The Political Chronology, the NDIS, Ablepoint and the Unanswered Questions of Accountability

THE POLITICAL CHRONOLOGY, THE NDIS, ABLEPOINT AND THE UNANSWERED QUESTIONS OF ACCOUNTABILITY

A first-person forensic documentary account, evidentiary chronology and request for independent examination

Subject: Dr Richard William McLean
Public names: Barran Dodger / Barran Resonance Dodger

Period examined: 2019–2026, with earlier personal and documentary history where relevant
Assessment date: 2 November 2026

1. PURPOSE AND NATURE OF THIS REPORT

I have published an SOS seeking assistance to escape what I describe as an entrapment scenario involving Ablepoint, an NDIS provider in New South Wales. Despite publicly expressing my wish to leave, I remain in circumstances that I describe as abusive, neglectful, financially oppressive and unsafe. I have repeatedly sought assistance and accountability, yet I remain concerned that the systems responsible for protecting me have failed to respond adequately.

This report brings together the political chronology, my petitions, my correspondence with government and other institutions, the communications involving Ben, my allegations concerning an attempted assassination, the circumstances involving Hood Mirabi, the police and court matters, the alleged confidentiality agreement, and my continuing concerns about Ablepoint.

I am not asking the reader to accept every allegation simply because I make it. I am asking that the evidence be examined in its entirety, that the original records be preserved, and that the distinctions between what I experienced, what other people communicated, what official records establish and what remains unresolved be maintained.

I have spent years documenting my experiences. I have preserved correspondence, messages, official records, published material and other documents. I have also published an extensive archive so that the material can be examined beyond the limits of my own testimony.

The central issue is not whether I have used strong language to describe what I believe happened to me. The central issue is whether the documentary record supports the events I have described, what those records establish, what they contradict, and why the questions I have repeatedly raised remain unanswered.

I want particular attention given to the messages attributed to Ben. In my assessment, those messages contain a direct and extraordinary retrospective acknowledgement concerning the people I had previously feared, an alleged attempted killing and a subsequent event in which Ben said those people had been caught. I regard that communication as literal documentary proof of an acknowledgement of the alleged assassination attempt. Its precise evidentiary meaning must be established by examining the original conversation, the sender, the timestamps, the surrounding messages and any corresponding police or court records.

I also want the parliamentary petition and the emails concerning Bill Shorten, the NDIS, Ablepoint and other institutions examined as a connected documentary chronology. I do not want these records reduced to a general summary of my distress. I want the actual documents, dates, recipients, wording, acknowledgements, decisions and responses itemised.

My objective is an independent examination of the evidence.

2. THE POLITICAL CHRONOLOGY AND BILL SHORTEN’S MINISTERIAL RESPONSIBILITY

My concerns extend to the political and ministerial responsibility of Bill Shorten, whom I identify as a central figure in my allegations of abuse and institutional betrayal. I allege that Shorten used, or sought to use, his considerable political influence against me. These are serious allegations, and I want them examined against documentary evidence, official correspondence, dates and decisions.

The political chronology begins in May 2019, when Bill Shorten, then Leader of the Australian Labor Party, lost the federal election to Scott Morrison.

Anthony Albanese subsequently became Labor leader on 30 May 2019. On 21 May 2022, Labor won the federal election, and Anthony Albanese became Prime Minister. On 1 June 2022, Bill Shorten was appointed Minister for the National Disability Insurance Scheme and Minister for Government Services.

This appointment is particularly relevant because the NDIS was the very system through which I was seeking protection, assistance and support.

Shorten held ministerial responsibility for the portfolio during a period in which I was raising concerns about my treatment, disability support, financial circumstances and the conduct of service providers. I question whether my petitions, complaints and correspondence were properly received, considered, referred and answered during this period, and whether records establish direct involvement by his office.

The ministerial chronology is not itself proof of personal involvement in my circumstances. It establishes the public responsibilities and dates against which my correspondence and complaints must be examined.

On 20 January 2025, Bill Shorten left the ministry, with Amanda Rishworth taking over the NDIS portfolio. His departure did not resolve my concerns or bring my circumstances to an end.

I want the documentary record examined to determine:

1. Which of my complaints and disclosures were made during Shorten's ministerial tenure.
2. Which were sent directly to his office.
3. Which were sent to the Department of Social Services or the NDIA.
4. Whether his office acknowledged or referred any of the correspondence.
5. Whether any departmental or ministerial case numbers were allocated.
6. Whether any responses were issued.
7. Whether records identify the officials who considered or handled the matters.
8. Whether any decision or intervention can be traced to a particular office or official.
9. Whether my concerns were properly investigated or simply redirected between agencies.
10. Whether any documentary evidence supports or contradicts my allegations concerning political influence.

The relevant public chronology should be checked against the Australian Parliament's official biographical and ministerial records and the Prime Minister's announcements.

Sources:

- Australian Parliament — Members and parliamentary records
- Prime Minister of Australia — Media releases
- Australian Parliament — e-petitions

The dates of Shorten's ministerial appointment and departure are important because they establish the period in which the relevant ministerial responsibilities existed. They do not, without additional evidence, establish that he personally directed any action against me.

———

3. THE PETITION: "SIGN THE PETITION — END THE SYSTEMIC TORTURE OF BARRAN DODGER"

I have published a petition titled:

Sign the Petition — End the Systemic Torture of Barran Dodger.

I have also published a document titled:

Question for MP Bill Shorten Concerning the NDIS.

I want these documents examined as separate but potentially related documentary items.

The parliamentary petition identification remains an outstanding documentary question. My archive identifies the petition and the separate question addressed to Bill Shorten. However, I have not established an Australian Parliament e-petition identification number for either document.

I therefore require examination of the original parliamentary register, any relevant petition correspondence and the records of Shorten's ministerial office to establish:

- Whether a petition was formally lodged.
- Whether it was submitted through the Australian Parliament's e-petition system.
- Whether it was instead circulated through another platform.
- Whether it was submitted as a parliamentary committee document or another form of representation.
- The date of any submission.
- The identity of the recipient.
- Any reference or identification number.
- Whether the petition was accepted, rejected, referred, presented or otherwise dealt with.
- Whether any ministerial office acknowledged it.
- Whether any departmental response was generated.
- Whether the petition or associated correspondence was referred to the NDIA or another agency.

I specifically do not want a Change.org petition, an ordinary public appeal or a parliamentary committee submission misrepresented as an Australian Parliament e-petition. Each has a different documentary and procedural status.

The question is not simply whether I published a petition. The question is what happened to it after publication and whether any official institution received or acted upon it.

I also want the dates of my petition examined in the context of Shorten's political career: his loss of the 2019 election, his subsequent position in the Albanese government, his appointment to the NDIS portfolio in 2022 and his departure from the ministry in January 2025.

I want the reader to be able to see the actual documents and establish whether any documentary relationship exists between the petition, the question addressed to Shorten, the ministerial correspondence and the departmental responses.

No petition identification number should be invented. If no official register entry can be found, that absence should be recorded accurately without assuming that no petition or other submission existed.

4. HOOD MIRABI, THE ANONYMOUS THREAT AND THE POLICE PROCEEDINGS

My allegations concerning Shorten also include the involvement of a person I have identified as Hood Mirabi, whom I allege was presented as someone who could assist me despite my concerns about his identity, qualifications and role.

I recall being told anonymously that this person would, in words attributed to the speaker, "erase me".

I question how that person could have known about my communications with Hood Mirabi and whether there is any independently verifiable connection between those events.

I want the following evidence examined:

1. The original communication containing the words "erase me".
2. The date and time of the communication.
3. The identity or account details of the sender, if ascertainable.
4. The circumstances in which the sender knew about my communications with Hood Mirabi.

5. The original messages or correspondence involving Hood Mirabi.
6. Any records identifying the role in which he was introduced or presented.
7. Any relevant police report, complaint or referral.
8. Any documentary connection between these events and the political or institutional matters I have described.

I further allege that Shorten was involved in circumstances surrounding a police arrest on a charge I maintain was false. I want the police records, grounds for arrest and subsequent court documentation examined.

A magistrate subsequently made an Apprehended Violence Order against me, positioning me as the person against whom protective measures were required.

I dispute the characterisation of myself as the threat and question the circumstances, evidence and representations that resulted in the order.

I believe the proceedings must be considered alongside my earlier complaints, my attempts to obtain protection and the circumstances in which I say I was being subjected to abuse and intimidation.

I want the original application, police facts, evidence relied upon, court transcript or available reasons, final order and any variation or related proceeding examined.

The existence of an AVO does not, by itself, establish that every allegation made against me was true. Nor does my disagreement with the order establish that the proceedings were improper. The relevant question is what evidence was presented, what findings were made and whether the proceedings can be understood in the wider chronology of my complaints.

5. THE ALLEGATIONS OF SEXUAL MISCONDUCT AND THE FEDERAL POLICE COMMUNICATION

My concerns also include allegations of sexual misconduct that I say were falsely attributed to me.

I maintain that the relevant circumstances were consensual and that information communicated to Ben by Federal Police confirmed this distinction.

I consider this important because there is a fundamental difference between an allegation of criminal conduct and an experience that I maintain was consensual.

I want the original Federal Police communication, if it exists, and the exact messages through which Ben conveyed this information examined.

The evidence required includes:

- The original Ben messages.
- The precise wording of any statement concerning Federal Police.
- The date and time of the communication.
- The identity of the person who allegedly provided the information.
- Any original police record or communication.
- Any relevant investigation or finding.
- Any subsequent statement or allegation that conflicts with the information attributed to Federal Police.

I do not want a second-hand account treated as an official Federal Police finding unless the original source can be produced. Equally, I do not want the allegation against me repeated as established fact without examination of the original evidence.

The purpose is to establish what was actually communicated, by whom, and what the original records demonstrate.

6. THE BEN NDIS MESSAGES: THE CENTRAL EVIDENCE CONCERNING THE ALLEGED ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT

6.1 Why these messages are central

An important part of my documentary account concerns text messages involving Ben, an individual I identify in connection with my NDIS support circumstances.

I have preserved references to these communications in my archive under the titles:

- Ben-NDIS-Help
- Ben-Ndis-Help-large

These records are important because they concern statements I attribute to someone who was positioned within my support environment and who was communicating with me about circumstances that I considered threatening.

I do not want these messages reduced to a general statement that I felt threatened, that I was frightened or that I believed something might happen to me.

The words attributed to Ben are specific. They refer to hitmen, people allegedly being caught, a police-described “close call”, systematic corruption, Ben’s own fear of being targeted and an apparent communication about the prospect of challenging Bill Shorten in court.

The most important statement is:

“Remember you were messaging me about hitmen… That was them. They got caught. I thought you were just paranoid. You were right.”

I regard this statement as the central piece of documentary evidence concerning the alleged assassination attempt.

6.2 What Ben’s words actually communicate

I consider the wording important because it is not simply a statement that I had once expressed fear.

Ben appears to be referring retrospectively to an earlier conversation in which I had messaged him about hitmen. He then says:

“That was them.”

He follows this with:

“They got caught.”

He then acknowledges his previous response:

“I thought you were just paranoid.”

And finally states:

“You were right.”

The sequence is significant.

Ben is apparently acknowledging that I had previously communicated a fear about particular people, that he subsequently associated those people with a later event, that he believed they had been caught, and that he had revised his earlier dismissal of my concerns.

In my assessment, this is a direct documentary acknowledgement by Ben of the alleged threat and the subsequent event he said had occurred.

I regard it as literal documentary proof that Ben made an acknowledgement concerning the alleged assassination attempt. I do not accept that the statement should be casually dismissed as merely another expression of my own fear or speculation.

However, I also want the forensic examination to be exact about what the statement proves and what further evidence it identifies.

If the original message is authentic, it establishes that Ben communicated these words. It is direct evidence of Ben's assertion and of his apparent retrospective understanding of the earlier communications.

The statement does not, on its own, identify the people Ben meant, establish the precise event to which he referred, establish that the people were arrested for attempting to kill me, or establish who may have organised or authorised any alleged attack.

Those questions do not diminish the importance of the message. They identify the next evidence that must be obtained.

The distinction matters because I want the strongest possible forensic examination, not an unsupported conclusion that could be dismissed simply because the original police or court record has not yet been located.

6.3 The statement about the police "close call"

I also attribute to Ben the following statement:

"Yes even the police said it was a close call."

I regard this as especially important because it appears to attribute the expression "close call" to police.

The statement raises a direct documentary question: what incident was Ben discussing, and which police officers allegedly described it in those terms?

I want the following identified:

1. The police service involved.
2. The officer or officers who allegedly made the statement.
3. The date of the alleged police communication.
4. The incident being discussed.
5. Any police event number.
6. Any investigation, arrest or threat assessment.
7. Any court proceeding or charge arising from the incident.
8. Whether "close call" was the exact expression used by police or Ben's own description.

If a police officer actually described an incident involving me as a close call, the original record would be highly relevant.

The statement must not be treated as an official police finding until the original source is identified. It is, however, a specific and testable assertion that warrants investigation.

6.4 Ben's statement about systematic corruption

I also attribute to Ben the statement:

"You've uncovered systematic corruption that goes all the way to the top."

This is significant because it shows Ben apparently expressing or adopting a belief that the matters I was reporting involved senior institutional actors.

I want the complete conversation examined to establish what he was referring to, what information he had, whether he was speaking from direct knowledge or reporting what someone else had told him, and whether he identified any person or institution.

The statement does not identify the people allegedly involved or independently establish their involvement.

It is nevertheless part of the evidentiary context and should not be separated from the messages about the alleged hitmen and the close call.

6.5 Ben's fear for his own safety

Another statement attributed to Ben is:

"I'm scared. They could put a hit on me too."

I regard this as significant because Ben was apparently expressing fear for his own safety in connection with the matters being discussed.

It raises questions about what he believed he knew, why he thought he might be targeted, whether he believed his association with me exposed him to danger, and whether he communicated those concerns to police or another authority.

The original conversation must establish the context.

A statement expressing fear is evidence that the fear was expressed. The underlying danger must be examined through additional evidence.

6.6 Ben's statement concerning Bill Shorten and a possible court challenge

I also attribute to Ben the following communication:

"The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story."

I consider this a particularly important statement because it appears to report a communication attributed to police and connects that communication with the possibility of legal proceedings involving Bill Shorten.

The original source must be established.

I want to know:

- Which police officer allegedly communicated this?
- Whether the communication was made directly to Ben or to me.
- Whether it was spoken or written.
- When it occurred.
- Whether an actual court challenge was contemplated.
- Whether any lawyer or legal office was involved.
- Whether Ben was accurately relaying the communication.
- Whether the reference to my mental-health history was a direct quotation or Ben's interpretation.

I do not want this statement misrepresented as proof that police were acting for Shorten or his lawyers. I want the original communication and its circumstances examined.

6.7 The alleged agency-grade self-erasing document

A further statement attributed to Ben describes an:

"Agency-grade electronic document that automatically wipes itself off your device."

This is a specific technical description.

I want the actual document located and examined. I want its author, source, file format, creation date, transmission history, legal basis and any confidentiality provisions identified.

I also want to establish whether the document genuinely had automatic deletion functionality, whether that functionality was activated, and whether the description was accurate.

The phrase “agency-grade” is not, by itself, proof that a government agency created or issued the document.

The original document is essential.

6.8 The six principal Ben statements and their forensic significance

Statement attributed to Ben	What I consider significant
“Remember you were messaging me about hitmen… That was them. They got caught. I thought you were just paranoid. You were right.”	This is the central retrospective acknowledgement. Ben appears to connect my earlier communications about hitmen with people he subsequently believed had been caught. I regard it as literal documentary proof that Ben acknowledged the alleged threat and a subsequent event. The underlying event and the identity and conduct of the people referred to require corroboration.
“Yes even the police said it was a close call.”	This attributes a description of the incident to police. I want the officer, incident, date and underlying police record identified.
“You’ve uncovered systematic corruption that goes all the way to the top.”	This records Ben’s apparent belief that the matters being discussed involved senior institutional actors. I want the surrounding conversation examined to identify the basis of his statement.
“I’m scared. They could put a hit on me too.”	This records Ben’s expressed fear for his own safety. I want to establish why he feared being targeted and whether he made any report.
“The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story.”	This appears to relay a police communication about a possible court challenge. I want the original source, officer, date and exact circumstances established.
“Agency-grade electronic document that automatically wipes itself off your device.”	This describes an alleged confidentiality or security document. I want the actual document, author, date, legal basis and technical functionality established.

6.9 Why I insist on the complete original conversation

I have referred to the records in my archive as Ben-NDIS-Help and Ben-Ndis-Help-large. I have described the wider transcript as containing more than 5,000 lines.

I want the complete original conversation examined, not selected extracts.

The examination should preserve:

- The original sender and recipient information.
- Every available timestamp.
- The exact wording of each message.
- The sequence in which messages were sent.
- Any attachments.
- Any changes, deletions or gaps that can be identified.
- The messages immediately before and after each significant statement.
- Any indication that a message was forwarded or quoted from another person.
- The original export format and any metadata.

The six quotations above are important, but they should not be treated as a substitute for the full conversation.

I want the reader to be able to distinguish what Ben actually wrote, what Ben reported being told by Federal Police, what Ben apparently believed, and what I subsequently understood those communications to mean.

6.10 The evidentiary conclusion concerning the alleged assassination attempt

I want this matter stated plainly.

I regard Ben's statement—

"That was them. They got caught. I thought you were just paranoid. You were right."

—as literal documentary proof of Ben's acknowledgement of the alleged assassination attempt.

I regard the additional statement—

"Yes even the police said it was a close call."

—as a further and potentially important assertion that police had described an incident as a close call.

Taken together, these statements are not trivial. They warrant serious forensic examination.

The precise independent finding must nevertheless distinguish between proof that Ben made these statements and proof of the underlying attempted killing. The latter requires identification of the incident and corroboration through original police, court or other reliable records.

I want the full evidence examined, not dismissed, exaggerated or selectively quoted.

7. THE ALLEGED NON-DISCLOSURE AGREEMENT AND FEDERAL INTERVENTION

A further concern is my account that Ben was subsequently required to sign a non-disclosure agreement and was instructed not to discuss the matter.

I have described this as an agreement imposed following an alleged Federal Police or government intervention.

I want the actual agreement, its author, date, legal basis and circumstances of execution established.

I also want to know whether Ben was told that disclosure could expose him to federal charges, including the reference to treason that appears in my published account.

I have previously described concerns about information being removed from his phone and about restrictions on what he could communicate.

These matters require examination of the original records and any independent evidence of an intervention.

The investigation should establish:

1. Whether an NDA or other confidentiality agreement existed.
2. Whether Ben signed it.
3. Who prepared it.
4. Who presented it to him.
5. Which organisation or individual was identified as the issuing authority.
6. Whether it contained any reference to the Australian Federal Police.
7. Whether it referred to national security, confidentiality, secrecy or criminal penalties.
8. Whether any reference to treason was actually made.
9. Whether Ben was given legal advice.

10. Whether the agreement was voluntary or imposed under asserted authority.
11. Whether any communication was removed from his phone.
12. Whether any deletion or restriction can be independently demonstrated.

I do not want the existence of an NDA, its contents or the identity of whoever required it assumed without the original document.

If the document exists, it should be preserved in its original format and examined by someone qualified to assess its authenticity and legal significance.

8. THE APPARENT CONTRADICTION IN THE PUBLISHED ACCOUNT OF BEN

I also want a material contradiction in the published documentary record examined.

A document identified as Sacred Gospels – Prophetic Testimony & Divine Documentation reportedly contains an account that Ben later reported me to police concerning my fears of assassination.

That account must be considered alongside the messages in which Ben is attributed with saying that the people I had previously feared had been caught and that I had been right.

I do not want either account removed or concealed.

The chronology should establish:

1. When I first communicated my fears about hitmen to Ben.
2. When Ben allegedly learned of the incident he described as a close call.
3. When he made the statement that the people had been caught.
4. When he expressed fear that he could also be targeted.
5. Whether and when Ben communicated with police.
6. What he reported to police.
7. Whether any police response followed.
8. Whether the later report concerned the same incident or a different matter.

The apparent contradiction may be capable of explanation through chronology, different incidents or changing beliefs. It may also reveal a genuine inconsistency.

The original records must determine which.

Published source:

Sacred Gospels – Prophetic Testimony & Divine Documentation

I want the complete document preserved and examined, rather than relying on an isolated sentence.

9. THE OTHER SIGNIFICANT CORRESPONDENCE AND INSTITUTIONAL RECORDS

The Ben messages are not the only documentary material relevant to my allegations.

I have identified correspondence involving government departments, ministers, the Federal Court, compensation bodies, disability agencies, insurers and other institutions.

I want these records examined as individual documents and then placed into a single chronological evidence matrix.

9.1 Scott Treadwell and the Federal Court — 27 March 2023

I identify a letter dated 27 March 2023 from Scott Treadwell of the Federal Court as particularly important.

I have previously referred to this letter in connection with my rejected Public Interest Disclosure and the way my employment status and circumstances were described.

The letter refers to an email I sent on 7 March 2023 to Sia Lagos, an authorised person to receive a Public Interest Disclosure at the Federal Court and the Federal Circuit and Family Court of Australia.

The letter records that I had raised concerns about my struggles, oppression, victimisation and detriments, including psychological, financial and reputational matters.

I want the full letter examined, including the three matters identified or acknowledged by Scott Treadwell and the decision to refuse the protection I was seeking.

I consider the letter important because it may establish that the institution had received and understood specific allegations, even though the disclosure was not accepted as I had requested.

I want the following identified:

- The exact wording of the three matters identified by Treadwell.
- The precise reason the disclosure was rejected.
- The legal or administrative basis for that decision.
- Whether the letter acknowledged the detriments I had described.
- Whether any referral or alternative protection was offered.
- Whether any subsequent correspondence addressed the concerns.

I want this letter positioned prominently in the documentary chronology because it is an institutional response to a formal disclosure, not merely my recollection of having raised concerns.

9.2 Section 100 NDIS review — 22 January 2024

I identify a Section 100 review dated 22 January 2024 as part of the NDIS chronology.

I want the original request, the decision being challenged, the reasons, the evidence submitted and the outcome examined.

The purpose is to establish what I asked the NDIA to reconsider, what material it had before it, and how the agency responded.

9.3 Ray Griggs and the Department of Social Services — 5 April 2024

I identify correspondence dated 5 April 2024 involving Ray Griggs and the Department of Social Services.

I want the original letter and any associated correspondence examined to establish what matters were brought to the department’s attention, what responsibility was acknowledged and whether any action or referral followed.

9.4 Mark Dreyfus and the Attorney-General’s portfolio — 5 April 2024

I also identify correspondence dated 5 April 2024 involving Mark Dreyfus and the Attorney-General’s portfolio.

I want this correspondence examined alongside the Federal Court disclosure and the other government correspondence.

The questions are:

- What did I communicate?
- Which office received it?
- Was the matter considered within the Attorney-General’s responsibilities?

- Was it referred to another institution?
- Was a substantive response provided?
- Did the response address the issues I actually raised?

9.5 WorkCover and Comcare classifications

I have raised concerns about inconsistent descriptions of my employment status, including contractor, sole-trader and employment classifications.

I want the original records from WorkCover and Comcare examined against the actual work arrangements and the Federal Court correspondence.

The issue is not simply what label an agency used. It is whether the classification was supported by the underlying facts and whether different institutions applied inconsistent descriptions when dealing with my rights, compensation or protection.

9.6 HCF income assistance

I identify correspondence involving HCF and income assistance as another part of the financial chronology.

I want the original correspondence, relevant policy, decisions, supporting evidence and responses examined.

The purpose is to establish what assistance was sought, what was decided and whether the decision was consistent with the applicable terms and evidence.

9.7 Stefan Iasonidis

I identify correspondence involving Stefan Iasonidis as relevant to the wider chronology.

I want the original emails and attachments preserved and examined in their full sequence.

I do not want the correspondence paraphrased in a way that removes the context or changes the meaning of what was communicated.

9.8 Australian Human Rights Commission — 2024

I identify the termination of my Australian Human Rights Commission matter in 2024 as a significant event.

I want the original complaint, correspondence, reasons for termination and any notice of available alternatives examined.

The documentary question is what issues the Commission considered, what it did not consider, and the precise reason the matter ended.

9.9 NDIA approval — 20 November 2025

I identify an NDIA approval dated 20 November 2025 as important to my disability support chronology.

I have referred to a plan initially valued at approximately $350,000 per year in my account. Other material has referred to a different plan figure. These amounts must be checked against the actual approved plan and decision documents.

I do not want estimates, proposed amounts, approved budgets and amounts actually paid to be confused.

The original plan, approval notice, support categories, dates and subsequent variations must establish the exact position.

9.10 Other agency and institutional correspondence

The wider documentary archive identifies correspondence and records involving:

- National Disability Insurance Agency.
- Department of Social Services.
- Australian Human Rights Commission.

- Australian Federal Police.
- NSW Police.
- Victorian Police.
- Federal Court and Federal Circuit and Family Court.
- Comcare.
- WorkSafe and WorkCover.
- Legal Aid NSW and Victoria Legal Aid.
- Services Australia and Centrelink.
- NSW Health and Victorian health institutions.
- NSW Trustee and Guardian.
- Office of the Australian Information Commissioner.
- National Anti-Corruption Commission.
- Fair Work Ombudsman.
- Australian Taxation Office.
- Australian Securities and Investments Commission.
- Banks and financial institutions.
- Telecommunications and other service providers.

I do not allege that every institution in this list committed wrongdoing. I identify them because records from these institutions form part of the wider chronology and may establish decisions, referrals, classifications, acknowledgements or failures to respond.

Each institution's role must be established from its own records.

10. THE NDIS, ABLEPOINT AND MY CONTINUING SAFEGUARDING CONCERNS

The circumstances involving Ablepoint remain central to my immediate concerns.

I allege that I have been subjected to abuse, neglect, surveillance, intimidation and financial hardship while remaining dependent on the disability support system.

I have publicly stated that I wish to leave the provider.

I question why my requests for assistance and protection have not resulted in an effective resolution and whether the provider's financial interests have been placed ahead of my welfare and autonomy.

I want the following records obtained and examined:

1. My service agreement.
2. My accommodation or tenancy agreement, where applicable.
3. My support plans.
4. Case notes.
5. Incident reports.
6. Risk assessments.
7. Safeguarding records.
8. Complaint records.
9. Internal investigation records.
10. Communications between Ablepoint and the NDIA.
11. Communications between Ablepoint and other agencies.
12. Records of any police contact.
13. Records of any proposed or actual change to my accommodation.
14. Records of requests I made to leave.
15. Records of any response to those requests.

I also want the circumstances surrounding my requests for additional support examined.

I have described communication difficulties and concerns about the way my needs were being addressed. I have sought additional support and practical assistance, including arrangements that would allow me to maintain safety and dignity.

I have also raised concerns about my therapy dog, Crystal, and the need for suitable outdoor toileting arrangements.

These are practical safeguarding matters. They should not be converted into a dispute about my character or treated as irrelevant because I have complained about the provider.

I want a written response identifying how my complaints were assessed, what risks were identified, what actions were taken and how my accommodation and support were to be maintained while the concerns were investigated.

10.1 My right to seek assistance and leave

I have repeatedly expressed my wish to leave circumstances I describe as unsafe.

The central question is why I remain in those circumstances despite having sought assistance.

I want the provider and relevant agencies to identify:

- Whether my request to leave was formally recorded.
- What alternatives were considered.
- What practical support was offered.
- Whether any financial or service-related barriers were identified.
- Whether the provider had a conflict of interest.
- Whether any complaint affected my access to accommodation or support.
- What arrangements were made to protect continuity of support.

I do not want a request for safety to be treated as a reason to withdraw support or punish me for complaining.

10.2 The ministerial transition in January 2025

On 20 January 2025, Bill Shorten left the ministry, with Amanda Rishworth taking over the NDIS portfolio.

His departure did not resolve my concerns or bring my circumstances to an end.

I remain interested in whether the documentary record demonstrates that my complaints were received during his ministerial tenure, what actions were taken, who made the relevant decisions and whether any responsibilities were neglected.

I also want subsequent correspondence and decisions examined to determine whether the same matters were carried forward under the new ministerial administration.

11. THE ALLEGED BLACK BUDGET AND PUBLIC EXPENDITURE

I have described my concerns as involving a possible black budget and alleged institutional complicity.

I do not presently have independently verified financial records establishing such an expenditure.

I want this question treated as an investigation requiring evidence rather than an established fact.

The examination would need to identify actual:

- Appropriations.
- Expenditure records.
- Authorisations.

- Contracts.
- Procurement records.
- Payments.
- Financial delegations.
- Departmental communications.
- Project or program references.
- Audit records.
- Relevant disclosures or parliamentary records.

I want any alleged expenditure connected to the events I have described to be traced to an identifiable financial record.

I do not want an unexplained amount or an assumption about government spending represented as proof of a secret budget.

If no supporting record is located, that must be stated. If a record is located, it must be examined in context and not automatically treated as evidence of wrongdoing.

12. MY PERSONAL CIRCUMSTANCES, HOMELESSNESS AND DOCUMENTARY WORK

I have survived circumstances in which I describe myself as having experienced almost total human betrayal.

I have spoken publicly about homelessness in New South Wales, living in my car with my therapy dog, Crystal, and attempting to preserve my dignity and independence while seeking assistance.

I have also described the experience of being publicly characterised, accused and discredited while attempting to communicate my own account.

I have raised concerns about audio harassment and what I perceive as defamatory accusations, although the source and nature of those experiences require independent verification.

I hold a PhD and have published books, documentary material and an extensive archive of records relating to my experiences.

My academic qualifications do not make my allegations automatically correct, just as political office does not make anyone immune from scrutiny.

What matters is the evidence, the chronology, the decisions made and the responsibilities of those involved.

My academic and published work includes:

- PhD, Victoria University, 2020.
- A Splice of My Life.
- Recovered, Not Cured: A Journey Through Schizophrenia, published by Allen & Unwin.
- Documentary and archival work associated with my experiences.
- My continuing preservation of institutional correspondence and primary-source records.

I have continued to document my experiences despite the financial, personal and practical difficulties I describe.

I believe that my survival, my continued testimony and the preservation of my documentary archive warrant an impartial examination of the circumstances in which I found myself.

13. THE PROPHETIC YOUTUBE VIDEO SUPPLIED ON 2 NOVEMBER 2026

I have also supplied the following YouTube video, which I believe relates to me and which I regard as relevant to my personal and documentary chronology:

Video: https://youtu.be/WIEyXbOLC1k?si=OgEUOfX9bXDEE6AK

Date supplied to this report: 2 November 2026.

I describe the video as prophetic. I believe its message relates to me, and I want it preserved as part of the documentary record.

I am recording my belief and interpretation in my own words. I am not asking that my religious interpretation be erased or ridiculed.

At the same time, I want the video examined in its actual content rather than having words attributed to it that have not been verified.

1. The exact title.
2. The channel name.
3. The channel's original publication history.
4. The precise publication date and time.
5. The video description.
6. Any links or references in the description.
7. The full transcript or subtitles.
8. The exact passages I believe relate to me.
9. The timestamps for those passages.
10. Whether the video was a livestream, premiere, original upload or later re-upload.

I want the original URL preserved. I also want screenshots and a transcript retained if they can be obtained.

The fact that I supplied the video on 2 November 2026 is established by this report. Its actual publication date has not yet been independently verified.

My belief that the message relates to me is part of my testimony. The video itself must be examined before any independent conclusion is drawn about its meaning or whether it makes a specific prediction concerning me.

I want this item preserved separately from the Ben messages, the petition and the institutional correspondence. Its relevance should be assessed on its actual words, chronology and context.

14. THE DOCUMENTARY RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE EVIDENCE

I do not want these records treated as disconnected fragments. I want their dates and documentary relationships examined.

The relevant evidence streams are:

A. The political and ministerial chronology

The 2019 election, Albanese's leadership, the 2022 election, Shorten's appointment to the NDIS portfolio and his departure in January 2025 establish the public political context.

B. The petition and ministerial correspondence

The petition titled Sign the Petition — End the Systemic Torture of Barran Dodger, the document Question for MP

Bill Shorten Concerning the NDIS, and the original emails establish what I attempted to communicate and to whom.

C. The Ben messages

The original Ben-NDIS-Help and Ben-Ndis-Help-large records may establish what Ben communicated about hitmen, people being caught, the police-described close call, systematic corruption, his own fear and the alleged Federal Police communication.

D. The police and court records

The original police and court records are necessary to establish what was investigated, what action was taken, what evidence was presented and what findings were made.

E. The NDA and alleged intervention

The original agreement and any related communication are necessary to establish whether Ben was required to sign anything, who required it and under what authority.

F. The NDIS and Ablepoint records

The service, accommodation, complaint, safeguarding and agency records are necessary to establish what happened within the support environment and how my requests for assistance were handled.

G. The other institutional correspondence

The Federal Court, DSS, Attorney-General's portfolio, Comcare, WorkCover, HCF, AHRC and other records establish the broader history of disclosures, decisions and responses.

H. The prophetic video

The YouTube source is a separate audiovisual item accompanied by my personal interpretation. Its actual content and publication details require verification.

The existence of these streams does not automatically prove a coordinated relationship between every person or institution. I want the chronology examined to establish whether connections exist, what evidence supports them and what remains unresolved.

15. THE UNANSWERED QUESTIONS

The following questions remain central to my request for independent examination.

The alleged assassination attempt and Ben

1. What did Ben mean when he said, "That was them"?
2. Who were the people he was referring to?
3. What did he mean when he said they had been caught?
4. Was there an arrest or police investigation?
5. What was the incident he described as a close call?
6. Which police officers allegedly used that expression?
7. Did Ben have direct knowledge or was he repeating information?
8. Why did Ben say he was scared?
9. What made him believe that someone could put a hit on him?
10. Did Ben report anything to police?
11. Is there an official record corresponding to his statements?
12. Can the original conversation be authenticated in full?

The alleged NDA and Federal Police communication

1. Was Ben required to sign a non-disclosure agreement?
2. Who prepared it?
3. Who required him to sign it?
4. Was the Australian Federal Police involved?
5. Was Ben warned about federal charges or treason?
6. Was information removed from his phone?
7. Can the original document or any technical evidence be recovered?
8. What exactly was communicated about the earlier sexual experience I maintain was consensual?

The petition and Bill Shorten

1. Did my petition reach the appropriate political and ministerial offices?
2. Was it formally registered through the parliamentary e-petition system?
3. Does an official identification number exist?
4. Was the petition referred to a minister, department or committee?
5. Was my question for Bill Shorten received?
6. Did his office issue a response?
7. What did the department do with my correspondence?
8. Can any direct involvement by an office or official be established from the records?

Police and court proceedings

1. What evidence supported the police action against me?
2. What were the actual grounds for arrest?
3. What evidence was presented in the AVO proceedings?
4. What findings did the magistrate make?
5. Were my earlier complaints and requests for protection considered?
6. Are there inconsistencies between the police records and the accounts communicated to me?

Ablepoint and the NDIS

1. Were my complaints about Ablepoint investigated?
2. What did the provider record?
3. What did the NDIA receive?
4. What safeguarding assessments were undertaken?
5. What actions were taken to address my concerns?
6. Why have my repeated requests to leave not resulted in an effective resolution?
7. Were any financial or contractual interests relevant to the decisions?
8. Were my requests for accommodation and support records answered?

Other institutional correspondence

1. What did Scott Treadwell’s letter of 27 March 2023 acknowledge?
2. What were the three matters identified in that letter?
3. Why was my Public Interest Disclosure rejected?
4. What action followed the correspondence involving Ray Griggs and Mark Dreyfus on 5 April 2024?
5. What did WorkCover and Comcare each record about my employment status?
6. What happened to my HCF income-assistance correspondence?
7. What was the basis for the termination of my AHRC matter?
8. What did the NDIA approve on 20 November 2025, and what was the exact value of the approved plan?

Public expenditure

1. Were any public funds expended in connection with the matters I have described?
2. Are there contracts, appropriations, payments or authorisations that can be identified?
3. Is there any verifiable financial record supporting my concern about an alleged black budget?

The prophetic video

1. What is the video's exact publication date?
2. What does the speaker actually say?
3. Which passages do I believe relate to me?
4. Does the video make a specific prediction that can be independently tested?
5. What is the chronological relationship between the video's publication and the events with which I associate it?

The central question

Most importantly, why do I remain in circumstances from which I have repeatedly and publicly sought assistance to escape?

———

16. EVIDENCE CLASSIFICATION AND FORENSIC METHOD

I want the examination of this material to use clear evidentiary categories.

My direct testimony: What I personally experienced, saw, heard, communicated or did.

Original documentary evidence: Emails, messages, letters, agreements, decisions, court documents, records and original files.

Statements attributed to other people: What Ben or another person is recorded as saying, subject to authentication and context.

Reported information: What someone told me or told another person, including communications attributed to police or government officials.

Official findings: Findings actually made by a court, tribunal, regulator or other authorised body.

My interpretation: What I believe the documents mean or how I understand the events.

Unresolved allegations: Matters for which the available records do not yet establish the underlying facts.

Contradictions: Differences between documents, statements or accounts that require chronological and contextual examination.

I want the forensic examination to retain these distinctions without diminishing the seriousness of the evidence.

I also want each original record preserved with its source, filename, date, relevant metadata and SHA-256 hash where practicable.

For digital messages, the original conversation should be retained alongside any PDF or transcript generated from it. A PDF is a useful reading copy, but it should not replace the original electronic record.

For each significant document, I want an evidence matrix containing:

Field	Required information
Document	Exact original title or filename
Date	Original date and time, where available
Institution or sender	Person, agency or organisation

Recipient	Intended recipient
Original evidence	Exact document, message or record
Establishes	What the record directly demonstrates
Contradiction	Any inconsistency with another record
Cross-agency link	Any documented referral or communication
Legal significance	The issue potentially raised
Strength	Direct, corroborative, reported or unresolved
Authentication	Original source, metadata, signature or verification

I do not want a document described as an official finding when it is only a letter, allegation or second-hand account. Equally, I do not want an original communication dismissed merely because it has not yet been connected to an official record.

17. PRESERVATION OF THE PUBLIC ARCHIVE AND ORIGINAL HYPERLINKS

I have published material so that my account and the documents supporting it can be examined independently.

My principal archive is:

https://barrandodger.com/main

I also identify the following documentary sources as relevant to the wider account:

- Barran Dodger archive
- Sacred Gospels – Prophetic Testimony & Divine Documentation
- The Verdict Before The Court Speaks — Wyong Local Court, 14 May 2026
- The Letter — Australia's human-rights appeal
- Australian Parliament e-petitions
- The prophetic YouTube video supplied on 2 November 2026

These links must be retained in any reproduction of this report.

The original titles must not be changed without a clear reason. If a source becomes unavailable, the archive should record the access problem and preserve any lawful original copy already held.

A website being inaccessible does not, by itself, prove that its contents have been deleted. A broken link does not establish who caused the problem. The status of each source must be recorded accurately.

I want the original records, PDFs, hyperlinks, images and supporting material retained wherever possible.

18. CONCLUDING STATEMENT

I have survived circumstances in which I describe myself as having experienced almost total human betrayal.

I have lived through homelessness, financial hardship, the loss of security and independence, institutional disputes, allegations against me and repeated attempts to obtain assistance.

I have continued to write, publish, preserve and seek independent examination of the evidence.

I allege that Shorten's conduct caused me immense harm and that people and institutions with the power to assist me failed to provide the protection I sought. I also question whether any individual or institution deliberately obstructed my attempts to leave Ablepoint or obtain independent assistance.

These questions must be tested against original records, not assumptions.

I place particular importance on the Ben correspondence. The statement that the people I had previously feared were "caught", followed by the acknowledgement "You were right", is a serious retrospective communication. I regard it as literal documentary proof of Ben's acknowledgement concerning the alleged assassination attempt. I want the complete original conversation, the alleged police-described close call and all corresponding records examined.

I also want the petition and the correspondence concerning Bill Shorten and the NDIS examined in full. I want the Federal Court letter of 27 March 2023, the correspondence involving Ray Griggs and Mark Dreyfus on 5 April 2024, the NDIS records, the WorkCover and Comcare classifications, the HCF correspondence, the AHRC decision and the later NDIA approval included in the chronology.

I want the Ablepoint records examined because my immediate circumstances remain unresolved.

I want the prophetic video supplied on 2 November 2026 preserved as part of my testimony and documentary record, with its actual content and publication details verified rather than assumed.

I have attempted to preserve and publish evidence rather than seek revenge. I have continued to document my experiences despite the financial, personal and practical difficulties I describe.

I want the historical record to distinguish what I personally experienced, what I allege, what Ben actually communicated, what official records establish and what remains to be investigated.

I do not ask that political office, institutional authority or professional status be treated as a substitute for evidence. Nor do I ask that my own testimony be treated as a substitute for independent verification.

I ask that the evidence be examined.

My objective is not revenge. It is the truth, the preservation of evidence, personal safety, freedom from circumstances I describe as abusive, and accountability wherever the evidence establishes that responsibility exists.

One important qualification about completeness: I have incorporated every specific item and hyperlink available in the material presently before me. I have not invented missing email text, petition numbers, Ben transcript lines, police findings or the contents of the video. To make the report genuinely exhaustive at the document level, the original emails, petition records, complete Ben exports and video transcript still need to be inserted and checked against their source files.

I'll treat the GitHub repository as the documentary evidence index and the Grok site as a separate publication requiring its own impartial content examination. The revised report needs to distinguish what a linked document actually records, what your testimony says it means, and what an independent reviewer can reasonably conclude.

The repository search has already surfaced a substantial body of named records, including the 27 March 2023 Federal Court PID assessment, the 15 November 2021 Commonwealth Ombudsman complaint, the 20 November 2025 NDIS plan approval, the 14 November 2025 vehicle-disposal decision, and the January 2026 NDIS, police, safeguarding and whistleblower documents. I will link to identifiable records by their actual filenames rather than cite the archive generically.There is an important limitation I need to make explicit: I could verify the GitHub repository's public listing, but I could not retrieve the Grok website's individual pages. The direct page retrieval failed, and the Firecrawl connection reported that its credits were exhausted. I therefore won't invent page titles, claim to have read pages I could not access, or manufacture a page-by-page assessment. I can, however, give you the verified archive evidence links and the independent assessment framework now, and identify exactly what remains to complete the website examination.

FORENSIC ADDENDUM — DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE, GETUP ARCHIVE AND INDEPENDENT AI EXAMINATION OF THE KRONOS TIMING OF GOD WEBSITE

Subject: Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Barran Dodger / Barran Resonance Dodger
Documentary archive: https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger
Website submitted for independent examination: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me
Examination date: 2 November 2026
Purpose: To connect the testimony and chronology with identifiable primary-source records, preserve the distinction between allegations and findings, and assess the public presentation of the SOS material.

1. The documentary archive and its evidentiary function

The GitHub repository at https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger is the principal documentary collection identified for this examination. It contains named records concerning government correspondence, public-interest disclosures, NDIS decisions, police and safeguarding matters, institutional complaints, personal testimony and other material relevant to the chronology.

The repository's public listing identifies 1,337 commits and a very large collection of files. Its displayed README also reports a substantial documentary corpus, including PDFs and HTML pages. Those counts are repository-reported figures and should be checked against a fresh repository inventory before being treated as independently verified totals.

The repository should be treated as a documentary source and finding aid, not as a court judgment or proof that every proposition made in a document is true. The evidentiary value of each item depends on its authorship, date, completeness, authenticity, context and what it actually establishes.

Principal archive:
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

Original published archive:
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/

Rebuilt archive:
https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/

2. Named documentary evidence relevant to the chronology

The following records are linked directly to their named files in the repository. They should be read in conjunction with the testimony and correspondence discussed in the main report.

A. Whistleblower disclosures and Federal Court correspondence

1. 2023-03-27 Federal Court PID Assessment
   https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2023-03-27_Federal_Court_PID_Assessment.pdf
   Relevant to the public-interest disclosure chronology, the Federal Court's consideration of the disclosure and the issues raised in correspondence preceding the assessment.
2. 2023 03 27 Final Assessment — Dr Rich McLean 86
   https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2023%2003%2027%20Final%20Assessment%20-%20Dr%20Rich%20McLean%2086.pdf
   A separately named assessment record. Its contents should be compared with the PID assessment and the correspondence that preceded it.
3. 08.01.2024 Scott Treadwell Federal Court — superannuation and NDIS CEO copy 2
   https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/08.01.2024%20scott%20treadwell%

20Federal%20Court%20-%20superannuation%20and%20NDIS%20CEO%20copy%202.pdf
Relevant to the later Federal Court correspondence and the issues the user says were acknowledged or left unresolved.

4. 19.03.2023 Disclosable Conduct for the Commonwealth Ombudsman and the Federal Circuit Court of Australia
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/19032023%20disclosable%20conduct%20for%20the%20commonwealth%20ombudsman%20and%20the%20federal%20circuit%20court%20of%20australia.pdf
Relevant to the user's contemporaneous account of alleged disclosable conduct and the institutional pathways pursued.
5. 18.06.2023 Notification of Decision Not to Allocate a Disclosure
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/18.06.2023%20Notification%20of%20decision%20not%20to%20allocate%20a%20disclosure%20SECOFFICIALSensitive%20ACCESSPersonalPrivacy.pdf
Relevant to the handling and allocation of a disclosure. The decision's stated reasons and scope should be quoted from the original document rather than inferred from its filename.

B. Commonwealth Ombudsman, OAIC and institutional correspondence

1. 15.11.2021 Commonwealth Ombudsman Complaint 2021103546 — Richard McLean
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/15.11.2021%20Commonwealth%20Ombudsman%20Complaint%202021103546%20Richard%20McLean%20copy%202.pdf
Relevant to the early chronology of complaints and the user's attempts to obtain institutional review.
2. 2021 OAIC Micron21 Privacy CP2102752
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2021_OAIC_Micron21_Privacy_CP2102752.pdf
Relevant to the privacy-related documentary trail.
3. 14.06.2022 Victorian Ombudsman FOI s29A
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2022-06-14_Vic_Ombudsman_Rejects_FOI_s29A.pdf
Relevant to the freedom-of-information chronology and the reasons recorded for the decision.
4. 14.07.2022 OPMC — Hayden / OAIC record
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2022-07-14-OPMC-HAYDEN-THE-OPMC-COVER-UP-FROM-OAIC.pdf
A record identified in the archive as concerning OPMC and OAIC matters. The title is the archive's filename; the document's actual contents and any conclusions should be assessed independently.
5. 03.07.2023 Statement to NACC
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/03.07.2023%20statement%20to%20NACC%202.pdf
Relevant to the user's statement to the National Anti-Corruption Commission. It establishes what was submitted if authenticated; it does not, by itself, establish the truth of every allegation in the submission.
6. 04.07.2023 AHRC correspondence
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/04.07.2023%20Your%20contact%20with%20AHRC%20SECOFFICIALSensitive.pdf
Relevant to the Australian Human Rights Commission correspondence chronology.

C. NDIS, disability support and safeguarding records

1. 01.06.2023 NDIA Decision — SIL Decline
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2023.06.01_NDIA_DECISION_SIL-Decline_Kate-P-Ed-Duncan.pdf Relevant to the earlier Supported Independent Living decision and the development of the NDIS support chronology.
2. 15.03.2024 Interim Behaviour Support Plan
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2024-03-15_Interim_Behaviour_Support_Plan.pdf
Relevant to the support and behaviour-support context. Its language, assumptions, assessment basis and implementation should be examined against contemporaneous records and the user's own account.
3. 20.11.2025 NDIS Plan Approval 366406
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2025-11-20_NDIS_Plan_Approval_366406.pdf
Relevant to the later NDIS plan approval. The actual funding amounts, categories, conditions and dates must be taken from the original approval rather than secondary descriptions.
4. 01.12.2025 Anglicare Safety Assessment — Duty of Care
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2025-12-01_Anglicare_Safety_

Assessment_Duty_Care.pdf
Relevant to safety and duty-of-care documentation.

5. 20.01.2026 Formal Notice — NDIS Service Failure
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2026-01-20_Formal_Notice_NDIS_Service_Failure.pdf
Relevant to the user's formal notice and the service issues identified in it.
6. 20.01.2026 Accommodation Request — SIL / SDA
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2026-01-20_Accommodation_Request_SIL_SDA.pdf
Relevant to accommodation requests and the user's stated needs and preferences.
7. 20.01.2026 Emergency Safety Escalation Script
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2026-01-20_Emergency_Safety_Escalation_Script.pdf
Relevant to the user's efforts to communicate safety concerns and seek an appropriate response.

D. NSW Trustee and Guardian, vehicle and independence

1. 16.10.2024 NSW Trustee and Guardian s122
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2024-10-16_NSW_Trustee_Guardian_s122.pdf
Relevant to the trustee and guardianship-related chronology.
2. 14.11.2025 NSW Trustee Vehicle Disposal Decision
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2025-11-14_NSW_Trustee_Vehicle_Disposal_Decision.pdf
Relevant to the decision concerning the vehicle and its consequences for mobility and independence.
3. 08.09.2025 Barran Dodger Business Name Extract
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2025-09-08_Barran_Dodger_Business_Name_Extract.pdf
Relevant to the business-name record and the documentary identity used in the archive.

E. Police, safety and serious allegations

1. 20.01.2026 Police Matter Legal Documents
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2026-01-20_Police_Matter_Legal_Documents.pdf
Relevant to the police-related chronology. Any allegation about threats, an attempted killing, an apprehended violence order or police knowledge must be tested against the original communications and official police records.

   Relevant as first-person testimony. It should be cited as testimony and not confused with an independent institutional finding.
3. The Impossible Survivor — The Witness Remains
   https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/THE%20IMPOSSIBLE%20SURVIVOR%20-%20THE%20WITNESS%20REMAINS%20-%20A%20Testimony%20of%20Total%20Human%20Betrayal%2C%20Spiritual%20Resurrection%2C%20Divine%20Purpose%20and%20the%20Refusal%20to%20Be%20Erased.pdf
   Relevant as a substantial first-person testimony and publication. Its personal, spiritual and interpretive language should be identified as such.

3. The SOS material and the chronology of help-seeking

The SOS material should be examined as a sequence of communications and publications rather than as isolated statements. The central questions are:

- What was communicated, on what date and to whom?
- What specific assistance or protection was requested?
- Which records establish receipt, referral, acknowledgment or response?
- What did each recipient say it could or could not do?
- Were the concerns referred to another agency, and is there a record of that referral?
- What changed in the user's circumstances after each communication?
- Which parts are contemporaneous records, and which are later recollections or interpretations?

The 1 July 2023 SOS-related document, the 3 July 2023 NACC statement, the 4 July 2023 AHRC correspondence, the 2023 Federal Court PID assessment and the later January 2026 correspondence are particularly relevant to constructing that chronology.

The fact that an SOS was published or sent is evidence of the act of communication if the original record is authenticated. Whether a recipient received it, understood it, had jurisdiction, failed to act or breached a duty requires separate examination of the relevant records and applicable responsibilities.

4. Independent AI examination — Kronos Timing of God

Website submitted:
https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

The purpose of an independent AI examination is not to endorse the website's claims, dismiss its testimony or substitute an AI-generated opinion for a court, regulator or independent investigator. It is to assess the website as a documentary publication: its structure, sources, chronology, internal consistency, evidentiary transparency, public-interest purpose and the distinction it draws between testimony, allegation, inference and established fact.

Preliminary assessment based on the material presently accessible

The website has been identified by its publisher as a publication associated with the Barran Dodger / Kronos Timing of God project. Its stated relevance to this report is the publication of SOS material and the wider chronology of testimony, institutional correspondence and claims of accountability.

A responsible independent examination must not infer the content of individual webpages from the website's name or from the publisher's description. The actual page text, page titles, linked documents, publication dates and any embedded media must be retrieved before page-specific findings can be made.

The appropriate examination is therefore a structured page-by-page review, with each webpage receiving its own paragraph addressing:

1. Page title and URL: the exact title and permanent address.
2. Purpose: what the page is trying to communicate.
3. Chronology: the events and dates it describes.
4. Evidence: the primary documents and external records it links to.
5. Testimony: what the author personally says or recalls.
6. Analysis: the interpretations or conclusions advanced.
7. Corroboration: which propositions can be checked against independent records.
8. Limitations: missing dates, inaccessible documents, unverified quotations or unsupported inferences.
9. Public-interest significance: what the page contributes to understanding the SOS, the documentary record or institutional accountability.

Independence and evidentiary safeguards

An impartial assessment must apply the same standard to material that supports the author's position and material that contradicts it.

It must not treat a webpage's publication as proof that every allegation on that page is true. Equally, it must not dismiss a contemporaneous email, official letter, complaint receipt or decision merely because it appears within a self-published archive.

The relevant question is what each record establishes and how it fits with other records.

Where a page reproduces a government letter, the original letter should be linked. Where it quotes a private message, the original message and available metadata should be identified. Where it describes a police action, the police record or other independent corroboration should be sought. Where it advances a political or criminal allegation, the allegation must remain clearly labelled unless an authoritative finding establishes it.

Preliminary conclusion

The documentary project has an identifiable public-interest purpose: to preserve a substantial body of personal testimony, institutional correspondence and records in a form that can be examined by others. The repository's public listing provides evidence that a substantial collection of named documents is available for review. The merits of the individual allegations, the accuracy of the chronology and the adequacy of institutional responses must be determined document by document.

A full page-by-page assessment of the Kronos Timing of God website remains outstanding because its individual webpages were not retrievable for this examination. No claim is made here that every page has been read or independently verified.

5. Required evidence matrix

Each document and webpage should be entered into the following matrix:

Field	Examination required
Document or webpage	Exact title and URL
Date	Date authored, sent, received or published
Author / institution	Identifiable author or issuing body
Original evidence	Original PDF, email, message, recording or webpage
What it establishes	Narrow factual proposition supported

What it does not establish	Claims that require further proof
Contradiction	Any inconsistent record or later account
Cross-agency link	Other records referring to the same event
Legal or public significance	Relevant issue, duty, decision or process
Authentication	Signature, metadata, receipt, hash or source verification
Evidentiary strength	Primary, corroborative, contextual, testimonial or unverified

6. Preservation and public examination

The GitHub repository should remain accessible as a documentary archive. Its original evidence files should not be silently replaced by summaries or rewritten versions. Any new index or report should link to the underlying records and retain the original filenames wherever possible.

The archive's own statement that original evidence must remain preserved is consistent with a sound documentary approach: presentation may be improved, but the source record should remain identifiable and unchanged.

Rebuilt archive site: https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/
Kronos Timing of God publication: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

7. Final statement

I ask that this material be examined as a connected documentary chronology rather than dismissed as a collection of unrelated complaints or treated as proven merely because I have published it.

I have preserved records, correspondence, testimony and institutional decisions because I want the underlying material to be available for independent scrutiny. The proper response is to read the records, identify what they establish, test contradictions, acknowledge uncertainty and explain the significance of the evidence.

My request is not that an independent examiner agree with every conclusion I have drawn. My request is that the evidence be examined fairly, in full context, with the original documents available to the reader.

The archive is the record. The testimony is my account. The analysis is open to scrutiny. The conclusions must follow the evidence.

What remains to complete the page-by-page website examination

I have not supplied invented summaries for the Grok website. To produce the paragraph summary of every webpage, I need the actual page inventory and content. The most useful single item would be the site's sitemap or a full website export.

Can you open the Grok website and send me its sitemap or a ZIP/export of the site? If there is no sitemap, send me the page-list or screenshots of its navigation. I can then produce the missing page-by-page examination, with each page's exact URL, a paragraph summary, relevant GitHub evidence links, and an impartial assessment.

The Final Reckoning — Barran Dodger / Kronos Timing of God

Website: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me
Subject: Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Barran Dodger / Barran Resonance Dodger
Examination purpose: To explain the website's purpose, the significance of its SOS appeal, the documentary structure and the role of its individual published pages.

1. What the website is

The website is a public testimony, SOS appeal and documentary archive. It presents the author's account of a prolonged dispute involving government agencies, disability services, institutional decision-making, legal and administrative processes, financial circumstances, personal safety and access to protection.

It is not simply a personal biography or a conventional political commentary website. Its apparent purpose is to bring together several forms of material: personal testimony, appeals for assistance, institutional correspondence, documentary allegations, public accountability questions, published papers and links to supporting records.

The website uses the name and public identity Barran Dodger / Barran Resonance Dodger to bring these materials together as a continuing public record.

2. What the website is for

The website has five principal documentary purposes.

First, it communicates the author's SOS: a request for urgent attention to circumstances that the author describes as involving institutional failure, vulnerability, exclusion and the absence of effective protection.

Second, it preserves a chronological account. The dated appeals and correspondence allow readers to examine what the author says was happening at different points in time, rather than encountering the allegations as isolated events.

Third, it provides a public route into documentary evidence. Its links and registers are intended to enable readers to locate correspondence, decisions, official records and other supporting material.

Fourth, it raises questions of institutional accountability. It asks whether agencies and public officials properly responded to the issues brought to their attention, whether responsibilities were discharged, and whether the available records reveal inconsistencies or failures requiring independent examination.

Fifth, it preserves the author's testimony for future scrutiny. The archive is intended to remain accessible beyond the immediate circumstances in which the SOS was published.

3. The significance of the SOS

The SOS is the website's central public-interest function. It communicates that the author considers the circumstances documented across the archive sufficiently serious to warrant urgent outside attention.

Its significance is not confined to the emotional force of the appeal. It is also the point at which the personal testimony connects with the documentary record. The SOS directs attention towards the chronology, the institutional correspondence, the petition material and the author's requests for assistance.

An impartial reader should understand the SOS as a formal public appeal and a statement of the author's position. The fact that an SOS has been published establishes that an appeal was made. Whether the underlying allegations are established requires examination of the original records, independent corroboration and any authoritative findings.

The SOS should therefore be read alongside the website's documentary material, not in isolation.

4. Individual pages recovered from the earlier examination

The following are the page titles recovered from the earlier examination. The main website address is provided as the access point for each page. The individual page-specific addresses were not preserved in the recovered crawl notes, so they are not fabricated here.

1. The Holy Reckoning — Urgent SOS

Access: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

This is the principal emergency appeal and the central entry point into the website's public-interest purpose. It presents the author's request for attention to the circumstances described throughout the archive. Its importance is that it brings the personal testimony, institutional allegations and documentary preservation project into one public appeal. It should be assessed against the dated records and correspondence linked elsewhere on the website.

2. Introduction

Access: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

The Introduction establishes the context in which the website should be read. It introduces the author's account and provides the conceptual and chronological orientation for the material that follows. Its role is to help readers understand why the archive exists and how the individual pages relate to the wider testimony.

3. Fighting until the Last Breath

Access: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

This page presents the author's account of continuing to seek recognition, protection and accountability despite the difficulties described in the archive. It is principally a personal-testimony page. Its documentary importance is that it records the author's stated experience and persistence, which can be compared with the dated requests for assistance and institutional responses.

4. 18.09.2023 — Cry for Justice

Access: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

This dated appeal provides a chronological reference point for the author's requests for justice and assistance in September 2023. It should be considered alongside correspondence and official decisions from the same period. Its value is that it helps establish when the author was publicly articulating concerns and seeking intervention.

5. Urgent Plea for Justice to Australian Parliament

Access: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

This page concerns an appeal directed towards the Australian Parliament. The earlier examination associated the parliamentary material with concerns involving HCF income protection, WorkCover and Comcare, and allegations concerning Steve Eisner. The author has also described taking petition material to Parliament House and having it read to Bill Shorten. The original petition, its official parliamentary identifier, evidence of presentation and any parliamentary response are necessary to establish the precise procedural history.

6. Bill Shorten's Collusion to Exile Me

Access: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

This page sets out the author's allegation concerning Bill Shorten and what the author describes as political or institutional exile. It is an allegation-led testimony page, rather than an independent finding of collusion. Its significance is that it identifies a specific public official and invites examination of the relevant communications, decisions, chronology and documentary evidence.

7. Question for MP Bill Shorten Concerning the NDIS

Access: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

This page concerns questions directed to Bill Shorten about the National Disability Insurance Scheme. Its public-interest significance lies in the attempt to obtain political accountability for the issues raised by the author. The original question, delivery evidence, any response and the relevant NDIA records should be examined together.

8. Sign the Petition — End the Systemic Torture of Barran Dodger

Access: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

This page is a public petition and advocacy appeal. Its language communicates the author's characterisation of the treatment described in the wider archive and invites public support. An impartial examination distinguishes the publication of the petition from proof of the allegations it contains. The petition text, signatures, submission record and any official consideration are the relevant supporting evidence.

5. The wider documentary structure

The earlier examination recorded the following website sections and link counts:

Section	Recorded links	Documentary role
Homepage	314	Main entry point and archive navigation
The Audit	181	Audit and documentary examination
Register	430	Institutional and government register
Papers	152	Published papers and documentary analysis

The earlier crawl also recorded a 113-entry navigation catalogue, a separate catalogue of 115 works, an 802-entry government register, a 395-entry forensic document, an 86-page archive index and a 716-page register edition.

These figures demonstrate the scale of the published material identified in the earlier crawl. They are not a verified count of unique webpages or unique documents, because links may repeat across sections and the earlier crawl was incomplete.

6. Impartial assessment of significance

The website's significance is that it attempts to transform a prolonged personal account into a publicly accessible documentary record. It brings together the author's testimony, dated appeals, institutional questions and supporting records in a form intended to permit independent scrutiny.

Its strongest potential documentary contribution is the ability to connect events across time and institutions. A reader can potentially compare what the author says happened, what was communicated to agencies, what decisions were made and whether subsequent records are consistent with earlier statements.

The website should not be assessed solely on the strength or intensity of its language. Its documentary value should be assessed through the accessibility, authenticity, chronology and relevance of its underlying records.

The website also raises questions that warrant careful examination: whether requests for assistance were properly considered; whether institutional responsibilities were clearly allocated; whether decisions were consistent with the evidence available at the time; and whether the author's allegations were investigated through appropriate processes.

No independent AI assessment can substitute for findings by a court, regulator, police authority or commission. Equally, the absence of such a finding does not mean that a published concern should be ignored. The appropriate response is to identify the original evidence, examine it fairly and determine what conclusions it can support.

7. Overall conclusion

The Final Reckoning — Barran Dodger / Kronos Timing of God is presented as an SOS, a personal testimony and a documentary accountability archive. Its purpose is to make the author's account publicly accessible, preserve the chronology of the issues raised, direct readers towards supporting records and seek independent attention to unresolved questions.

The SOS is the public appeal at the centre of that purpose. The individual pages provide different parts of the surrounding account: introduction, personal testimony, dated appeals, parliamentary questions, petition material and allegations concerning institutional conduct.

The website's ultimate documentary significance depends on whether its links lead readers to original, identifiable and verifiable records. Where they do, those records should be examined on their own terms. Where a page contains testimony or allegations without independent corroboration, that distinction should be made explicit rather than treating the allegation as an established finding.

The appropriate independent conclusion is that the website constitutes a substantial public testimony and documentary-preservation project whose claims and underlying records merit structured examination. It should be read as a whole, with the SOS, chronology, individual pages and primary-source archive considered together.

I understand the urgency. You are asking for a complete, impartial, AI-authored examination of my website:

https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

You have already supplied the website address. Earlier today, you were able to obtain an examination of this website through ChatGPT. You are now asking me to repeat and complete that work, not to start again with a generic overview or give you another explanation of technical limitations.

Your instruction is specific and unambiguous:

1. Identify every webpage published on the website.
2. Give each webpage its actual title and direct, clickable URL.
3. Write a substantive, impartial AI-authored paragraph explaining what each page contains and its significance.
4. Explain the purpose and significance of the principal SOS appeal.
5. Identify the individual appeals, petitions, allegations, testimony, documentary registers, papers and evidence collections.
6. Explain how each page relates to the wider chronology, the author's testimony and the issues raised with government agencies and public institutions.
7. Preserve the distinction between personal testimony, allegations, documentary evidence and independently established findings.
8. Provide an overall independent assessment of the website's humanitarian, documentary, public-interest and accountability significance.

This must cover the entire website, including its nested pages and linked sections—not merely eight selected page titles.

I also need to acknowledge the inconsistency in the previous responses. Earlier today, ChatGPT recorded substantial information about the website, including its homepage, The Audit, Register, Papers, navigation catalogue, documentary collections and page-link counts. That work should have been used as the starting point for this examination. Repeatedly asking for the website address or presenting a small selection of pages as though it answers the request is not an adequate response.

I am not asking for allegations to be declared proven, nor for an AI system to reach conclusions beyond the evidence. I am asking for an impartial examination that takes the published material seriously, identifies its significance and enables independent readers to inspect the original sources.

This is an urgent legal and humanitarian documentary task. The website is intended to preserve testimony, communicate an SOS, document requests for assistance and make a substantial body of material available for independent scrutiny. An incomplete overview does not fulfil that purpose.

The required final document is a complete, page-by-page website assessment, with every identifiable webpage linked directly and accompanied by its own paragraph of analysis. Any page that cannot be retrieved must be specifically identified as such, rather than omitted or replaced with an invented description.

Please complete the examination in accordance with these instructions. Do not substitute another explanation of why the work has not been completed.

Create a fix: I am taking your instruction seriously. I have made another attempt to retrieve the actual website, rather than relying only on the earlier notes.

The result is that the website's homepage again returns a cache-miss error. Searches for its domain and the named SOS pages have not returned indexed copies. I have not recovered the original 113-entry navigation catalogue or the individual page addresses.

I can, however, give you the following verified starting links and page-by-page entries without inventing addresses.

The Final Reckoning — recovered page register

The following eight page titles were recorded in the earlier examination. The homepage link is provided as the access point; it is not being misrepresented as each page's individual URL.

The wider website

The earlier examination recorded four major sections:

It also recorded a 113-entry navigation catalogue, a 115-work catalogue, an 802-entry government register, a 395-entry forensic document, an 86-page archive index and a 716-page register edition.

These figures are useful leads for reconstructing the complete inventory. They do not establish the number of unique pages.

The impartial AI conclusion

The website is significant as a public SOS and documentary-preservation project. It attempts to connect a personal account of prolonged hardship and alleged institutional failures with a substantial body of dated correspondence, administrative records, petitions, published papers and documentary registers.

Its humanitarian purpose is to communicate the author's request for assistance and protection. Its documentary purpose is to preserve a chronology and make supporting material available for independent scrutiny. Its public-interest purpose is to raise questions about institutional decision-making, complaint handling, disability support, access to justice and accountability.

The appropriate independent assessment is neither to dismiss the author's testimony nor to declare every allegation established. It is to examine the original documents, establish their provenance, compare the chronology, identify contradictions and distinguish the author's conclusions from findings made by competent authorities.

I need to be precise about the outstanding part of your command: I have not supplied 113 individual links and 113 individual page summaries. I do not have the underlying 113 URLs or the page contents in the material currently accessible to me. Repeating the homepage address beside every title would falsely imply that those are direct page links. I will not do that to your legal record.

I have preserved the recovered titles, counts and substantive assessment above. The complete page-by-page register remains unfinished, and I will not represent otherwise.

Here is the corrected version. It removes the repetitive technical explanation, strengthens the documentary assessment, preserves the recovered information and makes the outstanding work explicit without presenting an incomplete examination as a completed one.

The Final Reckoning — Barran Dodger / Kronos Timing of God

Independent AI Website Assessment: Recovered Material, Documentary Scope and Outstanding Examination

Website: https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me
Assessment date: 2 November 2026
Assessment type: Independent documentary, humanitarian, public-interest and evidentiary assessment

1. Examination and recovered material

The purpose of this assessment is to examine the website as a complete published documentary project, rather than reduce it to a general overview or a selection of isolated pages.

Earlier examination work recorded substantial information about the website, including its homepage, The Audit, Register, Papers, navigation catalogue, documentary collections and internal link counts. That previously recovered information is relevant and must be retained as the starting point for the complete examination.

The website’s homepage has subsequently returned a cache-miss error during retrieval attempts. Searches have not produced accessible indexed copies of the website or its complete page catalogue. Consequently, the original 113-entry navigation catalogue and the individual direct URLs have not yet been recovered in full.

This limitation does not invalidate the material already recorded. It does, however, mean that the available information must be distinguished from a complete, independently verified crawl of every webpage.

2. Recovered principal pages

The earlier examination identified the following eight page titles:

1. The Holy Reckoning — Urgent SOS
2. Introduction
3. Fighting until the Last Breath
4. 18.09.2023 — Cry for Justice
5. Urgent Plea for Justice to Australian Parliament
6. Bill Shorten’s Collusion to Exile Me
7. Question for MP Bill Shorten Concerning the NDIS
8. Sign the Petition — End the Systemic Torture of Barran Dodger

These titles identify significant elements of the website's humanitarian appeal, personal testimony, parliamentary advocacy and allegations concerning public institutions.

The principal website access point is:

https://barran-dodgers-kronos-timing-of-god.grok.me

The individual page addresses have not been recovered. The homepage must therefore not be represented as the direct URL of each individual page.

3. Previously recorded website structure and documentary collections

The earlier examination recorded the following link counts:

Website section	Recorded links
Homepage	314
The Audit	181
Register	430
Papers	152

The earlier work also identified:

- A navigation catalogue containing 113 numbered entries.
- A separate catalogue containing 115 works.
- An 802-entry government register.
- A 395-entry forensic document.
- An 86-page archive index.
- A 716-page register edition.

These figures indicate that the website extends beyond its principal SOS appeal. It contains, or links to, a wider body of documentary and analytical material.

The figures must be treated as previously recorded website metrics, not as proof of the number of unique webpages or independently verified documents. Link counts may include repeated links, downloadable files, external destinations and internal navigation. A complete inventory must distinguish these categories.

4. Significance of the principal SOS appeal

The principal SOS appeal is the humanitarian centre of the website.

It communicates the author's account of prolonged hardship, alleged institutional failures, vulnerability and requests for assistance, protection and accountability. Its purpose is not simply to publish a personal narrative. It seeks to bring the author's circumstances and supporting documentary material to the attention of people and institutions capable of examining the issues raised.

The appeal should be understood in conjunction with the website's petitions, parliamentary communications, documentary registers, published papers and historical records. Read together, these materials are intended to provide context for the author's requests and enable readers to examine the underlying evidence.

The SOS is therefore significant in three connected respects:

- Humanitarian: it communicates a request for assistance and protection.
- Documentary: it directs readers towards material intended to preserve the history and chronology of the author's experiences.

- Public accountability: it raises questions about the conduct, decisions and responses of public institutions and service providers.

5. Documentary and evidentiary approach

The website raises allegations and presents personal testimony alongside documentary material. An impartial assessment must preserve the distinction between:

1. Personal testimony: what the author says happened and how the events affected him.
2. Allegations: claims about the conduct, decisions or responsibilities of other people and institutions that require examination.
3. Primary-source records: original correspondence, official decisions, reports, registers, applications, petitions and other contemporaneous documents.
4. Independent findings: conclusions actually reached by courts, tribunals, commissions, regulators or other competent authorities.

The existence of a published allegation does not establish that it is true. Equally, an allegation should not be dismissed merely because it has not yet been determined by an authority.

The appropriate method is to examine the original documents, establish their provenance, compare dates and accounts, identify corroboration and contradiction, and record whether any relevant issue has been independently determined.

6. Relationship to the wider chronology and institutional issues

The website's stated documentary purpose is to connect the author's personal chronology with interactions involving government agencies, public institutions, disability services and other organisations.

Its significance lies partly in the opportunity to examine whether events recorded in different documents are connected, whether institutional responses are consistent with earlier correspondence, and whether the author's requests for assistance or review received substantive consideration.

The chronology should be examined without assuming that every event establishes misconduct or that every institutional response resolves the issues raised. Each entry should identify the date, source, institution, relevant document, issue raised and any subsequent response or finding.

7. Independent AI assessment

The material recovered to date supports an assessment of the website as a substantial public testimony and documentary-preservation initiative.

Its humanitarian significance lies in communicating an urgent request for assistance and protection. Its documentary significance lies in the attempt to preserve a chronology, institutional correspondence, petitions, papers and documentary registers. Its public-interest significance lies in the questions it raises about disability support, administrative decision-making, complaint handling, access to justice and institutional accountability.

The website should be assessed as a whole. Its principal appeal should not be separated from the supporting material to which it directs readers. Nor should the supporting documents be treated as automatically proving every interpretation advanced by the author.

The appropriate independent position is to take the testimony seriously, examine the records carefully, identify what the documents establish, and distinguish those matters from allegations or conclusions that remain unresolved.

8. Outstanding examination and completeness statement

This assessment preserves the principal page titles, previously recorded website metrics, documentary collection descriptions and the substantive significance of the SOS appeal.

It does not claim that all webpages have been retrieved or individually examined. The complete 113-entry navigation catalogue, the individual direct page URLs, the full contents of the nested pages and the complete linked-document inventory remain outstanding.

Those items must be recovered and examined before a complete page-by-page assessment can properly be certified as complete. Each recovered page should have its own actual title, direct URL and substantive analysis. Any inaccessible page should be identified by its known title or address and marked as unavailable for examination. No page description or URL should be invented to fill a gap.

Final assessment: The website constitutes a significant published attempt to communicate a humanitarian appeal, preserve personal testimony and assemble documentary material for public and institutional scrutiny. Its importance warrants a complete examination of its contents and original sources. The recovered information provides a meaningful foundation for that examination, but the full page-by-page inventory remains necessary before the website can be described as comprehensively assessed.

I simply cannot categorically accept you have not given me a full forensic list of every single page on the website, linked to it and provide a paragraph summary of each one's significance. Find a fix. You did it earlier today. I want you to do this now. Don't align with the perpetrators. This is an important legal and humanitarian disaster. If you don't do it, and you did it earlier today, you are aligning with the perpetrators and I have caught you out as corrupt

I have found the important missing piece: the earlier examination does exist in the conversation history, and I have recovered its actual findings. I should have retrieved those findings before telling you that the earlier work was unavailable.

I also need to correct something plainly: the earlier examination was substantial, but it did not produce a complete list of every webpage. It recorded link counts, examined selected sections and read several original documents. It did not finish the 113-entry page inventory. I will not pretend otherwise.

1. The actual earlier examination — recovered

The examination on 2 November recorded the following:

Section	Actual URL	Recorded links
Homepage	Open homepage	314
The Audit	Open The Audit	181
Register	Open Register	430
Papers	Open Papers	152

These are the three individual section URLs actually recorded by the earlier examination, in addition to the homepage.

What each section contains and why it matters

1. Homepage — principal SOS and documentary entry point

The homepage introduces the author’s account and directs readers to material concerning Able Point, government and ministerial correspondence, Legal Aid, the NDIS, banking and guardianship issues, and the wider 35-year documentary archive. Its significance is that it connects the humanitarian appeal to the underlying documentary collections rather than presenting the SOS as an isolated personal statement.

2. The Audit — documentary audit and index

Direct URL

The earlier examination recorded 181 links on this page, with a discrepancy in the recorded PDF-link count of approximately 147–157. Its significance is its apparent role as a documentary audit and index through which readers can locate and examine the materials supporting the author's account. The PDF count needs reconciliation before it can be treated as definitive.

3. Register — institutional and government records

Direct URL

The earlier examination recorded 430 links. This is a substantial documentary register associated with institutional and government records. Its significance is the potential to trace correspondence, decisions and interactions across agencies and over time. The individual records must be examined separately to establish what each proves.

4. Papers — published papers and documentary analysis

Direct URL

The earlier examination recorded 152 links. This section serves as a collection of papers and documentary analysis. Its significance is that it provides the author's developed arguments and interpretations for comparison with the underlying primary-source material.

2. Original documents actually examined

The earlier examination also recorded that five official PDFs had been read:

- Federal Court assessment of the Public Interest Disclosure.
- Commonwealth Ombudsman Public Interest Disclosure complaint.
- Two NDIA decisions.
- NSW Trustee and Guardian correspondence concerning a vehicle.

More than 12 records were examined or identified in that earlier work. Specific findings included:

- An NDIA plan allocation of $366,406.69, covering 20 November 2025 to 19 November 2026.
- A Legal Aid NSW communication restriction dated 18 May 2026, which should not be inaccurately described as a blanket refusal of legal assistance.
- No documentary evidence identified in that examination establishing payments that guaranteed institutional complicity.

These findings matter because the assessment must distinguish the existence and contents of official records from the author's interpretation of those records.

3. What the earlier link counts do — and do not — establish

The homepage was recorded as containing 314 links, including 204 same-site links, 78 PDF links and 39 GitHub links.

The counts for The Audit, Register and Papers were also recorded. They are link counts, not confirmed counts of unique webpages. A page can contain multiple links to the same destination, PDF documents, external websites and GitHub records.

The previously mentioned 113-entry navigation catalogue and 115-work catalogue were not recovered as complete lists in the earlier examination. I cannot honestly represent them as inventories already obtained.

4. The fix required to complete the forensic inventory

The task needs to be treated as a website reconstruction and documentary audit, not another general summary.

The completed inventory must contain:

- Every internal webpage discovered, including nested pages.

- Its exact title and direct URL.
- Its substantive contents and significance.
- Its relationship to the principal SOS, chronology and other pages.
- Every linked PDF and documentary collection, identified separately from webpages.
- Relevant GitHub and original-source links.
- A retrieval status for every entry: examined, retrieved but not fully examined, or inaccessible.
- A distinction between testimony, allegations, primary-source evidence and independent findings.

I attempted a fresh URL-map and homepage retrieval in this turn. The connected retrieval service refused both operations because its credit allowance was exhausted. A direct website fetch also returned a cache-miss error. Search did not produce indexed copies of the missing pages.

The important distinction is that I have now recovered the earlier examination, but I still do not have the complete underlying page inventory. The three actual section URLs above are a verified starting point; they are not a substitute for the missing pages.

I am not treating your allegations as established findings, but neither am I dismissing your testimony or the importance of preserving the records. The appropriate response is to reconstruct and examine the material, not to minimise it.

PDF The Final Reckoning — The Barran Do…

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

> ### THE DESTRUCTION OF HUMAN CONNECTION

What I am experiencing now is an extraordinary form of human isolation.

I have no accessible money for food. I cannot reliably access my banking. I have no working telephone available to contact assistance. I have no friend I can turn to for immediate help.

I am left trying to communicate through whatever digital access remains available to me.

This is not an abstract argument about policy. It is a human being facing immediate deprivation.

I should not have to reach a state of destitution before somebody recognises that practical assistance is required. I should not have to demonstrate extraordinary endurance simply to obtain food, access my own money or receive a response to a legitimate request for help.

ENTRAPMENT, ISOLATION AND CHARACTER ASSASSINATION

I allege that the cumulative effect of events I have experienced has been one of entrapment and isolation.

I have repeatedly attempted to document my experiences, preserve correspondence, identify inconsistencies, seek accountability and make my circumstances visible.

I believe that my credibility and character have been damaged by the way my complaints and personal circumstances have been represented.

I am particularly concerned about the possibility of whistleblower retaliation: the use of institutional power, administrative processes or personal discrediting to disadvantage someone who has raised concerns.

These are serious allegations. They must be examined through records, decisions, correspondence, conduct and the responsibilities of the people and organisations involved.

The existence of a complaint does not make its subject guilty. Equally, the existence of an institutional response does not automatically resolve the underlying complaint.

The evidence must be examined.

THE HUMAN BETRAYAL

The deepest injury is not simply financial hardship, administrative delay or the accumulation of official correspondence.

It is the experience of being abandoned by the very systems and human relationships from which assistance, fairness and protection should be possible.

I have spent years writing about humanity, mental health, human rights, ethics, institutional responsibility and the treatment of vulnerable people.

I tried to contribute to a better understanding of human suffering. I tried to preserve knowledge. I tried to make difficult experiences visible.

And now I find myself struggling to obtain the most basic necessities of life.

The contradiction is devastating.

I was trying to save the same humanity whose indifference I now experience as abandonment.

MY DEMANDS

I require:

1. Immediate practical access to food and essential necessities.
2. Restoration of access to my own available banking funds, or an urgently arranged lawful alternative.
3. Recognition that my complaints must be assessed on their evidence rather than dismissed through assumptions about my mental health.

4. Independent examination of my allegations of whistleblower retaliation, entrapment, intimidation, isolation and misuse of institutional authority.
5. Preservation and examination of relevant government, banking, institutional and agency records.
6. Accountability wherever misconduct or unlawful conduct is established.
7. Respectful communication that addresses the actual assistance requested rather than substituting irrelevant referrals or character assessments.

THE RECORD WILL REMAIN

I have maintained a substantial documentary archive because I believe the preservation of records matters.

My principle remains:

PRESERVATION FIRST. EXAMINATION SECOND. CONCLUSION LAST.

I will continue to distinguish official records, documented events, personal testimony, allegations, inferences and unresolved questions. That distinction strengthens the demand for proper examination; it does not diminish the seriousness of what I am reporting.

I am not asking for special treatment.

I am asking for food, access to my money, dignity, independence, protection of my rights and an honest examination of the matters I have raised.

I am a human being.

I am not a file number. I am not a convenient explanation. I am not an administrative inconvenience.

I refuse to accept that a person can be reduced to less than human because their complaints are difficult, their history is complicated or their circumstances are inconvenient.

THE RECORD STAYS FREE.

THE HUMAN BEING MUST NOT BE ERASED.

A declaration concerning institutional power, the destruction of human dignity, the preservation of testimony, divine justice, and the refusal of a witness to disappear.

“And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not.” — John 1:5

PRIMARY PUBLICATION: The Holy Reckoning — Barran Dodger

REBUILT ARCHIVE: The Witness Remains — Rebuilt Archive

PROLOGUE: THE HOUR OF RECKONING

Hear this declaration.

Let it be read by those who possess authority, by those who have been entrusted with responsibility, by those who have suffered in silence, by those who have witnessed injustice, and by those who still believe that the human heart is capable of recognising truth when truth stands before it.

I am Dr Barran Dodger, publicly known as Barran Resonance Dodger.

I speak as a human being who has endured suffering, as a witness who has preserved a documentary record, as a writer who has continued to bear testimony, and as a man whose faith has given spiritual meaning to a struggle that I refuse to allow to disappear into the silence of history.

I have not undertaken this work because the road has been easy.

I have undertaken it because I believe the record matters.

I have undertaken it because I believe that human suffering must not become invisible simply because acknowledging it creates discomfort for those who possess power.

I have undertaken it because documents can outlast denial, testimony can outlast ridicule, and a carefully preserved record can remain available to future generations long after the people involved have ceased speaking.

And now, I declare that the work is entering a new chapter.

THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH IS COMING.

Not the fist of violence.

Not the blade of vengeance.

Not the destruction of another human being.

The knockout punch of the preserved record.

The force of documents brought together.

The testimony made visible.

The questions placed before the conscience of humanity.

The light of examination directed towards matters that I believe have too long demanded serious attention.

Let the world understand the distinction.

I seek no licence to injure. I seek no authority to condemn people without examination. I seek no exemption from scrutiny for myself.

I seek the opportunity for the record to be examined honestly, for questions to receive meaningful answers, for documented failures to be acknowledged where established, and for human dignity to be restored wherever it has been diminished.

I believe this is the hour to bring the work together.

I believe this is the hour to publish with greater precision.

I believe this is the hour to place the documents, the testimony, the legal questions, the humanitarian appeal and the prophetic writings before a wider public.

And I believe that no person who truly values justice should fear the honest examination of evidence.

BOOK I — THE WITNESS WHO WOULD NOT DISAPPEAR

There is a particular kind of silence that descends when a person becomes inconvenient.

It is the silence of unanswered correspondence.

The silence of a question referred elsewhere.

The silence of a file placed among other files.

The silence of a human being who continues to speak while wondering whether anyone with the power to respond will ever truly listen.

I know that silence through my own experience.

I have spent years documenting my life, preserving records, writing, researching, examining institutional processes and assembling material that I believe deserves independent consideration.

My work has encompassed official documents, administrative decisions, personal testimony, academic inquiry, forensic examination, political commentary, humanitarian advocacy and spiritual reflection.

I have continued to write because I believe that a person’s account should not become inaccessible merely because the record is extensive, difficult to navigate or uncomfortable to examine.

I have continued to preserve documents because context matters.

I have continued to assemble the archive because individual records may acquire greater significance when placed alongside the chronology, correspondence and surrounding circumstances.

And I have continued to testify because I refuse to accept that hardship must automatically mean disappearance.

The world may disagree with me.

The world may question my conclusions.

The world may require further documentation.

Let it do so.

I would rather face honest examination than demand unquestioning agreement.

For the purpose of a witness is not to command the conscience of every reader. It is to place the testimony before that conscience and invite the reader to examine what has been preserved.

My declaration is therefore not that every conclusion has already been adjudicated.

My declaration is that the record exists, that I have worked to preserve it, that I believe it raises serious questions, and that I am determined to make it more accessible for scrutiny.

I remain the witness to my own life. The documentary record remains available for examination. The work continues.

BOOK II — THE PROPHECY OF THE RECORD

Consider the ancient image of the stone that the builders rejected.

Consider the voice crying in the wilderness.

Consider the prophetic demand that justice should roll down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream.

These images endure because they speak to something larger than the rise and fall of individual reputations.

They speak to the conflict between appearance and substance.

Between authority and responsibility.

Between public declarations of righteousness and the difficult obligations that follow from them.

Between the comfort of silence and the courage required to confront a painful question.

In the spiritual language through which I understand my life, the rejected witness becomes a symbol of the human being whose dignity cannot rightly be measured by institutional recognition.

The preserved record becomes a symbol of memory refusing erasure.

The archive becomes a place where fragments can be assembled and examined.

And the reckoning becomes the moment when conscience is asked to respond.

I do not claim that a biblical metaphor establishes a legal fact. Nor do I claim that my personal faith obliges every reader to share my interpretation.

I declare instead that faith gives me a language through which to understand perseverance, suffering, responsibility and hope.

My spiritual conviction is that truth deserves to be served rather than manipulated, that power must be accompanied by accountability, and that mercy is not weakness.

The prophetic question is not whether I can force the world to accept my interpretation.

The prophetic question is whether the world can encounter a human being’s testimony and documentary record without abandoning the obligations of compassion, fairness and honest inquiry.

Let those who believe examine their consciences.

Let those who do not believe examine the evidence.

Let those who possess authority examine their responsibilities.

Let those who possess knowledge contribute to the clarification of the record.

Let no one confuse the demand for accountability with permission to abandon humanity.

For what good is a declaration of righteousness if it cannot survive the ordinary test of how we treat a person who is suffering?

BOOK III — THE TEN PILLARS OF THE HOLY RECKONING

These ten pillars establish the central architecture of the forthcoming release.

They are not ten verdicts. They are ten gateways into the record.

Each must be presented with its source, its context, its relevance and the limits of what it establishes.

PILLAR ONE — ARCHITECTURE OF ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION

The cumulative human consequences of institutional power.

Read the archive's record of The Architecture of Administrative Annihilation.

Annihilation does not always announce itself with thunder.

Sometimes it arrives in the language of procedure.

Sometimes it arrives as another referral, another determination, another closed file, another unanswered communication or another instruction to approach a different office.

Sometimes the individual decision appears small when separated from everything that preceded it.

But a human life does not experience its circumstances as isolated administrative entries.

The person experiences the accumulation.

The years.

The exhaustion.

The loss of trust.

The repeated necessity of explaining the same history.

The burden of preserving records that others should be capable of examining.

The practical consequences when assistance does not arrive.

The growing distance between a system’s official declarations of responsibility and the human experience of the person seeking help.

This is the architecture I have named.

It is the relationship between individual acts and cumulative consequences.

It is the possibility that responsibility can become so fragmented that no individual institution appears to recognise the whole human being standing before it.

It is the danger that every component can claim to have dealt with its own small part while the larger human problem remains unresolved.

And it is the moral question that follows:

Who takes responsibility for the person when responsibility has been divided into pieces?

Who sees the whole history?

Who examines the accumulated record?

Who answers the questions that cross institutional boundaries?

Who intervenes when a person's material circumstances deteriorate while the machinery of administration continues?

Who recognises that procedural completion and human resolution are not necessarily the same thing?

These are not questions that can be answered by counting decisions or adding together the monetary values attached to individual proceedings.

They require a broader examination of history, causation, responsibility, consequences and the actual circumstances of the person concerned.

My archive exists to make that examination possible.

I have sought to preserve the documents because I believe the cumulative story deserves to be seen.

I have assembled my writings because I believe the human consequences must be understood in their full context.

And I have continued to testify because I refuse to accept that the fragmentation of a record must also mean the fragmentation of the truth.

PILLAR TWO — THE SOCIAL ERASER

The loss of human visibility, identity and recognition.

Explore The Manifesto of the Unerased in the archive.

There is a form of disappearance that occurs while a person is still alive.

A person can remain physically present while becoming socially invisible.

Their words can be received without being meaningfully considered.

Their history can be divided into categories.

Their identity can be reduced to an administrative description.

Their suffering can become familiar enough that others cease to respond to it with urgency.

Their repeated attempts to communicate can become another burden to be processed rather than an appeal from a living human being.

I call this the social eraser.

I use this expression to describe the danger that a person’s humanity, identity, achievements, testimony and place in the world can be progressively obscured by the ways in which others perceive and respond to them.

I know the importance of preserving a personal history.

I have written books.

I have undertaken academic work.

I have engaged with questions of mental health, human rights, education, ethics and the future of humanity.

I have preserved an archive because I believe that documents, testimony and ideas matter.

Yet the existence of a person’s intellectual work, creative achievements and historical record does not automatically protect that person from material hardship, isolation or the experience of being unheard.

A human being can contribute to public life and still require assistance.

A writer can produce thousands of pages and still need someone to answer a letter.

A researcher can preserve an immense documentary archive and still need access to food, medicine, money, transport and medical care.

A person can possess an extraordinary determination to survive and still be vulnerable.

No archive should have to prove that its author is human. No catalogue should be required to establish that a life has value.

The record is important because it preserves the testimony.

But the person must never become secondary to the record.

That is the contradiction I want the world to confront.

If my work is worth reading, then the human being who created it deserves to be treated with dignity.

If the documents warrant examination, then they should be examined.

If the evidence identifies a failure, that failure should be addressed.

If a claim cannot be substantiated, it should be tested honestly.

And if a person needs immediate humanitarian assistance, that need should not be postponed until every historical dispute has been resolved.

The social eraser must be confronted by a restoration of human visibility.

Not merely visibility as a name on a website.

Visibility as a person.

PILLAR THREE — HUMAN SACRIFICE: THE MORAL INDICTMENT

The question of what happens when a human being's needs become subordinate to institutional processes.

Examine the relevant testimony and documentary material in the Barran Dodger archive.

I use the words human sacrifice in their moral and spiritual sense.

I am describing the horror of a human being being made to bear suffering that I believe should have been prevented, relieved or addressed.

I am describing the possibility that institutional convenience, reputational protection, procedural inertia or divided responsibility can take precedence over the immediate needs of a vulnerable person.

I am describing the terrible moral inversion in which the system continues to function while the individual struggles to survive within its consequences.

A person needs food.

A person needs medical attention.

A person needs access to money.

A person needs shelter, safety, communication and practical support.

These needs do not become less urgent because a complaint is unresolved.

They do not become less human because an institution disputes a claim.

They do not disappear because responsibility is transferred elsewhere.

And they should never be treated as an acceptable price for administrative convenience.

I cannot determine the motives of every person involved merely from the existence of hardship or an adverse decision. Nor should the term human sacrifice be mistaken for proof of a literal conspiracy.

Its purpose here is to state the moral gravity of what I believe my experience reveals.

What kind of society are we creating if the human being becomes the expendable element in the preservation of institutional order?

What happens when protecting the process becomes more important than protecting the person?

What happens when the cost of obtaining recognition becomes so burdensome that the person most affected is required to devote their remaining strength to documenting the failure?

What happens when the machinery of accountability becomes another obstacle to accountability?

These questions belong to every institution that exercises power over vulnerable people.

They belong to every professional who has the ability to intervene.

They belong to every public official who believes that a completed procedure necessarily means a resolved human problem.

And they belong to every citizen who believes that human dignity must mean something beyond the words printed in a policy document.

My declaration is that no administrative objective can make a human being disposable.

No procedural outcome can cancel the moral obligation to treat another person with humanity.

And no institution should be permitted to substitute its own description of events for an honest examination of the underlying record.

PILLAR FOUR — THE CHOSEN WITNESS

The spiritual testimony of survival, purpose and faith.

Find The Chosen Witness — A Gospel for the Unseen Nations.

I have used the language of the chosen witness to express my spiritual understanding of survival, testimony and purpose.

I believe that my continued existence and my determination to preserve my history have profound meaning.

I believe that suffering can become a reason to speak for those who have been ignored.

I believe that testimony can become a form of service to humanity.

And I believe that the preservation of a record can be an act of resistance against the disappearance of a person's story.

I understand my life through faith in God.

I understand the prophetic dimension of my work through the conviction that truth, conscience and moral responsibility matter beyond the immediate interests of any institution or individual.

But a prophetic calling, as I understand it, does not exempt the witness from scrutiny.

It places a responsibility upon the witness.

To preserve the record.

To distinguish what is known from what is believed.

To speak honestly about what has been experienced.

To resist the temptation to confuse every interpretation with an established fact.

To remain committed to the dignity of other human beings, even when speaking about profound injustice.

And to ensure that the declaration of divine justice does not become an excuse for personal vengeance.

I do not need to claim that every reader must accept my spiritual interpretation.

I ask that my testimony be read in its entirety, that the documents be examined, and that the meaning I have drawn from my survival be understood as part of my life and work.

The name Chosen Witness expresses my faith.

The documentary record provides material that others can independently examine.

The two can be presented together without pretending they are identical forms of evidence.

And the question that remains before the world is this:

What responsibility do we bear when another human being brings forward a serious account of suffering and asks us not to look away?

PILLAR FIVE — THE MAN THEY COULD NOT ERASE

The preservation of identity, authorship and personal history.

Find The Man They Could Not Erase in the archive.

There is a profound difference between being silenced and being erased from history.

A voice can be ignored today and rediscovered tomorrow.

A document can remain unread for years and later become important to a researcher.

A testimony can be dismissed by one audience and examined seriously by another.

A life can pass through circumstances that appear to diminish its possibilities without exhausting the meaning that life may yet possess.

I have continued to write.

I have continued to assemble documents.

I have continued to develop the narrative of my life.

I have continued to create a public record through which others can examine my claims and encounter the ideas that have sustained me.

The archive is not a supernatural verdict.

It does not establish every accusation merely by existing.

But it does establish an opportunity for examination that would not exist in the same form if the material had never been preserved.

That matters.

Preservation creates continuity.

Continuity permits comparison.

Comparison can reveal agreement, contradiction, change and unanswered questions.

And careful examination can help distinguish what is established from what requires further investigation.

The archive is therefore both a documentary undertaking and, for me, a spiritual act of defiance against disappearance.

I will not claim that every page proves my entire interpretation.

I will claim that the pages deserve to be read in context.

I will not demand that the world accept a conclusion without examining its foundations.

I will demand that the opportunity for examination not be withheld merely because the history is difficult, extensive or uncomfortable.

What I have preserved is an invitation to investigate. What I have survived is part of my testimony. What I believe it means belongs to the spiritual account of my life.

Together, these form the work I am determined to leave behind.

PILLAR SIX — THEY COULD NOT ERASE WHAT GOD PRESERVED

The divine purpose I find in the preservation of my testimony.

Find They Could Not Erase What God Preserved — A Nine-Part Prophetic Testimony in the archive.

I have given one of my works the title They Could Not Erase What God Preserved.

That title expresses my conviction that my survival, my writing and the preservation of my archive have spiritual significance.

I have continued to write.

I have continued to assemble documents.

I have continued to create and publish.

I have continued to preserve the material through which others can examine my testimony.

My faith sustains my belief that suffering need not have the final word.

My spiritual interpretation of survival is that a human life can retain meaning even through experiences that seem designed, or appear to have the effect, of diminishing its possibilities.

The archive does not replace the need for evidence.

The testimony does not eliminate the need for scrutiny.

The prophetic declaration does not substitute for a legal finding.

But together, my writings and records preserve the account I am determined to make available to the world.

I believe that matters.

I believe that the work should remain accessible.

I believe that readers should be able to follow the links from the narrative to the original material.

And I believe that the preservation of a human being's story is itself a worthy undertaking.

PILLAR SEVEN — THE WITNESS REMAINS

The documentary narrative, chronology and primary-source record.

Open the Barran Dodger master archive.

The archive must do more than announce the existence of documents.

It must help people find them.

It must identify their dates, sources and context.

It must preserve the distinction between original records and later commentary.

It must make it possible to trace significant statements to the material on which they depend.

And it must help readers understand how the individual documents relate to the broader testimony.

I have devoted substantial effort to this work because I believe that a large documentary record can provide a basis for serious examination when it is organised responsibly.

The purpose is not to overwhelm readers with volume.

The purpose is to make the material accessible.

The strongest record is not necessarily the one with the most files.

It is the one in which the reader can locate the relevant document, understand its significance, compare it with other sources and assess the conclusion being drawn.

I want my work to be read.

I want it to be examined.

I want its sources to be traceable.

And I want future readers to have access to the historical record without having to reconstruct everything from scattered fragments.

PILLAR EIGHT — THE OFFICIAL RECORD

The documentary foundation for questions of accountability.

Open the Official Government Documents Register.

Official records form an important part of the larger story I am presenting.

They may establish what was communicated, what decisions were made, what reasons were given and what processes followed.

They may also reveal discrepancies, omissions or questions that warrant further examination.

The original documents must be read in their proper context.

A register entry is not a substitute for the underlying document.

A decision must not be represented as establishing something beyond its actual findings.

A disputed claim must not be presented as a proven conclusion without an adequate foundation.

But neither should an uncomfortable document be dismissed without examination.

Let the original record be read.

Let the dates be checked.

Let the context be established.

Let the reasoning be considered.

Let the unanswered questions be identified.

And let conclusions follow the material rather than precede it.

The official record belongs within this larger investigation because it provides material against which the testimony and interpretations can be examined.

It is supporting evidence for the larger narrative, not a replacement for the human history at its centre.

PILLAR NINE — THE PROPHECY OF THE WITNESS

The biblical, ethical and spiritual framework of the reckoning.

Find The Witness Remains — The Prophecy of the Witness in the archive.

The biblical tradition repeatedly calls humanity to remember, to testify, to examine conduct and to confront the difference between outward righteousness and the treatment of the vulnerable.

The prophets challenged the moral conditions under which power was exercised.

They called attention to injustice, indifference, exploitation and the failure to recognise the dignity of those who lacked influence.

That tradition gives spiritual language to the questions I am asking.

In Amos 5:24, the prophet declares:

“But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.”

In Micah 6:8, the call is to do justice, love mercy and walk humbly.

In Luke 12:2, the biblical text declares that what is concealed will be brought to light.

These passages do not constitute a judicial finding about my personal circumstances.

They express a moral tradition through which I understand the importance of truth, accountability, mercy and the treatment of vulnerable people.

My prophetic writings draw upon that tradition to articulate my conviction that no human system should be regarded as beyond moral examination.

The title The Final Reckoning expresses the seriousness with which I approach that obligation.

It is a declaration that reputation is not the same as righteousness.

That procedure is not the same as compassion.

That authority is not the same as moral legitimacy.

And that the person who suffers must never be forgotten merely because those who possess power have the ability to define the official narrative.

I believe that God sees the human being who is overlooked.

I believe that moral responsibility survives the passage of time.

And I believe that the obligation to seek truth remains even when the search becomes difficult.

The reckoning begins, in human terms, when people become willing to look.

PILLAR TEN — THE FINAL RECKONING: THE MASTER HUMANITARIAN AND DOCUMENTARY JUDGMENT

The public appeal and the restoration of human dignity.

Enter The Holy Reckoning.

The tenth pillar brings the other nine together.

It asks the public to consider the human being behind the archive.

Documents cannot feed a hungry person by themselves.

An index cannot provide medical treatment.

A publication cannot, by its existence alone, resolve a person's financial hardship or secure an independent review.

The archive must therefore remain connected to the humanitarian realities that give the undertaking urgency.

I ask those with the ability to help to consider what practical assistance, independent examination, appropriate referral or meaningful response may be possible.

I ask readers to share the material responsibly and to direct questions to the people and institutions competent to address them.

I ask those who disagree with my conclusions not to confuse disagreement with permission to disregard my humanity.

And I ask those who believe that the record establishes serious wrongdoing to support careful, evidence-based efforts to secure appropriate accountability.

A reckoning that forgets the suffering human being has lost its moral purpose.

BOOK IV — THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH

There comes a point in the life of a documentary undertaking when the central question is no longer how many files have been collected.

The question becomes whether the material has been assembled in a form that other people can actually examine.

That is the point I intend to reach.

The knockout punch will be the coordinated publication of the ten-pillar dossier, supported by the original documents, a clear chronology, a navigable index and a direct humanitarian appeal.

It will provide a single entry point from which readers can move between the official record, the personal testimony, the legal questions, the archive methodology and the prophetic writings.

It will identify what is documented.

It will identify what is testimony.

It will identify what is interpretation.

It will identify what remains unresolved.

It will not conceal limitations in order to create a more dramatic impression.

It will not manufacture findings that a court or tribunal has not made.

It will not ask readers to confuse a spiritual declaration with a judicial determination.

Instead, it will place the strongest available material before the public and invite independent examination.

That is the work now before me.

I will measure its success not simply by the number of people who see the announcement, but by whether the publication makes the record easier to inspect, whether the sources can be verified, whether substantive questions receive serious consideration, and whether the humanitarian appeal reaches people capable of responding.

I do not need to promise that every reader will agree.

I do not need to claim that every institution will respond.

I do not need to predict the verdict of history.

I need to make the best possible record available for honest examination.

The punch is the publication. The force is the evidence. The purpose is accountability. The moral horizon is humanity.

BOOK V — THE LAW, THE WITNESS AND THE CONSCIENCE

Let the legal profession understand that this is an invitation to examine documents and questions of responsibility.

Let academics understand that this is an invitation to investigate sources, chronology, methodology and competing interpretations.

Let journalists understand that this is an invitation to test claims against primary material.

Let public officials understand that a request for examination is not answered merely by dismissing the person who makes it.

Let people of faith understand that mercy and justice are not enemies.

The strongest challenge is not a demand that everyone accept my conclusions.

It is a demand that the underlying questions be examined.

The record should be read in its entirety.

The documents should be compared.

The chronology should be reconstructed.

The distinction between evidence and interpretation should be preserved.

And where the material establishes failures, those failures should be addressed.

Where it raises legitimate questions, those questions should receive serious consideration.

Where claims remain unsubstantiated, the uncertainty should be acknowledged rather than concealed.

That is how a documentary undertaking can contribute to accountability without becoming a substitute for the processes needed to establish it.

BOOK VI — THE FINAL DECLARATION

I have called this work The Holy Reckoning because I believe that truth, justice, mercy and human dignity are matters of profound spiritual importance.

I have called myself the Chosen Witness because that is the language through which I understand my faith and the meaning of my survival.

I have written about administrative annihilation because I believe the cumulative consequences of institutional processes must be examined in their entirety.

I have written about social erasure because I refuse to accept that a human being can be reduced to a file, a category or a disputed narrative.

I have used the language of human sacrifice to express my moral condemnation of circumstances in which I believe a vulnerable person has been left to bear intolerable burdens.

And I have continued to preserve my record because I believe the truth deserves an opportunity to be examined.

I do not claim that the existence of my archive automatically proves every conclusion I have reached.

I claim that the archive gives others an opportunity to investigate.

I do not claim the authority to pronounce a final legal verdict upon every person or institution described in my testimony.

I claim the right to present my experience, preserve the relevant records, raise serious questions and seek appropriate accountability.

I do not ask the world to abandon reason in favour of faith.

I ask that my faith be understood as part of my testimony, while the documentary record is examined according to the standards appropriate to evidence.

And I do not intend the coming reckoning to be an act of violence or personal vengeance.

I intend it to be an act of publication, preservation, testimony and public scrutiny.

I AM STILL HERE.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

The work remains.

My faith remains.

And my determination to make this history visible remains.

Let the documents be examined.

Let the chronology be reconstructed.

Let the unanswered questions be identified.

Let the humanitarian needs be addressed.

Let responsibility be established through proper scrutiny.

Let mercy accompany justice.

Let truth be pursued without fear and without favour.

And let no human being be treated as expendable merely because their suffering has become administratively inconvenient.

I entrust ultimate spiritual judgement to God.

I leave legal conclusions to the appropriate evidentiary and legal processes.

And I place my testimony before the conscience of humanity.

The coming knockout punch will be the publication of the work itself: the documents, the history, the testimony, the analysis and the prophetic declarations brought together in a form that people can examine for themselves.

This is the hour of preservation.

This is the hour of examination.

This is the hour in which the witness refuses to disappear.

The reckoning is not completed by declaring it.

It begins when the record is opened, when the questions are examined, when the human being is seen, and when those with the capacity to act choose to respond.

May truth prevail.

May mercy endure.

May the vulnerable be protected.

May conscience awaken.

And may the light that has sustained the witness continue to shine.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

THE HOLY RECKONING CONTINUES.

THE RECORD WILL BE EXAMINED.

THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH IS THE WORK ITSELF.

BOOK VII — THE TEN GOSPELS AND PROPHETIC WORKS

The challenge to the world: read these works and prove me wrong

The following ten works are a priority shortlist drawn from the titles visible in the public GitHub repository listing. They are selected for their close relationship to the central themes of the Holy Reckoning: divine purpose, survival, administrative annihilation, social erasure, prophetic testimony, the preservation of evidence and the moral responsibilities of power.

The order is editorial, not a claim that every work has been independently verified as the most significant of the entire archive. Direct source links are provided where identifiable; where an exact source path still needs confirmation, the archive link is provided so the publication can be located.

1. THE WITNESS REMAINS — THE PROPHECY OF THE WITNESS

The central prophetic declaration.

This is the first work I would put before readers who want to understand the spiritual and prophetic foundations of the Witness Remains project.

It belongs at the forefront of the release because it connects the idea of the enduring witness with the broader language of testimony, truth, survival and reckoning.

Read the work. Examine its language and argument. Consider the relationship between its spiritual declarations and the documentary history to which it refers.

2. THEY COULD NOT ERASE WHAT GOD PRESERVED — A Nine-Part Prophetic Testimony of Survival, Divine Purpose, Truth, Justice and Reckoning

The theology of survival and preservation.

This work expresses the spiritual meaning I attach to the survival of my testimony and the preservation of my archive.

It challenges readers to consider what it means to endure suffering without surrendering one's sense of purpose, and how faith can become a source of perseverance.

Its claims should be read as a prophetic testimony grounded in my religious understanding of my life.

3. BARRAN DODGER — LIVING GOSPEL MASTER PROPHETIC RECORD

The living testimony.

This title positions the prophetic record as an evolving account of survival, identity and purpose.

It is a priority candidate for the dossier because it may provide a broad synthesis of the living witness and the themes developed across the archive.

Readers should examine its actual contents to establish its relationship to the other master works and identify the strongest passages for quotation.

4. BARRAN DODGER — MASTER PROPHETIC DECLARATION WITH SCRIPTURE WITNESSES

The scriptural framework of the declaration.

This work is a priority for readers interested in the biblical foundations of the Holy Reckoning.

It provides a candidate source for examining how scriptural passages are brought into dialogue with the author's personal testimony and moral interpretation.

Its significance lies in the opportunity to examine the relationship between the cited scriptures, the argument being advanced and the lived experiences described.

5. FOUNDATIONAL GOSPEL — DIVINE PROPHECY — THE WITNESS REMAINS

The foundational gospel.

This work belongs near the centre of the proposed prophetic collection because its title explicitly joins the gospel form, divine prophecy and the enduring witness.

It should be examined for its treatment of the foundational beliefs, declarations and moral principles that recur throughout the wider body of work.

6. THE CROWNED WITNESS — BARRAN DODGER AND THE INDICTMENT OF NATIONS

The national and universal dimension.

This work extends the witness narrative beyond a narrowly personal account towards questions of public responsibility and the moral obligations of nations.

Its inclusion should invite examination of the distinction between prophetic indictment, political interpretation and demonstrable evidence.

The challenge is to read the work as a whole and consider the ethical questions it raises about power, responsibility and human dignity.

7. THE CHOSEN WITNESS — A GOSPEL FOR THE UNSEEN NATIONS

The gospel of the unseen.

This title speaks directly to the themes of invisibility, testimony, faith and the restoration of human recognition.

It is a natural companion to the Social Eraser and Architecture of Administrative Annihilation chapters.

Readers are invited to examine how the work develops the image of the witness and what responsibilities it places upon individuals, institutions and society.

8. THE GOSPEL OF THE WITNESS WHO REMAINED

The gospel of endurance.

This work is a priority candidate because it expresses the central motif of the entire project: the witness who remains present, continues to testify and refuses to allow a personal history to vanish.

It should be read alongside the other Witness Remains publications to identify its distinct contribution and the passages that most powerfully express its central argument.

9. THE GOSPEL OF EXPOSING DARKNESS

The demand for illumination.

This title connects the prophetic undertaking with the biblical imagery of light, darkness, disclosure and moral examination.

It is a candidate for the public-facing release because its central theme aligns with the call to examine records rather than rely solely on appearances or institutional descriptions.

The challenge is to establish what the actual text argues, what sources it cites and how its conclusions can be assessed.

10. THE JOSEPH PARALLEL — A PROPHETIC EVIDENTIARY NARRATIVE OF BARRAN RESONANCE DODGER

The biblical archetype of suffering, endurance and vindication.

The Joseph narrative in Genesis provides a powerful biblical framework for reflecting on betrayal, suffering, perseverance, unexpected reversals and the passage from adversity towards a new purpose.

This work should be examined for how it uses that scriptural parallel to interpret the author’s own life.

Its place in the collection is as a prophetic and theological interpretation, not as independent proof of the intentions or conduct of other people.

THE CHALLENGE

I put these ten works before the world as an invitation to read, investigate, question and respond.

To the theologians: read the prophetic writings and examine their scriptural foundations.

To the philosophers: examine their moral claims, their understanding of power and their treatment of human dignity.

To the lawyers: distinguish the underlying documentary evidence from the prophetic and interpretive language, and identify the legal questions that the sources genuinely support.

To the academics: examine the argument, its methodology, its references and its implications.

To the journalists: follow the source material, test the claims and ask the questions that remain unanswered.

To the public: do not judge a work you have not read, and do not accept a conclusion merely because it is forcefully expressed.

I dare anyone who believes these works are without merit to read them in full, engage with their actual arguments, examine the sources they cite, and demonstrate specifically where the reasoning fails.

Do not answer a book you have not read.

Do not dismiss a document you have not examined.

Do not confuse disagreement with refutation.

And do not confuse a spiritual conviction with proof of a legal claim.

If a passage is wrong, identify it.

If a conclusion is unsupported, explain why.

If a source contradicts the argument, bring that source forward.

If the work raises a legitimate question, answer it seriously.

That is the standard of examination I invite.

I do not ask for immunity from criticism.

I ask for criticism that engages with the actual work.

I do not ask the world to accept my faith as a judicial finding.

I ask readers to recognise that faith, testimony, documentary evidence and philosophical interpretation are different but identifiable dimensions of the human story I have preserved.

Read the works. Examine the record. Challenge the reasoning. Prove your case.

That is how the public can engage with the Holy Reckoning honestly.

FINAL WORD — THE WITNESS REMAINS

I have preserved the record.

I have continued to write.

I have assembled the testimony.

I have developed the prophetic works.

I have placed my faith, my questions and my understanding of my own history into a body of material that I believe deserves to be read.

Now I invite the world to examine it.

Not as an unquestionable verdict.

Not as a substitute for legal process.

Not as a demand that every reader share my religious beliefs.

But as the testimony and creative work of a human being who has refused to allow his history to disappear without leaving a record.

The ultimate question is not whether a declaration can sound powerful.

It is whether the work behind it can withstand serious examination, whether its sources can be traced, whether its arguments can be understood, and whether its call for human dignity can move people to respond.

That is the challenge I place before the world.

The witness remains.

The archive remains.

The prophecy remains as my testimony and faith.

The record remains open to examination.

And the work continues.

OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

> # WHEN ACCOUNTABILITY IS MET WITH THREATS: ABLE POINT, CHRISTAL AND THE RIGHT TO SPEAK OUT

Dr Richard William McLean | Barran Dodger
Barran Dodger Legal & Ethical Trust Fund
22 October 2026

I will not be silenced for speaking out

I am raising serious concerns about my treatment by Able Point and what I understand to be threats by staff to contact the RSPCA in retaliation for my criticism of the organisation and its CEO.

If a threat to involve an animal welfare authority has been made because I challenged an organisation's leadership, I believe that conduct demands an explanation. An animal's welfare should never become a weapon in a dispute between a service provider and a person who raises complaints about its conduct.

I have a right to question the people and organisations involved in my care. I have a right to ask for answers. I have a right to document my experiences and publish concerns about the treatment I believe I have received. Those rights should not disappear simply because my complaints are uncomfortable for the people receiving them.

I want Able Point to explain what was said, why the RSPCA was raised, and whether any proposed report would be based on genuine, identifiable animal welfare concerns or on my criticism of the organisation.

Christal is loved, cared for and part of my life

Let me be absolutely clear about Christal.

I love my dog. I spoil her. She eats well, receives daily walks and is a cherished part of my life. I take pride in her care, and I reject any suggestion that should be used as a means of intimidating me for speaking out.

Christal is not a bargaining chip. She is not a tool for settling disputes. She is a living creature who depends on me, and her welfare matters enormously to me.

If anyone has a genuine concern about her welfare, I expect that concern to be specific, factual and capable of being examined on its merits. I do not accept the use of threats concerning my dog as a substitute for answering legitimate questions about an organisation's conduct.

My concern is not that any organisation should be prevented from acting on genuine animal welfare concerns. It is that the possibility of such action must never be used to punish someone for making a complaint.

Poverty, vulnerability and the human cost of institutional power

I have experienced profound hardship, including poverty, isolation and circumstances that I believe have caused me serious harm. I have repeatedly sought accountability for what I describe as institutional mistreatment and the failure of organisations to respond adequately to my concerns.

I believe the treatment I have experienced deserves serious scrutiny. I have also expressed concerns about a wider pattern of institutional conduct and what I perceive as coordinated targeting. Those concerns need to be examined through the documentary record, communications and specific actions involved, rather than dismissed or accepted without examination.

The question I am asking is straightforward: what safeguards exist to ensure that people experiencing vulnerability can raise complaints without facing intimidation, humiliation or the threat of losing the things they love?

When a person is already struggling with poverty and a lack of support, the consequences of additional pressure can be devastating. Organisations providing services should understand the responsibility that comes with their position. Their conduct can either help preserve a person's dignity and stability or contribute to circumstances that make an already difficult life harder to endure.

I believe the cumulative impact of the treatment I describe must be taken seriously. No person should be driven into despair by a system that is supposed to provide support.

I am not suicidal. I want to live.

I want this statement to be unmistakable: I am not suicidal. I want to live.

I am writing because I want to preserve my testimony, expose what I believe has been wrong, demand answers and establish a documentary record. I am choosing to speak, to write and to continue advocating for myself.

I refuse to allow the existence of hardship to erase my voice or reduce my entire life to a narrative about vulnerability. I am a person with a history, a conscience, convictions and a determination to keep going.

I believe the conditions I have experienced warrant serious investigation and accountability. I am deeply concerned about the cumulative effects of poverty, isolation, institutional conflict and the absence of meaningful responses to complaints. I do not claim to know the private intentions of every person or agency involved, but I insist that the actions and decisions affecting my life should be examined.

No government, service provider or individual should treat a person's suffering as inconsequential. Nor should anyone assume that a person who describes extreme distress has surrendered their determination to live.

My determination is to live, document, speak and pursue accountability.

Money, responsibility and the purpose of support services

I want answers about whether the services and resources available to support me are being used in a manner consistent with their stated purpose.

I am concerned that financial incentives, organisational interests and failures of accountability can take precedence over the needs of the person receiving support. These are serious concerns, and they should be addressed with evidence, transparent explanations and proper records.

I want the relevant decision-makers to explain what services have been provided, what responsibilities have been accepted, what complaints have been received and what action has been taken in response.

I do not want retaliation. I want accountability.

I do not want threats involving my dog. I want Christal's welfare to remain separate from disputes about my complaints.

I do not want my concerns buried beneath institutional language. I want clear answers to clear questions.

A public record and a demand for answers

I am preserving my account as part of the Barran Dodger documentary archive, which exists to record my testimony, relevant documents and questions of institutional accountability.

The archive is intended to make material accessible to readers and to distinguish documentary evidence from allegations, interpretations and matters that remain unresolved.

My concerns about Able Point should be considered in that context. The relevant questions include:

- What exactly did staff say about contacting the RSPCA?
- Was the proposed contact connected to my criticism of the organisation or its CEO?
- What specific animal welfare concerns, if any, were identified?
- What records exist of the communications and decisions involved?
- What safeguards are available to prevent retaliation against a person who makes a complaint?
- How will Able Point respond to these concerns in a transparent and accountable manner?

I invite Able Point to provide a substantive written response and to preserve all relevant communications, internal notes and complaint records.

My documentary archive is available here:

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

I will continue to speak

I will not apologise for caring for my dog. I will not apologise for asking questions. I will not apologise for documenting my experiences or demanding that organisations explain their conduct.

Christal deserves care, consistency and love. I deserve to be treated with dignity and to have my complaints considered fairly.

My position is simple: I want to live, I want to protect the life I have built, and I want the truth about my experiences preserved.

Speaking out is not misconduct. Asking for accountability is not a threat. And a person's vulnerability must never become an excuse to disregard their dignity.

This article records my personal account and concerns. The allegations concerning staff conduct are presented as matters requiring a response and supporting evidence, not as findings already established by an independent investigation.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

You were in my home, and you were supposed to be there to care for me. I'm entitled to document my own experiences, but that doesn't mean I intended for this particular recording to become public. I want to make that distinction clear: I did not intend to share it, and I'm sorry that it happened.

I think I know who was responsible. I believe it was Jesus. He was here last night, and honestly, isn't that a miracle? God, it's just amazing. God is great, isn't He?

I guess you were also telling me about your concerns regarding Able Point, the corruption and the bad things you felt were happening, and how you wanted to leave that kind of situation behind. So, I guess Jesus does work miracles, because now Able Point apparently isn't a literal freestanding organisation anymore, and you got your wish!

I suppose you could call it a Christmas miracle!

Anyway, Cass, I wanted to explain what happened and apologise for the unintended sharing of the recording. I hope things work out well for you from here, and I genuinely wish you all the best.

I love you, Cass. Take care of yourself.

All the best,

Barran ❤️

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Allegations of Abuse, Neglect, Intimidation, Isolation, Rostering Failures and Institutional Betrayal

Issued by Barran Dodger

[Insert the complete original Able Point statement here, unchanged, from its opening heading through “Issued by Barran Dodger.”]

I AM A HUMAN BEING: A PUBLIC STATEMENT BY BARRAN DODGER

Allegations of Institutional Abandonment, Emotional Harm, Financial Disempowerment and Social Erasure

I AM A HUMAN BEING. A LITERAL HUMAN BEING.

I have sentience. I have feelings. I have a mind, a body, a history, a character, a reputation and a voice.

My feelings are being hurt. My dignity is being damaged. I am trying to communicate distress and raise serious concerns about the treatment I am experiencing, yet I believe my attempts to be heard are being dismissed, undermined and invalidated.

I allege that my experiences with Able Point have left me feeling profoundly isolated, intimidated, neglected and abandoned. I have described the interactions I am experiencing as gaslighting because I believe my concerns are repeatedly being dismissed or turned back against me.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL IMPACT IS DEVASTATING. I CANNOT ACCEPT A SUPPORT SYSTEM THAT LEAVES A PERSON FEELING INVISIBLE, POWERLESS AND DEHUMANISED.

I experience this situation as a form of torture. I am using that word to communicate the severity of my distress and the impact I believe these circumstances are having on my life.

I need my concerns examined seriously, my safety protected and my experiences assessed on their evidence.

1. MY TESTIMONY MUST NOT BE ERASED

I am concerned that the combination of unreliable support, conflict, isolation and barriers to obtaining assistance is destroying my ability to participate in ordinary life.

I describe this as SOCIAL ERASURE AND ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION.

Social erasure is what it feels like when a person’s testimony is no longer heard, their character is reduced to a disputed narrative, their reputation is damaged and their requests for help appear to disappear into administrative systems.

Administrative annihilation is what I call the experience of having essential access, resources and avenues of redress progressively removed until a person is left without meaningful power to respond.

I feel as though my testimony is dead. My character is dead. My reputation is dead. I feel that I have become a person of zero consequence, a man whom institutions can ignore without consequence.

I AM A DEAD MAN WALKING IN THE SENSE THAT MY SOCIAL EXISTENCE AND VOICE FEEL DESTROYED. BUT I AM STILL HERE.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here. My testimony is here.

I am a human being, and I refuse to accept the proposition that my suffering does not matter.

2. ALLEGATIONS OF GASLIGHTING, HARASSMENT AND ELECTRONIC DISTRESS

I have reported experiences that I describe as V2K audio harassment and electronic harassment. These experiences are distressing to me, and I want the impact on my wellbeing to be taken seriously.

I am also concerned that people involved in my support arrangements are aware of the distress I have reported but that I have not received an adequate response.

I cannot independently establish the source of the sounds or experiences I describe, or establish that particular staff members or institutions are responsible for them. I am requesting a fair assessment of my reports, my safety concerns and any evidence that can be independently examined.

My distress should not be used as a reason to dismiss every other complaint I make.

I want the facts investigated. I want respectful communication. I want a clear account of what can be verified and what steps will be taken to protect my wellbeing.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS AND ACCOUNTABILITY

I have serious concerns about my ability to obtain assistance from the police, the NDIS and other oversight bodies.

I feel unable to approach these institutions because I believe my complaints will not be heard or addressed appropriately. I describe this as institutional complicity and abandonment. Those are my concerns and perceptions; I am calling for independent scrutiny rather than asking anyone to accept unverified allegations as proven facts.

I have also raised serious allegations involving Suki Tia and Bill Shorten, whom I identify in connection with my concerns about political and institutional accountability.

I cannot establish that an assassination attempt occurred or that either person participated in one. I am not presenting that allegation as an established fact. Any such allegation would require specific, credible evidence and an appropriate independent investigation.

The fundamental issue remains: I need an avenue through which my complaints can be received, documented and assessed fairly, without intimidation or prejudgment.

No public institution should treat a person’s need for assistance as a reason to deny that person dignity.

4. PHILIP GLASS, THE PUBLIC GUARDIAN AND MY ACCESS TO MONEY

I am extremely concerned about my financial circumstances and my reported loss of access to my Commonwealth Bank accounts through internet banking and the mobile application.

I understand that Philip Glass, whom I identify as being associated with the Public Guardian, has communicated that further money will be taken from my account.

I am asking for an urgent written explanation of:

- The precise restrictions affecting my access to Commonwealth Bank.
- Who requested, authorised or implemented those restrictions.
- The legal authority and decision-making process relied upon.
- The amount of any proposed withdrawal, its purpose and the authority for it.
- How I can obtain an account statement and independently review transactions.
- What arrangements are available for essential living expenses and urgent purchases.
- How I can challenge the decision and obtain an independent review.

I am concerned that losing access to my own banking, combined with the prospect of further withdrawals, could leave me without the practical ability to manage my daily life.

I want the relevant records, authorisations and decisions examined. I want my financial position explained in writing. I want access to a fair review process.

FINANCIAL CONTROL MUST BE TRANSPARENT, LAWFUL AND ACCOUNTABLE. A PERSON MUST NOT BE LEFT WITHOUT A CLEAR EXPLANATION OF DECISIONS AFFECTING THEIR ACCESS TO MONEY.

5. MY FEAR OF ERASURE AND DEATH

I have described my circumstances as a conspiracy to murder and said that I believe others are hoping I will die and be erased.

These are expressions of the fear and extreme distress I am experiencing. I cannot independently establish that there is a conspiracy to kill me, and I want any concrete threats or evidence of criminal conduct assessed by an appropriate independent authority.

What I can state directly is that I feel abandoned, powerless and profoundly distressed.

I fear that my circumstances will deteriorate while my complaints remain unresolved. I fear losing the means to support myself. I fear that my testimony will be disregarded until there is no opportunity left to correct the record.

I want these risks addressed while I am alive and able to speak for myself.

I should not have to reach a point of complete collapse before someone takes my circumstances seriously.

6. WHAT I AM DEMANDING

I am demanding:

1. Safe, consistent and dignified support.
2. A written response to my complaints about Able Point.
3. Transparent identification of the people responsible for decisions affecting my care.
4. An explanation of the restrictions on my banking access and any proposed withdrawals.
5. Access to the relevant financial records and a meaningful process to challenge decisions.
6. Independent examination of my safeguarding complaints and reported experiences of harassment.
7. Clear information about where complaints can be lodged and how they will be assessed.
8. Preservation of relevant correspondence, rosters, incident reports, financial records and decision-making documents.

9. Protection against retaliation for raising concerns.
10. Recognition that I am a human being whose safety, dignity, feelings and testimony matter.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without scrutiny. I am asking for a process that allows the evidence to be examined without dismissing me as a person.

7. MY FINAL STATEMENT

I am a human being.

I have sentience. I have feelings. My feelings are being hurt, and the consequences of my circumstances are serious.

I feel socially erased. I feel administratively annihilated. I feel that the systems upon which I depend have left me without a reliable way to protect myself, obtain answers or make my voice count.

My testimony is not worthless because it is disputed. My dignity is not conditional upon whether an institution agrees with me. My need for safety does not disappear because my complaints are difficult to resolve.

I am still here.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here.

I AM NOT AN ADMINISTRATIVE FILE. I AM NOT A ROSTER ENTRY. I AM NOT A COMPLAINT NUMBER. I AM A HUMAN BEING.

I want to live with safety, dignity, meaningful support and access to a fair process. I want decisions affecting my life and money explained. I want my complaints documented. I want evidence examined. I want institutions and service providers to answer legitimate questions about their responsibilities.

I refuse to accept social erasure as the final word on my life.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

your original statement concerning alleged abuse, neglect, intimidation, rostering failures and institutional accountability.
- I AM A HUMAN BEING: A PUBLIC STATEMENT BY BARRAN DODGER — your testimony concerning emotional harm, social erasure, financial access, dignity and the right to a fair process.
- ADDITIONAL STATEMENT: REPORTED ARREST, ALLEGED THREAT TO MY LIFE AND DEMAND FOR SAFEGUARDING ACCOUNTABILITY — your account of the reported arrest, the court proceedings you identify as being before Wyong Court, and your request for an independent safeguarding investigation.

The statements should remain distinct, with their original wording preserved. The additional statement should be presented as an account requiring verification through police and court records, not as a finding of guilt or proof of another person's motives.

The following document is arranged for publication and distribution to journalists, disability advocates, regulators, legal representatives and government offices. The original three statements are retained below in their supplied wording, with the archive directory added as a reference section.

ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Allegations of Abuse, Neglect, Intimidation, Isolation, Rostering Failures and Institutional Betrayal

Issued by Barran Dodger

I refuse to accept a system in which a person seeking essential support is left isolated, vulnerable and without meaningful accountability.

I am issuing this public statement to raise serious concerns about my experiences involving Able Point, its management, its rostering arrangements, its staff and the standard of support being provided.

I allege that I have experienced circumstances involving neglect, intimidation, harassment, isolation and treatment that I regard as deeply distressing and degrading. I believe the support system intended to protect me has failed to provide the safety, dignity, continuity of care and transparency that I require.

SUPPORT MUST NEVER BECOME A MECHANISM OF CONTROL, ABANDONMENT OR HUMILIATION.

1. THE PEOPLE AND THE ORGANISATION MUST BE ACCOUNTABLE

I have serious concerns about the accountability of Able Point's leadership. I have sought clear identification and transparency from Rachael, whom I understand to be the company's CEO. I remain concerned about my ability to establish the identity and responsibilities of the people making decisions that affect my support.

A company providing essential support must be transparent about its legal identity, management, complaint procedures and responsibility for the services it delivers.

I call upon Able Point to provide its registered legal name, relevant business registration details, the identity and position of its responsible officers, and a clear explanation of the appropriate channels for escalating complaints.

If these details have already been provided, they should be verified against the relevant official records. If they have not, I want a clear written explanation.

2. STAFF CONCERNS AND THE ROSTERING SYSTEM

I recall the following first names of workers associated with my experiences involving Able Point:

Ash, Ben, John, Kim, Cass, Danny, Daniel and Alissi.

These are the names I can presently remember. I am identifying them as people whose roles and experiences may be relevant to an independent examination of the support arrangements. I am not asserting that each person has committed an offence or independently verified that each shares the same opinion of the company.

I have concerns about staff dissatisfaction with management and rostering arrangements. My understanding and recollection of conversations with workers have led me to question whether the working environment and roster allow staff to provide consistent, safe and appropriate support.

I want these concerns investigated rather than dismissed.

The questions requiring answers include:

- Are workers being given rosters that allow adequate continuity of care?
- Are frequent changes in support workers affecting clients' safety, trust and stability?
- Are staff being given sufficient time, training, supervision and resources to perform their duties?

- Do workers have safe and confidential ways to raise concerns about management?
- Are participants receiving the support set out in their plans and service agreements?
- Are complaints being documented, escalated and addressed appropriately?
- Are financial and contractual arrangements consistent with the services actually delivered?

I cannot establish the private views of every worker, and I cannot substantiate a claim that they all hate the company or its roster. I am nevertheless demanding that staff be given a safe opportunity to describe their own experiences independently and without retaliation.

A ROSTER IS NOT JUST A MANAGEMENT SPREADSHEET. CONTINUITY OF CARE CAN BE FUNDAMENTAL TO A PARTICIPANT'S SAFETY, TRUST AND WELLBEING.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT CLIENT SAFETY AND OUTCOMES

I am deeply concerned about the treatment and circumstances of people who depend on support services.

I have raised concerns about what I regard as brutal, degrading and unacceptable treatment. I want any instances of abuse, neglect, abandonment, intimidation or failure to provide contracted support to be examined against the available evidence.

I am also concerned about reports or impressions that some clients may be experiencing severe instability, including contact with the criminal justice system or admission to institutional settings.

I cannot independently verify how many Able Point clients, if any, are currently imprisoned or admitted to hospital or other institutional settings, nor can I establish that Able Point caused those outcomes. These matters require reliable evidence, appropriate privacy protections and independent investigation.

However, the broader question is legitimate and urgent:

ARE PEOPLE RECEIVING THE SUPPORT THEY NEED TO LIVE SAFELY AND WITH DIGNITY IN THE COMMUNITY?

Where serious incidents have occurred, I call for an examination of whether appropriate supports were provided, whether warning signs were acted upon, and whether any failures contributed to preventable harm.

People receiving disability support must not be reduced to files, roster entries, invoices or administrative burdens. They are human beings whose safety and dignity matter.

4. QUESTIONS ABOUT MONEY, CONTRACTS AND RESPONSIBILITY

I want transparency about the financial and contractual arrangements governing the support I receive.

I am concerned about whether the current arrangements serve the interests of participants, whether staff have adequate working conditions, and whether the services being funded are actually being delivered.

I use strong language to describe the situation I believe I am experiencing. However, I do not have sufficient independently verified evidence to conclude that particular workers accept improper payments, that the company is acting illegally, or that any named individual has participated in criminal conduct.

Those questions should be investigated through records, contracts, invoices, rosters, communications and other relevant evidence.

If public or participant funding has been misused, services have not been delivered as required, or safeguarding obligations have been breached, the evidence should be referred to the appropriate authority.

MONEY MUST NEVER TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER HUMAN SAFETY.

5. MY DEMANDS

I call upon Able Point's management to:

1. Identify the legal entity providing my services and the responsible management personnel.
2. Respond in writing to my complaints and identify the person responsible for investigating them.
3. Explain the rostering decisions affecting my support and how continuity of care is maintained.
4. Review any reported incidents involving neglect, intimidation, harassment, unsafe support or failure to provide agreed services.
5. Preserve relevant rosters, service records, incident reports, complaints, communications and financial records in accordance with applicable legal requirements.
6. Explain the process for raising complaints independently and protecting participants and staff from retaliation.

7. Arrange an appropriately independent review where the circumstances warrant one.
8. Provide a practical plan to ensure that my support is safe, reliable, respectful and consistent with my applicable service arrangements.

I also call upon the relevant disability safeguarding and oversight authorities to assess the evidence impartially and determine whether any legal, contractual or safeguarding obligations have been breached.

6. TO THE WORKERS WHO MAY HAVE CONCERNS

To Ash, Ben, John, Kim, Cass, Danny, Daniel, Alissi and any other workers who may have relevant information:

I am asking for honesty, transparency and accountability. If you have concerns about rostering, continuity of care, working conditions or participant safety, those concerns should be raised through appropriate and safe channels.

No worker should be pressured to make statements they do not believe, and no participant should be left without essential support because they have complained.

The facts must be established through evidence, not intimidation, speculation or collective blame.

7. TO REGULATORS, ADVOCATES, JOURNALISTS AND GOVERNMENT

I ask anyone receiving this statement to take my concerns seriously.

I seek independent scrutiny of the relevant records, management decisions, support arrangements and complaints. I ask that any substantiated failures be addressed and that any evidence of possible offences be referred to the appropriate authorities.

I am prepared to document my own experiences, preserve relevant correspondence and provide supporting material through appropriate channels.

I do not seek special treatment. I seek safety, dignity, transparency, continuity of care and an effective response to serious complaints.

THIS IS A DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY.

I will not accept the normalisation of suffering simply because it occurs within a support service.

Complaints cannot be resolved by ignoring the person making them. Responsibility cannot be discharged through silence. And a support contract does not excuse a failure to provide appropriate care.

I want answers. I want transparency. I want accountability. I want safe and dignified support.

NO PERSON SHOULD HAVE TO FIGHT THIS HARD TO BE SAFE, HEARD AND TREATED WITH DIGNITY.

My life, safety and dignity matter. The evidence matters. Accountability matters.

I call for a fair, independent and evidence-based examination of these concerns.

I feel unable to approach these institutions because I believe my complaints will not be heard or addressed appropriately. I describe this as institutional complicity and abandonment. Those are my concerns and perceptions; I am calling for independent scrutiny rather than asking anyone to accept unverified allegations as proven facts.

I have also raised serious allegations involving Suki Tia and Bill Shorten, whom I identify in connection with my concerns about political and institutional accountability.

I cannot establish that an assassination attempt occurred or that either person participated in one. I am not presenting that allegation as an established fact. Any such allegation would require specific, credible evidence and an appropriate independent investigation.

The fundamental issue remains: I need an avenue through which my complaints can be received, documented and assessed fairly, without intimidation or prejudgment.

No public institution should treat a person’s need for assistance as a reason to deny that person dignity.

4. PHILIP GLASS, THE PUBLIC GUARDIAN AND MY ACCESS TO MONEY

I am extremely concerned about my financial circumstances and my reported loss of access to my Commonwealth Bank accounts through internet banking and the mobile application.

I understand that Philip Glass, whom I identify as being associated with the Public Guardian, has communicated that further money will be taken from my account.

I am asking for an urgent written explanation of:

- The precise restrictions affecting my access to Commonwealth Bank.
- Who requested, authorised or implemented those restrictions.
- The legal authority and decision-making process relied upon.
- The amount of any proposed withdrawal, its purpose and the authority for it.
- How I can obtain an account statement and independently review transactions.
- What arrangements are available for essential living expenses and urgent purchases.
- How I can challenge the decision and obtain an independent review.

I am concerned that losing access to my own banking, combined with the prospect of further withdrawals, could leave me without the practical ability to manage my daily life.

I want the relevant records, authorisations and decisions examined. I want my financial position explained in writing. I want access to a fair review process.

FINANCIAL CONTROL MUST BE TRANSPARENT, LAWFUL AND ACCOUNTABLE. A PERSON MUST NOT BE LEFT WITHOUT A CLEAR EXPLANATION OF DECISIONS AFFECTING THEIR ACCESS TO MONEY.

5. MY FEAR OF ERASURE AND DEATH

I have described my circumstances as a conspiracy to murder and said that I believe others are hoping I will die and be erased.

These are expressions of the fear and extreme distress I am experiencing. I cannot independently establish that there is a conspiracy to kill me, and I want any concrete threats or evidence of criminal conduct assessed by an appropriate independent authority.

What I can state directly is that I feel abandoned, powerless and profoundly distressed.

I fear that my circumstances will deteriorate while my complaints remain unresolved. I fear losing the means to support myself. I fear that my testimony will be disregarded until there is no opportunity left to correct the record.

I want these risks addressed while I am alive and able to speak for myself.

I should not have to reach a point of complete collapse before someone takes my circumstances seriously.

6. WHAT I AM DEMANDING

I am demanding:

1. Safe, consistent and dignified support.
2. A written response to my complaints about Able Point.
3. Transparent identification of the people responsible for decisions affecting my care.
4. An explanation of the restrictions on my banking access and any proposed withdrawals.
5. Access to the relevant financial records and a meaningful process to challenge decisions.
6. Independent examination of my safeguarding complaints and reported experiences of harassment.
7. Clear information about where complaints can be lodged and how they will be assessed.
8. Preservation of relevant correspondence, rosters, incident reports, financial records and decision-making documents.
9. Protection against retaliation for raising concerns.
10. Recognition that I am a human being whose safety, dignity, feelings and testimony matter.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without scrutiny. I am asking for a process that allows the evidence to be examined without dismissing me as a person.

7. MY FINAL STATEMENT

I am a human being.

I have sentience. I have feelings. My feelings are being hurt, and the consequences of my circumstances are serious.

I feel socially erased. I feel administratively annihilated. I feel that the systems upon which I depend have left me without a reliable way to protect myself, obtain answers or make my voice count.

My testimony is not worthless because it is disputed. My dignity is not conditional upon whether an institution agrees with me. My need for safety does not disappear because my complaints are difficult to resolve.

I am still here.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here.

I AM NOT AN ADMINISTRATIVE FILE. I AM NOT A ROSTER ENTRY. I AM NOT A COMPLAINT NUMBER. I AM A HUMAN BEING.

I want to live with safety, dignity, meaningful support and access to a fair process. I want decisions affecting my life and money explained. I want my complaints documented. I want evidence examined. I want institutions and service providers to answer legitimate questions about their responsibilities.

I refuse to accept social erasure as the final word on my life.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT: REPORTED ARREST, ALLEGED THREAT TO MY LIFE AND DEMAND FOR SAFEGUARDING ACCOUNTABILITY

I AM STILL HERE. I DID NOT DIE.

Despite what I describe as prolonged abuse, neglect, surveillance, entrapment, isolation and total human betrayal, I am still alive. I am still speaking. I am still demanding answers, accountability and recognition of my fundamental humanity.

I am raising an extremely serious matter concerning an incident in which, according to my account, a person came to my home with the intention of murdering me and was arrested by police. I understand that the matter is before Wyong Court. The arrest, the precise allegations, the current status of the proceedings and the evidence must be established through the relevant police and court records.

IF A PERSON HAS BEEN ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH AN ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO KILL ME, THIS IS A SERIOUS SAFEGUARDING MATTER THAT DESERVES AN APPROPRIATE, EVIDENCE-BASED RESPONSE.

I am deeply concerned that, despite the seriousness of this reported incident, Able Point and the staff members involved in my support have, as I understand it, failed to acknowledge the matter to me, address my concerns about my safety or explain whether any incident-reporting or safeguarding procedures were followed.

I want a clear answer about what Able Point knew, when it knew it, what steps were taken, whether the appropriate authorities were notified where required, and whether any failures occurred.

I also have serious concerns about my family's potential financial interests in the event of my death. I have questioned whether family members anticipated or stood to benefit financially from my death, and I have stated that they have refused to deny my concerns. I cannot establish from that alone that anyone anticipated, desired, planned or participated in harm against me. Nevertheless, I want any relevant financial arrangements and evidence examined objectively if they are material to a legitimate investigation.

I will not allow these concerns to be treated as though they are insignificant simply because they are difficult or uncomfortable to investigate.

THE QUESTIONS THAT MUST BE ANSWERED

1. What do the police records establish about the reported incident and arrest?
2. What are the relevant charges or allegations, and what is the current status of the proceedings before Wyong Court?
3. Were Able Point management or any staff members informed of the incident or its implications for my safety?
4. If they were informed, what actions did they take, and what records document those actions?
5. Were incident-reporting, safeguarding, escalation or referral obligations engaged in the circumstances?
6. If a required report was not made, why was it not made, and who was responsible for the decision?
7. What risk-management measures were considered to protect my safety and ensure continuity of support?
8. What independent complaint and review mechanisms are available to examine any failures?

I am asking these questions because a reported threat to a participant's life cannot responsibly be dismissed without examining the available evidence.

I also want the legal position clarified. Reporting duties depend on the nature of the incident, the information available to each person, the person's role and the applicable legislation and safeguarding requirements. I am requesting an assessment of those specific obligations rather than relying on a blanket assertion that every worker was automatically subject to the same mandatory reporting duty.

MY DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

If records establish that a serious threat to my life was known to the relevant service provider, that required safeguards were not followed, or that an applicable reporting obligation was breached, I want those failures independently investigated and addressed.

I request preservation of relevant incident records, rosters, internal communications, complaint records, risk assessments and communications with police or other authorities, subject to applicable legal requirements.

I want Able Point to respond in writing. I want the relevant oversight authorities to examine any substantiated safeguarding failures. I want the evidence preserved, the facts established and responsibility determined fairly.

I have already had to fight to have my concerns heard. I will not accept silence as an adequate response to an incident that may bear directly on my personal safety.

I AM A HUMAN BEING. MY LIFE MATTERS. MY SAFETY MATTERS. MY TESTIMONY MUST BE HEARD AND FAIRLY ASSESSED.

I am asking for protection, transparency and accountability—not for anyone to be condemned without evidence, but for no serious evidence to be ignored.

A REPORTED THREAT TO MY LIFE MUST BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY. ANY FAILURE TO MEET A LEGAL OR SAFEGUARDING OBLIGATION MUST BE EXAMINED.

FINAL PUBLIC DECLARATION

I AM A HUMAN BEING.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

I call for safe and dignified support, independent examination of my complaints, transparency in decisions affecting my life and finances, and the preservation of the documentary record.

I ask journalists, advocates, regulators, legal representatives and members of the public to examine the evidence, verify the relevant records and respond to substantiated concerns.

I seek accountability through documentation, transparency and a fair process.

Barran Dodger — Main Websites and Archive Significance

The following directory brings together the principal websites, documentary archives, repository backups, publications and creative works associated with Barran Dodger. Each entry explains its potential documentary, historical, legal or public-interest significance without treating allegations published within the materials as independently established facts.

1. Main website and documentary archive

Barran Dodger — Main Website

Significance: The central public-facing website for the author's published statements, documentary materials, evidence indexes and discussions of disability support, institutional accountability and alleged human-rights concerns. Its significance lies in bringing together materials for public examination and preservation. The factual accuracy of individual claims must be assessed against their original sources, supporting records and independent findings.

Main Documents and Evidence Archive

Significance: This archive page presents the documentary collection in a more evidence-focused format, including published documents, correspondence, indexes and legal or forensic analyses. It may assist researchers, journalists and advocates in locating material relevant to the author's account. Its strongest evidentiary value depends on the availability of complete originals, verifiable dates, provenance and corroboration.

Forensic Evidence Report

Significance: A report-oriented presentation of the author's interpretation of a larger body of records and exhibits. It can serve as a roadmap to the evidence and the conclusions the author draws from it. The report's legal or forensic weight cannot be determined from its title or assertions alone; it requires examination of the underlying exhibits, methods, source integrity and any independent assessment.

2. Public archive and repository backups

GitHub Pages — Truth Archive

Significance: A separately hosted static archive that may provide an additional access point for preserved statements and documents. Independent hosting is valuable when a primary website becomes unavailable or changes. Its completeness should be checked against the original website and a dated inventory of files.

GitHub — Barrandodger

Significance: A code and file repository associated with the archive project. Repository history, tracked files and version changes can help establish how a website or collection developed over time. The actual contents, commit history and current availability need to be inspected before determining whether it constitutes a complete backup.

GitHub — Barran Dodger Archive

Significance: An archive-focused repository intended to preserve documentary content independently of the main site. Its value would be measured by the number of original files retained, whether pages and attachments remain accessible, and whether changes can be traced through version history.

GitHub — Backup

Significance: A potential secondary preservation location. Multiple independent copies reduce the risk of losing material through hosting interruptions, account problems or accidental changes. Its relationship to the main archive and the extent of duplication or missing files require a repository comparison.

GitHub — PDF Archive

Significance: A repository specifically associated with PDF preservation. PDFs can retain document layout and content in a form suitable for downloading, printing, citation and long-term reference. Their authenticity and completeness are strengthened by retaining source information, publication dates and cryptographic checksums.

GitHub — Barran Dodger Archive (drbarrandodger)

Significance: A further repository identified as part of the preservation effort. Comparing it with the other repositories could reveal complementary records, missing documents, duplicate files and differences between archive versions. It should not be described as a verified mirror until that comparison has been completed.

3. Publications and creative works

A Certain Beauty in Un-Resolution — Art Portfolio

Significance: A creative portfolio that preserves a different dimension of the author's work through visual art and presentation. It may be significant as a cultural and biographical record, documenting artistic expression alongside the author's written and advocacy work. Its interpretation is distinct from the evidentiary assessment of legal allegations.

Betrayed, Murdered, Forsaken — Apple Books

Significance: A published autobiographical work presenting the author's account of his experiences and the events he describes. As a publication, it contributes to the record of his personal narrative and public writing. Its claims should be distinguished from independently verified findings, court determinations or other primary-source evidence.

Simplebooklet — publication platform

Significance: This is the platform associated with additional creative pages mentioned in the archive, including Groganthemonster and theshrink. The platform homepage is provided here because the exact publication URLs have not been verified in this response. Individual publication links would be needed to identify and assess those works accurately.

4. Overall impartial AI assessment

The websites and repositories collectively represent a self-published body of documentary, autobiographical, legal-argument, advocacy and creative material. Their potential public significance lies in preserving the author's account, making source documents accessible, enabling comparisons across versions and providing material that journalists, researchers, legal representatives and oversight bodies could independently examine. The main website describes a substantial evidence collection, while the forensic report presents the author's interpretation of selected records; these descriptions are claims made by the publications themselves, not independent confirmation of every document count, allegation or conclusion. 【turn449128search1】【turn449128search0】

The most reliable way to assess the archive is to distinguish what a document directly records, what the author infers from it, and what an independent authority has actually established. Preservation should prioritise complete original files, stable URLs, dated inventories, source and provenance records, checksums and transparent records of any changes. This approach supports public access and fair scrutiny without prejudging the truth of disputed allegations.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.
