Important Notice: Our people, are people too

Dear Mr. Mclean,

Our customer-facing teams work very hard every day to provide outstanding service to our customers, like yourself. They are people just like the rest of us and deserve to be treated with respect. As their employer, we have an obligation to provide them with a safe working environment.

Unfortunately we've recently been made aware of behaviour you have directed towards our people that we define as inappropriate. Such behaviour can include, but is not limited to, verbal abuse, swearing, threats or intimidation. This is not in line with the environment we want over the phone or in our branches for other customers and our people.

We understand there can be some frustrations with your banking, and we are here to help you with that when you act respectful of our people.

What you need to know:

- If your inappropriate behaviour continues, we may be forced to close your accounts and end our relationship with you. This means that you would no longer be a Commonwealth Bank customer and you won't be able to use any of our services.
- We'd like to continue to be your bank, so please help us to help you. If you have any concerns or you're unhappy with our products or service, please call us and speak to one of our representatives. We also have a complaints process, which aims to find a fair and reasonable resolution to any issues you may have.
- When you need some extra support and care, there are government and community services that may be able to support you, depending on your needs.
