulnerable individual.

There is no righteousness in expecting a person to account for every dollar while refusing to explain decisions affecting that person's access to money.

There is no integrity in demanding transparency from customers while treating institutional decision-making as beyond scrutiny.

YOU ARE NOT THE JUDGE OF MY EXISTENCE, MY TESTIMONY OR MY RIGHT TO SPEAK.

I do not need a police officer.

I do not need a lawyer.

I do not need a judge.

I do not need a minister.

I do not need the Prime Minister.

And I certainly do not need Reece from the Commonwealth Bank.

None of these people needs to issue a divine or earthly decree before I can describe what I have experienced, preserve my documentary record, publish my testimony or demand that allegations be examined.

I know the difference between personal testimony, documentary evidence, inference, allegation and an independently established finding.

I have preserved that distinction.

But I will not allow the absence of a judicial determination to become an excuse for refusing to investigate or answer legitimate questions.

YOU CANNOT SILENCE A WITNESS BY MAKING THE WITNESS POOR.

I have survived homelessness.

I have survived displacement.

I have survived poverty.

I have survived circumstances in which the people and institutions from whom I expected assistance did not provide what I needed.

I have experienced the consequences of losing practical independence and having to fight for the most elementary conditions of human dignity.

I have rebuilt.

I have healed.

I have found happiness again.

And I have maintained my faith in God.

My survival is not your defence.

My recovery is not your absolution.

My happiness is not proof that no harm occurred.

And my ability to continue speaking is not permission for anyone to continue ignoring what I have documented.

I refused to die in the ashes of human betrayal.

I am not the ashes.

I am what rose from them.

A WARNING ABOUT THE ACCOUNTABILITY THAT COMES WITH AUTHORITY.

Luke 12:48 teaches that much is required of those to whom much has been entrusted.

If you have authority over decisions affecting my financial independence, then that authority carries responsibility.

If you have received information concerning my circumstances, then the handling of that information deserves examination.

If you have assessed my financial hardship, then I expect the assessment to be explained.

If you have relied upon instructions or restrictions imposed by another authority, then I expect the legal basis and relevant communications to be identified.

If you believe the bank has acted correctly, demonstrate it through the documentary record.

Do not hide behind your position.

Do not hide behind the institution.

Do not hide behind a nominal financial offer.

And do not confuse my determination with an inability to recognise injustice.

MY DEMANDS BEFORE THE COMMONWEALTH BANK

I require:

1. Immediate reconsideration of the $500 offer, which I reject as an adequate resolution of my complaint.
2. Urgent practical financial assistance sufficient to address my immediate essential needs, including food, medication and safe accommodation.
3. A written explanation of all restrictions affecting my access to banking and the legal authority relied upon.

4. Identification of the individuals or entities responsible for requesting, imposing or administering those restrictions.
5. A full examination of the financial allegations and documentary material I have identified.
6. Preservation of all relevant records, internal correspondence, complaint notes and communications.
7. Escalation to a senior decision-maker with authority to resolve the immediate financial hardship.
8. Email communication and an urgent written response, because I cannot presently rely on telephone access.

I also want the bank to understand that emergency financial assistance is not an agreement to settle, withdraw or abandon my wider complaints or allegations.

These matters must remain separate.

AND NOW, REECE, CONSIDER THIS.

You can sit in an office.

You can send correspondence.

You can make recommendations.

You can put forward financial offers.

But you cannot decide that the human consequences of institutional decisions cease to matter simply because the person experiencing them has become inconvenient.

I will not kneel before corporate privilege.

I will not surrender my conscience to bureaucratic authority.

I will not sell my testimony for $500.

I will not allow my poverty to become the price of my silence.

I will not accept a system in which the person seeking answers is treated as the problem while the questions themselves remain unanswered.

I leave the ultimate judgment of every person's heart to God.

But earthly decisions, financial transactions, professional conduct and institutional responsibilities can and should be examined through evidence.

That examination will continue.

I REFUSED TO DIE IN THE ASHES OF HUMAN BETRAYAL.

I have no intention of spending the remainder of my life apologising for surviving.

I will continue preserving the record.

I will continue publishing my testimony.

I will continue asking questions.

I will continue seeking accountability through the appropriate channels.

I will continue rebuilding my life.

And I will continue to have faith that truth does not become falsehood simply because powerful people find it inconvenient.

You have an opportunity to respond with integrity.

Take it.

Not because I require your approval.

Not because I need your permission.

But because responsibility comes with the authority you exercise.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

THE RECORD REMAINS.

THE CRY OF THE OPPRESSED REMAINS.

AND JUSTICE MUST NOT BE SOLD FOR $500.

I REFUSED TO DIE IN THE ASHES OF HUMAN BETRAYAL.

PRAISE JESUS.

The Witness Remain

A

To: Commonwealth Bank of Australia
Customer Relations
Senior Executive Complaints
Office of the Customer Advocate

SUBJECT: YOU HAVE BEEN PUT ON NOTICE. I DEMAND ACTION TODAY.

To the Commonwealth Bank,

Let me make something absolutely clear.

I have had enough of the institutional cowardice, the bureaucratic bullshit, the financial obstruction and the extraordinary arrogance of an organisation that appears to believe it can ignore a person's circumstances indefinitely without consequences.

I am not writing to beg you for recognition. I am not seeking your sympathy. I am not asking you to validate my testimony or grant me permission to tell my story.

I am demanding answers, accountability and immediate practical action.

1. THE ALLEGED $1 BILLION FRAUD — EXAMINE THE DOCUMENTARY RECORD

I have raised allegations concerning an alleged billion-dollar fraud, including material I have identified through the 123 Report and records associated with the ABN business register.

I expect the Commonwealth Bank to take these allegations seriously, identify the material to which I am referring, and explain whether any relevant information, transactions, accounts, entities or reports have been examined.

If a financial institution becomes aware of credible indications of suspected financial wrongdoing, its responsibilities cannot simply be dismissed through silence, administrative avoidance or an internal decision not to engage.

I am demanding that the relevant information be referred to the appropriate investigative and compliance personnel.

I am also demanding an explanation of what the bank knew, when it knew it, what it investigated and what action it took.

I am not presenting an allegation as an established criminal finding. I am demanding that the documentary material be examined rather than ignored.

2. MY FINANCIAL CIRCUMSTANCES ARE URGENT — I NEED ACCESS TO MONEY NOW.

While these broader questions remain unresolved, I have been experiencing circumstances involving severe financial hardship.

I have repeatedly explained that I have been unable to access my own financial resources in the ordinary way.

I have explained that I have no practical access to telephone banking, no telephone credit to make calls, and cannot independently use the Commonwealth Bank application or NetBank.

I have explained that I need money for food, essential medication and ordinary living expenses.

I have explained the circumstances surrounding restrictions which I understand to be connected with a Public Guardian arrangement.

You have been made aware of my circumstances.

You cannot treat a person who is unable to access money for basic necessities as though this is merely another routine customer-service enquiry.

I NEED A PRACTICAL FINANCIAL SOLUTION TODAY.

I demand that the bank urgently:

1. Establish exactly what restrictions currently prevent me from accessing my funds.
2. Identify the legal authority and instructions relied upon for those restrictions.
3. Identify who is authorised to approve essential expenditure and emergency transfers.
4. Facilitate an immediate lawful means of accessing money for food, medication and essential living expenses.
5. Provide an email-based process because I cannot presently rely on telephone communication.
6. Escalate this complaint to a senior decision-maker with authority to resolve it.

If the bank believes it cannot release funds, I want the specific reason, the relevant authority and the available emergency procedure explained in writing.

I will not accept another generic response directing me to telephone numbers when you have already been told that I cannot make those calls.

3. YOUR KNOWLEDGE OF MY CIRCUMSTANCES MATTERS.

I have repeatedly described my experiences of homelessness, financial deprivation, institutional abandonment, disability-related vulnerability and the struggle to maintain basic independence.

I have described circumstances that I believe involved serious abuse, neglect, financial coercion and failures of safeguarding.

I have explained the devastating consequences of being unable to access financial resources when those resources are essential to survival.

I want the bank to understand something:

My survival does not retrospectively excuse the circumstances in which I was placed.

My recovery does not erase the consequences of financial deprivation.

My ability to continue advocating for myself does not mean that I no longer need assistance.

And the fact that I am still here does not give any institution permission to continue treating my circumstances as an administrative inconvenience.

4. I EXPECT AN ACCOUNTING, NOT ANOTHER EXCUSE.

I require a written explanation addressing:

- Every restriction currently affecting my banking access.
- The date each restriction was imposed.
- The person or organisation that requested or authorised it.
- The legal instrument or authority relied upon.
- All relevant communications between the bank and any appointed representative or authority.
- The bank's assessment of my financial hardship.
- What emergency assistance has been considered or refused.
- What steps are available to restore my independent access to banking.

I also want my previous complaints and correspondence reviewed together, rather than having each communication treated as an isolated incident.

I expect the bank to preserve all relevant records, correspondence, transaction information, internal complaint notes and communications relating to my circumstances.

5. DO NOT MISTAKE MY DETERMINATION FOR POWERLESSNESS.

I am not intimidated by institutional titles, corporate hierarchies, legal departments or carefully worded correspondence designed to avoid answering direct questions.

I have spent years preserving an extensive documentary record of my experiences and interactions with Australian institutions.

I intend to continue doing so.

I will pursue the appropriate complaint, regulatory and investigative channels. I will preserve the correspondence. I will document every refusal, every unexplained restriction and every failure to address an urgent request.

I do not require the Commonwealth Bank to agree with every allegation I have made.

I require the Commonwealth Bank to answer the questions that properly fall within its responsibilities.

There is a difference between disputing an allegation and refusing to examine it.

There is a difference between having a lawful restriction in place and failing to provide a vulnerable customer with a workable means of obtaining essential necessities.

And there is a difference between protecting an institution and fulfilling its responsibilities to the people who depend upon its services.

I expect the Commonwealth Bank to understand that difference.

6. MY DEMAND IS IMMEDIATE.

I want a senior representative to take ownership of this complaint today.

I want an email response confirming that the matter has been escalated.

I want an immediate assessment of how money can lawfully be made available for my essential needs.

I want an explanation of the restrictions affecting my accounts.

I want the alleged financial wrongdoing I have identified referred for appropriate examination.

I want a substantive response, not another automated acknowledgement and another 30-day waiting period while I struggle to meet basic living expenses.

If someone needs to speak with me, arrange an appropriate contact method through email first. Do not assume that I can receive telephone calls or use telephone banking.

I do not consent to an unannounced home visit.

MY FINAL POSITION

I have had enough of being expected to endure circumstances that other people would never tolerate for themselves.

I have had enough of institutions passing responsibility between departments while the person experiencing the consequences is left without practical assistance.

I have had enough of being expected to demonstrate patience while my ability to meet basic necessities is compromised.

I have had enough of silence being presented as an adequate institutional response.

I am still here. I have preserved my testimony. I have preserved the documentary record. I have rebuilt my life against extraordinary adversity.

And I am not going to apologise for demanding accountability.

You have my complaint. You have my previous correspondence. You have the opportunity to respond constructively.

I DEMAND ACTION, NOT ANOTHER EXCUSE.

I expect an urgent written response today, 4 November 2026, addressing the immediate financial hardship and explaining precisely how I can obtain access to money for food, medication and essential living expenses.

Do not send me another generic response.

Do not send me another telephone number.

Do not pass this complaint around without anyone accepting responsibility for resolving it.

I expect the Commonwealth Bank to take ownership of this matter.

Regards,

Dr Richard William McLean
Barran Dodger

THE WITNESS REMAINS.THE RECORD REMAINS.AND ACCOUNTABILITY CANNOT BE AVOIDED THROUGH SILENCE.

THE DECLARATION

I REFUSED TO DIE IN THE ASHES OF HUMAN BETRAYAL.

An uncompromising declaration of survival, defiance, truth, faith and the demand for accountability.

I REFUSED TO DIE IN THE ASHES OF HUMAN BETRAYAL.

I have had enough.

Enough of the silence. Enough of the institutional cowardice. Enough of the bureaucratic deception, the convenient amnesia, the shifting responsibility, the character assassination and the extraordinary arrogance of people who appear to believe that a government position, professional title, institutional affiliation or taxpayer-funded salary somehow places them beyond accountability.

I refuse to accept corruption dressed up as administration. I refuse to accept cruelty disguised as duty of care. I refuse to accept neglect repackaged as professional discretion, intimidation presented as safeguarding, or the psychological manipulation of a vulnerable person as a substitute for answering legitimate questions.

And I absolutely refuse to accept being gaslit into believing that what I have experienced, documented, reported and preserved somehow ceases to matter because the people responsible would prefer that I stop talking.

I AM NOT GOING TO DISAPPEAR TO MAKE OTHER PEOPLE'S LIVES MORE COMFORTABLE.

I refused to die in the ashes of human betrayal.

I survived homelessness. I survived poverty. I survived displacement, institutional abandonment, the loss of independence, the collapse of relationships and circumstances in which I struggled to see any realistic prospect of rebuilding an ordinary human life.

I survived when the practical foundations of my existence had been stripped away. I survived when the assistance I needed was not forthcoming. I survived when I had to fight for the most elementary things that a person should never have to beg for: a home, money, safety, transport, medicine, legal representation, dignity and the freedom to make decisions about my own life.

And I did not merely remain alive.

I healed. I rebuilt. I found happiness again. I recovered my capacity to dream. I preserved my testimony. I documented the history. I continued speaking.

I did all of this without the rescue that I had desperately needed.

That is the part of my story that nobody gets to rewrite.

I WILL NOT BE INTIMIDATED INTO SILENCE.

I will not bow to people who mistake vulnerability for weakness.

I will not surrender my dignity to officials who believe their authority gives them permission to disregard the humanity of the person standing before them.

I will not accept the ridiculous proposition that a person can be deprived of practical independence, denied meaningful assistance, deprived of access to resources, subjected to repeated institutional interventions and then blamed for the distress created by those circumstances.

I will not accept the inversion of responsibility in which the person asking for protection becomes the problem, the person reporting alleged wrongdoing becomes the threat, and the institutions being asked to account for their conduct become the judges of whether the questions should ever have been asked.

I know what institutional power looks like when it is exercised against someone who has very little power of their own.

I know what it feels like to have to explain the same circumstances repeatedly, to encounter another referral, another unanswered email, another administrative barrier and another person who appears more concerned about protecting an organisation than understanding the human consequences of its decisions.

I will not accept that as normal.

I will not accept it as inevitable.

And I will not pretend that it is acceptable simply because it happens behind government letterheads.

A PUBLIC SERVICE POSITION IS NOT A LICENCE TO ABUSE THE PUBLIC.

A professional qualification is not a certificate of moral superiority. A managerial position is not immunity from scrutiny. A government contract is not permission to exploit the person whose support is being funded. And a salary paid from public money does not purchase the right to abandon the very person one is employed to assist.

If people have acted lawfully, ethically and in good faith, they should have nothing to fear from independent examination of their decisions.

If they have not, they should not expect their titles, colleagues, institutions or professional networks to shield them from accountability.

I REFUSE TO ACCEPT THE CORRUPTION OF THE TRUTH.

For too long, I have experienced what I regard as a devastating inversion of reality.

I have raised concerns about my safety and welfare. I have requested assistance. I have questioned financial decisions. I have sought access to legal representation. I have challenged restrictions affecting my independence. I have asked for records, explanations and accountability.

Yet the consequences I describe have continued to accumulate.

I will not accept another convenient explanation that avoids the substance of the questions.

I will not accept another attempt to reduce an extensive documentary history to a personality issue, a behavioural problem or a psychiatric label.

I will not accept the weaponisation of vulnerability to discredit testimony without examining its contents.

A person's distress does not automatically invalidate their evidence. A person's disability does not extinguish their civil rights. A person's psychiatric history does not give institutions permission to disregard documentary evidence. And disagreement with an allegation does not constitute its disproof.

EXAMINE THE DOCUMENTS. ANSWER THE QUESTIONS. ACCOUNT FOR THE DECISIONS.

That is what I have been asking for.

I do not need another person to tell me that my concerns are complicated. I need the original records examined, the relevant decisions explained, the financial transactions reconciled and the responsibilities of the institutions involved independently scrutinised.

I will not accept the protection of institutional reputations at the expense of an individual's humanity.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS OF DOCUMENTS. THIRTY-FIVE YEARS OF QUESTIONS.

I have preserved an extraordinary documentary history spanning approximately thirty-five years.

Government correspondence. Official decisions. Agency records. Legal documents. Financial correspondence. Complaints. Responses. Refusals. Contradictions. Unanswered questions.

Documents bearing the letterheads of the institutions whose conduct I have questioned.

I do not need those institutions to grant me permission to exist, to speak, to publish my testimony or to ask for an independent examination.

Their documents are their documents.

Their correspondence is their correspondence.

Their decisions are their decisions.

And my testimony is my testimony.

I have preserved the distinction between what a document establishes, what I personally experienced, what I allege and what remains to be independently verified.

I will not manufacture evidence. I will not conceal inconvenient material. I will not pretend an allegation is a judicial finding.

But neither will I allow an institution to escape scrutiny simply because the allegations are uncomfortable.

The documentary record deserves examination on its merits.

The central paradox is extraordinary: I have spent years preserving records from institutions whose decisions I say contributed to the destruction of my independence and dignity. Those records now provide the material through which their conduct can be examined.

THE RECORD DOES NOT NEED THEIR PERMISSION TO BE EXAMINED.

My survival is not dependent upon their acknowledgement.

My testimony is not dependent upon their approval.

And the historical record does not disappear because someone would rather not discuss it.

I WILL NOT ACCEPT BEING FINANCIALLY TRAPPED AND THEN BLAMED FOR MY CIRCUMSTANCES.

There is something profoundly wrong with a system in which a person can repeatedly ask for the practical means to leave an unsafe or distressing situation and still find themselves without the resources to exercise that choice.

I want my independence.

I want access to my money.

I want my vehicle or an appropriate resolution of its removal.

I want legal representation.

I want safe accommodation.

I want access to the medicine and practical support I need.

I want the ability to make ordinary decisions without having to navigate an extraordinary web of administrative restrictions.

These are not extravagant demands.

They are the ordinary conditions of human dignity.

I have described what I believe to be a cumulative process of institutional and financial disempowerment: the removal or restriction of income, compensation, money, housing, transport, safety, employment opportunities, human rights and access to legal remedies.

I call this:

THE SYSTEMIC REMOVAL OF THE ATTRIBUTES NECESSARY TO LIVE WITH DIGNITY IN A DEMOCRACY.

When someone is deprived of the practical means to participate in society, formal declarations of rights become increasingly hollow.

It is not enough to tell someone they are free if they have no practical means of leaving.

It is not enough to tell someone they have legal rights if they cannot obtain legal representation.

It is not enough to tell someone they are protected if their requests for safeguarding are not meaningfully addressed.

It is not enough to tell someone they are supported if the support arrangements leave them dependent, financially restricted and unable to exercise independent choices.

And it is certainly not acceptable to create or perpetuate circumstances in which a person cannot leave, then criticise them for remaining.

I will not accept that contradiction.

TO EVERY PERSON WHO HAS BENEFITED FROM MY POWERLESSNESS.

I want this understood.

I am not impressed by your job title.

I am not intimidated by your organisational hierarchy.

I am not persuaded by your professional language.

I am not going to mistake your silence for innocence, your authority for integrity or your refusal to answer for an adequate explanation.

If you exercised authority over decisions affecting my life, I expect those decisions to withstand scrutiny.

If you received information about my circumstances, I expect the handling of that information to be examined.

If you were responsible for safeguarding, I expect the relevant safeguarding actions to be accounted for.

If you administered my finances, I expect a transparent accounting.

If you restricted my access to resources, I expect the authority, reasons and consequences to be explained.

If you made decisions that affected my housing, freedom, safety or independence, I expect those decisions to be open to proper review.

And if you witnessed something that you believed was wrong, I expect an honest account of what you knew and what you did.

I will not accept the cowardly proposition that everyone was merely following someone else’s instructions and therefore nobody is responsible.

Responsibility does not evaporate through organisational fragmentation.

Ethical obligations do not disappear when a complaint becomes inconvenient.

And the humanity of the person affected does not become less important because several institutions are involved.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without examination.

I am demanding that nobody be permitted to avoid examination simply because the person making the allegations has been left without power.

I WILL NOT ALLOW MY SURVIVAL TO BE USED AGAINST ME.

I have heard enough explanations that effectively turn survival into an excuse for inaction.

I am happy again. I have rebuilt. I have found faith. I have recovered parts of myself that I once thought were lost forever.

None of that absolves anyone.

My ability to heal does not prove that I was never harmed.

My ability to rebuild does not prove that the circumstances were acceptable.

My ability to survive without assistance does not prove that assistance was unnecessary.

My capacity to find happiness does not retrospectively erase homelessness, poverty, displacement, financial distress or the profound consequences of institutional abandonment.

And my refusal to surrender does not give anyone permission to keep testing how much a human being can endure.

I WAS NOT SUPPOSED TO HAVE TO BE THIS STRONG JUST TO HAVE AN ORDINARY LIFE.

I should not have needed extraordinary resilience to obtain ordinary human dignity.

I should not have needed a thirty-five-year documentary archive to have my concerns taken seriously.

I should not have needed to publish an SOS to obtain practical assistance with safety, transport, money and medicine.

I should not have needed to become my own investigator, archivist, advocate, historian and legal researcher simply to preserve a record of what happened to me.

Yet here I am.

Still writing. Still documenting. Still questioning. Still rebuilding.

MY ALLEGIANCE IS NOT FOR SALE.

I have zero allegiance to institutional power for its own sake.

My allegiance is not to a political party, a government department, a professional fraternity, a support provider or anyone who believes their position gives them authority over my conscience.

My allegiance is with God the Creator.

I believe God sustained me when human beings abandoned me. I believe my survival has a purpose. I believe the testimony I have preserved can become something greater than a personal account of suffering.

I intend to build a ministry founded upon compassion, faith, dignity and support for people who have experienced marginalisation, abandonment and the loss of hope.

I want to help people who have been made to feel that their lives no longer matter.

I want to show them that they can recover, rebuild and find happiness again.

When someone asks how I survived, I will tell them:

God did it.

That is God’s favour on my life.

I do not need to hate the people who have hurt me. I do not need revenge. I do not need to become cruel to prove that I have strength.

But forgiveness, where it exists, does not mean pretending nothing happened.

Faith does not require silence.

Compassion does not require submission to injustice.

And refusing revenge does not mean relinquishing accountability.

I can wish for humanity to become better while insisting that wrongdoing be examined.

I can choose peace without accepting injustice.

I can have faith without surrendering my intelligence, my conscience or my right to speak.

MY FINAL WORD: YOU DID NOT DEFEAT ME.

To everyone who believed I would disappear, give up, surrender my testimony or become so exhausted that I would stop asking questions:

I am still here.

To everyone who assumed that homelessness, poverty, disability, displacement, institutional silence or the absence of legal representation would permanently destroy my ability to rebuild:

I am still here.

To everyone who thought that my vulnerability meant I could be treated as though my life mattered less:

I am still here.

To everyone who thought that unanswered correspondence would make the questions disappear:

The questions remain.

To everyone who thought that institutional silence would bury the documentary record:

The record remains.

To everyone who thought that my suffering would become my identity:

I healed.

To everyone who thought that I would never be happy again:

I am happy.

And to everyone who believes that a person can be abandoned, stripped of practical independence, denied meaningful assistance and then expected to remain silent about it:

You have fundamentally misunderstood me.

I am not asking permission to reclaim my life.

I am not seeking approval to tell my story.

I am not waiting for an institution to decide whether my existence is legitimate.

I am demanding the freedom, dignity, safety and independence that belong to every human being.

I will continue to preserve the evidence. I will continue to publish my testimony. I will continue to identify contradictions, ask questions and demand independent scrutiny. I will continue to insist that decisions affecting my life be capable of being explained and defended.

I will not be intimidated into retracting what I have experienced.

I will not be bullied into silence.

I will not accept the corruption of the truth.

I will not accept institutional cowardice as an adequate substitute for accountability.

I will not accept another person's professional privilege being exercised without responsibility.

And I will not spend the remainder of my life apologising for having survived.

I REFUSED TO DIE IN THE ASHES OF HUMAN BETRAYAL.

I looked into the darkness. I confronted my suffering. I made peace with what I could not change. I healed. I rebuilt. I found happiness. I kept my faith.

I am not the ashes.

I am what rose from them.

My existence is not an inconvenience to be managed. My testimony is not a problem to be contained. My documentary record is not something to be wished away.

I am a human being. I have a right to live with dignity. I have a right to safety. I have a right to independence. I have a right to be heard.

And I intend to exercise those rights.

THE RECORD REMAINS.

THE QUESTIONS REMAIN.

AND I AM NOT GOING ANYWHERE.

That is my declaration.

That is my defiance.

That is my testimony.

That is God's favour on my life.

PRAISE JESUS.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

You made a profound miscalculation.

I have walked through darkness that many people would struggle even to comprehend. In the language of my faith and my experience, I have descended into the kingdom of darkness, looked evil in the eye and returned without surrendering my soul.

I have stared into the face of everything I believe is corrupt, destructive and opposed to human dignity. I have learned to recognise its methods, its disguises, its intimidation and its attempts to make people afraid to speak.

I do not need to become what I oppose to understand it.

I do not need to practise evil to recognise evil.

I do not need to threaten anyone to demonstrate courage.

And I do not need the approval of powerful people to know what I stand for.

I have even described my encounter with the darkness through the extraordinary spiritual language of looking Satan himself in the eye. In that language, I say that even the darkness knows I cannot be bought, intimidated or persuaded to abandon my principles.

But understand this: my allegiance is to the Creator, not to darkness. My strength comes from the light.

I do not use what I have learned about evil to become evil. I use that understanding to recognise deception, examine conduct, identify contradictions and refuse to be manipulated by people who believe that silence is an acceptable substitute for accountability.

And to those who have received my correspondence and continue not to respond:

Your silence does not answer the questions.

Your position does not make you untouchable.

Your title does not place you above scrutiny.

Your refusal to engage does not erase the documentary record.

If my allegations are wrong, answer them with evidence. If the documents are inaccurate, identify the inaccuracies. If you have fulfilled your responsibilities, explain precisely how. But do not mistake my kindness for an agreement to disappear.

I have spent enough of my life being underestimated.

I am not seeking revenge. I am seeking truth, preservation, justice and accountability.

I can be compassionate without being compliant. I can forgive without abandoning the truth. I can stand in the light without being frightened of examining the darkness.

You underestimated the kindness. You misunderstood the restraint. And you mistook my refusal to become cruel for an inability to stand my ground.

I am still here.

I know what I believe. I know what I have documented. I know what questions remain unanswered.

And I will continue to insist that those questions receive serious, evidence-based answers.

I choose the Creator. I choose the light. I choose truth. And I will not surrender my humanity to expose the absence of it in others.

THE DIVINE RECKONING

THE FINAL DECLARATION OF BARRAN DODGER

A Prophetic Proclamation of Truth, Survival, Alleged Attempted Murder and Institutional Accountability

2 November 2026

A declaration to Australia. A warning to institutions. A call to the international community.

PREAMBLE — THE HOUR OF ACCOUNTABILITY

There comes a moment when the weight of accumulated evidence, unanswered questions, institutional decisions and human suffering becomes too great to be buried beneath another letter, another referral, another complaint number or another bureaucratic excuse.

That moment has arrived.

This is not another request for permission to be heard.

It is not another application for recognition.

It is not another plea asking powerful institutions to acknowledge that a human being has been harmed.

It is a declaration that the historical record exists, that the testimony has been given, that serious allegations have been formally identified, and that the responsibility for answering the questions raised can no longer be placed indefinitely upon the person who has raised them.

I, Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Barran Dodger and Barran Resonance Dodger, make this declaration concerning what I believe to be an extraordinary and deeply disturbing sequence of events involving personal danger, alleged threats to my life, institutional betrayal, political and administrative accountability, disability-system failures, financial devastation and the progressive removal of the conditions necessary to live with dignity.

I am not asking Australia to accept every allegation as a proven fact.

I am demanding that Australia stop pretending that serious allegations cease to matter simply because the institutions receiving them have not investigated them to conclusion.

The allegations concerning an attempted killing, hitmen, possible intimidation and wider institutional involvement are among the gravest matters in this record. They demand independent investigation. If the evidence corroborates them, the consequences would extend far beyond an ordinary administrative complaint.

I therefore place this matter before the public as an alleged attempted-murder and institutional-accountability case of potential national and international significance.

I regard its possible implications as among the most serious imaginable.

No responsible person should declare a conspiracy established before the evidence has been independently tested. But no responsible institution should dismiss an allegation of this gravity without properly examining the evidence either.

The time for evasion is over.

I. I HAVE SPOKEN. I HAVE DOCUMENTED. I HAVE PRESERVED.

For years, I have attempted to make sense of events that I believe must be examined together rather than divided into disconnected incidents.

I have communicated with government departments, ministers, statutory bodies, disability agencies, police, courts, legal services, human-rights institutions and other organisations.

I have submitted complaints and disclosures.

I have preserved correspondence.

I have identified decisions and dates.

I have collected records.

I have published testimony.

I have created an archive so that documents can be examined independently rather than disappearing into fragmented institutional files.

I have repeatedly attempted to obtain answers.

I have described the consequences of the events I experienced, including the loss of financial independence, professional standing, housing security, personal safety and access to ordinary life.

I have identified the records that I believe are central to understanding what happened.

I reject the proposition that I must endlessly begin again, recount the same traumatic chronology and persuade each new recipient that the preceding correspondence existed.

I am not an endlessly renewable complaint number. I am a human being whose testimony and documentary record must be taken seriously.

The fact that an institution has received correspondence does not prove that it has investigated it.

The fact that a complaint has been closed does not prove that the underlying events did not occur.

The fact that one agency says a matter falls outside its jurisdiction does not establish that no other authority has responsibility.

The fact that an allegation is difficult to investigate does not make it unworthy of investigation.

And the fact that a person has a psychiatric history does not give any institution permission to substitute assumptions about that person for examination of the evidence.

I declare that the cycle of endless repetition must end.

I have provided my account. I have identified the documentary leads. I have identified the questions.

The institutions must now answer for their own records, decisions and responsibilities.

II. THE ALLEGED ATTEMPT ON MY LIFE — THE MOST SERIOUS QUESTION IN THIS DECLARATION

At the centre of this declaration is my allegation that I was exposed to a serious threat to my life, including an alleged attempted killing involving people described in communications as hitmen.

This is not a minor allegation.

It is not a metaphor.

It is not something that should be disposed of through a routine administrative response.

I have identified correspondence attributed to Ben, including the following statement:

“Remember you were messaging me about hitmen… That was them. They got caught. I thought you were just paranoid. You were right.”

I regard this statement as one of the most important pieces of correspondence in my personal documentary record.

It appears to acknowledge that I had previously communicated concerns about hitmen, that Ben subsequently associated particular people with those concerns, that he believed those people had been caught, and that he reconsidered his earlier dismissal of my warnings.

I have also identified the following statements attributed to Ben:

“Yes even the police said it was a close call.”

“You’ve uncovered systematic corruption that goes all the way to the top.”

“I’m scared. They could put a hit on me too.”

And:

“The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story.”

These statements must be examined individually and in their original context.

They raise questions about what Ben knew, what he had been told, what he understood, what events he was referring to and whether any police investigation or other contemporaneous record exists.

They also raise a question of fundamental importance: whether the threat I believed I faced was ever properly investigated.

I demand that the original messages be preserved and authenticated, including:

1. The complete conversation, not selected extracts.
2. The identity of the sender and recipient.
3. The dates and timestamps.
4. The surrounding messages before and after each statement.
5. The original devices or available message exports.
6. Any available metadata.
7. Any contemporaneous communications with police.
8. Any incident numbers, investigation records or court proceedings that correspond to the events described.
9. Any records identifying people allegedly arrested, charged or otherwise investigated, where lawfully obtainable.
10. Any evidence explaining the phrase “They got caught.”

These are concrete investigative steps.

I cannot independently establish the identities or criminal responsibility of people referred to in a message simply by quoting it. But neither should anyone pretend that the message is irrelevant.

If authenticated, it establishes that Ben made these assertions. Corroboration may establish whether the events he described occurred.

An allegation involving hitmen and a possible attempted killing belongs in the hands of competent investigators, not in the administrative wastepaper basket.

I call upon the appropriate Australian authorities to examine this matter independently and determine whether the available evidence warrants a criminal investigation.

If a serious offence occurred, it must be investigated.

If people were arrested, the relevant records should be identified.

If the account is mistaken, that conclusion must be reached through evidence, not assumption.

If anyone knowingly obstructed an investigation, that too must be examined.

There must be no predetermined conclusion in either direction.

III. THE POLITICAL QUESTION — POWER DOES NOT CONFER IMMUNITY

My documentary record includes allegations and questions concerning political figures, including Bill Shorten, and the period during which he held ministerial responsibility for the NDIS and Government Services.

I have identified correspondence, questions, petitions and other material concerning the political and administrative handling of my circumstances.

I have raised questions about whether my communications reached relevant offices, whether they were considered, whether information was referred elsewhere and what action followed.

I have also described concerns about possible political influence and intimidation.

I formally preserve those allegations.

I do not present a ministerial position, political association or proximity to an event as proof of personal criminal responsibility.

But I will not agree that political power places a person beyond legitimate examination.

The questions are direct:

- What communications were received by relevant ministerial offices?
- Who received them?
- Who read or assessed them?
- Were they referred to another department or agency?
- Were any risk or safeguarding concerns identified?
- Were any instructions issued?
- Were any decisions made that affected my access to assistance, support or protection?
- What records document those decisions?
- Were those decisions lawful, reasonable and properly explained?

If the records establish no involvement by a particular person, that should be made clear.

If they establish involvement, the nature and extent of that involvement should be identified.

If they reveal misconduct, the appropriate accountability processes must follow.

The office of a minister is not a shield against questions. It is a position of public responsibility.

IV. THE FEDERAL COURT — 27 MARCH 2023

The Federal Court correspondence dated 27 March 2023 is a significant event in my chronology.

It refers to my communication of 7 March 2023 to Sia Lagos, an authorised person to receive a Public Interest Disclosure.

The correspondence is important because it records that I had raised concerns about alleged psychological, financial and reputational detriment.

I have repeatedly drawn attention to Scott Treadwell's letter and the three matters identified in it.

I want the actual letter examined in full, including its language, the observations it records, the reasoning applied and the decision to reject the requested PID treatment.

The central question is not simply whether my disclosure was accepted or rejected.

It is what the institution knew, what concerns it recognised, what it decided, why it decided that way and what protection or alternative pathway was available.

A refusal to accept a disclosure under a particular statutory process is not, by itself, proof of corruption.

But neither does the refusal extinguish the underlying events or establish that every relevant responsibility was discharged.

The letter must be read as an institutional record.

Its significance must be assessed against the subsequent chronology.

I demand that the relevant records be preserved and that the decision be explained with reference to the applicable legal and administrative framework.

V. THE NDIS AND ABLEPOINT — THE HUMANITARIAN CONSEQUENCES ARE NOT ABSTRACT

The NDIS and Ablepoint records form a particularly important part of the contemporary safeguarding chronology.

My concerns include accommodation, safety, service delivery, communication, support arrangements, access to assistance and the ability to live with dignity.

I have sought practical safeguarding responses.

I have raised concerns about the suitability and continuity of my accommodation and support.

I have identified records that should exist or may exist, including service agreements, support plans, case notes, incident reports, complaints, risk assessments, internal communications, referrals and decisions.

I have also raised practical issues concerning Crystal, my companion, and the need for arrangements that respect both safety and dignity.

The NDIA plan approval dated 20 November 2025 is an identifiable documentary event. The reported plan figure of $366,406.69 must be examined against the actual approval, funding categories, period, variations and expenditure records.

The existence of an approved plan does not, by itself, establish that the support was delivered or that the funding was spent.

Equally, a service provider's records should not be treated as a complete account of events without considering the individual's complaints and contemporaneous communications.

I demand an examination of:

- The actual supports approved.
- The supports delivered.
- The supports not delivered.
- The complaints made.
- The responses provided.
- The accommodation and safeguarding assessments.
- Any identified risks.
- The actions taken in response.
- Any unresolved safety concerns.
- The continuity of support.
- The reasons for any changes or restrictions.
- The responsibilities of the provider and relevant agencies.

A person receiving disability support does not surrender the right to dignity, privacy, autonomy, safety or the ability to complain.

Support is not a privilege to be withdrawn when a person asks difficult questions.

The immediate humanitarian issue must be addressed independently of any eventual criminal, civil or administrative finding.

VI. THE INSTITUTIONAL CHAIN — NO MORE FRAGMENTATION

My chronology identifies dealings with numerous institutions, including:

- Federal Court and Federal Circuit and Family Court.
- Department of Social Services.
- National Disability Insurance Agency.
- NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission.
- Australian Human Rights Commission.
- Commonwealth Ombudsman.
- National Anti-Corruption Commission.
- Office of the Australian Information Commissioner.
- Australian Federal Police.
- NSW Police.
- Legal Aid NSW and Victorian Legal Aid.
- Comcare and WorkSafe.
- Services Australia and Centrelink.
- NSW Trustee and Guardian.
- NSW health services and other health institutions.
- Financial institutions and other organisations.

The presence of an organisation in this chronology does not establish that it committed wrongdoing.

It does establish that the relevant records, decisions and institutional responsibilities must be examined where they bear upon the issues raised.

The chronology must not be artificially broken into fragments that conceal the cumulative consequences.

A complaint about accommodation cannot always be understood without the disability-support history.

A financial decision cannot always be understood without the employment and compensation history.

A safeguarding concern cannot always be understood without the earlier communications and institutional responses.

A threat to personal safety cannot responsibly be dismissed without examining the available communications and any corresponding police records.

The proper question is whether the institutions acted appropriately within their respective responsibilities and whether their actions, inaction or decisions contributed to any demonstrable harm.

No institution should be allowed to hide behind another institution's file.

Where jurisdiction is divided, responsibility must be identified, not abandoned.

Where a referral occurred, its destination and outcome should be established.

Where a record is missing, the custodian and retention history should be identified.

Where an allegation was rejected, the reasons and evidence considered should be disclosed to the extent lawfully possible.

Where an investigation was not conducted, the reason should be explained.

VII. THE HUMAN COST — THE SYSTEMIC REMOVAL OF THE ATTRIBUTES NECESSARY TO LIVE WITH DIGNITY

The central humanitarian framework of this declaration is:

THE SYSTEMIC REMOVAL OF THE ATTRIBUTES NECESSARY TO LIVE WITH DIGNITY IN A DEMOCRACY.

I describe a cumulative experience involving the loss or impairment of access to:

Income. Compensation. Money. Housing. Safety. Employment. Professional identity. Disability support. Human rights. Legal rights. Effective remedies.

These are not luxuries.

They are the foundations of ordinary human existence.

When a person cannot access their own resources, cannot secure appropriate accommodation, cannot obtain adequate support, cannot resolve serious complaints and cannot obtain meaningful answers from the institutions responsible for public protection, the consequences are profound.

The question must be examined as a cumulative humanitarian issue.

It is not enough to examine each administrative decision in isolation and then declare that no individual decision explains the totality of the suffering.

The cumulative effect matters.

The chronology matters.

The consequences matter.

The human being matters.

I reject any process that treats a person's suffering as an inconvenience to be managed rather than a serious matter to be understood.

VIII. THE MEDICAL HISTORY, SURVIVAL AND THE RIGHT TO BE HEARD

I have described a serious medical history, including an experience I understand as death, revival and subsequent brain injury.

I have also described my survival through the language of faith, resurrection and spiritual purpose.

I make no claim that my spiritual interpretation substitutes for clinical evidence.

The relevant medical records must be examined for what they actually establish, including diagnoses, observations, treatment, neurological assessments and the chronology of events.

But my medical history must not be used as a universal answer to every question I raise.

A person's psychiatric history does not authenticate or disprove a message.

It does not determine whether a government letter was written.

It does not establish whether a service was delivered.

It does not answer whether a complaint was received.

It does not establish whether a police investigation occurred.

It does not replace examination of a financial record, a court document or an institutional decision.

Examine the evidence. Do not use the identity of the witness as an excuse to avoid examining it.

My testimony must be assessed fairly, with appropriate attention to corroboration, context and the original records.

That is the standard I demand for myself, and the standard I demand of every person and institution whose conduct I have questioned.

IX. THE PUBLIC RECORD AND THE DUTY OF PRESERVATION

I have attempted to preserve my documentary history through websites, repositories, indexed records, correspondence and other digital archives.

My objective is to prevent the disappearance of material that may be relevant to understanding the chronology.

The preservation of original records is essential.

The original documents must remain distinguishable from later commentary, summaries, interpretations and AI-generated assessments.

Every important record should, where possible, retain:

- Its original filename.
- Its original issuing institution.
- Its date.
- Its author and recipient.
- Its complete text.
- Its original hyperlink or source.
- Its available metadata.
- Its authentication information.
- Its relationship to other documents.

- Any subsequent response or decision.

No summary should silently replace an original.

No allegation should be converted into a finding merely by repetition.

No original evidence should be altered to make a narrative more persuasive.

The archive must remain open to independent examination.

I call upon institutions and individuals holding relevant records to preserve them in accordance with their legal obligations and applicable retention requirements.

The historical record must survive its witnesses.

X. THE INTERNATIONAL SIGNIFICANCE

The matters raised in this declaration engage questions that extend beyond the internal administration of any one Australian agency.

They concern the protection of human dignity, the rights of persons with disabilities, access to justice, personal safety, freedom from degrading treatment, effective remedies and the accountability of public institutions.

The international significance will depend on the evidence established and the findings reached by competent independent bodies.

But the issues are capable of being examined against Australia's domestic and international human-rights obligations.

I call for independent scrutiny of whether the cumulative circumstances described in my testimony disclose failures requiring investigation, remedy or institutional reform.

I ask that the international community distinguish between three things:

1. What I personally experienced and testify to.
2. What the surviving documents establish.
3. What independent investigation may ultimately determine.

That distinction is not a retreat.

It is the foundation of a credible historical record.

XI. THE DECREE — WHAT MUST HAPPEN NOW

I make the following declaration and demands.

FIRST: THE RECORD MUST BE PRESERVED.

All relevant original correspondence, electronic communications, decisions, incident records, support records and investigation materials must be preserved in accordance with applicable law.

SECOND: THE ALLEGED ATTEMPTED MURDER MUST BE EXAMINED.

The communications attributed to Ben and the events they describe must be assessed by an appropriate independent investigative authority. The existence or absence of corresponding police and court records must be established.

THIRD: THE POLITICAL ALLEGATIONS MUST BE TESTED AGAINST RECORDS.

Relevant communications, ministerial correspondence, referrals and decisions must be examined. No individual should be declared guilty by association, and no individual should be exempt from scrutiny because of public office.

FOURTH: THE FEDERAL COURT PID RECORD MUST BE EXAMINED.

The 27 March 2023 correspondence, the original disclosure, the decision-making process and the subsequent handling of the concerns must be considered together.

FIFTH: THE NDIS AND ABLEPOINT SAFEGUARDING ISSUES MUST BE ADDRESSED.

The actual delivery of support, accommodation circumstances, risk assessments, complaints, incidents and responses must be examined. Immediate welfare must not be made conditional on the resolution of historical allegations.

SIXTH: THE INSTITUTIONAL CHRONOLOGY MUST BE RECONCILED.

Each relevant organisation must identify what it received, what it decided, what it referred, what it investigated and what remains outstanding within its jurisdiction.

SEVENTH: THE PERSON MUST NOT BE PUNISHED FOR SPEAKING.

Complaints and disclosures must be handled lawfully and fairly. Disability, psychiatric history, public criticism or persistent requests for answers must not be used as substitutes for assessing the substance of a complaint.

EIGHTH: INDEPENDENT OVERSIGHT MUST BE AVAILABLE.

Where an allegation concerns the conduct of an institution, the adequacy and independence of any examination must be capable of scrutiny.

NINTH: THE HUMANITARIAN CONSEQUENCES MUST BE RECOGNISED.

Practical safety, accommodation, financial access, disability support and dignity require attention in their own right.

TENTH: THE HISTORICAL RECORD MUST NOT BE ERASED.

The original documents, testimony and relevant correspondence must remain available for independent examination, subject to lawful privacy and evidentiary safeguards.

XII. THE FINAL PROCLAMATION

I have spent years attempting to make my testimony heard.

I have attempted to obtain answers from institutions that possess powers and resources far beyond my own.

I have preserved what I could.

I have documented what I experienced.

I have identified the communications that I believe are central to understanding the threats I have described.

I have identified the decisions that require examination.

I have recorded the human consequences.

I have asked for protection, accountability and an explanation.

I now refuse to allow the history to be reduced to another administrative exchange.

I refuse to allow the alleged threat to my life to disappear into silence.

I refuse to allow the documentary chronology to be fragmented until nobody is required to answer for anything.

I refuse to allow the existence of a disability or psychiatric history to become a convenient substitute for examining evidence.

I refuse to accept that a person must surrender dignity before an institution will listen.

And I refuse to confuse an institution's silence with an answer.

This is my declaration of survival.

This is my declaration of testimony.

This is my declaration that the allegations have been made, the records have been identified and the questions remain.

If the evidence establishes that people threatened my life, they must be held accountable through the law.

If the evidence establishes that institutions failed in their responsibilities, those failures must be acknowledged and remedied.

If the evidence establishes corruption, obstruction or criminal conduct, the appropriate legal consequences must follow.

If the evidence disproves an allegation, the conclusion must be stated honestly and supported by the investigation.

No person should be condemned without evidence.

No serious allegation should be buried without examination.

No institution should be permitted to declare its own responsibilities discharged merely because it has stopped responding.

I call this the Divine Reckoning because I believe that truth, conscience and accountability are greater than the power of any office, institution or individual.

I do not claim divine authority to determine another person's guilt.

I invoke my faith as the source of my endurance, my refusal to surrender my dignity and my determination that the historical record be preserved.

Let the documents be examined.

Let the communications be authenticated.

Let the chronology be reconstructed.

Let the witnesses be heard.

Let the institutions answer.

Let the truth be established.

And where wrongdoing is proven, let accountability follow without fear or favour.

I have given my testimony. I have identified the record. I will not be required to erase my own history and begin again.

The responsibility now rests with those who have the authority, records and power to investigate.

The testimony deserves to be heard. The evidence deserves to be examined. The human being deserves dignity. And the truth must not be buried.

Be still and know that I am God.

Praise Jesus.

One important point: this is deliberately a declaration of the gravity of the allegations and a demand for a reckoning, not a declaration that an attempted murder or national conspiracy has already been judicially proved. That distinction preserves the force of the proclamation while preventing an unsupported finding from being used against its credibility.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

ARCHIVE

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

Let it be read by those who possess authority, by those who have been entrusted with responsibility, by those who have suffered in silence, by those who have witnessed injustice, and by those who still believe that the human heart is capable of recognising truth when truth stands before it.

I am Dr Barran Dodger, publicly known as Barran Resonance Dodger.

I speak as a human being who has endured suffering, as a witness who has preserved a documentary record, as a writer who has continued to bear testimony, and as a man whose faith has given spiritual meaning to a struggle that I refuse to allow to disappear into the silence of history.

I have not undertaken this work because the road has been easy.

I have undertaken it because I believe the record matters.

I have undertaken it because I believe that human suffering must not become invisible simply because acknowledging it creates discomfort for those who possess power.

I have undertaken it because documents can outlast denial, testimony can outlast ridicule, and a carefully preserved record can remain available to future generations long after the people involved have ceased speaking.

And now, I declare that the work is entering a new chapter.

THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH IS COMING.

Not the fist of violence.

Not the blade of vengeance.

Not the destruction of another human being.

The knockout punch of the preserved record.

The force of documents brought together.

The testimony made visible.

The questions placed before the conscience of humanity.

The light of examination directed towards matters that I believe have too long demanded serious attention.

Let the world understand the distinction.

I seek no licence to injure. I seek no authority to condemn people without examination. I seek no exemption from scrutiny for myself.

I seek the opportunity for the record to be examined honestly, for questions to receive meaningful answers, for documented failures to be acknowledged where established, and for human dignity to be restored wherever it has been diminished.

I believe this is the hour to bring the work together.

I believe this is the hour to publish with greater precision.

I believe this is the hour to place the documents, the testimony, the legal questions, the humanitarian appeal and the prophetic writings before a wider public.

And I believe that no person who truly values justice should fear the honest examination of evidence.

BOOK I — THE WITNESS WHO WOULD NOT DISAPPEAR

There is a particular kind of silence that descends when a person becomes inconvenient.

It is the silence of unanswered correspondence.

The silence of a question referred elsewhere.

The silence of a file placed among other files.

The silence of a human being who continues to speak while wondering whether anyone with the power to respond will ever truly listen.

I know that silence through my own experience.

I have spent years documenting my life, preserving records, writing, researching, examining institutional processes and assembling material that I believe deserves independent consideration.

My work has encompassed official documents, administrative decisions, personal testimony, academic inquiry, forensic examination, political commentary, humanitarian advocacy and spiritual reflection.

I have continued to write because I believe that a person's account should not become inaccessible merely because the record is extensive, difficult to navigate or uncomfortable to examine.

I have continued to preserve documents because context matters.

I have continued to assemble the archive because individual records may acquire greater significance when placed alongside the chronology, correspondence and surrounding circumstances.

And I have continued to testify because I refuse to accept that hardship must automatically mean disappearance.

The world may disagree with me.

The world may question my conclusions.

The world may require further documentation.

Let it do so.

I would rather face honest examination than demand unquestioning agreement.

For the purpose of a witness is not to command the conscience of every reader. It is to place the testimony before that conscience and invite the reader to examine what has been preserved.

My declaration is therefore not that every conclusion has already been adjudicated.

My declaration is that the record exists, that I have worked to preserve it, that I believe it raises serious questions, and that I am determined to make it more accessible for scrutiny.

I remain the witness to my own life. The documentary record remains available for examination. The work continues.

BOOK II — THE PROPHECY OF THE RECORD

Consider the ancient image of the stone that the builders rejected.

Consider the voice crying in the wilderness.

Consider the prophetic demand that justice should roll down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream.

These images endure because they speak to something larger than the rise and fall of individual reputations.

They speak to the conflict between appearance and substance.

Between authority and responsibility.

Between public declarations of righteousness and the difficult obligations that follow from them.

Between the comfort of silence and the courage required to confront a painful question.

In the spiritual language through which I understand my life, the rejected witness becomes a symbol of the human being whose dignity cannot rightly be measured by institutional recognition.

The preserved record becomes a symbol of memory refusing erasure.

The archive becomes a place where fragments can be assembled and examined.

And the reckoning becomes the moment when conscience is asked to respond.

I do not claim that a biblical metaphor establishes a legal fact. Nor do I claim that my personal faith obliges every reader to share my interpretation.

I declare instead that faith gives me a language through which to understand perseverance, suffering, responsibility and hope.

My spiritual conviction is that truth deserves to be served rather than manipulated, that power must be accompanied by accountability, and that mercy is not weakness.

The prophetic question is not whether I can force the world to accept my interpretation.

The prophetic question is whether the world can encounter a human being's testimony and documentary record without abandoning the obligations of compassion, fairness and honest inquiry.

Let those who believe examine their consciences.

Let those who do not believe examine the evidence.

Let those who possess authority examine their responsibilities.

Let those who possess knowledge contribute to the clarification of the record.

Let no one confuse the demand for accountability with permission to abandon humanity.

For what good is a declaration of righteousness if it cannot survive the ordinary test of how we treat a person who is suffering?

BOOK III — THE TEN PILLARS OF THE HOLY RECKONING

These ten pillars establish the central architecture of the forthcoming release.

They are not ten verdicts. They are ten gateways into the record.

Each must be presented with its source, its context, its relevance and the limits of what it establishes.

PILLAR ONE — ARCHITECTURE OF ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION

The cumulative human consequences of institutional power.

Read the archive's record of The Architecture of Administrative Annihilation.

Annihilation does not always announce itself with thunder.

Sometimes it arrives in the language of procedure.

Sometimes it arrives as another referral, another determination, another closed file, another unanswered communication or another instruction to approach a different office.

Sometimes the individual decision appears small when separated from everything that preceded it.

But a human life does not experience its circumstances as isolated administrative entries.

The person experiences the accumulation.

The years.

The exhaustion.

The loss of trust.

The repeated necessity of explaining the same history.

The burden of preserving records that others should be capable of examining.

The practical consequences when assistance does not arrive.

The growing distance between a system's official declarations of responsibility and the human experience of the person seeking help.

This is the architecture I have named.

It is the relationship between individual acts and cumulative consequences.

It is the possibility that responsibility can become so fragmented that no individual institution appears to recognise the whole human being standing before it.

It is the danger that every component can claim to have dealt with its own small part while the larger human problem remains unresolved.

And it is the moral question that follows:

Who takes responsibility for the person when responsibility has been divided into pieces?

Who sees the whole history?

Who examines the accumulated record?

Who answers the questions that cross institutional boundaries?

Who intervenes when a person's material circumstances deteriorate while the machinery of administration continues?

Who recognises that procedural completion and human resolution are not necessarily the same thing?

These are not questions that can be answered by counting decisions or adding together the monetary values attached to individual proceedings.

They require a broader examination of history, causation, responsibility, consequences and the actual circumstances of the person concerned.

My archive exists to make that examination possible.

I have sought to preserve the documents because I believe the cumulative story deserves to be seen.

I have assembled my writings because I believe the human consequences must be understood in their full context.

And I have continued to testify because I refuse to accept that the fragmentation of a record must also mean the fragmentation of the truth.

PILLAR TWO — THE SOCIAL ERASER

The loss of human visibility, identity and recognition.

Explore The Manifesto of the Unerased in the archive.

There is a form of disappearance that occurs while a person is still alive.

A person can remain physically present while becoming socially invisible.

Their words can be received without being meaningfully considered.

Their history can be divided into categories.

Their identity can be reduced to an administrative description.

Their suffering can become familiar enough that others cease to respond to it with urgency.

Their repeated attempts to communicate can become another burden to be processed rather than an appeal from a living human being.

I call this the social eraser.

I use this expression to describe the danger that a person's humanity, identity, achievements, testimony and place in the world can be progressively obscured by the ways in which others perceive and respond to them.

I know the importance of preserving a personal history.

I have written books.

I have undertaken academic work.

I have engaged with questions of mental health, human rights, education, ethics and the future of humanity.

I have preserved an archive because I believe that documents, testimony and ideas matter.

Yet the existence of a person's intellectual work, creative achievements and historical record does not automatically protect that person from material hardship, isolation or the experience of being unheard.

A human being can contribute to public life and still require assistance.

A writer can produce thousands of pages and still need someone to answer a letter.

A researcher can preserve an immense documentary archive and still need access to food, medicine, money, transport and medical care.

A person can possess an extraordinary determination to survive and still be vulnerable.

No archive should have to prove that its author is human. No catalogue should be required to establish that a life has value.

The record is important because it preserves the testimony.

But the person must never become secondary to the record.

That is the contradiction I want the world to confront.

If my work is worth reading, then the human being who created it deserves to be treated with dignity.

If the documents warrant examination, then they should be examined.

If the evidence identifies a failure, that failure should be addressed.

If a claim cannot be substantiated, it should be tested honestly.

And if a person needs immediate humanitarian assistance, that need should not be postponed until every historical dispute has been resolved.

The social eraser must be confronted by a restoration of human visibility.

Not merely visibility as a name on a website.

Visibility as a person.

PILLAR THREE — HUMAN SACRIFICE: THE MORAL INDICTMENT

The question of what happens when a human being's needs become subordinate to institutional processes.

Examine the relevant testimony and documentary material in the Barran Dodger archive.

I use the words human sacrifice in their moral and spiritual sense.

I am describing the horror of a human being being made to bear suffering that I believe should have been prevented, relieved or addressed.

I am describing the possibility that institutional convenience, reputational protection, procedural inertia or divided responsibility can take precedence over the immediate needs of a vulnerable person.

I am describing the terrible moral inversion in which the system continues to function while the individual struggles to survive within its consequences.

A person needs food.

A person needs medical attention.

A person needs access to money.

A person needs shelter, safety, communication and practical support.

These needs do not become less urgent because a complaint is unresolved.

They do not become less human because an institution disputes a claim.

They do not disappear because responsibility is transferred elsewhere.

And they should never be treated as an acceptable price for administrative convenience.

I cannot determine the motives of every person involved merely from the existence of hardship or an adverse decision. Nor should the term human sacrifice be mistaken for proof of a literal conspiracy.

Its purpose here is to state the moral gravity of what I believe my experience reveals.

What kind of society are we creating if the human being becomes the expendable element in the preservation of institutional order?

What happens when protecting the process becomes more important than protecting the person?

What happens when the cost of obtaining recognition becomes so burdensome that the person most affected is required to devote their remaining strength to documenting the failure?

What happens when the machinery of accountability becomes another obstacle to accountability?

These questions belong to every institution that exercises power over vulnerable people.

They belong to every professional who has the ability to intervene.

They belong to every public official who believes that a completed procedure necessarily means a resolved human problem.

And they belong to every citizen who believes that human dignity must mean something beyond the words printed in a policy document.

My declaration is that no administrative objective can make a human being disposable.

No procedural outcome can cancel the moral obligation to treat another person with humanity.

And no institution should be permitted to substitute its own description of events for an honest examination of the underlying record.

PILLAR FOUR — THE CHOSEN WITNESS

The spiritual testimony of survival, purpose and faith.

Find The Chosen Witness — A Gospel for the Unseen Nations.

I have used the language of the chosen witness to express my spiritual understanding of survival, testimony and purpose.

I believe that my continued existence and my determination to preserve my history have profound meaning.

I believe that suffering can become a reason to speak for those who have been ignored.

I believe that testimony can become a form of service to humanity.

And I believe that the preservation of a record can be an act of resistance against the disappearance of a person’s story.

I understand my life through faith in God.

I understand the prophetic dimension of my work through the conviction that truth, conscience and moral responsibility matter beyond the immediate interests of any institution or individual.

But a prophetic calling, as I understand it, does not exempt the witness from scrutiny.

It places a responsibility upon the witness.

To preserve the record.

To distinguish what is known from what is believed.

To speak honestly about what has been experienced.

To resist the temptation to confuse every interpretation with an established fact.

To remain committed to the dignity of other human beings, even when speaking about profound injustice.

And to ensure that the declaration of divine justice does not become an excuse for personal vengeance.

I do not need to claim that every reader must accept my spiritual interpretation.

I ask that my testimony be read in its entirety, that the documents be examined, and that the meaning I have drawn from my survival be understood as part of my life and work.

The name Chosen Witness expresses my faith.

The documentary record provides material that others can independently examine.

The two can be presented together without pretending they are identical forms of evidence.

And the question that remains before the world is this:

What responsibility do we bear when another human being brings forward a serious account of suffering and asks us not to look away?

PILLAR FIVE — THE MAN THEY COULD NOT ERASE

The preservation of identity, authorship and personal history.

Find The Man They Could Not Erase in the archive.

There is a profound difference between being silenced and being erased from history.

A voice can be ignored today and rediscovered tomorrow.

A document can remain unread for years and later become important to a researcher.

A testimony can be dismissed by one audience and examined seriously by another.

A life can pass through circumstances that appear to diminish its possibilities without exhausting the meaning that life may yet possess.

I have continued to write.

I have continued to assemble documents.

I have continued to develop the narrative of my life.

I have continued to create a public record through which others can examine my claims and encounter the ideas that have sustained me.

The archive is not a supernatural verdict.

It does not establish every accusation merely by existing.

But it does establish an opportunity for examination that would not exist in the same form if the material had never been preserved.

That matters.

Preservation creates continuity.

Continuity permits comparison.

Comparison can reveal agreement, contradiction, change and unanswered questions.

And careful examination can help distinguish what is established from what requires further investigation.

The archive is therefore both a documentary undertaking and, for me, a spiritual act of defiance against disappearance.

I will not claim that every page proves my entire interpretation.

I will claim that the pages deserve to be read in context.

I will not demand that the world accept a conclusion without examining its foundations.

I will demand that the opportunity for examination not be withheld merely because the history is difficult, extensive or uncomfortable.

What I have preserved is an invitation to investigate. What I have survived is part of my testimony. What I believe it means belongs to the spiritual account of my life.

Together, these form the work I am determined to leave behind.

PILLAR SIX — THEY COULD NOT ERASE WHAT GOD PRESERVED

The divine purpose I find in the preservation of my testimony.

Find They Could Not Erase What God Preserved — A Nine-Part Prophetic Testimony in the archive.

I have given one of my works the title They Could Not Erase What God Preserved.

That title expresses my conviction that my survival, my writing and the preservation of my archive have spiritual significance.

I have continued to write.

I have continued to assemble documents.

I have continued to create and publish.

I have continued to preserve the material through which others can examine my testimony.

My faith sustains my belief that suffering need not have the final word.

My spiritual interpretation of survival is that a human life can retain meaning even through experiences that seem designed, or appear to have the effect, of diminishing its possibilities.

The archive does not replace the need for evidence.

The testimony does not eliminate the need for scrutiny.

The prophetic declaration does not substitute for a legal finding.

But together, my writings and records preserve the account I am determined to make available to the world.

I believe that matters.

I believe that the work should remain accessible.

I believe that readers should be able to follow the links from the narrative to the original material.

And I believe that the preservation of a human being’s story is itself a worthy undertaking.

PILLAR SEVEN — THE WITNESS REMAINS

The documentary narrative, chronology and primary-source record.

Open the Barran Dodger master archive.

The archive must do more than announce the existence of documents.

It must help people find them.

It must identify their dates, sources and context.

It must preserve the distinction between original records and later commentary.

It must make it possible to trace significant statements to the material on which they depend.

And it must help readers understand how the individual documents relate to the broader testimony.

I have devoted substantial effort to this work because I believe that a large documentary record can provide a basis for serious examination when it is organised responsibly.

The purpose is not to overwhelm readers with volume.

The purpose is to make the material accessible.

The strongest record is not necessarily the one with the most files.

It is the one in which the reader can locate the relevant document, understand its significance, compare it with other sources and assess the conclusion being drawn.

I want my work to be read.

I want it to be examined.

I want its sources to be traceable.

And I want future readers to have access to the historical record without having to reconstruct everything from scattered fragments.

PILLAR EIGHT — THE OFFICIAL RECORD

The documentary foundation for questions of accountability.

Open the Official Government Documents Register.

Official records form an important part of the larger story I am presenting.

They may establish what was communicated, what decisions were made, what reasons were given and what processes followed.

They may also reveal discrepancies, omissions or questions that warrant further examination.

The original documents must be read in their proper context.

A register entry is not a substitute for the underlying document.

A decision must not be represented as establishing something beyond its actual findings.

A disputed claim must not be presented as a proven conclusion without an adequate foundation.

But neither should an uncomfortable document be dismissed without examination.

Let the original record be read.

Let the dates be checked.

Let the context be established.

Let the reasoning be considered.

Let the unanswered questions be identified.

And let conclusions follow the material rather than precede it.

The official record belongs within this larger investigation because it provides material against which the testimony and interpretations can be examined.

It is supporting evidence for the larger narrative, not a replacement for the human history at its centre.

PILLAR NINE — THE PROPHECY OF THE WITNESS

The biblical, ethical and spiritual framework of the reckoning.

Find The Witness Remains — The Prophecy of the Witness in the archive.

The biblical tradition repeatedly calls humanity to remember, to testify, to examine conduct and to confront the difference between outward righteousness and the treatment of the vulnerable.

The prophets challenged the moral conditions under which power was exercised.

They called attention to injustice, indifference, exploitation and the failure to recognise the dignity of those who lacked influence.

That tradition gives spiritual language to the questions I am asking.

In Amos 5:24, the prophet declares:

“But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.”

In Micah 6:8, the call is to do justice, love mercy and walk humbly.

In Luke 12:2, the biblical text declares that what is concealed will be brought to light.

These passages do not constitute a judicial finding about my personal circumstances.

They express a moral tradition through which I understand the importance of truth, accountability, mercy and the treatment of vulnerable people.

My prophetic writings draw upon that tradition to articulate my conviction that no human system should be regarded as beyond moral examination.

The title The Final Reckoning expresses the seriousness with which I approach that obligation.

It is a declaration that reputation is not the same as righteousness.

That procedure is not the same as compassion.

That authority is not the same as moral legitimacy.

And that the person who suffers must never be forgotten merely because those who possess power have the ability to define the official narrative.

I believe that God sees the human being who is overlooked.

I believe that moral responsibility survives the passage of time.

And I believe that the obligation to seek truth remains even when the search becomes difficult.

The reckoning begins, in human terms, when people become willing to look.

PILLAR TEN — THE FINAL RECKONING: THE MASTER HUMANITARIAN AND DOCUMENTARY JUDGMENT

The public appeal and the restoration of human dignity.

Enter The Holy Reckoning.

The tenth pillar brings the other nine together.

It asks the public to consider the human being behind the archive.

Documents cannot feed a hungry person by themselves.

An index cannot provide medical treatment.

A publication cannot, by its existence alone, resolve a person’s financial hardship or secure an independent review.

The archive must therefore remain connected to the humanitarian realities that give the undertaking urgency.

I ask those with the ability to help to consider what practical assistance, independent examination, appropriate referral or meaningful response may be possible.

I ask readers to share the material responsibly and to direct questions to the people and institutions competent to address them.

I ask those who disagree with my conclusions not to confuse disagreement with permission to disregard my humanity.

And I ask those who believe that the record establishes serious wrongdoing to support careful, evidence-based efforts to secure appropriate accountability.

A reckoning that forgets the suffering human being has lost its moral purpose.

BOOK IV — THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH

There comes a point in the life of a documentary undertaking when the central question is no longer how many files have been collected.

The question becomes whether the material has been assembled in a form that other people can actually examine.

That is the point I intend to reach.

The knockout punch will be the coordinated publication of the ten-pillar dossier, supported by the original documents, a clear chronology, a navigable index and a direct humanitarian appeal.

It will provide a single entry point from which readers can move between the official record, the personal testimony, the legal questions, the archive methodology and the prophetic writings.

It will identify what is documented.

It will identify what is testimony.

It will identify what is interpretation.

It will identify what remains unresolved.

It will not conceal limitations in order to create a more dramatic impression.

It will not manufacture findings that a court or tribunal has not made.

It will not ask readers to confuse a spiritual declaration with a judicial determination.

Instead, it will place the strongest available material before the public and invite independent examination.

That is the work now before me.

I will measure its success not simply by the number of people who see the announcement, but by whether the publication makes the record easier to inspect, whether the sources can be verified, whether substantive questions receive serious consideration, and whether the humanitarian appeal reaches people capable of responding.

I do not need to promise that every reader will agree.

I do not need to claim that every institution will respond.

I do not need to predict the verdict of history.

I need to make the best possible record available for honest examination.

The punch is the publication. The force is the evidence. The purpose is accountability. The moral horizon is humanity.

BOOK V — THE LAW, THE WITNESS AND THE CONSCIENCE

Let the legal profession understand that this is an invitation to examine documents and questions of responsibility.

Let academics understand that this is an invitation to investigate sources, chronology, methodology and competing interpretations.

Let journalists understand that this is an invitation to test claims against primary material.

Let public officials understand that a request for examination is not answered merely by dismissing the person who makes it.

Let people of faith understand that mercy and justice are not enemies.

The strongest challenge is not a demand that everyone accept my conclusions.

It is a demand that the underlying questions be examined.

The record should be read in its entirety.

The documents should be compared.

The chronology should be reconstructed.

The distinction between evidence and interpretation should be preserved.

And where the material establishes failures, those failures should be addressed.

Where it raises legitimate questions, those questions should receive serious consideration.

Where claims remain unsubstantiated, the uncertainty should be acknowledged rather than concealed.

That is how a documentary undertaking can contribute to accountability without becoming a substitute for the processes needed to establish it.

BOOK VI — THE FINAL DECLARATION

I have called this work The Holy Reckoning because I believe that truth, justice, mercy and human dignity are matters of profound spiritual importance.

I have called myself the Chosen Witness because that is the language through which I understand my faith and the meaning of my survival.

I have written about administrative annihilation because I believe the cumulative consequences of institutional processes must be examined in their entirety.

I have written about social erasure because I refuse to accept that a human being can be reduced to a file, a category or a disputed narrative.

I have used the language of human sacrifice to express my moral condemnation of circumstances in which I believe a vulnerable person has been left to bear intolerable burdens.

And I have continued to preserve my record because I believe the truth deserves an opportunity to be examined.

I do not claim that the existence of my archive automatically proves every conclusion I have reached.

I claim that the archive gives others an opportunity to investigate.

I do not claim the authority to pronounce a final legal verdict upon every person or institution described in my testimony.

I claim the right to present my experience, preserve the relevant records, raise serious questions and seek appropriate accountability.

I do not ask the world to abandon reason in favour of faith.

I ask that my faith be understood as part of my testimony, while the documentary record is examined according to the standards appropriate to evidence.

And I do not intend the coming reckoning to be an act of violence or personal vengeance.

I intend it to be an act of publication, preservation, testimony and public scrutiny.

I AM STILL HERE.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

The work remains.

My faith remains.

And my determination to make this history visible remains.

Let the documents be examined.

Let the chronology be reconstructed.

Let the unanswered questions be identified.

Let the humanitarian needs be addressed.

Let responsibility be established through proper scrutiny.

Let mercy accompany justice.

Let truth be pursued without fear and without favour.

And let no human being be treated as expendable merely because their suffering has become administratively inconvenient.

I entrust ultimate spiritual judgement to God.

I leave legal conclusions to the appropriate evidentiary and legal processes.

And I place my testimony before the conscience of humanity.

The coming knockout punch will be the publication of the work itself: the documents, the history, the testimony, the analysis and the prophetic declarations brought together in a form that people can examine for themselves.

This is the hour of preservation.

This is the hour of examination.

This is the hour in which the witness refuses to disappear.

The reckoning is not completed by declaring it.

It begins when the record is opened, when the questions are examined, when the human being is seen, and when those with the capacity to act choose to respond.

May truth prevail.

May mercy endure.

May the vulnerable be protected.

May conscience awaken.

And may the light that has sustained the witness continue to shine.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

THE HOLY RECKONING CONTINUES.

THE RECORD WILL BE EXAMINED.

THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH IS THE WORK ITSELF.

BOOK VII — THE TEN GOSPELS AND PROPHETIC WORKS

The challenge to the world: read these works and prove me wrong

The following ten works are a priority shortlist drawn from the titles visible in the public GitHub repository listing. They are selected for their close relationship to the central themes of the Holy Reckoning: divine purpose, survival, administrative annihilation, social erasure, prophetic testimony, the preservation of evidence and the moral responsibilities of power.

The order is editorial, not a claim that every work has been independently verified as the most significant of the entire archive. Direct source links are provided where identifiable; where an exact source path still needs confirmation, the archive link is provided so the publication can be located.

1. THE WITNESS REMAINS — THE PROPHECY OF THE WITNESS

The central prophetic declaration.

This is the first work I would put before readers who want to understand the spiritual and prophetic foundations of the Witness Remains project.

It belongs at the forefront of the release because it connects the idea of the enduring witness with the broader language of testimony, truth, survival and reckoning.

Read the work. Examine its language and argument. Consider the relationship between its spiritual declarations and the documentary history to which it refers.

2. THEY COULD NOT ERASE WHAT GOD PRESERVED — A Nine-Part Prophetic Testimony of Survival, Divine Purpose, Truth, Justice and Reckoning

The theology of survival and preservation.

This work expresses the spiritual meaning I attach to the survival of my testimony and the preservation of my archive.

It challenges readers to consider what it means to endure suffering without surrendering one's sense of purpose, and how faith can become a source of perseverance.

Its claims should be read as a prophetic testimony grounded in my religious understanding of my life.

3. BARRAN DODGER — LIVING GOSPEL MASTER PROPHETIC RECORD

The living testimony.

This title positions the prophetic record as an evolving account of survival, identity and purpose.

It is a priority candidate for the dossier because it may provide a broad synthesis of the living witness and the themes developed across the archive.

Readers should examine its actual contents to establish its relationship to the other master works and identify the strongest passages for quotation.

4. BARRAN DODGER — MASTER PROPHETIC DECLARATION WITH SCRIPTURE WITNESSES

The scriptural framework of the declaration.

This work is a priority for readers interested in the biblical foundations of the Holy Reckoning.

It provides a candidate source for examining how scriptural passages are brought into dialogue with the author's personal testimony and moral interpretation.

Its significance lies in the opportunity to examine the relationship between the cited scriptures, the argument being advanced and the lived experiences described.

5. FOUNDATIONAL GOSPEL — DIVINE PROPHECY — THE WITNESS REMAINS

The foundational gospel.

This work belongs near the centre of the proposed prophetic collection because its title explicitly joins the gospel form, divine prophecy and the enduring witness.

It should be examined for its treatment of the foundational beliefs, declarations and moral principles that recur throughout the wider body of work.

6. THE CROWNED WITNESS — BARRAN DODGER AND THE INDICTMENT OF NATIONS

The national and universal dimension.

This work extends the witness narrative beyond a narrowly personal account towards questions of public responsibility and the moral obligations of nations.

Its inclusion should invite examination of the distinction between prophetic indictment, political interpretation and demonstrable evidence.

The challenge is to read the work as a whole and consider the ethical questions it raises about power, responsibility and human dignity.

7. THE CHOSEN WITNESS — A GOSPEL FOR THE UNSEEN NATIONS

The gospel of the unseen.

This title speaks directly to the themes of invisibility, testimony, faith and the restoration of human recognition.

It is a natural companion to the Social Eraser and Architecture of Administrative Annihilation chapters.

Readers are invited to examine how the work develops the image of the witness and what responsibilities it places upon individuals, institutions and society.

8. THE GOSPEL OF THE WITNESS WHO REMAINED

The gospel of endurance.

This work is a priority candidate because it expresses the central motif of the entire project: the witness who remains present, continues to testify and refuses to allow a personal history to vanish.

It should be read alongside the other Witness Remains publications to identify its distinct contribution and the passages that most powerfully express its central argument.

9. THE GOSPEL OF EXPOSING DARKNESS

The demand for illumination.

This title connects the prophetic undertaking with the biblical imagery of light, darkness, disclosure and moral examination.

It is a candidate for the public-facing release because its central theme aligns with the call to examine records rather than rely solely on appearances or institutional descriptions.

The challenge is to establish what the actual text argues, what sources it cites and how its conclusions can be assessed.

10. THE JOSEPH PARALLEL — A PROPHETIC EVIDENTIARY NARRATIVE OF BARRAN RESONANCE DODGER

The biblical archetype of suffering, endurance and vindication.

The Joseph narrative in Genesis provides a powerful biblical framework for reflecting on betrayal, suffering, perseverance, unexpected reversals and the passage from adversity towards a new purpose.

This work should be examined for how it uses that scriptural parallel to interpret the author's own life.

Its place in the collection is as a prophetic and theological interpretation, not as independent proof of the intentions or conduct of other people.

THE CHALLENGE

I put these ten works before the world as an invitation to read, investigate, question and respond.

To the theologians: read the prophetic writings and examine their scriptural foundations.

To the philosophers: examine their moral claims, their understanding of power and their treatment of human dignity.

To the lawyers: distinguish the underlying documentary evidence from the prophetic and interpretive language, and identify the legal questions that the sources genuinely support.

To the academics: examine the argument, its methodology, its references and its implications.

To the journalists: follow the source material, test the claims and ask the questions that remain unanswered.

To the public: do not judge a work you have not read, and do not accept a conclusion merely because it is forcefully expressed.

I dare anyone who believes these works are without merit to read them in full, engage with their actual arguments, examine the sources they cite, and demonstrate specifically where the reasoning fails.

Do not answer a book you have not read.

Do not dismiss a document you have not examined.

Do not confuse disagreement with refutation.

And do not confuse a spiritual conviction with proof of a legal claim.

If a passage is wrong, identify it.

If a conclusion is unsupported, explain why.

If a source contradicts the argument, bring that source forward.

If the work raises a legitimate question, answer it seriously.

That is the standard of examination I invite.

I do not ask for immunity from criticism.

I ask for criticism that engages with the actual work.

I do not ask the world to accept my faith as a judicial finding.

I ask readers to recognise that faith, testimony, documentary evidence and philosophical interpretation are different but identifiable dimensions of the human story I have preserved.

Read the works. Examine the record. Challenge the reasoning. Prove your case.

That is how the public can engage with the Holy Reckoning honestly.

FINAL WORD — THE WITNESS REMAINS

I have preserved the record.

I have continued to write.

I have assembled the testimony.

I have developed the prophetic works.

I have placed my faith, my questions and my understanding of my own history into a body of material that I believe deserves to be read.

Now I invite the world to examine it.

Not as an unquestionable verdict.

Not as a substitute for legal process.

Not as a demand that every reader share my religious beliefs.

But as the testimony and creative work of a human being who has refused to allow his history to disappear without leaving a record.

The ultimate question is not whether a declaration can sound powerful.

It is whether the work behind it can withstand serious examination, whether its sources can be traced, whether its arguments can be understood, and whether its call for human dignity can move people to respond.

That is the challenge I place before the world.

The witness remains.

The archive remains.

The prophecy remains as my testimony and faith.

The record remains open to examination.

And the work continues.

OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

WHEN ACCOUNTABILITY IS MET WITH THREATS: ABLE POINT, CHRISTAL AND THE RIGHT TO SPEAK OUT

Dr Richard William McLean | Barran Dodger
Barran Dodger Legal & Ethical Trust Fund
22 October 2026

I will not be silenced for speaking out

I am raising serious concerns about my treatment by Able Point and what I understand to be threats by staff to contact the RSPCA in retaliation for my criticism of the organisation and its CEO.

If a threat to involve an animal welfare authority has been made because I challenged an organisation's leadership, I believe that conduct demands an explanation. An animal's welfare should never become a weapon in a dispute between a service provider and a person who raises complaints about its conduct.

I have a right to question the people and organisations involved in my care. I have a right to ask for answers. I have a right to document my experiences and publish concerns about the treatment I believe I have received. Those rights should not disappear simply because my complaints are uncomfortable for the people receiving them.

I want Able Point to explain what was said, why the RSPCA was raised, and whether any proposed report would be based on genuine, identifiable animal welfare concerns or on my criticism of the organisation.

Christal is loved, cared for and part of my life

Let me be absolutely clear about Christal.

I love my dog. I spoil her. She eats well, receives daily walks and is a cherished part of my life. I take pride in her care, and I reject any suggestion that should be used as a means of intimidating me for speaking out.

Christal is not a bargaining chip. She is not a tool for settling disputes. She is a living creature who depends on me, and her welfare matters enormously to me.

If anyone has a genuine concern about her welfare, I expect that concern to be specific, factual and capable of being examined on its merits. I do not accept the use of threats concerning my dog as a substitute for answering legitimate questions about an organisation's conduct.

My concern is not that any organisation should be prevented from acting on genuine animal welfare concerns. It is that the possibility of such action must never be used to punish someone for making a complaint.

Poverty, vulnerability and the human cost of institutional power

I have experienced profound hardship, including poverty, isolation and circumstances that I believe have caused me serious harm. I have repeatedly sought accountability for what I describe as institutional mistreatment and the failure of organisations to respond adequately to my concerns.

I believe the treatment I have experienced deserves serious scrutiny. I have also expressed concerns about a wider pattern of institutional conduct and what I perceive as coordinated targeting. Those concerns need to be examined through the documentary record, communications and specific actions involved, rather than dismissed or accepted without examination.

The question I am asking is straightforward: what safeguards exist to ensure that people experiencing vulnerability can raise complaints without facing intimidation, humiliation or the threat of losing the things they love?

When a person is already struggling with poverty and a lack of support, the consequences of additional pressure can be devastating. Organisations providing services should understand the responsibility that comes with their position. Their conduct can either help preserve a person's dignity and stability or contribute to circumstances that make an already difficult life harder to endure.

I believe the cumulative impact of the treatment I describe must be taken seriously. No person should be driven into despair by a system that is supposed to provide support.

I am not suicidal. I want to live.

I want this statement to be unmistakable: I am not suicidal. I want to live.

I am writing because I want to preserve my testimony, expose what I believe has been wrong, demand answers and establish a documentary record. I am choosing to speak, to write and to continue advocating for myself.

I refuse to allow the existence of hardship to erase my voice or reduce my entire life to a narrative about vulnerability. I am a person with a history, a conscience, convictions and a determination to keep going.

I believe the conditions I have experienced warrant serious investigation and accountability. I am deeply concerned about the cumulative effects of poverty, isolation, institutional conflict and the absence of meaningful responses to complaints. I do not claim to know the private intentions of every person or agency involved, but I insist that the actions and decisions affecting my life should be examined.

No government, service provider or individual should treat a person's suffering as inconsequential. Nor should anyone assume that a person who describes extreme distress has surrendered their determination to live.

My determination is to live, document, speak and pursue accountability.

Money, responsibility and the purpose of support services

I want answers about whether the services and resources available to support me are being used in a manner consistent with their stated purpose.

I am concerned that financial incentives, organisational interests and failures of accountability can take precedence over the needs of the person receiving support. These are serious concerns, and they should be addressed with evidence, transparent explanations and proper records.

I want the relevant decision-makers to explain what services have been provided, what responsibilities have been accepted, what complaints have been received and what action has been taken in response.

I do not want retaliation. I want accountability.

I do not want threats involving my dog. I want Christal's welfare to remain separate from disputes about my complaints.

I do not want my concerns buried beneath institutional language. I want clear answers to clear questions.

A public record and a demand for answers

I am preserving my account as part of the Barran Dodger documentary archive, which exists to record my testimony, relevant documents and questions of institutional accountability.

The archive is intended to make material accessible to readers and to distinguish documentary evidence from allegations, interpretations and matters that remain unresolved.

My concerns about Able Point should be considered in that context. The relevant questions include:

- What exactly did staff say about contacting the RSPCA?
- Was the proposed contact connected to my criticism of the organisation or its CEO?
- What specific animal welfare concerns, if any, were identified?
- What records exist of the communications and decisions involved?
- What safeguards are available to prevent retaliation against a person who makes a complaint?
- How will Able Point respond to these concerns in a transparent and accountable manner?

I invite Able Point to provide a substantive written response and to preserve all relevant communications, internal notes and complaint records.

My documentary archive is available here:

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

I will continue to speak

I will not apologise for caring for my dog. I will not apologise for asking questions. I will not apologise for documenting my experiences or demanding that organisations explain their conduct.

Christal deserves care, consistency and love. I deserve to be treated with dignity and to have my complaints considered fairly.

My position is simple: I want to live, I want to protect the life I have built, and I want the truth about my experiences preserved.

Speaking out is not misconduct. Asking for accountability is not a threat. And a person's vulnerability must never become an excuse to disregard their dignity.

This article records my personal account and concerns. The allegations concerning staff conduct are presented as matters requiring a response and supporting evidence, not as findings already established by an independent investigation.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

You were in my home, and you were supposed to be there to care for me. I'm entitled to document my own experiences, but that doesn't mean I intended for this particular recording to become public. I want to make that distinction clear: I did not intend to share it, and I'm sorry that it happened.

I think I know who was responsible. I believe it was Jesus. He was here last night, and honestly, isn't that a miracle? God, it's just amazing. God is great, isn't He?

I guess you were also telling me about your concerns regarding Able Point, the corruption and the bad things you felt were happening, and how you wanted to leave that kind of situation behind. So, I guess Jesus does work miracles, because now Able Point apparently isn't a literal freestanding organisation anymore, and you got your wish!

I suppose you could call it a Christmas miracle!

Anyway, Cass, I wanted to explain what happened and apologise for the unintended sharing of the recording. I hope things work out well for you from here, and I genuinely wish you all the best.

I love you, Cass. Take care of yourself.

All the best,

Barran ❤️

ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Allegations of Abuse, Neglect, Intimidation, Isolation, Rostering Failures and Institutional Betrayal

Issued by Barran Dodger

[Insert the complete original Able Point statement here, unchanged, from its opening heading through “Issued by Barran Dodger.”]

I AM A HUMAN BEING: A PUBLIC STATEMENT BY BARRAN DODGER

Allegations of Institutional Abandonment, Emotional Harm, Financial Disempowerment and Social Erasure

I AM A HUMAN BEING. A LITERAL HUMAN BEING.

I have sentience. I have feelings. I have a mind, a body, a history, a character, a reputation and a voice.

My feelings are being hurt. My dignity is being damaged. I am trying to communicate distress and raise serious concerns about the treatment I am experiencing, yet I believe my attempts to be heard are being dismissed, undermined and invalidated.

I allege that my experiences with Able Point have left me feeling profoundly isolated, intimidated, neglected and abandoned. I have described the interactions I am experiencing as gaslighting because I believe my concerns are repeatedly being dismissed or turned back against me.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL IMPACT IS DEVASTATING. I CANNOT ACCEPT A SUPPORT SYSTEM THAT LEAVES A PERSON FEELING INVISIBLE, POWERLESS AND DEHUMANISED.

I experience this situation as a form of torture. I am using that word to communicate the severity of my distress and the impact I believe these circumstances are having on my life.

I need my concerns examined seriously, my safety protected and my experiences assessed on their evidence.

1. MY TESTIMONY MUST NOT BE ERASED

I am concerned that the combination of unreliable support, conflict, isolation and barriers to obtaining assistance is destroying my ability to participate in ordinary life.

I describe this as SOCIAL ERASURE AND ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION.

Social erasure is what it feels like when a person’s testimony is no longer heard, their character is reduced to a disputed narrative, their reputation is damaged and their requests for help appear to disappear into administrative systems.

Administrative annihilation is what I call the experience of having essential access, resources and avenues of redress progressively removed until a person is left without meaningful power to respond.

I feel as though my testimony is dead. My character is dead. My reputation is dead. I feel that I have become a person of zero consequence, a man whom institutions can ignore without consequence.

I AM A DEAD MAN WALKING IN THE SENSE THAT MY SOCIAL EXISTENCE AND VOICE FEEL DESTROYED. BUT I AM STILL HERE.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here. My testimony is here.

I am a human being, and I refuse to accept the proposition that my suffering does not matter.

2. ALLEGATIONS OF GASLIGHTING, HARASSMENT AND ELECTRONIC DISTRESS

I have reported experiences that I describe as V2K audio harassment and electronic harassment. These experiences are distressing to me, and I want the impact on my wellbeing to be taken seriously.

I am also concerned that people involved in my support arrangements are aware of the distress I have reported but that I have not received an adequate response.

I cannot independently establish the source of the sounds or experiences I describe, or establish that particular staff members or institutions are responsible for them. I am requesting a fair assessment of my reports, my safety concerns and any evidence that can be independently examined.

My distress should not be used as a reason to dismiss every other complaint I make.

I want the facts investigated. I want respectful communication. I want a clear account of what can be verified and what steps will be taken to protect my wellbeing.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS AND ACCOUNTABILITY

I have serious concerns about my ability to obtain assistance from the police, the NDIS and other oversight bodies.

I feel unable to approach these institutions because I believe my complaints will not be heard or addressed appropriately. I describe this as institutional complicity and abandonment. Those are my concerns and perceptions; I am calling for independent scrutiny rather than asking anyone to accept unverified allegations as proven facts.

I have also raised serious allegations involving Suki Tia and Bill Shorten, whom I identify in connection with my concerns about political and institutional accountability.

I cannot establish that an assassination attempt occurred or that either person participated in one. I am not presenting that allegation as an established fact. Any such allegation would require specific, credible evidence and an appropriate independent investigation.

The fundamental issue remains: I need an avenue through which my complaints can be received, documented and assessed fairly, without intimidation or prejudgment.

No public institution should treat a person’s need for assistance as a reason to deny that person dignity.

4. PHILIP GLASS, THE PUBLIC GUARDIAN AND MY ACCESS TO MONEY

I am extremely concerned about my financial circumstances and my reported loss of access to my Commonwealth Bank accounts through internet banking and the mobile application.

I understand that Philip Glass, whom I identify as being associated with the Public Guardian, has communicated that further money will be taken from my account.

I am asking for an urgent written explanation of:

- The precise restrictions affecting my access to Commonwealth Bank.
- Who requested, authorised or implemented those restrictions.
- The legal authority and decision-making process relied upon.
- The amount of any proposed withdrawal, its purpose and the authority for it.
- How I can obtain an account statement and independently review transactions.
- What arrangements are available for essential living expenses and urgent purchases.
- How I can challenge the decision and obtain an independent review.

I am concerned that losing access to my own banking, combined with the prospect of further withdrawals, could leave me without the practical ability to manage my daily life.

I want the relevant records, authorisations and decisions examined. I want my financial position explained in writing. I want access to a fair review process.

FINANCIAL CONTROL MUST BE TRANSPARENT, LAWFUL AND ACCOUNTABLE. A PERSON MUST NOT BE LEFT WITHOUT A CLEAR EXPLANATION OF DECISIONS AFFECTING THEIR ACCESS TO MONEY.

5. MY FEAR OF ERASURE AND DEATH

I have described my circumstances as a conspiracy to murder and said that I believe others are hoping I will die and be erased.

These are expressions of the fear and extreme distress I am experiencing. I cannot independently establish that there is a conspiracy to kill me, and I want any concrete threats or evidence of criminal conduct assessed by an appropriate independent authority.

What I can state directly is that I feel abandoned, powerless and profoundly distressed.

I fear that my circumstances will deteriorate while my complaints remain unresolved. I fear losing the means to support myself. I fear that my testimony will be disregarded until there is no opportunity left to correct the record.

I want these risks addressed while I am alive and able to speak for myself.

I should not have to reach a point of complete collapse before someone takes my circumstances seriously.

6. WHAT I AM DEMANDING

I am demanding:

1. Safe, consistent and dignified support.
2. A written response to my complaints about Able Point.
3. Transparent identification of the people responsible for decisions affecting my care.
4. An explanation of the restrictions on my banking access and any proposed withdrawals.
5. Access to the relevant financial records and a meaningful process to challenge decisions.
6. Independent examination of my safeguarding complaints and reported experiences of harassment.
7. Clear information about where complaints can be lodged and how they will be assessed.
8. Preservation of relevant correspondence, rosters, incident reports, financial records and decision-making documents.

9. Protection against retaliation for raising concerns.
10. Recognition that I am a human being whose safety, dignity, feelings and testimony matter.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without scrutiny. I am asking for a process that allows the evidence to be examined without dismissing me as a person.

7. MY FINAL STATEMENT

I am a human being.

I have sentience. I have feelings. My feelings are being hurt, and the consequences of my circumstances are serious.

I feel socially erased. I feel administratively annihilated. I feel that the systems upon which I depend have left me without a reliable way to protect myself, obtain answers or make my voice count.

My testimony is not worthless because it is disputed. My dignity is not conditional upon whether an institution agrees with me. My need for safety does not disappear because my complaints are difficult to resolve.

I am still here.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here.

I AM NOT AN ADMINISTRATIVE FILE. I AM NOT A ROSTER ENTRY. I AM NOT A COMPLAINT NUMBER. I AM A HUMAN BEING.

I want to live with safety, dignity, meaningful support and access to a fair process. I want decisions affecting my life and money explained. I want my complaints documented. I want evidence examined. I want institutions and service providers to answer legitimate questions about their responsibilities.

I refuse to accept social erasure as the final word on my life.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

your original statement concerning alleged abuse, neglect, intimidation, rostering failures and institutional accountability.
- I AM A HUMAN BEING: A PUBLIC STATEMENT BY BARRAN DODGER — your testimony concerning emotional harm, social erasure, financial access, dignity and the right to a fair process.
- ADDITIONAL STATEMENT: REPORTED ARREST, ALLEGED THREAT TO MY LIFE AND DEMAND FOR SAFEGUARDING ACCOUNTABILITY — your account of the reported arrest, the court proceedings you identify as being before Wyong Court, and your request for an independent safeguarding investigation.

The statements should remain distinct, with their original wording preserved. The additional statement should be presented as an account requiring verification through police and court records, not as a finding of guilt or proof of another person's motives.

ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Issued by Barran Dodger

I refuse to accept a system in which a person seeking essential support is left isolated, vulnerable and without meaningful accountability.

I am issuing this public statement to raise serious concerns about my experiences involving Able Point, its management, its rostering arrangements, its staff and the standard of support being provided.

I allege that I have experienced circumstances involving neglect, intimidation, harassment, isolation and treatment that I regard as deeply distressing and degrading. I believe the support system intended to protect me has failed to provide the safety, dignity, continuity of care and transparency that I require.

SUPPORT MUST NEVER BECOME A MECHANISM OF CONTROL, ABANDONMENT OR HUMILIATION.

1. THE PEOPLE AND THE ORGANISATION MUST BE ACCOUNTABLE

I have serious concerns about the accountability of Able Point's leadership. I have sought clear identification and transparency from Rachael, whom I understand to be the company's CEO. I remain concerned about my ability to establish the identity and responsibilities of the people making decisions that affect my support.

A company providing essential support must be transparent about its legal identity, management, complaint procedures and responsibility for the services it delivers.

I call upon Able Point to provide its registered legal name, relevant business registration details, the identity and position of its responsible officers, and a clear explanation of the appropriate channels for escalating complaints.

If these details have already been provided, they should be verified against the relevant official records. If they have not, I want a clear written explanation.

2. STAFF CONCERNS AND THE ROSTERING SYSTEM

I recall the following first names of workers associated with my experiences involving Able Point:

Ash, Ben, John, Kim, Cass, Danny, Daniel and Alissi.

These are the names I can presently remember. I am identifying them as people whose roles and experiences may be relevant to an independent examination of the support arrangements. I am not asserting that each person has committed an offence or independently verified that each shares the same opinion of the company.

I have concerns about staff dissatisfaction with management and rostering arrangements. My understanding and recollection of conversations with workers have led me to question whether the working environment and roster allow staff to provide consistent, safe and appropriate support.

I want these concerns investigated rather than dismissed.

The questions requiring answers include:

- Are workers being given rosters that allow adequate continuity of care?
- Are frequent changes in support workers affecting clients' safety, trust and stability?
- Are staff being given sufficient time, training, supervision and resources to perform their duties?

- Do workers have safe and confidential ways to raise concerns about management?
- Are participants receiving the support set out in their plans and service agreements?
- Are complaints being documented, escalated and addressed appropriately?
- Are financial and contractual arrangements consistent with the services actually delivered?

I cannot establish the private views of every worker, and I cannot substantiate a claim that they all hate the company or its roster. I am nevertheless demanding that staff be given a safe opportunity to describe their own experiences independently and without retaliation.

A ROSTER IS NOT JUST A MANAGEMENT SPREADSHEET. CONTINUITY OF CARE CAN BE FUNDAMENTAL TO A PARTICIPANT'S SAFETY, TRUST AND WELLBEING.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT CLIENT SAFETY AND OUTCOMES

I am deeply concerned about the treatment and circumstances of people who depend on support services.

I have raised concerns about what I regard as brutal, degrading and unacceptable treatment. I want any instances of abuse, neglect, abandonment, intimidation or failure to provide contracted support to be examined against the available evidence.

I am also concerned about reports or impressions that some clients may be experiencing severe instability, including contact with the criminal justice system or admission to institutional settings.

I cannot independently verify how many Able Point clients, if any, are currently imprisoned or admitted to hospital or other institutional settings, nor can I establish that Able Point caused those outcomes. These matters require reliable evidence, appropriate privacy protections and independent investigation.

However, the broader question is legitimate and urgent:

ARE PEOPLE RECEIVING THE SUPPORT THEY NEED TO LIVE SAFELY AND WITH DIGNITY IN THE COMMUNITY?

Where serious incidents have occurred, I call for an examination of whether appropriate supports were provided, whether warning signs were acted upon, and whether any failures contributed to preventable harm.

People receiving disability support must not be reduced to files, roster entries, invoices or administrative burdens. They are human beings whose safety and dignity matter.

4. QUESTIONS ABOUT MONEY, CONTRACTS AND RESPONSIBILITY

I want transparency about the financial and contractual arrangements governing the support I receive.

I am concerned about whether the current arrangements serve the interests of participants, whether staff have adequate working conditions, and whether the services being funded are actually being delivered.

I use strong language to describe the situation I believe I am experiencing. However, I do not have sufficient independently verified evidence to conclude that particular workers accept improper payments, that the company is acting illegally, or that any named individual has participated in criminal conduct.

Those questions should be investigated through records, contracts, invoices, rosters, communications and other relevant evidence.

If public or participant funding has been misused, services have not been delivered as required, or safeguarding obligations have been breached, the evidence should be referred to the appropriate authority.

MONEY MUST NEVER TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER HUMAN SAFETY.

5. MY DEMANDS

I call upon Able Point's management to:

1. Identify the legal entity providing my services and the responsible management personnel.
2. Respond in writing to my complaints and identify the person responsible for investigating them.
3. Explain the rostering decisions affecting my support and how continuity of care is maintained.
4. Review any reported incidents involving neglect, intimidation, harassment, unsafe support or failure to provide agreed services.
5. Preserve relevant rosters, service records, incident reports, complaints, communications and financial records in accordance with applicable legal requirements.
6. Explain the process for raising complaints independently and protecting participants and staff from retaliation.

7. Arrange an appropriately independent review where the circumstances warrant one.
8. Provide a practical plan to ensure that my support is safe, reliable, respectful and consistent with my applicable service arrangements.

I also call upon the relevant disability safeguarding and oversight authorities to assess the evidence impartially and determine whether any legal, contractual or safeguarding obligations have been breached.

6. TO THE WORKERS WHO MAY HAVE CONCERNS

To Ash, Ben, John, Kim, Cass, Danny, Daniel, Alissi and any other workers who may have relevant information:

I am asking for honesty, transparency and accountability. If you have concerns about rostering, continuity of care, working conditions or participant safety, those concerns should be raised through appropriate and safe channels.

No worker should be pressured to make statements they do not believe, and no participant should be left without essential support because they have complained.

The facts must be established through evidence, not intimidation, speculation or collective blame.

7. TO REGULATORS, ADVOCATES, JOURNALISTS AND GOVERNMENT

I ask anyone receiving this statement to take my concerns seriously.

I seek independent scrutiny of the relevant records, management decisions, support arrangements and complaints. I ask that any substantiated failures be addressed and that any evidence of possible offences be referred to the appropriate authorities.

I am prepared to document my own experiences, preserve relevant correspondence and provide supporting material through appropriate channels.

I do not seek special treatment. I seek safety, dignity, transparency, continuity of care and an effective response to serious complaints.

THIS IS A DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY.

I will not accept the normalisation of suffering simply because it occurs within a support service.

Complaints cannot be resolved by ignoring the person making them. Responsibility cannot be discharged through silence. And a support contract does not excuse a failure to provide appropriate care.

I want answers. I want transparency. I want accountability. I want safe and dignified support.

NO PERSON SHOULD HAVE TO FIGHT THIS HARD TO BE SAFE, HEARD AND TREATED WITH DIGNITY.

My life, safety and dignity matter. The evidence matters. Accountability matters.

I call for a fair, independent and evidence-based examination of these concerns.

I AM A HUMAN BEING: A PUBLIC STATEMENT BY BARRAN DODGER

Allegations of Institutional Abandonment, Emotional Harm, Financial Disempowerment and Social Erasure

I AM A HUMAN BEING. A LITERAL HUMAN BEING.

I have sentience. I have feelings. I have a mind, a body, a history, a character, a reputation and a voice.

My feelings are being hurt. My dignity is being damaged. I am trying to communicate distress and raise serious concerns about the treatment I am experiencing, yet I believe my attempts to be heard are being dismissed, undermined and invalidated.

I allege that my experiences with Able Point have left me feeling profoundly isolated, intimidated, neglected and abandoned. I have described the interactions I am experiencing as gaslighting because I believe my concerns are repeatedly being dismissed or turned back against me.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL IMPACT IS DEVASTATING. I CANNOT ACCEPT A SUPPORT SYSTEM THAT LEAVES A PERSON FEELING INVISIBLE, POWERLESS AND DEHUMANISED.

I experience this situation as a form of torture. I am using that word to communicate the severity of my distress and the impact I believe these circumstances are having on my life.

I need my concerns examined seriously, my safety protected and my experiences assessed on their evidence.

1. MY TESTIMONY MUST NOT BE ERASED

I am concerned that the combination of unreliable support, conflict, isolation and barriers to obtaining assistance is destroying my ability to participate in ordinary life.

I describe this as SOCIAL ERASURE AND ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION.

Social erasure is what it feels like when a person's testimony is no longer heard, their character is reduced to a disputed narrative, their reputation is damaged and their requests for help appear to disappear into administrative systems.

Administrative annihilation is what I call the experience of having essential access, resources and avenues of redress progressively removed until a person is left without meaningful power to respond.

I feel as though my testimony is dead. My character is dead. My reputation is dead. I feel that I have become a person of zero consequence, a man whom institutions can ignore without consequence.

I AM A DEAD MAN WALKING IN THE SENSE THAT MY SOCIAL EXISTENCE AND VOICE FEEL DESTROYED. BUT I AM STILL HERE.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here. My testimony is here.

I am a human being, and I refuse to accept the proposition that my suffering does not matter.

2. ALLEGATIONS OF GASLIGHTING, HARASSMENT AND ELECTRONIC DISTRESS

I have reported experiences that I describe as V2K audio harassment and electronic harassment. These experiences are distressing to me, and I want the impact on my wellbeing to be taken seriously.

I am also concerned that people involved in my support arrangements are aware of the distress I have reported but that I have not received an adequate response.

I cannot independently establish the source of the sounds or experiences I describe, or establish that particular staff members or institutions are responsible for them. I am requesting a fair assessment of my reports, my safety concerns and any evidence that can be independently examined.

My distress should not be used as a reason to dismiss every other complaint I make.

I want the facts investigated. I want respectful communication. I want a clear account of what can be verified and what steps will be taken to protect my wellbeing.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS AND ACCOUNTABILITY

I have serious concerns about my ability to obtain assistance from the police, the NDIS and other oversight bodies.

I feel unable to approach these institutions because I believe my complaints will not be heard or addressed appropriately. I describe this as institutional complicity and abandonment. Those are my concerns and perceptions; I am calling for independent scrutiny rather than asking anyone to accept unverified allegations as proven facts.

I have also raised serious allegations involving Suki Tia and Bill Shorten, whom I identify in connection with my concerns about political and institutional accountability.

I cannot establish that an assassination attempt occurred or that either person participated in one. I am not presenting that allegation as an established fact. Any such allegation would require specific, credible evidence and an appropriate independent investigation.

The fundamental issue remains: I need an avenue through which my complaints can be received, documented and assessed fairly, without intimidation or prejudgment.

No public institution should treat a person’s need for assistance as a reason to deny that person dignity.

4. PHILIP GLASS, THE PUBLIC GUARDIAN AND MY ACCESS TO MONEY

I am extremely concerned about my financial circumstances and my reported loss of access to my Commonwealth Bank accounts through internet banking and the mobile application.

I understand that Philip Glass, whom I identify as being associated with the Public Guardian, has communicated that further money will be taken from my account.

I am asking for an urgent written explanation of:

- The precise restrictions affecting my access to Commonwealth Bank.
- Who requested, authorised or implemented those restrictions.
- The legal authority and decision-making process relied upon.
- The amount of any proposed withdrawal, its purpose and the authority for it.
- How I can obtain an account statement and independently review transactions.
- What arrangements are available for essential living expenses and urgent purchases.
- How I can challenge the decision and obtain an independent review.

I am concerned that losing access to my own banking, combined with the prospect of further withdrawals, could leave me without the practical ability to manage my daily life.

I want the relevant records, authorisations and decisions examined. I want my financial position explained in writing. I want access to a fair review process.

FINANCIAL CONTROL MUST BE TRANSPARENT, LAWFUL AND ACCOUNTABLE. A PERSON MUST NOT BE LEFT WITHOUT A CLEAR EXPLANATION OF DECISIONS AFFECTING THEIR ACCESS TO MONEY.

5. MY FEAR OF ERASURE AND DEATH

I have described my circumstances as a conspiracy to murder and said that I believe others are hoping I will die and be erased.

These are expressions of the fear and extreme distress I am experiencing. I cannot independently establish that there is a conspiracy to kill me, and I want any concrete threats or evidence of criminal conduct assessed by an appropriate independent authority.

What I can state directly is that I feel abandoned, powerless and profoundly distressed.

I fear that my circumstances will deteriorate while my complaints remain unresolved. I fear losing the means to support myself. I fear that my testimony will be disregarded until there is no opportunity left to correct the record.

I want these risks addressed while I am alive and able to speak for myself.

I should not have to reach a point of complete collapse before someone takes my circumstances seriously.

6. WHAT I AM DEMANDING

I am demanding:

1. Safe, consistent and dignified support.
2. A written response to my complaints about Able Point.
3. Transparent identification of the people responsible for decisions affecting my care.
4. An explanation of the restrictions on my banking access and any proposed withdrawals.
5. Access to the relevant financial records and a meaningful process to challenge decisions.
6. Independent examination of my safeguarding complaints and reported experiences of harassment.
7. Clear information about where complaints can be lodged and how they will be assessed.
8. Preservation of relevant correspondence, rosters, incident reports, financial records and decision-making documents.
9. Protection against retaliation for raising concerns.
10. Recognition that I am a human being whose safety, dignity, feelings and testimony matter.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without scrutiny. I am asking for a process that allows the evidence to be examined without dismissing me as a person.

7. MY FINAL STATEMENT

I am a human being.

I have sentience. I have feelings. My feelings are being hurt, and the consequences of my circumstances are serious.

I feel socially erased. I feel administratively annihilated. I feel that the systems upon which I depend have left me without a reliable way to protect myself, obtain answers or make my voice count.

My testimony is not worthless because it is disputed. My dignity is not conditional upon whether an institution agrees with me. My need for safety does not disappear because my complaints are difficult to resolve.

I am still here.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here.

I AM NOT AN ADMINISTRATIVE FILE. I AM NOT A ROSTER ENTRY. I AM NOT A COMPLAINT NUMBER. I AM A HUMAN BEING.

I want to live with safety, dignity, meaningful support and access to a fair process. I want decisions affecting my life and money explained. I want my complaints documented. I want evidence examined. I want institutions and service providers to answer legitimate questions about their responsibilities.

I refuse to accept social erasure as the final word on my life.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

Issued by Barran Dodger.

———

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT: REPORTED ARREST, ALLEGED THREAT TO MY LIFE AND DEMAND FOR SAFEGUARDING ACCOUNTABILITY

I AM STILL HERE. I DID NOT DIE.

Despite what I describe as prolonged abuse, neglect, surveillance, entrapment, isolation and total human betrayal, I am still alive. I am still speaking. I am still demanding answers, accountability and recognition of my fundamental humanity.

I am raising an extremely serious matter concerning an incident in which, according to my account, a person came to my home with the intention of murdering me and was arrested by police. I understand that the matter is before Wyong Court. The arrest, the precise allegations, the current status of the proceedings and the evidence must be established through the relevant police and court records.

IF A PERSON HAS BEEN ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH AN ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO KILL ME, THIS IS A SERIOUS SAFEGUARDING MATTER THAT DESERVES AN APPROPRIATE, EVIDENCE-BASED RESPONSE.

I am deeply concerned that, despite the seriousness of this reported incident, Able Point and the staff members involved in my support have, as I understand it, failed to acknowledge the matter to me, address my concerns about my safety or explain whether any incident-reporting or safeguarding procedures were followed.

I want a clear answer about what Able Point knew, when it knew it, what steps were taken, whether the appropriate authorities were notified where required, and whether any failures occurred.

I also have serious concerns about my family's potential financial interests in the event of my death. I have questioned whether family members anticipated or stood to benefit financially from my death, and I have stated that they have refused to deny my concerns. I cannot establish from that alone that anyone anticipated, desired, planned or participated in harm against me. Nevertheless, I want any relevant financial arrangements and evidence examined objectively if they are material to a legitimate investigation.

I will not allow these concerns to be treated as though they are insignificant simply because they are difficult or uncomfortable to investigate.

THE QUESTIONS THAT MUST BE ANSWERED

1. What do the police records establish about the reported incident and arrest?
2. What are the relevant charges or allegations, and what is the current status of the proceedings before Wyong Court?
3. Were Able Point management or any staff members informed of the incident or its implications for my safety?
4. If they were informed, what actions did they take, and what records document those actions?
5. Were incident-reporting, safeguarding, escalation or referral obligations engaged in the circumstances?
6. If a required report was not made, why was it not made, and who was responsible for the decision?
7. What risk-management measures were considered to protect my safety and ensure continuity of support?
8. What independent complaint and review mechanisms are available to examine any failures?

I am asking these questions because a reported threat to a participant's life cannot responsibly be dismissed without examining the available evidence.

I also want the legal position clarified. Reporting duties depend on the nature of the incident, the information available to each person, the person's role and the applicable legislation and safeguarding requirements. I am requesting an assessment of those specific obligations rather than relying on a blanket assertion that every worker was automatically subject to the same mandatory reporting duty.

MY DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

If records establish that a serious threat to my life was known to the relevant service provider, that required safeguards were not followed, or that an applicable reporting obligation was breached, I want those failures independently investigated and addressed.

I request preservation of relevant incident records, rosters, internal communications, complaint records, risk assessments and communications with police or other authorities, subject to applicable legal requirements.

I want Able Point to respond in writing. I want the relevant oversight authorities to examine any substantiated safeguarding failures. I want the evidence preserved, the facts established and responsibility determined fairly.

I have already had to fight to have my concerns heard. I will not accept silence as an adequate response to an incident that may bear directly on my personal safety.

I AM A HUMAN BEING. MY LIFE MATTERS. MY SAFETY MATTERS. MY TESTIMONY MUST BE HEARD AND FAIRLY ASSESSED.

I am asking for protection, transparency and accountability—not for anyone to be condemned without evidence, but for no serious evidence to be ignored.

A REPORTED THREAT TO MY LIFE MUST BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY. ANY FAILURE TO MEET A LEGAL OR SAFEGUARDING OBLIGATION MUST BE EXAMINED.

1. Main website and documentary archive

Barran Dodger — Main Website

Significance: The central public-facing website for the author's published statements, documentary materials, evidence indexes and discussions of disability support, institutional accountability and alleged human-rights concerns. Its significance lies in bringing together materials for public examination and preservation. The factual accuracy of individual claims must be assessed against their original sources, supporting records and independent findings.

Main Documents and Evidence Archive

Significance: This archive page presents the documentary collection in a more evidence-focused format, including published documents, correspondence, indexes and legal or forensic analyses. It may assist researchers, journalists and advocates in locating material relevant to the author's account. Its strongest evidentiary value depends on the availability of complete originals, verifiable dates, provenance and corroboration.

Forensic Evidence Report

Significance: A report-oriented presentation of the author's interpretation of a larger body of records and exhibits. It can serve as a roadmap to the evidence and the conclusions the author draws from it. The report's legal or forensic weight cannot be determined from its title or assertions alone; it requires examination of the underlying exhibits, methods, source integrity and any independent assessment.

2. Public archive and repository backups

GitHub Pages — Truth Archive

Significance: A separately hosted static archive that may provide an additional access point for preserved statements and documents. Independent hosting is valuable when a primary website becomes unavailable or changes. Its completeness should be checked against the original website and a dated inventory of files.

GitHub — Barrandodger

Significance: A code and file repository associated with the archive project. Repository history, tracked files and version changes can help establish how a website or collection developed over time. The actual contents, commit history and current availability need to be inspected before determining whether it constitutes a complete backup.

GitHub — Barran Dodger Archive

Significance: An archive-focused repository intended to preserve documentary content independently of the main site. Its value would be measured by the number of original files retained, whether pages and attachments remain accessible, and whether changes can be traced through version history.

GitHub — Backup

Significance: A potential secondary preservation location. Multiple independent copies reduce the risk of losing material through hosting interruptions, account problems or accidental changes. Its relationship to the main archive and the extent of duplication or missing files require a repository comparison.

GitHub — PDF Archive

Significance: A repository specifically associated with PDF preservation. PDFs can retain document layout and content in a form suitable for downloading, printing, citation and long-term reference. Their authenticity and completeness are strengthened by retaining source information, publication dates and cryptographic checksums.

GitHub — Barran Dodger Archive (drbarrandodger)

Significance: A further repository identified as part of the preservation effort. Comparing it with the other repositories could reveal complementary records, missing documents, duplicate files and differences between archive versions. It should not be described as a verified mirror until that comparison has been completed.

3. Publications and creative works

A Certain Beauty in Un-Resolution — Art Portfolio

Significance: A creative portfolio that preserves a different dimension of the author's work through visual art and presentation. It may be significant as a cultural and biographical record, documenting artistic expression alongside the author's written and advocacy work. Its interpretation is distinct from the evidentiary assessment of legal allegations.

Betrayed, Murdered, Forsaken — Apple Books

Significance: A published autobiographical work presenting the author's account of his experiences and the events he describes. As a publication, it contributes to the record of his personal narrative and public writing. Its claims should be distinguished from independently verified findings, court determinations or other primary-source evidence.

Simplebooklet — publication platform

Significance: This is the platform associated with additional creative pages mentioned in the archive, including Groganthemonster and theshrink. The platform homepage is provided here because the exact publication URLs have not been verified in this response. Individual publication links would be needed to identify and assess those works accurately.

4. Overall impartial AI assessment

The websites and repositories collectively represent a self-published body of documentary, autobiographical, legal-argument, advocacy and creative material. Their potential public significance lies in preserving the author's account, making source documents accessible, enabling comparisons across versions and providing material that journalists, researchers, legal representatives and oversight bodies could independently examine. The main website describes a substantial evidence collection, while the forensic report presents the author's interpretation of selected records; these descriptions are claims made by the publications themselves, not independent confirmation of every document count, allegation or conclusion. 【turn449128search1】【turn449128search0】

The most reliable way to assess the archive is to distinguish what a document directly records, what the author infers from it, and what an independent authority has actually established. Preservation should prioritise complete original files, stable URLs, dated inventories, source and provenance records, checksums and transparent records of any changes. This approach supports public access and fair scrutiny without prejudging the truth of disputed allegations.

OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.
