Subject: URGENT: Demand scrutiny of alleged $11 million taxpayer-funded targeting and disability safeguarding failures

Dear GetUp team,

How does a disabled Australian obtain protection when he has raised serious safety concerns, depends on the services he is complaining about, and still cannot obtain the independent answers he is seeking?

My name is Barran Resonance Dodger, also known as Richard William McLean. I am asking GetUp to examine a matter involving disability safeguarding, public expenditure and the imbalance of power between a vulnerable person and the institutions that make decisions affecting his life.

Accountability is the reason I am writing.

The $11 million allegation requires an answer

I allege that approximately $11 million in taxpayer money has been spent on actions and arrangements that I believe have targeted and harmed me—a single disabled Australian.

I am not presenting that figure as an audited finding. I am asking for independent scrutiny of its documentary basis: what public money was spent, by which agencies or service providers, over what period, for what authorised purpose, and with what consequences.

The expenditure figure and the allegation of deliberate targeting are separate questions. Both require evidence. I want assistance establishing what the financial and administrative records actually demonstrate, rather than having either my interpretation automatically accepted or the entire concern dismissed.

If the records substantiate misuse of public resources, the public deserves to know. If they establish a different explanation, I deserve a clear, evidence-based account of it.

Public funding should serve a protective purpose. It should not disappear into arrangements whose costs, decisions and consequences remain beyond meaningful scrutiny by the person most affected.

The concrete safeguarding questions

My formal complaint, dated 17 October 2026 and addressed to the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission, identifies specific matters for examination:

- A reported death threat that I say I notified to my disability provider, Able Point, and my allegation that the provider failed to acknowledge or appropriately document it.
- My understanding that criminal charges and court proceedings followed the reported threat. The precise charge and procedural status require verification against official records.
- A reported assault involving a worker identified as Danny, following what I understand was an escalation in a client's behaviour over several weeks.
- A related WorkCover matter whose underlying records need examination—not an assumption that compensation alone establishes management liability.
- Questions about provider leadership, complaint escalation, risk assessment, record preservation and protection against retaliation.
- My need to retain safe, essential disability support while raising concerns about the organisation providing it.

These are identifiable questions about notifications, decisions, records and responses. They should be capable of receiving identifiable answers.

What was reported? Who received it? What was recorded? What risks were assessed? What protective action followed? Where are the reasons for the decisions?

The outrage is the burden placed on the person seeking protection

I am already living with disability, significant distress, isolation and financial hardship. Yet I am also trying to preserve documents, reconstruct events, navigate separate authorities and obtain answers about my own safety.

There is a profound imbalance when an organisation controls the records and resources while the person seeking protection must do the work of assembling the case for scrutiny.

I should not have to choose between essential support and speaking openly about my safety. My disability should not replace examination of the evidence. My anger should not become an excuse to avoid answering specific questions.

I am not asking GetUp to endorse an unproven conspiracy, accuse every person named in my records or announce a predetermined verdict. I am asking you to recognise the public-interest issue: whether safeguarding and oversight mechanisms offer a genuinely accessible route to protection and accountability for someone who depends on the system he is challenging.

What I am asking GetUp to do

Please:

1. Arrange an initial assessment of whether these issues warrant public-interest advocacy or campaigning.
2. Help identify independent assistance to test the $11 million estimate against financial, funding and administrative records.
3. Consider the systemic question of how disabled participants can complain safely without unnecessary interruption to essential supports.
4. Identify an appropriate disability advocacy, public-interest legal or investigative organisation if GetUp cannot assist directly.
5. Provide a secure submission method before I send unredacted records containing sensitive or third-party information.

My documentary archive is available at:

https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/

The archive contains testimony, correspondence and documents for examination. Its existence is not proof of every allegation. I want relevant records assessed for what they actually establish.

Please acknowledge this request and tell me whether GetUp will assess it or direct me to someone who can.

I am not asking for sympathy in place of action. I am asking for scrutiny of public expenditure, answers to concrete safeguarding questions and a practical route to independent assistance.

Kind regards,
Barran Resonance Dodger

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.
