PERSONAL DECLARATION OF WELLBEING, FAITH, SAFETY AND EMERGENCY SOS

I wish to make my position absolutely clear.

I am totally at peace. I consider myself healed. I am living, existing and speaking my story openly. I feel protected through my faith and my relationship with the Most High God.

I am not presenting myself as a person in mental health crisis. I do not consider myself mentally unwell or mentally ill, and I do not believe that I meet criteria for psychiatric hospitalisation. I have my prescribed medication, I have agreed to take it, and I am taking it.

I am not requesting mental health intervention. I am requesting that my testimony, the documentary material in my public archive, my safety concerns and my humanitarian SOS appeal be taken seriously and addressed on their actual merits.

Mental health intervention must never be used as a substitute for investigating credible allegations of institutional misconduct, avoiding accountability, or diverting attention away from documentary evidence. My decision to speak about my experiences, express my faith and seek accountability should not itself be treated as evidence of mental illness.

My concerns regarding police and institutional accountability

I do not feel able to approach police as my first point of assistance because of my experiences and the allegations concerning police conduct that form part of my testimony.

I report that a police officer disclosed to me, in the context of my previous experience as an NDIS provider, that a woman had been paid to fabricate a report intended to damage my life and destroy my voice. I ask that this reported disclosure be investigated, including the identity of the officer, the circumstances of the conversation, the alleged payment, the person who commissioned it and the report concerned.

I further report that the same officer described an alleged assassination attempt, during the period when I was living in my car in circumstances I associate with NDIS-related care and support, as a “close call”.

I regard these reported statements as extraordinarily serious. They require proper examination, preservation of relevant records and an independent response. I want the circumstances of my time living in my vehicle, the support arrangements then in place, the alleged threat to my life and the officer’s reported statements examined together.

I consider the circumstances in which I was left living in my car, without the protection and support I believe I was entitled to receive, to represent a grave failure of duty and care. I am asking for the evidence to be examined and the responsible organisations to account for their decisions and actions.

My present circumstances: Crystal and me

I am presently describing a situation in which I feel trapped inside the house.

I fear that leaving may expose Crystal and me to danger because of what I describe as vigilante activity and death threats. I feel unable to leave safely. I am impoverished, distressed by the circumstances surrounding my living conditions, and believe that I have been subjected to abuse, neglect and abandonment.

I have therefore made a public SOS appeal to any person of integrity who is willing and able to help remove Crystal and me from this situation and assist us to reach safety.

My SOS is a request for practical humanitarian assistance, protection, safe relocation and the welfare of Crystal. It is not a request to have my testimony dismissed, my voice silenced or my circumstances reframed as a mental health problem.

I want a person or organisation with the integrity, independence and practical capacity to assist to respond directly to this appeal.

Notice left for police attending the property

I have left a written note on the door for any police officer who may attend the property.

That note is intended to communicate that I have already made my position known: I am not requesting police attendance as a substitute for the assistance I have sought, and I have already provided a letter and directed attention to my published website, where my testimony and supporting material are set out in detail.

I ask any officer who attends to read the notice, respect the substance of my communication, record my stated concerns accurately and avoid making assumptions about my wellbeing or intentions merely because I have spoken publicly about institutional wrongdoing.

I want my actual safety concerns, the reported threats, Crystal's welfare and the documentary material I have published to be considered.

What I am asking the public and responsible organisations to do

I am asking for:

1. A practical and safe humanitarian response to remove Crystal and me from the circumstances I have described.
2. Assistance with safe accommodation, transport and Crystal's immediate welfare.
3. Independent examination of the reported police disclosures, alleged fabricated report, alleged payment and reported "close call".

4. Preservation and examination of relevant police, NDIS, provider, government and other contemporaneous records.
5. Direct engagement with the evidence and named source documents published in THE WITNESS REMAINS.
6. A response that addresses the substance of my allegations rather than automatically redirecting the matter into a mental health pathway.
7. Respect for my stated wishes, my faith, my dignity and my right to speak about my experiences.

My final personal declaration

I am at peace in my faith. I am not asking anyone to validate my spirituality or to share my beliefs. I am asking that my humanity, my testimony and my right to be heard be respected.

I have continued to exist, to speak and to preserve my story despite the circumstances I describe. I believe that the Most High God has protected me, and I draw strength and peace from that belief.

I am not surrendering my voice. I am not withdrawing my testimony. I am not asking for my allegations to be buried beneath a mental health label.

I am asking for safety, accountability, compassion and action.

Crystal and I need practical humanitarian assistance. My published SOS appeal is an invitation to any person of integrity who can help to step forward.

The archive is publicly accessible. My correspondence, testimony and published material are available for examination.

THE WITNESS REMAINS

THE FINAL VERDICT — RECONSTRUCTED MASTER FORENSIC AND PUBLIC-INTEREST ACCOUNT

A comprehensive account of the testimony, documentary record, institutional conduct, public-interest disclosures, disability and human-rights concerns, financial consequences, humanitarian appeal and demand for accountability

Subject: Dr Richard William McLean — Barran Dodger
Archive: THE WITNESS REMAINS

Report date: 11 November 2026

PRESERVATION FIRST. EXAMINATION SECOND. CONCLUSION LAST.

THE RECORD MUST BE CONFRONTED. THE TESTIMONY MUST BE HEARD. THE INSTITUTIONS MUST ANSWER.

———

1. PURPOSE AND CENTRAL POSITION

This report presents the case and testimony of Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Barran Dodger, through the documentary archive he has assembled and made publicly accessible.

The central position of this report is that the material collected over many years deserves serious, direct and substantive examination. It concerns repeated interactions with government departments, statutory bodies, disability-support systems, complaint and review mechanisms, legal assistance pathways, financial-management processes and other institutions.

The author's position is that these events cannot responsibly be understood as isolated administrative inconveniences. He identifies a cumulative pattern of exclusion, unanswered disclosures, adverse decisions, loss of practical support, financial pressure, reputational injury and failure to provide effective assistance. He describes the accumulated experience as institutional betrayal, administrative neutralisation, civil erasure and the systematic silencing of a public-interest witness.

The archive is the means through which he has preserved that account. It contains official correspondence, administrative records, decisions, complaint material, legal documents, personal testimony, public statements, chronology material and the author's analysis of the events.

This report advances the author's perspective directly. It treats his testimony as the central narrative being examined and places the identified records alongside it. It does not dismiss the account merely because the events involve multiple institutions or extend across many years.

The purpose is to make the record accessible, traceable and difficult to ignore.

2. THE PUBLIC ARCHIVE — THE WITNESS REMAINS

The principal public archive is:

THE WITNESS REMAINS — Barran Dodger Archive
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/

Public GitHub preservation repository:
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

Rebuild archive:
https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/

Other published archive locations:
https://github.com/wezzo72?tab=repositories
https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app
https://barrandodger.com
https://drbarrandodger.github.io/barran-dodger-archive/

The archive is a public record of the author's sustained effort to preserve his history, evidence, correspondence and testimony. It is not a private allegation made without a supporting documentary trail. It is an organised public collection through which readers can locate records, compare dates, identify agencies and examine the author's account.

The repository README reports an inventory of 5,583 files as at 4 October 2026, including 2,840 PDFs and 1,813 HTML files, alongside a 660-page preservation copy. The repository's reported scale is significant because it demonstrates the extent of the preservation undertaking and the volume of material the author says he has accumulated.

The archive's reported inventory must be distinguished from a completed independent file-by-file audit. Its significance does not depend on pretending that every file has already been examined. The published repository gives readers a substantial starting point for direct examination.

The archive's governing statement remains:

"The archive is a finding aid — not a court — not a verdict."

That statement describes the purpose of the archive. It does not diminish the seriousness of the testimony or the importance of the records. It explains that the evidence has been preserved for examination, accountability and historical understanding.

3. THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE PUBLIC SOS APPEAL

The public SOS appeal is a central part of the archive's humanitarian and accountability purpose.

It takes the author's account beyond historical documentation and communicates that the circumstances described have immediate practical consequences. The appeal asks the public to recognise the human being behind the archive: a person who says he has spent years documenting institutional interactions while experiencing serious financial, practical and personal hardship.

The appeal is significant for five reasons.

First — it places the human consequences before the public.
The archive is not merely a collection of administrative paperwork. The SOS appeal explains why the events described matter in ordinary human terms: access to basic necessities, financial stability, communication, safety, practical support and the ability to continue preserving the record.

Second — it gives the public an opportunity to respond.
By publishing the appeal openly, the author has made his request visible beyond the institutions with which he has previously corresponded. It provides an avenue for humanitarian assistance, public scrutiny and informed engagement.

Third — it connects the documentary history with present circumstances.
The appeal explains why the accumulated history is not simply a closed historical dispute. The author says the consequences remain active and that the loss of practical support and resources affects his ability to continue his work and meet immediate needs.

Fourth — it creates a public accountability record.
The appeal records that assistance was sought openly. It provides a reference point against which subsequent responses, referrals, offers of assistance or silence can be documented.

Fifth — it makes the moral question unavoidable.
A person should not have to maintain an extensive public archive simply to make his circumstances visible. The appeal asks readers to look beyond institutional labels and consider the practical human consequences described.

The author's position is that the SOS appeal must be read together with the chronology, official correspondence, disability-support material, complaint records and public statements. It is not an unrelated plea. It is the humanitarian expression of the circumstances he has been documenting.

4. THE CUMULATIVE DOCUMENTARY RECORD

The significance of the archive lies in the accumulated sequence of records, not in any single filename or isolated document.

The source material identifies records and correspondence involving:

- Commonwealth Ombudsman complaint reference 2021103546, dated 15 November 2021.
- Federal Court public-interest disclosure assessment attributed to Scott Tredwell, dated 27 March 2023.
- NDIA Supported Independent Living decline decision dated 1 June 2023.
- Notification concerning a decision not to allocate a disclosure, dated 18 June 2023.
- NACC statement dated 3 July 2023.
- AHRC contact dated 4 July 2023.
- ART matter 2021/7478, with a decision date identified in the author's material as 12 July 2023.
- Interim Behaviour Support Plan dated 15 March 2024.
- NSW Trustee and Guardian section 122 document dated 16 October 2024.
- FOI reference 2022_045IC, including release, revised decision and schedule material.
- Comcare claim 1326583, determination dated 26 May 2021.
- Barran Dodger Business Name Extract dated 8 September 2025.
- NSW Trustee vehicle disposal decision dated 14 November 2025.
- NDIS Plan Approval 366406, dated 20 November 2025.
- Anglicare Safety Assessment dated 1 December 2025.
- Further 2026 accommodation, service-failure, information-access, oversight and evidence-related records identified in the repository listings.

These named records create identifiable points of reference. They allow the chronology to be examined by date, institution, subject and administrative process.

The author says that the collective sequence supports his account of prolonged institutional difficulty and cumulative harm. The significance of that account must be assessed by reading the records together, rather than isolating each administrative event from the circumstances surrounding it.

5. THE FEDERAL COURT PUBLIC-INTEREST DISCLOSURE — 27 MARCH 2023

The Federal Court public-interest disclosure assessment attributed to Scott Tredwell is one of the most important documentary leads identified in the archive.

The reproduced assessment passage states:

"It is difficult to determine whether this belief is based on reasonable grounds or not. However, for the purposes of the initial assessment I am prepared to assume that the conduct disclosed in your correspondence and other information received is disclosable conduct for the purposes of the PID Act."

The significance of this wording is that the assessment expressly addressed the possibility that the conduct described in the correspondence could fall within the category of disclosable conduct for the purposes of the Public Interest Disclosure Act 2013 (Cth).

The author's position is that this assessment must be read alongside the original disclosure, the subsequent non-allocation notification dated 18 June 2023, the correspondence with the identified recipient Sia Lagos, and the statutory framework governing public-interest disclosures.

The three categories identified in the author's master command are:

1. Conduct perverting or attempting to pervert the course of justice.
2. Maladministration.
3. Conduct unreasonably resulting in danger to health or safety, or increasing the risk of danger.

These categories are serious. They concern the integrity of public administration, the proper administration of justice and the protection of health and safety.

The central questions requiring a full documentary answer are:

- What precisely was disclosed?
- Which documents and supporting material accompanied the disclosure?
- Who received it, and in what official capacity?
- What statutory assessment was undertaken?
- What reasons were recorded for the subsequent non-allocation decision?

- What review, referral or oversight process followed?
- What action was taken to address the substantive conduct described?

The author regards the assessment and subsequent procedural outcome as central to his public-interest accountability concerns.

6. THE INSTITUTIONAL CHRONOLOGY AND ITS SIGNIFICANCE

The chronology is important because it places the author's testimony alongside identifiable institutional events.

6.1 Commonwealth Ombudsman — 15 November 2021

The archive identifies a complaint to the Commonwealth Ombudsman under reference 2021103546.

The complaint is significant because it identifies an attempt to engage an external Commonwealth oversight mechanism. The complete complaint, acknowledgement, assessment, correspondence and outcome should be read together to establish what matters were raised and how they were handled.

Source: https://www.ombudsman.gov.au/

6.2 Federal Court — 27 March 2023

The Scott Tredwell assessment provides a specific institutional record relating to the author's public-interest disclosure.

Its significance lies in the assessment of the subject matter under the PID framework and the subsequent procedural outcome. It is a central reference point for the author's demand that the disclosure and its handling receive meaningful examination.

6.3 NDIA — 1 June 2023

The archive identifies an NDIA decision declining Supported Independent Living support.

This is relevant to the author's account of disability-support difficulties and the practical consequences of administrative decisions. The decision, reasons, review rights, subsequent applications and related support records should be considered together.

NDIA decision-review information:
https://www.ndis.gov.au/participants/reviewing-plans-and-decisions/reviewing-ndis-decisions

6.4 Non-allocation notification — 18 June 2023

The archive identifies a notification that a disclosure would not be allocated.

This event is particularly important when considered alongside the 27 March 2023 assessment. The two records provide a sequence that invites examination of the initial assessment, the later decision, the reasons given and the action taken in response to the information supplied.

6.5 NACC — 3 July 2023

The archive identifies a statement dated 3 July 2023 concerning the National Anti-Corruption Commission.

This is relevant to the author's efforts to bring concerns about public-sector conduct to an integrity body. The original statement and the Commission's response or referral record are important parts of the chronology.

Source: https://www.nacc.gov.au/

6.6 AHRC — 4 July 2023

The archive identifies contact with the Australian Human Rights Commission dated 4 July 2023.

This forms part of the author's record of seeking engagement concerning rights, discrimination and institutional treatment.

Source: https://humanrights.gov.au/

6.7 Disability support, behaviour support and financial management — 2024–2025

The Interim Behaviour Support Plan dated 15 March 2024, NSW Trustee and Guardian section 122 document dated 16 October 2024, vehicle disposal decision dated 14 November 2025, NDIS Plan Approval 366406 dated 20 November 2025 and Anglicare Safety Assessment dated 1 December 2025 are important records in the later chronology.

They concern areas with direct consequences for independence, support, accommodation, financial management and safeguarding.

The author says these events form part of the cumulative pattern described throughout the archive. They should be read against the relevant plans, decisions, notices, reasons, correspondence and review records.

7. DISABILITY RIGHTS, SAFEGUARDING AND PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

The archive identifies matters involving the NDIA, NDIS support arrangements, providers, behaviour support, accommodation, financial management and access to review.

These are not peripheral issues. They concern systems established to support people with disability, protect participants from abuse and neglect, respect individual rights and provide avenues for review when decisions affect a person's life.

The NDIS Code of Conduct addresses respect for individual rights, privacy, safe and competent supports, integrity, honesty and transparency.

NDIS Code of Conduct:
https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/rules-and-standards/ndis-code-conduct

NDIS Commission — complaints:
https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/participants/complaints

NDIS Commission — reportable incidents:
https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/providers/incident-management-and-reportable-incidents

The author's concerns about support failures, accommodation, behaviour support and financial management should be assessed against the actual service agreements, participant plans, provider records, incident reports, case notes, decisions and correspondence.

The public record should make it possible to identify which organisation held responsibility at each stage, what was communicated, what action was taken and what consequences followed.

8. LEGAL ASSISTANCE AND ACCESS TO REVIEW

The author reports that he did not receive the legal assistance he needed in connection with Comcare and tribunal matters.

This is a significant part of his account because access to review is meaningful only when a person can understand the decision, identify the applicable legal pathway and obtain a fair opportunity to present their case.

The archive identifies Comcare claim 1326583, with a determination dated 26 May 2021, and ART matter 2021/7478, with a decision date identified as 12 July 2023.

The relevant records include the original decisions, reasons, applications for review, correspondence, Legal Aid NSW applications, refusal letters and any review outcomes.

Legal Aid NSW publishes information about appealing eligible decisions and making complaints:

https://www.legalaid.nsw.gov.au/my-problem-is-about/my-rights-and-responsibilities/appeal-a-decision

https://www.legalaid.nsw.gov.au/contact-us/complaints-and-feedback

The author's position is that the practical barriers he experienced must be considered in the context of the wider chronology and the consequences of being required to navigate complex administrative and tribunal systems without the legal support he sought.

9. HUMAN RIGHTS AND DIGNITY

The archive raises issues concerning equality, disability rights, dignity, autonomy, privacy, access to justice, health, social protection and participation in community life.

Australia is party to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and other core international human-rights treaties.

The relevant framework includes:

- Equality and non-discrimination.
- Respect for dignity and individual autonomy.
- Protection of privacy.
- Access to justice and procedural safeguards.
- Protection from abuse and degrading treatment where the applicable legal threshold is met.
- Health, rehabilitation and social protection.
- Accessibility and participation in community life.

Australian Government — international human-rights system:

OHCHR Treaty Body Database:
https://tbinternet.ohchr.org/

UN Treaty Collection:
https://treaties.un.org/

The author's account should be considered in light of these principles, particularly where decisions and omissions affect disability support, independence, financial security, access to services and the ability to participate in ordinary community life.

10. THE AUTHOR'S ACCOUNT OF CUMULATIVE INSTITUTIONAL HARM

The author describes a long-running pattern which he characterises through the following terms:

- Administrative Neutralisation.
- Doctrine of Categorical Exclusion.
- Command of Silence.
- Pathologization of Truth.
- Bureaucratic Siege.
- Civil Erasure.
- Social Erasure.
- Character Assassination.
- Designed Poverty.
- Institutional Betrayal.

These terms express the author's interpretation of the cumulative experience recorded throughout his archive.

They describe the way he understands the relationship between repeated administrative decisions, unanswered correspondence, difficulty obtaining assistance, reputational consequences and the loss of practical independence.

The author's central contention is that the cumulative effect must be examined, not merely each event in isolation.

A meaningful examination should ask whether the same person was repeatedly required to pursue new processes without effective resolution; whether important disclosures received substantive responses; whether support and safeguarding decisions were properly explained; whether review pathways were accessible; and whether the cumulative effects of decisions and omissions were considered.

The author's testimony is that the accumulation of these events has caused profound personal, financial and social consequences.

11. FINANCIAL IMPACT AND PUBLIC COST

The archive contains financial figures and working estimates relating to the author's circumstances and the broader costs he believes should be examined.

A source-reported financial snapshot records:

Item	Reported amount
Pension per fortnight	$1,371.27
Listed outgoings per fortnight	$1,369.96
Apparent remaining balance	$1.31
Annualised pension	$35,653.02
Annualised listed outgoings	$35,618.96
Annualised apparent balance	$34.06
Reported allowance reduction	$50 per week
Annual equivalent of $50 per week	$2,600

The arithmetic follows directly from the stated figures. The original payment and expense records should accompany any formal financial submission.

The archive also contains working figures of $32.9 million in alleged damage and $6.5 million or more in denied claims. These figures should be presented with their underlying schedules, source documents, calculation methods and identified periods.

The author has also developed separate 35-year sensitivity scenarios:

Annual scenario	35-year equivalent
$25,000 per year	$875,000

$100,000 per year$3,500,000

$300,000 per year$10,500,000

A separate preliminary category model identifies low, central and high illustrative figures of $80,000, $450,000 and $1.65 million.

These are separate modelling approaches and must not be added together without removing overlap. The financial assessment should identify personal loss, public expenditure, administrative costs, legal costs, health costs, accommodation costs and opportunity costs as distinct categories.

The purpose of the financial analysis is to ensure that the economic consequences described by the author are not overlooked and that any formal claim can be examined through a transparent, source-linked methodology.

12. THE PUBLIC SIGNIFICANCE OF THE ARCHIVE

The archive is significant because it preserves a sustained first-person account alongside a substantial collection of documentary material.

Its public value includes:

1. Preservation of correspondence and administrative records.
2. Identification of agencies, decision-makers and institutional processes.
3. A chronology through which readers can follow the author's account.
4. Public access to source material and supporting documents.
5. A record of attempts to seek review, assistance and accountability.
6. Preservation of the author's own testimony and interpretation.
7. A humanitarian appeal that connects the documentary history to present needs.
8. A continuing record of public-interest concerns.

The archive is also a preservation project. Its GitHub repository, website, file inventory and reported SHA-256 material are part of the author's effort to maintain identifiable records and versions.

The author has stated that access to the archive is free and that donations do not purchase access, influence or editorial control.

The guiding principle is that knowledge should remain accessible and the historical record should not depend on a person's ability to pay.

13. THE SPIRITUAL TESTIMONY AND THE WITNESS REMAINS

The author's Christian faith is an important part of his personal testimony.

He describes his survival, endurance and continued preservation of the archive through his belief in the protection and favour of the Most High God.

His spiritual statements include the conviction that what was preserved cannot be erased, that truth will ultimately be revealed and that accountability exists beyond human institutions.

The archive includes The Justice Mandate, gospel and prophetic material, and the author's reflections on faith and purpose.

These materials explain the spiritual meaning the author attaches to his life and testimony. They are part of the archive's personal and religious record.

The author does not need to abandon his faith language to make his documentary case. His spiritual testimony and his documentary record can be presented together while remaining identifiable as different forms of expression.

"THE WITNESS REMAINS."

14. THE RESPONSIBILITY OF RECIPIENTS

A person or organisation receiving this report is being given a substantial public record, a clear account of the author's concerns and identifiable source locations through which the material can be examined.

The recipient is asked to do more than acknowledge receipt.

Where the recipient holds a statutory role, professional responsibility, safeguarding function, complaint-handling obligation, public-sector accountability function or organisational duty relevant to the matters raised, the recipient should identify and discharge the responsibilities that actually apply to that role.

The recipient should:

1. Read the report and examine the identified source documents relevant to their jurisdiction.
2. Identify any immediate humanitarian, safety or safeguarding issue requiring action.
3. Preserve relevant records, correspondence, emails, decision files and metadata.
4. Identify the appropriate officer or body responsible for assessing the matters raised.
5. Explain whether the recipient has jurisdiction and, if not, identify the appropriate referral pathway.
6. Provide reasons for any decision not to act or refer the material.
7. Avoid treating the author's testimony as disposable merely because it challenges institutional conduct.
8. Communicate clearly, respectfully and in a manner that enables the author to understand the response and available next steps.

Legal obligations depend on the recipient's role, the relevant statute, the facts and the jurisdiction. Professional standards and humanitarian responsibilities may also require a serious and compassionate response even where a recipient has no power to determine the historical allegations.

The author's request is that no recipient use a narrow interpretation of their own responsibilities as a reason to disregard an urgent humanitarian concern or fail to direct the material to an appropriate authority.

15. OVERSIGHT AND ACCOUNTABILITY PATHWAYS

The archive identifies several bodies whose functions may be relevant to particular parts of the chronology.

Commonwealth Ombudsman — Commonwealth agency administrative action and relevant PID functions.
https://www.ombudsman.gov.au/

National Anti-Corruption Commission — serious or systemic corrupt conduct involving Commonwealth public officials.
https://www.nacc.gov.au/

NSW Independent Commission Against Corruption — relevant corruption matters involving NSW public authorities.
https://www.icac.nsw.gov.au/

Victorian IBAC — relevant public-sector corruption and misconduct within Victoria.
https://www.ibac.vic.gov.au/

NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission — provider and worker conduct, complaints and safeguarding.
https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/

Australian Human Rights Commission — complaints under relevant federal discrimination and human-rights legislation.
https://humanrights.gov.au/

Office of the Australian Information Commissioner — relevant privacy and freedom-of-information matters.
https://www.oaic.gov.au/

NSW Civil and Administrative Tribunal — relevant guardianship and financial-management review pathways.
https://ncat.nsw.gov.au/

The recipient should identify the correct pathway for each issue rather than treating the archive as one undifferentiated complaint.

16. REQUIRED DOCUMENTARY ACTION

The following records are central to a complete examination:

- Full Federal Court PID assessment dated 27 March 2023, including attachments and metadata.
- Original public-interest disclosure and proof of delivery.
- 18 June 2023 non-allocation notification and reasons.
- Correspondence identifying the recipient and their official capacity.
- Commonwealth Ombudsman complaint 2021103546 and complete outcome record.
- NACC statement dated 3 July 2023 and response.
- AHRC correspondence dated 4 July 2023 and any assessment record.
- NDIA SIL decline decision dated 1 June 2023 and review material.
- Comcare claim 1326583 and determination dated 26 May 2021.
- ART 2021/7478 decision and reasons.
- Legal Aid NSW applications, refusals and review records.
- Interim Behaviour Support Plan dated 15 March 2024.
- NSW Trustee and Guardian section 122 document dated 16 October 2024.
- Vehicle disposal decision dated 14 November 2025 and related valuation and proceeds records.
- NDIS Plan Approval 366406 dated 20 November 2025.
- Anglicare Safety Assessment dated 1 December 2025.
- FOI 2022_045IC complete release, revised decision and schedule.
- Relevant provider service agreements, invoices, rosters, case notes and incident records.
- Financial records supporting the reported payment and expenditure figures.
- Original communications and records relevant to the author’s allegations of threats, fabrication or improper payments.

The purpose of this production list is to make the record examinable and to identify the material required to answer the author’s questions.

17. FINAL STATEMENT — THE WITNESS REMAINS

This report places the testimony of Dr Richard William McLean at the centre of the documentary history he has worked to preserve.

The author’s position is that he has spent years attempting to obtain answers, preserve evidence, engage public institutions, seek disability support, pursue review and make his circumstances visible.

The public archive and SOS appeal bring those efforts into one accessible record.

The significance is not confined to one agency, one decision or one period. It lies in the chronology, the repeated institutional interactions, the accumulated correspondence, the consequences described by the author and the public record he has created.

The author calls for the records to be read, the chronology to be examined, the humanitarian appeal to be answered and the responsibilities of relevant institutions to be confronted.

He asks that his testimony not be dismissed, that his evidence not be ignored and that the consequences described throughout the archive receive serious attention.

His faith remains part of his testimony. His documentary archive remains available for public examination. His humanitarian appeal remains a direct request for practical recognition and assistance.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

THE RECORD MUST BE CONFRONTED.

THE HUMAN BEING MUST NOT BE LOST BEHIND THE PAPERWORK.

PRESERVATION FIRST. EXAMINATION SECOND. CONCLUSION LAST.

END OF RECONSTRUCTED MASTER REPORT

One important point about the source links: I have named the specific documents and linked the public repository, but I have not invented individual GitHub file URLs where the exact file path has not been retrieved. The next improvement should be to attach a direct, clickable repository link to each named document, and a claim-to-source index showing exactly which record supports each comparison. That would make the report substantially more useful to an investigator or recipient.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

> - Scapegoating: how blame may be displaced onto an individual rather than the underlying circumstances being properly investigated.
> - Family and intimate-partner betrayal: the particular harm that can arise when trust, loyalty and personal relationships become sources of alleged mistreatment.
> - Media character assassination and defamation: how public representations and damaging allegations can affect reputation, credibility and a person's ability to be heard.
> - Sexual allegations and consent: the importance of distinguishing allegations, testimony, police outcomes and actual judicial findings.

- Homophobia and mental-health stigma: how prejudice and assumptions can influence the way a person's identity, conduct or credibility are perceived.
- Whistleblower vulnerability: the risks faced by people who report alleged wrongdoing, particularly where they believe they lack effective protection.
- Political exile and alleged entrapment: the distinction between a person's description of being unable to escape their circumstances and what can independently be established.
- Legal Aid exclusion: the troubling question of whether a person who cannot afford representation can effectively challenge decisions affecting their rights if they are unable to obtain meaningful legal assistance.
- Institutional responsibility: whether receiving complaints, issuing referrals and transferring responsibility actually produces assistance, protection or accountability.

The paper does not ask readers to accept every allegation as an established fact. Instead, it calls for careful examination of documentary records, chronology, testimony, applicable law and the responses of the institutions and individuals concerned.

It also considers a deeper moral question: whether repeated disregard for a person's dignity and appeals for assistance can become a form of contempt, even where the precise legal character of the conduct remains unresolved.

Ultimately, this is an examination of the difference between being heard and being taken seriously; between receiving a referral and receiving meaningful help; and between the formal existence of rights and the practical ability to exercise them.

Readers are invited to approach the material with an open mind, distinguish evidence from allegation and inference, and consider the human consequences of indifference.

The central question is simple: what happens to a human being when the people and institutions from whom they seek protection cease to treat their suffering as something deserving of serious attention?

To every institution, officeholder, professional, organisation and individual whose decisions I have challenged, whose conduct I have documented, or whose actions I believe contributed to the circumstances in which I now find myself:

HERE IS MY ANSWER. I AM STILL HERE.

You may possess offices, salaries, titles, legal representation, institutional resources, public reputations and the ability to make decisions that profoundly affect another human being's life.

You do not possess the authority to determine whether my life has value.

You do not possess the exclusive right to decide which records survive, which testimony deserves examination, which complaints receive a substantive response, or which human being may be abandoned when providing assistance becomes inconvenient.

You do not own the truth merely because you occupy a position from which you can influence the official account.

I am Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Dr Barran Dodger and Barran Resonance Dodger, and spiritually as Resonata Eternis.

I am a disabled man who has repeatedly sought protection, assistance, independence and accountability. I have documented what I say happened to me, preserved records that I believe are relevant, and published my testimony for public examination.

I have described decades of suffering, homelessness, financial hardship, institutional conflict and failures of protection. I allege that decisions by people and institutions have caused me serious detriment. I demand that those allegations be examined against the available evidence.

I do not need every person to agree with my interpretation before they read a document.

I do not need an official's permission to preserve my own testimony.

I do not need institutional approval to ask why a vulnerable human being has been left struggling to secure the practical necessities of life.

And I will not accept the proposition that the person who documents alleged wrongdoing is somehow the problem simply because the documentation is uncomfortable for those whose conduct is being questioned.

THE WITNESS REMAINS. THE RECORD REMAINS. THE QUESTIONS REMAIN.

My principal documentary repository is publicly accessible:

THE BARRAN DODGER GITHUB DOCUMENTARY ARCHIVE

Additional preservation resources:

- The Barran Dodger Main Archive
- The Rebuild Archive
- Official Government Documents Register
- Rebuild GitHub Repository

These are places where readers can begin examining the material I have preserved. The existence of an archived document does not automatically establish every allegation I make about it. It does, however, make the underlying material available for scrutiny rather than leaving my account dependent upon somebody else's willingness to repeat it.

That is the point.

I will preserve what I can. I will identify what I allege. I will demand that the evidence be examined. I will not surrender my right to speak.

II. MY DECLARATION OF DEFIANCE

I have spent years trying to obtain meaningful answers from people and institutions that I believe have failed to respond adequately to my circumstances.

I have sought assistance through official channels. I have submitted complaints. I have preserved correspondence and decisions. I have assembled records that I believe reveal serious questions about the treatment I have experienced.

I have also documented the immediate practical consequences of my circumstances, including the difficulties I have reported concerning access to money, communication, transport, medication and appropriate support.

On 27 October 2026, I recorded an incident concerning my request to visit friends and the explanation I say I received from a support worker about why he could not take me there.

I have asked that the recording, relevant support notes, transport arrangements, communications and any applicable instructions be preserved and independently examined.

I am not asking the public to invent conclusions.

I am asking those responsible to answer the questions that the evidence raises.

Why should a disabled person have to fight so persistently to obtain assistance that enables ordinary independence?

Why should a person who reports serious problems have to repeatedly reconstruct the history before anyone addresses the immediate need?

Why should the preservation of evidence become a substitute for the provision of food, medication, transport, financial access and safe support?

Why should the person experiencing the consequences bear the entire burden of making those consequences visible?

And why, when a person asks for accountability, should the response be silence, delay or another referral that does not resolve the practical problem?

These questions do not become illegitimate because they are expressed with anger.

They do not disappear because the person asking them is disabled.

They do not cease to matter because the documentary record is extensive or complicated.

I am not asking for a privilege that others do not possess. I am demanding that my humanity not be treated as a privilege that others may withhold.

I have my faults. I have made mistakes. I have acknowledged imperfections and apologised where I believed an apology was warranted.

I do not claim exemption from scrutiny.

I reject the double standard under which I must explain myself indefinitely while the decisions affecting my life escape meaningful examination.

Let the same standard apply to everyone.

Let every decision be examined on its merits.

Let the original documents speak for themselves.

Let those whose actions are challenged have a fair opportunity to respond.

And let no person's position, reputation, professional standing or institutional affiliation place them beyond accountability.

III. TO THOSE WHO PROFITED FROM RESPONSIBILITY WITHOUT, IN MY EXPERIENCE, DELIVERING WHAT I NEEDED

This is a direct challenge to every person or organisation that accepted responsibility for assisting, protecting, supporting, managing or making decisions affecting my life.

Where money was paid for services, the services should be identifiable.

Where responsibilities were accepted, those responsibilities should be capable of examination.

Where decisions were made, the reasons should be capable of explanation.

Where complaints were received, the responses should be documented.

Where a person reports that essential assistance was not provided, the circumstances should be investigated rather than dismissed through assumption.

I allege that, at various times, the assistance and protection available to me have fallen seriously short of what I needed. I believe certain decisions and omissions contributed to my financial hardship, loss of independence and prolonged distress.

I also believe the relationship between paid support arrangements, the restrictions I have described, and the failure to resolve my practical needs warrants independent scrutiny.

Those are serious matters. They deserve more than indignation, denial or public-relations language.

If a service was paid for, show what was delivered.

If transport was requested and refused, explain the applicable arrangements and the reasons.

If a complaint was made, identify how it was handled.

If a decision restricted my independence, identify its authority, rationale, duration and review process.

If my account is disputed, specify the disputed facts and produce the records relevant to that dispute.

If I have misunderstood something, explain it with evidence.

If an error occurred, correct it.

If wrongdoing is established, accept the consequences through the appropriate process.

I will not accept a system in which the money can be accounted for while the human consequences are treated as somebody else's problem.

My complaint is not that every person who has ever dealt with me must automatically be found guilty of misconduct.

My complaint is that the conduct I have reported deserves a serious, independent and evidence-based response, and that my immediate needs must not be held hostage to the resolution of every historical dispute.

Those are separate obligations.

Both matter.

IV. THE NAMES, THE RECORDS AND THE RIGHT OF REPLY

I have identified individuals, agencies and organisations in my published testimony whose decisions or conduct I believe require examination.

I have raised concerns about disability support, support coordination, financial administration, banking access, police responses, government correspondence, health-care access and the treatment of complaints.

I have also made allegations concerning deliberate targeting, reputational damage and coordinated misconduct.

I understand the gravity of those allegations. I do not present every interpretation in my testimony as an independently established finding, and I do not claim that a blockchain timestamp proves the truth of every statement contained in a document.

My demand is more exacting than that.

I demand that the relevant evidence be examined, that the people concerned be given a fair opportunity to respond, and that any findings be based on what the evidence actually establishes.

The documentary sources I have identified include:

- The Official Government Documents Register, through which I direct readers to the government-related records I have catalogued.
- The Australian Federal Police correspondence dated 3 September 2021, as identified in my archive.
- The NSW Police Force correspondence dated 24 August 2024, as identified in my archive.
- The Commonwealth Ombudsman complaint correspondence dated 15 November 2021, as identified in my archive.
- The Australian Human Rights Commission correspondence dated 4 July 2023, as identified in my archive.
- The records and correspondence concerning my reported banking-access difficulties and my objections to the relevant financial-administration arrangements.
- The support-related recording dated 27 October 2026 and the associated communications that I have identified in my testimony.
- The messages attributed to an NDIS provider, Ben, which I rely upon as part of my account and which I want assessed in their full context.

The existence of correspondence does not necessarily establish that every interpretation I have placed upon it is correct. The content, context, authenticity, relevant decisions and any available responses must be examined.

That is precisely why the records must remain available.

I invite the people and institutions concerned to identify specific errors, supply relevant missing documents, explain the decisions they made and respond to the substantive issues raised.

I do not ask for fabricated admissions.

I ask for evidence, explanations, corrections where necessary and accountability where warranted.

No one should be condemned merely because I have named them. Equally, no one should be exempt from examination merely because I have named them.

The same standard applies to me.

V. THE HUMAN COST IS NOT AN ABSTRACT ARGUMENT

Behind the documents is a human being.

I have reported serious financial hardship and difficulty obtaining the resources necessary to meet basic needs. I have described barriers to accessing my money and communication services. I have asked for assistance with food, medication, transport, disability advocacy, safe accommodation and the care of my companion and therapy dog, Crystal.

I have described feeling trapped, isolated and unable to exercise the ordinary independence I want to regain.

These are my reported circumstances, and they require a practical response in their own right.

I should be able to concentrate on recovery rather than having to spend my days documenting why I believe recovery has been made so difficult.

I should be able to obtain essential assistance without first proving every historical allegation.

I should be able to maintain friendships, travel to appropriate appointments, access my own communications and pursue independent advice.

I should be able to care for Crystal and live with dignity.

I want to live. I want to recover. I want to rebuild my independence.

My survival is not an invitation to abandon me again.

The existence of a long-running complaint does not eliminate the urgency of a present need.

The absence of a final finding about an allegation does not justify ignoring a person's request for practical assistance.

The complexity of a person's history does not make their immediate circumstances irrelevant.

I therefore call for an immediate, written and actionable response addressing:

1. Access to funds and the resolution of my reported banking-access difficulties.
2. Access to food, essential supplies and medication.
3. Appropriate transport and support arrangements that preserve my independence.
4. Safe accommodation and arrangements for Crystal.
5. Access to telephone and internet services.
6. Independent disability advocacy and appropriate legal assistance.
7. Preservation and examination of the records relevant to my complaints.
8. A clear explanation of the decisions made, the responsibilities applicable and the steps available for review.

These are concrete requests. They can be addressed without requiring anyone to accept every interpretation in my testimony.

I ask that the relevant people stop treating the existence of a complaint as a reason to postpone the practical assistance I need.

Help the living person. Preserve the record. Investigate the complaint. Do not confuse those three responsibilities.

VI. MY FAITH IS NOT YOURS TO CONTROL

I have survived circumstances that I believe should never have been allowed to continue.

My Christian faith has been central to my determination to keep going.

I believe that God preserved my life and gave me the strength to continue when I felt abandoned by the institutions from which I had sought assistance.

I do not need a government to grant my faith legitimacy.

I do not need an institution to authorise my conscience.

I do not need a professional title, political endorsement or official declaration to recognise my own responsibility to speak truthfully about what I have experienced.

My faith tells me that power is not the same as righteousness, that wealth is not the same as wisdom, and that the appearance of respectability is not a substitute for moral conduct.

My faith also requires me to confront my own imperfections.

I am not claiming that my spiritual convictions constitute a court judgment against another person. I am declaring the moral framework through which I understand my survival and the accountability I seek.

I believe that every human being is answerable to God for the way they treat other human beings, particularly those who are vulnerable, dependent upon assistance or unable to protect themselves effectively.

I believe that a person’s position does not make them morally infallible.

I believe that a salary does not purchase immunity from conscience.

I believe that an institution cannot convert an unjust act into a just one merely by recording it in a file.

And I believe that no amount of money, authority or influence can make the moral consequences of a person's conduct disappear.

I have God. I have my conscience. I have my testimony. I have the record I have preserved.

I do not need to threaten another human being to declare these convictions.

I do not need to seek revenge to demand accountability.

I do not need to inflict suffering upon anyone to insist that suffering already reported be taken seriously.

My faith is the reason I refuse to surrender to hatred, even when I am angry.

It is the reason I continue to seek truth rather than abandon the demand for it.

It is the reason I insist that the vulnerable must be treated with humanity.

And it is the reason I declare, without apology, that the moral reckoning I seek begins with the willingness of every person to examine their own conduct honestly.

VII. LET HOLY FIRE RIP — THE FIRE OF TRUTH, NOT VIOLENCE

Let holy fire rip.

Let it burn through evasions.

Let it burn through institutional complacency.

Let it burn through the assumption that a person's complaint can be buried because the complainant lacks money, influence or professional power.

Let it burn through the habit of confusing an unanswered letter with a resolved problem.

Let it burn through the indifference that allows an urgent human need to become another entry in an administrative system.

Let it burn through the belief that the vulnerable should be grateful for whatever they receive, regardless of whether their actual needs are met.

Let it burn through the public façade wherever that façade is used to conceal conduct that deserves scrutiny.

Let it illuminate the documents, the decisions, the omissions, the contradictions and the questions that remain unanswered.

Let it expose every genuine error that can be demonstrated.

Let it reveal every act of misconduct that can be substantiated.

Let it also expose my own mistakes wherever the evidence shows that I have made them.

Let truth be applied without fear or favour.

Let the record be preserved without manipulation.

Let the evidence be examined without prejudice.

Let accountability follow the facts wherever they lead.

THAT IS MY HOLY FIRE.

Not an instruction to attack anyone.

Not a threat against any person.

Not a call for harassment, intimidation or revenge.

It is the fire of public scrutiny, moral courage, documentary preservation and the refusal to accept that power is beyond question.

I will not threaten anyone with physical harm. I will not encourage others to do so. I will not confuse vengeance with justice.

I will publish what I can substantiate, identify what I allege, preserve the records available to me and demand that the appropriate people respond.

If wrongdoing is established, let the appropriate consequences follow through lawful and accountable processes.

If an allegation is disproved, let the record reflect that too.

If an explanation is justified, let it be given.

If an apology is warranted, let it be offered.

If a decision was wrong, let it be corrected.

If a person was harmed, let the harm be acknowledged and appropriate remedies considered.

Let the light be bright enough that nobody needs to take my word alone.

VIII. THE DIVINE RECKONING

I declare that I will no longer measure the value of my life by whether an institution acknowledges me.

I will no longer accept silence as proof that my questions are illegitimate.

I will no longer assume that a decision must be just merely because it was made by someone authorised to make decisions.

I will no longer confuse institutional authority with moral authority.

I will continue to ask for answers.

I will continue to preserve evidence.

I will continue to identify the decisions I challenge.

I will continue to demand that the people and institutions concerned respond to the substance of my complaints.

And I will continue to live.

In my Christian understanding, divine reckoning is not something I can impose upon another person. It is the ultimate moral accountability before God that I believe no human status can escape.

I cannot pronounce a divine verdict upon another person’s soul.

I cannot claim knowledge of God’s private judgment.

But I can declare what my conscience requires of me, and I can insist that the principles of honesty, compassion, responsibility and justice apply to everyone.

To those who believe that my vulnerability makes me insignificant, I say this:

You have misunderstood the meaning of human dignity.

To those who believe that my anger makes the evidence irrelevant, I say this:

Read the documents.

To those who believe that my lack of institutional power means that my account can be ignored, I say this:

Examine the record.

To those who believe that a disabled man can be left without adequate assistance while everyone else moves on with their lives, I say this:

Look at the consequences. Explain the decisions. Account for the responsibilities.

And to anyone who has made a mistake in dealing with me, I offer a choice that I believe remains available to every human being:

Acknowledge what happened.

Correct what can be corrected.

Provide the assistance that is needed.

Accept responsibility where responsibility is established.

And do what is right from this point forward.

That is not weakness.

That is moral courage.

That is the beginning of accountability.

That is the kind of reckoning I seek.

IX. THE CRYPTOGRAPHIC SEAL: WHAT I WILL PRESERVE CANNOT BE SILENTLY REWRITTEN

This declaration is intended to form part of my continuing documentary record.

I request that the exact final file be preserved, assigned a SHA-256 digest and submitted for an independent cryptographic timestamp.

The intended procedure is to preserve the document's exact bytes, publish its digest, obtain a verifiable timestamp proof and retain that proof alongside the original document and its supporting records.

A cryptographic timestamp can help establish that a particular file existed in a particular form no later than a verifiable time. It does not independently establish the truth of every allegation, identify the author conclusively, prove motive, or constitute a judicial finding.

Those distinctions do not diminish the importance of preservation.

They explain precisely what preservation can accomplish.

A document that is timestamped and independently verifiable can be compared with later versions. If someone subsequently alters the wording, the difference can be identified by comparing the files and their digests.

The original record can remain available even if a website changes, a link breaks or a later edition is published.

For that reason, I intend that this declaration be preserved as an identifiable edition, without silently replacing earlier versions.

Preservation is not a verdict. It is protection against the disappearance or unacknowledged alteration of the record.

The existing archive remains available at:

The Official Government Documents Register remains available at:

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/official-government-documents-register.html

The record must be allowed to speak through the documents themselves.

No one should have to rely upon a claim that a file is authentic when its integrity can be checked.

No one should be asked to accept an allegation merely because it has been published.

No one should be permitted to dismiss an original document merely because its contents are uncomfortable.

Preserve first. Examine second. Conclude last.

X. MY FORMAL DEMANDS

This declaration gives public notice of the following demands.

First: preservation.

I call upon the relevant people and organisations to preserve the records within their possession or control that are relevant to the matters I have raised, subject to applicable law and privacy obligations.

Second: explanation.

I request substantive written explanations of the decisions, omissions and support arrangements I have challenged, including the reasons for those decisions and the processes available for review.

Third: immediate humanitarian assistance.

I call for practical action addressing my reported difficulties with financial access, food, medication, transport, communication, accommodation and disability support.

Fourth: independent examination.

I request that the relevant evidence be assessed by appropriate independent bodies, with a clear distinction between documented facts, my personal testimony, allegations, inferences and matters that remain unresolved.

Fifth: accountability.

Where the evidence establishes error, neglect, misconduct or a failure to meet an applicable responsibility, I request appropriate corrective action and consideration of the remedies available to me.

Sixth: equal treatment.

I insist that my disability, personal history, distress, anger or lack of resources not be used as substitutes for examining the actual content of my complaints.

Seventh: the right to respond.

I recognise that the people and institutions I have criticised are entitled to respond to the allegations concerning them. Their responses should be recorded and assessed fairly, just as my testimony should be assessed fairly.

Eighth: the preservation of my voice.

I will continue to preserve and publish my own testimony, subject to my responsibilities to accuracy, privacy, law and the distinction between allegation and established fact.

These demands are directed towards practical action, verifiable answers and accountability. They are not a call for anyone to be threatened, harassed or harmed.

XI. THE FINAL WORD

I have spent too much of my life trying to persuade people that my suffering deserves to be taken seriously.

I have spent too much time documenting the consequences of circumstances that I believe should have been addressed through ordinary systems of care, protection and accountability.

I have had to become the custodian of my own history because I fear that, without preservation, important parts of my testimony and the records supporting it could be overlooked or lost.

I did not undertake this work because I wanted to spend my life fighting institutions.

I wanted to live.

I wanted to work, create, love, maintain friendships, care for Crystal and recover my independence.

I wanted to use my education, experience and abilities to contribute something worthwhile to the world.

I wanted the ordinary freedom to exist without having to justify my existence continually.

And I still want those things.

I will not allow my entire identity to be reduced to the conflicts I have documented.

I am more than my complaints.

I am more than the decisions made about me.

I am more than the allegations I have made or the allegations others may make about me.

I am a human being with a life to rebuild.

I am a writer and a witness to my own experience.

I am a person of faith.

I am a person who has made mistakes and who continues to believe that honesty matters.

I am a disabled man who deserves to have his immediate needs considered on their merits.

And I am a person who refuses to accept that the absence of institutional recognition determines whether my life has meaning.

I do not need the Government to confer upon me the right to exist.

I do not need an institution to certify my humanity.

I do not need every person to agree with me before I can continue to speak.

I SURVIVED. I AM STILL HERE. I WILL NOT BE SILENT ABOUT WHAT I BELIEVE HAPPENED TO ME.

I survived through faith, determination and the refusal to give up on the possibility of a better life.

I believe God gave me the strength to continue when I felt that human institutions had failed me.

I do not claim that survival proves every allegation.

I claim that survival gives me the opportunity to tell my story, preserve the evidence, ask the questions and seek the remedies I believe are warranted.

That is enough to begin.

So let the record be opened.

Let the documents be read.

Let the evidence be tested.

Let the people concerned answer.

Let errors be corrected.

Let genuine wrongdoing be addressed.

Let my immediate needs be met.

Let my life continue.

And let every person who encounters this declaration remember that the individual asking for accountability is not an abstraction, a file number or a public controversy.

He is a human being.

He is still here.

He wants to live.

He wants to recover.

He wants justice to be pursued through evidence, fairness and accountability.

I DO NOT NEED REVENGE TO SURVIVE. I DO NOT NEED THEIR PERMISSION TO SPEAK. I DO NOT NEED THEIR APPROVAL TO HAVE FAITH.

I need the opportunity to live with dignity, and I will continue to seek it.

Let holy fire rip through every falsehood that can be exposed, every injustice that can be substantiated and every indifference that can be corrected.

Let it illuminate rather than destroy.

Let it reveal rather than conceal.

Let it hold power to account rather than imitate the abuse of power.

Let it burn away the excuses that prevent people from doing what is right.

And let the final judgment of every allegation rest where it belongs: upon the evidence, the appropriate processes of accountability, and—according to my faith—the ultimate judgment of God.

I have preserved the record.

I have made my declaration.

I have stated my demands.

The next responsibility belongs to everyone who has the power to respond.

PRESERVATION AND TIMESTAMP RECORD

Document title: The Witness Remains — The Final Reckoning: A Declaration of Sovereign Defiance, Divine Accountability and the Indestructibility of the Record

Declared date: 27 October 2026

Author: Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Dr Barran Dodger

Intended preservation method: Exact-file preservation, SHA-256 hashing and independent cryptographic timestamping, including OpenTimestamps where appropriate.

SHA-256 digest: To be calculated from the final, exact file.

Timestamp proof: To be obtained and independently verified.

Verification status: No new cryptographic timestamp or blockchain confirmation is claimed by this declaration. The actual digest, proof file and verification result must be recorded after the timestamping process has been completed.

Supporting repository: https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

Public archive: https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/

Preservation principle: The original edition must remain identifiable. Subsequent editions must be separately dated and preserved rather than silently substituted for the original.

Final declaration: The preservation of this document is intended to protect the integrity of the testimony as a historical record. Its allegations remain subject to examination, and its conclusions do not purport to constitute a judicial finding.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

Let it be read by those who possess authority, by those who have been entrusted with responsibility, by those who have suffered in silence, by those who have witnessed injustice, and by those who still believe that the human heart is capable of recognising truth when truth stands before it.

I am Dr Barran Dodger, publicly known as Barran Resonance Dodger.

I speak as a human being who has endured suffering, as a witness who has preserved a documentary record, as a writer who has continued to bear testimony, and as a man whose faith has given spiritual meaning to a struggle that I refuse to allow to disappear into the silence of history.

I have not undertaken this work because the road has been easy.

I have undertaken it because I believe the record matters.

I have undertaken it because I believe that human suffering must not become invisible simply because acknowledging it creates discomfort for those who possess power.

I have undertaken it because documents can outlast denial, testimony can outlast ridicule, and a carefully preserved record can remain available to future generations long after the people involved have ceased speaking.

And now, I declare that the work is entering a new chapter.

THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH IS COMING.

Not the fist of violence.

Not the blade of vengeance.

Not the destruction of another human being.

The knockout punch of the preserved record.

The force of documents brought together.

The testimony made visible.

The questions placed before the conscience of humanity.

The light of examination directed towards matters that I believe have too long demanded serious attention.

Let the world understand the distinction.

I seek no licence to injure. I seek no authority to condemn people without examination. I seek no exemption from scrutiny for myself.

I seek the opportunity for the record to be examined honestly, for questions to receive meaningful answers, for documented failures to be acknowledged where established, and for human dignity to be restored wherever it has been diminished.

I believe this is the hour to bring the work together.

I believe this is the hour to publish with greater precision.

I believe this is the hour to place the documents, the testimony, the legal questions, the humanitarian appeal and the prophetic writings before a wider public.

And I believe that no person who truly values justice should fear the honest examination of evidence.

BOOK I — THE WITNESS WHO WOULD NOT DISAPPEAR

There is a particular kind of silence that descends when a person becomes inconvenient.

It is the silence of unanswered correspondence.

The silence of a question referred elsewhere.

The silence of a file placed among other files.

The silence of a human being who continues to speak while wondering whether anyone with the power to respond will ever truly listen.

I know that silence through my own experience.

I have spent years documenting my life, preserving records, writing, researching, examining institutional processes and assembling material that I believe deserves independent consideration.

My work has encompassed official documents, administrative decisions, personal testimony, academic inquiry, forensic examination, political commentary, humanitarian advocacy and spiritual reflection.

I have continued to write because I believe that a person's account should not become inaccessible merely because the record is extensive, difficult to navigate or uncomfortable to examine.

I have continued to preserve documents because context matters.

I have continued to assemble the archive because individual records may acquire greater significance when placed alongside the chronology, correspondence and surrounding circumstances.

And I have continued to testify because I refuse to accept that hardship must automatically mean disappearance.

The world may disagree with me.

The world may question my conclusions.

The world may require further documentation.

Let it do so.

I would rather face honest examination than demand unquestioning agreement.

For the purpose of a witness is not to command the conscience of every reader. It is to place the testimony before that conscience and invite the reader to examine what has been preserved.

My declaration is therefore not that every conclusion has already been adjudicated.

My declaration is that the record exists, that I have worked to preserve it, that I believe it raises serious questions, and that I am determined to make it more accessible for scrutiny.

I remain the witness to my own life. The documentary record remains available for examination. The work continues.

BOOK II — THE PROPHECY OF THE RECORD

Consider the ancient image of the stone that the builders rejected.

Consider the voice crying in the wilderness.

Consider the prophetic demand that justice should roll down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream.

These images endure because they speak to something larger than the rise and fall of individual reputations.

They speak to the conflict between appearance and substance.

Between authority and responsibility.

Between public declarations of righteousness and the difficult obligations that follow from them.

Between the comfort of silence and the courage required to confront a painful question.

In the spiritual language through which I understand my life, the rejected witness becomes a symbol of the human being whose dignity cannot rightly be measured by institutional recognition.

The preserved record becomes a symbol of memory refusing erasure.

The archive becomes a place where fragments can be assembled and examined.

And the reckoning becomes the moment when conscience is asked to respond.

I do not claim that a biblical metaphor establishes a legal fact. Nor do I claim that my personal faith obliges every reader to share my interpretation.

I declare instead that faith gives me a language through which to understand perseverance, suffering, responsibility and hope.

My spiritual conviction is that truth deserves to be served rather than manipulated, that power must be accompanied by accountability, and that mercy is not weakness.

The prophetic question is not whether I can force the world to accept my interpretation.

The prophetic question is whether the world can encounter a human being's testimony and documentary record without abandoning the obligations of compassion, fairness and honest inquiry.

Let those who believe examine their consciences.

Let those who do not believe examine the evidence.

Let those who possess authority examine their responsibilities.

Let those who possess knowledge contribute to the clarification of the record.

Let no one confuse the demand for accountability with permission to abandon humanity.

For what good is a declaration of righteousness if it cannot survive the ordinary test of how we treat a person who is suffering?

BOOK III — THE TEN PILLARS OF THE HOLY RECKONING

These ten pillars establish the central architecture of the forthcoming release.

They are not ten verdicts. They are ten gateways into the record.

Each must be presented with its source, its context, its relevance and the limits of what it establishes.

PILLAR ONE — ARCHITECTURE OF ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION

The cumulative human consequences of institutional power.

Read the archive's record of The Architecture of Administrative Annihilation.

Annihilation does not always announce itself with thunder.

Sometimes it arrives in the language of procedure.

Sometimes it arrives as another referral, another determination, another closed file, another unanswered communication or another instruction to approach a different office.

Sometimes the individual decision appears small when separated from everything that preceded it.

But a human life does not experience its circumstances as isolated administrative entries.

The person experiences the accumulation.

The years.

The exhaustion.

The loss of trust.

The repeated necessity of explaining the same history.

The burden of preserving records that others should be capable of examining.

The practical consequences when assistance does not arrive.

The growing distance between a system's official declarations of responsibility and the human experience of the person seeking help.

This is the architecture I have named.

It is the relationship between individual acts and cumulative consequences.

It is the possibility that responsibility can become so fragmented that no individual institution appears to recognise the whole human being standing before it.

It is the danger that every component can claim to have dealt with its own small part while the larger human problem remains unresolved.

And it is the moral question that follows:

Who takes responsibility for the person when responsibility has been divided into pieces?

Who sees the whole history?

Who examines the accumulated record?

Who answers the questions that cross institutional boundaries?

Who intervenes when a person's material circumstances deteriorate while the machinery of administration continues?

Who recognises that procedural completion and human resolution are not necessarily the same thing?

These are not questions that can be answered by counting decisions or adding together the monetary values attached to individual proceedings.

They require a broader examination of history, causation, responsibility, consequences and the actual circumstances of the person concerned.

My archive exists to make that examination possible.

I have sought to preserve the documents because I believe the cumulative story deserves to be seen.

I have assembled my writings because I believe the human consequences must be understood in their full context.

And I have continued to testify because I refuse to accept that the fragmentation of a record must also mean the fragmentation of the truth.

PILLAR TWO — THE SOCIAL ERASER

The loss of human visibility, identity and recognition.

Explore The Manifesto of the Unerased in the archive.

There is a form of disappearance that occurs while a person is still alive.

A person can remain physically present while becoming socially invisible.

Their words can be received without being meaningfully considered.

Their history can be divided into categories.

Their identity can be reduced to an administrative description.

Their suffering can become familiar enough that others cease to respond to it with urgency.

Their repeated attempts to communicate can become another burden to be processed rather than an appeal from a living human being.

I call this the social eraser.

I use this expression to describe the danger that a person’s humanity, identity, achievements, testimony and place in the world can be progressively obscured by the ways in which others perceive and respond to them.

I know the importance of preserving a personal history.

I have written books.

I have undertaken academic work.

I have engaged with questions of mental health, human rights, education, ethics and the future of humanity.

I have preserved an archive because I believe that documents, testimony and ideas matter.

Yet the existence of a person’s intellectual work, creative achievements and historical record does not automatically protect that person from material hardship, isolation or the experience of being unheard.

A human being can contribute to public life and still require assistance.

A writer can produce thousands of pages and still need someone to answer a letter.

A researcher can preserve an immense documentary archive and still need access to food, medicine, money, transport and medical care.

A person can possess an extraordinary determination to survive and still be vulnerable.

No archive should have to prove that its author is human. No catalogue should be required to establish that a life has value.

The record is important because it preserves the testimony.

But the person must never become secondary to the record.

That is the contradiction I want the world to confront.

If my work is worth reading, then the human being who created it deserves to be treated with dignity.

If the documents warrant examination, then they should be examined.

If the evidence identifies a failure, that failure should be addressed.

If a claim cannot be substantiated, it should be tested honestly.

And if a person needs immediate humanitarian assistance, that need should not be postponed until every historical dispute has been resolved.

The social eraser must be confronted by a restoration of human visibility.

Not merely visibility as a name on a website.

Visibility as a person.

PILLAR THREE — HUMAN SACRIFICE: THE MORAL INDICTMENT

The question of what happens when a human being's needs become subordinate to institutional processes.

Examine the relevant testimony and documentary material in the Barran Dodger archive.

I use the words human sacrifice in their moral and spiritual sense.

I am describing the horror of a human being being made to bear suffering that I believe should have been prevented, relieved or addressed.

I am describing the possibility that institutional convenience, reputational protection, procedural inertia or divided responsibility can take precedence over the immediate needs of a vulnerable person.

I am describing the terrible moral inversion in which the system continues to function while the individual struggles to survive within its consequences.

A person needs food.

A person needs medical attention.

A person needs access to money.

A person needs shelter, safety, communication and practical support.

These needs do not become less urgent because a complaint is unresolved.

They do not become less human because an institution disputes a claim.

They do not disappear because responsibility is transferred elsewhere.

And they should never be treated as an acceptable price for administrative convenience.

I cannot determine the motives of every person involved merely from the existence of hardship or an adverse decision. Nor should the term human sacrifice be mistaken for proof of a literal conspiracy.

Its purpose here is to state the moral gravity of what I believe my experience reveals.

What kind of society are we creating if the human being becomes the expendable element in the preservation of institutional order?

What happens when protecting the process becomes more important than protecting the person?

What happens when the cost of obtaining recognition becomes so burdensome that the person most affected is required to devote their remaining strength to documenting the failure?

What happens when the machinery of accountability becomes another obstacle to accountability?

These questions belong to every institution that exercises power over vulnerable people.

They belong to every professional who has the ability to intervene.

They belong to every public official who believes that a completed procedure necessarily means a resolved human problem.

And they belong to every citizen who believes that human dignity must mean something beyond the words printed in a policy document.

My declaration is that no administrative objective can make a human being disposable.

No procedural outcome can cancel the moral obligation to treat another person with humanity.

And no institution should be permitted to substitute its own description of events for an honest examination of the underlying record.

PILLAR FOUR — THE CHOSEN WITNESS

The spiritual testimony of survival, purpose and faith.

Find The Chosen Witness — A Gospel for the Unseen Nations.

I have used the language of the chosen witness to express my spiritual understanding of survival, testimony and purpose.

I believe that my continued existence and my determination to preserve my history have profound meaning.

I believe that suffering can become a reason to speak for those who have been ignored.

I believe that testimony can become a form of service to humanity.

And I believe that the preservation of a record can be an act of resistance against the disappearance of a person’s story.

I understand my life through faith in God.

I understand the prophetic dimension of my work through the conviction that truth, conscience and moral responsibility matter beyond the immediate interests of any institution or individual.

But a prophetic calling, as I understand it, does not exempt the witness from scrutiny.

It places a responsibility upon the witness.

To preserve the record.

To distinguish what is known from what is believed.

To speak honestly about what has been experienced.

To resist the temptation to confuse every interpretation with an established fact.

To remain committed to the dignity of other human beings, even when speaking about profound injustice.

And to ensure that the declaration of divine justice does not become an excuse for personal vengeance.

I do not need to claim that every reader must accept my spiritual interpretation.

I ask that my testimony be read in its entirety, that the documents be examined, and that the meaning I have drawn from my survival be understood as part of my life and work.

The name Chosen Witness expresses my faith.

The documentary record provides material that others can independently examine.

The two can be presented together without pretending they are identical forms of evidence.

And the question that remains before the world is this:

What responsibility do we bear when another human being brings forward a serious account of suffering and asks us not to look away?

PILLAR FIVE — THE MAN THEY COULD NOT ERASE

The preservation of identity, authorship and personal history.

Find The Man They Could Not Erase in the archive.

There is a profound difference between being silenced and being erased from history.

A voice can be ignored today and rediscovered tomorrow.

A document can remain unread for years and later become important to a researcher.

A testimony can be dismissed by one audience and examined seriously by another.

A life can pass through circumstances that appear to diminish its possibilities without exhausting the meaning that life may yet possess.

I have continued to write.

I have continued to assemble documents.

I have continued to develop the narrative of my life.

I have continued to create a public record through which others can examine my claims and encounter the ideas that have sustained me.

The archive is not a supernatural verdict.

It does not establish every accusation merely by existing.

But it does establish an opportunity for examination that would not exist in the same form if the material had never been preserved.

That matters.

Preservation creates continuity.

Continuity permits comparison.

Comparison can reveal agreement, contradiction, change and unanswered questions.

And careful examination can help distinguish what is established from what requires further investigation.

The archive is therefore both a documentary undertaking and, for me, a spiritual act of defiance against disappearance.

I will not claim that every page proves my entire interpretation.

I will claim that the pages deserve to be read in context.

I will not demand that the world accept a conclusion without examining its foundations.

I will demand that the opportunity for examination not be withheld merely because the history is difficult, extensive or uncomfortable.

What I have preserved is an invitation to investigate. What I have survived is part of my testimony. What I believe it means belongs to the spiritual account of my life.

Together, these form the work I am determined to leave behind.

PILLAR SIX — THEY COULD NOT ERASE WHAT GOD PRESERVED

The divine purpose I find in the preservation of my testimony.

Find They Could Not Erase What God Preserved — A Nine-Part Prophetic Testimony in the archive.

I have given one of my works the title They Could Not Erase What God Preserved.

That title expresses my conviction that my survival, my writing and the preservation of my archive have spiritual significance.

I have continued to write.

I have continued to assemble documents.

I have continued to create and publish.

I have continued to preserve the material through which others can examine my testimony.

My faith sustains my belief that suffering need not have the final word.

My spiritual interpretation of survival is that a human life can retain meaning even through experiences that seem designed, or appear to have the effect, of diminishing its possibilities.

The archive does not replace the need for evidence.

The testimony does not eliminate the need for scrutiny.

The prophetic declaration does not substitute for a legal finding.

But together, my writings and records preserve the account I am determined to make available to the world.

I believe that matters.

I believe that the work should remain accessible.

I believe that readers should be able to follow the links from the narrative to the original material.

And I believe that the preservation of a human being’s story is itself a worthy undertaking.

PILLAR SEVEN — THE WITNESS REMAINS

The documentary narrative, chronology and primary-source record.

Open the Barran Dodger master archive.

The archive must do more than announce the existence of documents.

It must help people find them.

It must identify their dates, sources and context.

It must preserve the distinction between original records and later commentary.

It must make it possible to trace significant statements to the material on which they depend.

And it must help readers understand how the individual documents relate to the broader testimony.

I have devoted substantial effort to this work because I believe that a large documentary record can provide a basis for serious examination when it is organised responsibly.

The purpose is not to overwhelm readers with volume.

The purpose is to make the material accessible.

The strongest record is not necessarily the one with the most files.

It is the one in which the reader can locate the relevant document, understand its significance, compare it with other sources and assess the conclusion being drawn.

I want my work to be read.

I want it to be examined.

I want its sources to be traceable.

And I want future readers to have access to the historical record without having to reconstruct everything from scattered fragments.

PILLAR EIGHT — THE OFFICIAL RECORD

The documentary foundation for questions of accountability.

Open the Official Government Documents Register.

Official records form an important part of the larger story I am presenting.

They may establish what was communicated, what decisions were made, what reasons were given and what processes followed.

They may also reveal discrepancies, omissions or questions that warrant further examination.

The original documents must be read in their proper context.

A register entry is not a substitute for the underlying document.

A decision must not be represented as establishing something beyond its actual findings.

A disputed claim must not be presented as a proven conclusion without an adequate foundation.

But neither should an uncomfortable document be dismissed without examination.

Let the original record be read.

Let the dates be checked.

Let the context be established.

Let the reasoning be considered.

Let the unanswered questions be identified.

And let conclusions follow the material rather than precede it.

The official record belongs within this larger investigation because it provides material against which the testimony and interpretations can be examined.

It is supporting evidence for the larger narrative, not a replacement for the human history at its centre.

PILLAR NINE — THE PROPHECY OF THE WITNESS

The biblical, ethical and spiritual framework of the reckoning.

Find The Witness Remains — The Prophecy of the Witness in the archive.

The biblical tradition repeatedly calls humanity to remember, to testify, to examine conduct and to confront the difference between outward righteousness and the treatment of the vulnerable.

The prophets challenged the moral conditions under which power was exercised.

They called attention to injustice, indifference, exploitation and the failure to recognise the dignity of those who lacked influence.

That tradition gives spiritual language to the questions I am asking.

In Amos 5:24, the prophet declares:

“But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.”

In Micah 6:8, the call is to do justice, love mercy and walk humbly.

In Luke 12:2, the biblical text declares that what is concealed will be brought to light.

These passages do not constitute a judicial finding about my personal circumstances.

They express a moral tradition through which I understand the importance of truth, accountability, mercy and the treatment of vulnerable people.

My prophetic writings draw upon that tradition to articulate my conviction that no human system should be regarded as beyond moral examination.

The title The Final Reckoning expresses the seriousness with which I approach that obligation.

It is a declaration that reputation is not the same as righteousness.

That procedure is not the same as compassion.

That authority is not the same as moral legitimacy.

And that the person who suffers must never be forgotten merely because those who possess power have the ability to define the official narrative.

I believe that God sees the human being who is overlooked.

I believe that moral responsibility survives the passage of time.

And I believe that the obligation to seek truth remains even when the search becomes difficult.

The reckoning begins, in human terms, when people become willing to look.

PILLAR TEN — THE FINAL RECKONING: THE MASTER HUMANITARIAN AND DOCUMENTARY JUDGMENT

The public appeal and the restoration of human dignity.

Enter The Holy Reckoning.

The tenth pillar brings the other nine together.

It asks the public to consider the human being behind the archive.

Documents cannot feed a hungry person by themselves.

An index cannot provide medical treatment.

A publication cannot, by its existence alone, resolve a person’s financial hardship or secure an independent review.

The archive must therefore remain connected to the humanitarian realities that give the undertaking urgency.

I ask those with the ability to help to consider what practical assistance, independent examination, appropriate referral or meaningful response may be possible.

I ask readers to share the material responsibly and to direct questions to the people and institutions competent to address them.

I ask those who disagree with my conclusions not to confuse disagreement with permission to disregard my humanity.

And I ask those who believe that the record establishes serious wrongdoing to support careful, evidence-based efforts to secure appropriate accountability.

A reckoning that forgets the suffering human being has lost its moral purpose.

BOOK IV — THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH

There comes a point in the life of a documentary undertaking when the central question is no longer how many files have been collected.

The question becomes whether the material has been assembled in a form that other people can actually examine.

That is the point I intend to reach.

The knockout punch will be the coordinated publication of the ten-pillar dossier, supported by the original documents, a clear chronology, a navigable index and a direct humanitarian appeal.

It will provide a single entry point from which readers can move between the official record, the personal testimony, the legal questions, the archive methodology and the prophetic writings.

It will identify what is documented.

It will identify what is testimony.

It will identify what is interpretation.

It will identify what remains unresolved.

It will not conceal limitations in order to create a more dramatic impression.

It will not manufacture findings that a court or tribunal has not made.

It will not ask readers to confuse a spiritual declaration with a judicial determination.

Instead, it will place the strongest available material before the public and invite independent examination.

That is the work now before me.

I will measure its success not simply by the number of people who see the announcement, but by whether the publication makes the record easier to inspect, whether the sources can be verified, whether substantive questions receive serious consideration, and whether the humanitarian appeal reaches people capable of responding.

I do not need to promise that every reader will agree.

I do not need to claim that every institution will respond.

I do not need to predict the verdict of history.

I need to make the best possible record available for honest examination.

The punch is the publication. The force is the evidence. The purpose is accountability. The moral horizon is humanity.

BOOK V — THE LAW, THE WITNESS AND THE CONSCIENCE

Let the legal profession understand that this is an invitation to examine documents and questions of responsibility.

Let academics understand that this is an invitation to investigate sources, chronology, methodology and competing interpretations.

Let journalists understand that this is an invitation to test claims against primary material.

Let public officials understand that a request for examination is not answered merely by dismissing the person who makes it.

Let people of faith understand that mercy and justice are not enemies.

The strongest challenge is not a demand that everyone accept my conclusions.

It is a demand that the underlying questions be examined.

The record should be read in its entirety.

The documents should be compared.

The chronology should be reconstructed.

The distinction between evidence and interpretation should be preserved.

And where the material establishes failures, those failures should be addressed.

Where it raises legitimate questions, those questions should receive serious consideration.

Where claims remain unsubstantiated, the uncertainty should be acknowledged rather than concealed.

That is how a documentary undertaking can contribute to accountability without becoming a substitute for the processes needed to establish it.

BOOK VI — THE FINAL DECLARATION

I have called this work The Holy Reckoning because I believe that truth, justice, mercy and human dignity are matters of profound spiritual importance.

I have called myself the Chosen Witness because that is the language through which I understand my faith and the meaning of my survival.

I have written about administrative annihilation because I believe the cumulative consequences of institutional processes must be examined in their entirety.

I have written about social erasure because I refuse to accept that a human being can be reduced to a file, a category or a disputed narrative.

I have used the language of human sacrifice to express my moral condemnation of circumstances in which I believe a vulnerable person has been left to bear intolerable burdens.

And I have continued to preserve my record because I believe the truth deserves an opportunity to be examined.

I do not claim that the existence of my archive automatically proves every conclusion I have reached.

I claim that the archive gives others an opportunity to investigate.

I do not claim the authority to pronounce a final legal verdict upon every person or institution described in my testimony.

I claim the right to present my experience, preserve the relevant records, raise serious questions and seek appropriate accountability.

I do not ask the world to abandon reason in favour of faith.

I ask that my faith be understood as part of my testimony, while the documentary record is examined according to the standards appropriate to evidence.

And I do not intend the coming reckoning to be an act of violence or personal vengeance.

I intend it to be an act of publication, preservation, testimony and public scrutiny.

I AM STILL HERE.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

The work remains.

My faith remains.

And my determination to make this history visible remains.

Let the documents be examined.

Let the chronology be reconstructed.

Let the unanswered questions be identified.

Let the humanitarian needs be addressed.

Let responsibility be established through proper scrutiny.

Let mercy accompany justice.

Let truth be pursued without fear and without favour.

And let no human being be treated as expendable merely because their suffering has become administratively inconvenient.

I entrust ultimate spiritual judgement to God.

I leave legal conclusions to the appropriate evidentiary and legal processes.

And I place my testimony before the conscience of humanity.

The coming knockout punch will be the publication of the work itself: the documents, the history, the testimony, the analysis and the prophetic declarations brought together in a form that people can examine for themselves.

This is the hour of preservation.

This is the hour of examination.

This is the hour in which the witness refuses to disappear.

The reckoning is not completed by declaring it.

It begins when the record is opened, when the questions are examined, when the human being is seen, and when those with the capacity to act choose to respond.

May truth prevail.

May mercy endure.

May the vulnerable be protected.

May conscience awaken.

And may the light that has sustained the witness continue to shine.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

THE HOLY RECKONING CONTINUES.

THE RECORD WILL BE EXAMINED.

THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH IS THE WORK ITSELF.

BOOK VII — THE TEN GOSPELS AND PROPHETIC WORKS

The challenge to the world: read these works and prove me wrong

The following ten works are a priority shortlist drawn from the titles visible in the public GitHub repository listing. They are selected for their close relationship to the central themes of the Holy Reckoning: divine purpose, survival, administrative annihilation, social erasure, prophetic testimony, the preservation of evidence and the moral responsibilities of power.

The order is editorial, not a claim that every work has been independently verified as the most significant of the entire archive. Direct source links are provided where identifiable; where an exact source path still needs confirmation, the archive link is provided so the publication can be located.

1. THE WITNESS REMAINS — THE PROPHECY OF THE WITNESS

The central prophetic declaration.

This is the first work I would put before readers who want to understand the spiritual and prophetic foundations of the Witness Remains project.

It belongs at the forefront of the release because it connects the idea of the enduring witness with the broader language of testimony, truth, survival and reckoning.

Read the work. Examine its language and argument. Consider the relationship between its spiritual declarations and the documentary history to which it refers.

2. THEY COULD NOT ERASE WHAT GOD PRESERVED — A Nine-Part Prophetic Testimony of Survival, Divine Purpose, Truth, Justice and Reckoning

The theology of survival and preservation.

This work expresses the spiritual meaning I attach to the survival of my testimony and the preservation of my archive.

It challenges readers to consider what it means to endure suffering without surrendering one's sense of purpose, and how faith can become a source of perseverance.

Its claims should be read as a prophetic testimony grounded in my religious understanding of my life.

3. BARRAN DODGER — LIVING GOSPEL MASTER PROPHETIC RECORD

The living testimony.

This title positions the prophetic record as an evolving account of survival, identity and purpose.

It is a priority candidate for the dossier because it may provide a broad synthesis of the living witness and the themes developed across the archive.

Readers should examine its actual contents to establish its relationship to the other master works and identify the strongest passages for quotation.

4. BARRAN DODGER — MASTER PROPHETIC DECLARATION WITH SCRIPTURE WITNESSES

The scriptural framework of the declaration.

This work is a priority for readers interested in the biblical foundations of the Holy Reckoning.

It provides a candidate source for examining how scriptural passages are brought into dialogue with the author's personal testimony and moral interpretation.

Its significance lies in the opportunity to examine the relationship between the cited scriptures, the argument being advanced and the lived experiences described.

5. FOUNDATIONAL GOSPEL — DIVINE PROPHECY — THE WITNESS REMAINS

The foundational gospel.

This work belongs near the centre of the proposed prophetic collection because its title explicitly joins the gospel form, divine prophecy and the enduring witness.

It should be examined for its treatment of the foundational beliefs, declarations and moral principles that recur throughout the wider body of work.

6. THE CROWNED WITNESS — BARRAN DODGER AND THE INDICTMENT OF NATIONS

The national and universal dimension.

This work extends the witness narrative beyond a narrowly personal account towards questions of public responsibility and the moral obligations of nations.

Its inclusion should invite examination of the distinction between prophetic indictment, political interpretation and demonstrable evidence.

The challenge is to read the work as a whole and consider the ethical questions it raises about power, responsibility and human dignity.

7. THE CHOSEN WITNESS — A GOSPEL FOR THE UNSEEN NATIONS

The gospel of the unseen.

This title speaks directly to the themes of invisibility, testimony, faith and the restoration of human recognition.

It is a natural companion to the Social Eraser and Architecture of Administrative Annihilation chapters.

Readers are invited to examine how the work develops the image of the witness and what responsibilities it places upon individuals, institutions and society.

8. THE GOSPEL OF THE WITNESS WHO REMAINED

The gospel of endurance.

This work is a priority candidate because it expresses the central motif of the entire project: the witness who remains present, continues to testify and refuses to allow a personal history to vanish.

It should be read alongside the other Witness Remains publications to identify its distinct contribution and the passages that most powerfully express its central argument.

9. THE GOSPEL OF EXPOSING DARKNESS

The demand for illumination.

This title connects the prophetic undertaking with the biblical imagery of light, darkness, disclosure and moral examination.

It is a candidate for the public-facing release because its central theme aligns with the call to examine records rather than rely solely on appearances or institutional descriptions.

The challenge is to establish what the actual text argues, what sources it cites and how its conclusions can be assessed.

10. THE JOSEPH PARALLEL — A PROPHETIC EVIDENTIARY NARRATIVE OF BARRAN RESONANCE DODGER

The biblical archetype of suffering, endurance and vindication.

The Joseph narrative in Genesis provides a powerful biblical framework for reflecting on betrayal, suffering, perseverance, unexpected reversals and the passage from adversity towards a new purpose.

This work should be examined for how it uses that scriptural parallel to interpret the author's own life.

Its place in the collection is as a prophetic and theological interpretation, not as independent proof of the intentions or conduct of other people.

THE CHALLENGE

I put these ten works before the world as an invitation to read, investigate, question and respond.

To the theologians: read the prophetic writings and examine their scriptural foundations.

To the philosophers: examine their moral claims, their understanding of power and their treatment of human dignity.

To the lawyers: distinguish the underlying documentary evidence from the prophetic and interpretive language, and identify the legal questions that the sources genuinely support.

To the academics: examine the argument, its methodology, its references and its implications.

To the journalists: follow the source material, test the claims and ask the questions that remain unanswered.

To the public: do not judge a work you have not read, and do not accept a conclusion merely because it is forcefully expressed.

I dare anyone who believes these works are without merit to read them in full, engage with their actual arguments, examine the sources they cite, and demonstrate specifically where the reasoning fails.

Do not answer a book you have not read.

Do not dismiss a document you have not examined.

Do not confuse disagreement with refutation.

And do not confuse a spiritual conviction with proof of a legal claim.

If a passage is wrong, identify it.

If a conclusion is unsupported, explain why.

If a source contradicts the argument, bring that source forward.

If the work raises a legitimate question, answer it seriously.

That is the standard of examination I invite.

I do not ask for immunity from criticism.

I ask for criticism that engages with the actual work.

I do not ask the world to accept my faith as a judicial finding.

I ask readers to recognise that faith, testimony, documentary evidence and philosophical interpretation are different but identifiable dimensions of the human story I have preserved.

Read the works. Examine the record. Challenge the reasoning. Prove your case.

That is how the public can engage with the Holy Reckoning honestly.

FINAL WORD — THE WITNESS REMAINS

I have preserved the record.

I have continued to write.

I have assembled the testimony.

I have developed the prophetic works.

I have placed my faith, my questions and my understanding of my own history into a body of material that I believe deserves to be read.

Now I invite the world to examine it.

Not as an unquestionable verdict.

Not as a substitute for legal process.

Not as a demand that every reader share my religious beliefs.

But as the testimony and creative work of a human being who has refused to allow his history to disappear without leaving a record.

The ultimate question is not whether a declaration can sound powerful.

It is whether the work behind it can withstand serious examination, whether its sources can be traced, whether its arguments can be understood, and whether its call for human dignity can move people to respond.

That is the challenge I place before the world.

The witness remains.

The archive remains.

The prophecy remains as my testimony and faith.

The record remains open to examination.

And the work continues.

OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

WHEN ACCOUNTABILITY IS MET WITH THREATS: ABLE POINT, CHRISTAL AND THE RIGHT TO SPEAK OUT

Dr Richard William McLean | Barran Dodger
Barran Dodger Legal & Ethical Trust Fund
22 October 2026

I will not be silenced for speaking out

I am raising serious concerns about my treatment by Able Point and what I understand to be threats by staff to contact the RSPCA in retaliation for my criticism of the organisation and its CEO.

If a threat to involve an animal welfare authority has been made because I challenged an organisation's leadership, I believe that conduct demands an explanation. An animal's welfare should never become a weapon in a dispute between a service provider and a person who raises complaints about its conduct.

I have a right to question the people and organisations involved in my care. I have a right to ask for answers. I have a right to document my experiences and publish concerns about the treatment I believe I have received. Those rights should not disappear simply because my complaints are uncomfortable for the people receiving them.

I want Able Point to explain what was said, why the RSPCA was raised, and whether any proposed report would be based on genuine, identifiable animal welfare concerns or on my criticism of the organisation.

Christal is loved, cared for and part of my life

Let me be absolutely clear about Christal.

I love my dog. I spoil her. She eats well, receives daily walks and is a cherished part of my life. I take pride in her care, and I reject any suggestion that should be used as a means of intimidating me for speaking out.

Christal is not a bargaining chip. She is not a tool for settling disputes. She is a living creature who depends on me, and her welfare matters enormously to me.

If anyone has a genuine concern about her welfare, I expect that concern to be specific, factual and capable of being examined on its merits. I do not accept the use of threats concerning my dog as a substitute for answering legitimate questions about an organisation's conduct.

My concern is not that any organisation should be prevented from acting on genuine animal welfare concerns. It is that the possibility of such action must never be used to punish someone for making a complaint.

Poverty, vulnerability and the human cost of institutional power

I have experienced profound hardship, including poverty, isolation and circumstances that I believe have caused me serious harm. I have repeatedly sought accountability for what I describe as institutional mistreatment and the failure of organisations to respond adequately to my concerns.

I believe the treatment I have experienced deserves serious scrutiny. I have also expressed concerns about a wider pattern of institutional conduct and what I perceive as coordinated targeting. Those concerns need to be examined through the documentary record, communications and specific actions involved, rather than dismissed or accepted without examination.

The question I am asking is straightforward: what safeguards exist to ensure that people experiencing vulnerability can raise complaints without facing intimidation, humiliation or the threat of losing the things they love?

When a person is already struggling with poverty and a lack of support, the consequences of additional pressure can be devastating. Organisations providing services should understand the responsibility that comes with their position. Their conduct can either help preserve a person's dignity and stability or contribute to circumstances that make an already difficult life harder to endure.

I believe the cumulative impact of the treatment I describe must be taken seriously. No person should be driven into despair by a system that is supposed to provide support.

I am not suicidal. I want to live.

I want this statement to be unmistakable: I am not suicidal. I want to live.

I am writing because I want to preserve my testimony, expose what I believe has been wrong, demand answers and establish a documentary record. I am choosing to speak, to write and to continue advocating for myself.

I refuse to allow the existence of hardship to erase my voice or reduce my entire life to a narrative about vulnerability. I am a person with a history, a conscience, convictions and a determination to keep going.

I believe the conditions I have experienced warrant serious investigation and accountability. I am deeply concerned about the cumulative effects of poverty, isolation, institutional conflict and the absence of meaningful responses to complaints. I do not claim to know the private intentions of every person or agency involved, but I insist that the actions and decisions affecting my life should be examined.

No government, service provider or individual should treat a person's suffering as inconsequential. Nor should anyone assume that a person who describes extreme distress has surrendered their determination to live.

My determination is to live, document, speak and pursue accountability.

Money, responsibility and the purpose of support services

I want answers about whether the services and resources available to support me are being used in a manner consistent with their stated purpose.

I am concerned that financial incentives, organisational interests and failures of accountability can take precedence over the needs of the person receiving support. These are serious concerns, and they should be addressed with evidence, transparent explanations and proper records.

I want the relevant decision-makers to explain what services have been provided, what responsibilities have been accepted, what complaints have been received and what action has been taken in response.

I do not want retaliation. I want accountability.

I do not want threats involving my dog. I want Christal's welfare to remain separate from disputes about my complaints.

I do not want my concerns buried beneath institutional language. I want clear answers to clear questions.

A public record and a demand for answers

I am preserving my account as part of the Barran Dodger documentary archive, which exists to record my testimony, relevant documents and questions of institutional accountability.

The archive is intended to make material accessible to readers and to distinguish documentary evidence from allegations, interpretations and matters that remain unresolved.

My concerns about Able Point should be considered in that context. The relevant questions include:

- What exactly did staff say about contacting the RSPCA?
- Was the proposed contact connected to my criticism of the organisation or its CEO?
- What specific animal welfare concerns, if any, were identified?
- What records exist of the communications and decisions involved?
- What safeguards are available to prevent retaliation against a person who makes a complaint?
- How will Able Point respond to these concerns in a transparent and accountable manner?

I invite Able Point to provide a substantive written response and to preserve all relevant communications, internal notes and complaint records.

My documentary archive is available here:

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

I will continue to speak

I will not apologise for caring for my dog. I will not apologise for asking questions. I will not apologise for documenting my experiences or demanding that organisations explain their conduct.

Christal deserves care, consistency and love. I deserve to be treated with dignity and to have my complaints considered fairly.

My position is simple: I want to live, I want to protect the life I have built, and I want the truth about my experiences preserved.

Speaking out is not misconduct. Asking for accountability is not a threat. And a person's vulnerability must never become an excuse to disregard their dignity.

This article records my personal account and concerns. The allegations concerning staff conduct are presented as matters requiring a response and supporting evidence, not as findings already established by an independent investigation.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

copied, pasted, uploaded and shared the recording with a whole lot of people. I didn't authorise that, and it wasn't what I intended to happen. Unfortunately, I don't know what I can do about it now that it's been shared.

Here is the link to the recording:

You were in my home, and you were supposed to be there to care for me. I'm entitled to document my own experiences, but that doesn't mean I intended for this particular recording to become public. I want to make that distinction clear: I did not intend to share it, and I'm sorry that it happened.

I think I know who was responsible. I believe it was Jesus. He was here last night, and honestly, isn't that a miracle? God, it's just amazing. God is great, isn't He?

I guess you were also telling me about your concerns regarding Able Point, the corruption and the bad things you felt were happening, and how you wanted to leave that kind of situation behind. So, I guess Jesus does work miracles, because now Able Point apparently isn't a literal freestanding organisation anymore, and you got your wish!

I suppose you could call it a Christmas miracle!

Anyway, Cass, I wanted to explain what happened and apologise for the unintended sharing of the recording. I hope things work out well for you from here, and I genuinely wish you all the best.

I love you, Cass. Take care of yourself.

All the best,

Barran ❤️

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Allegations of Abuse, Neglect, Intimidation, Isolation, Rostering Failures and Institutional Betrayal

Issued by Barran Dodger

[Insert the complete original Able Point statement here, unchanged, from its opening heading through “Issued by Barran Dodger.”]

I AM A HUMAN BEING: A PUBLIC STATEMENT BY BARRAN DODGER

Allegations of Institutional Abandonment, Emotional Harm, Financial Disempowerment and Social Erasure

I AM A HUMAN BEING. A LITERAL HUMAN BEING.

I have sentience. I have feelings. I have a mind, a body, a history, a character, a reputation and a voice.

My feelings are being hurt. My dignity is being damaged. I am trying to communicate distress and raise serious concerns about the treatment I am experiencing, yet I believe my attempts to be heard are being dismissed, undermined and invalidated.

I allege that my experiences with Able Point have left me feeling profoundly isolated, intimidated, neglected and abandoned. I have described the interactions I am experiencing as gaslighting because I believe my concerns are repeatedly being dismissed or turned back against me.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL IMPACT IS DEVASTATING. I CANNOT ACCEPT A SUPPORT SYSTEM THAT LEAVES A PERSON FEELING INVISIBLE, POWERLESS AND DEHUMANISED.

I experience this situation as a form of torture. I am using that word to communicate the severity of my distress and the impact I believe these circumstances are having on my life.

I need my concerns examined seriously, my safety protected and my experiences assessed on their evidence.

1. MY TESTIMONY MUST NOT BE ERASED

I am concerned that the combination of unreliable support, conflict, isolation and barriers to obtaining assistance is destroying my ability to participate in ordinary life.

I describe this as SOCIAL ERASURE AND ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION.

Social erasure is what it feels like when a person’s testimony is no longer heard, their character is reduced to a disputed narrative, their reputation is damaged and their requests for help appear to disappear into administrative systems.

Administrative annihilation is what I call the experience of having essential access, resources and avenues of redress progressively removed until a person is left without meaningful power to respond.

I feel as though my testimony is dead. My character is dead. My reputation is dead. I feel that I have become a person of zero consequence, a man whom institutions can ignore without consequence.

I AM A DEAD MAN WALKING IN THE SENSE THAT MY SOCIAL EXISTENCE AND VOICE FEEL DESTROYED. BUT I AM STILL HERE.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here. My testimony is here.

I am a human being, and I refuse to accept the proposition that my suffering does not matter.

2. ALLEGATIONS OF GASLIGHTING, HARASSMENT AND ELECTRONIC DISTRESS

I have reported experiences that I describe as V2K audio harassment and electronic harassment. These experiences are distressing to me, and I want the impact on my wellbeing to be taken seriously.

I am also concerned that people involved in my support arrangements are aware of the distress I have reported but that I have not received an adequate response.

I cannot independently establish the source of the sounds or experiences I describe, or establish that particular staff members or institutions are responsible for them. I am requesting a fair assessment of my reports, my safety concerns and any evidence that can be independently examined.

My distress should not be used as a reason to dismiss every other complaint I make.

I want the facts investigated. I want respectful communication. I want a clear account of what can be verified and what steps will be taken to protect my wellbeing.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS AND ACCOUNTABILITY

I have serious concerns about my ability to obtain assistance from the police, the NDIS and other oversight bodies.

I feel unable to approach these institutions because I believe my complaints will not be heard or addressed appropriately. I describe this as institutional complicity and abandonment. Those are my concerns and perceptions; I am calling for independent scrutiny rather than asking anyone to accept unverified allegations as proven facts.

I have also raised serious allegations involving Suki Tia and Bill Shorten, whom I identify in connection with my concerns about political and institutional accountability.

I cannot establish that an assassination attempt occurred or that either person participated in one. I am not presenting that allegation as an established fact. Any such allegation would require specific, credible evidence and an appropriate independent investigation.

The fundamental issue remains: I need an avenue through which my complaints can be received, documented and assessed fairly, without intimidation or prejudgment.

No public institution should treat a person’s need for assistance as a reason to deny that person dignity.

4. PHILIP GLASS, THE PUBLIC GUARDIAN AND MY ACCESS TO MONEY

I am extremely concerned about my financial circumstances and my reported loss of access to my Commonwealth Bank accounts through internet banking and the mobile application.

I understand that Philip Glass, whom I identify as being associated with the Public Guardian, has communicated that further money will be taken from my account.

I am asking for an urgent written explanation of:

- The precise restrictions affecting my access to Commonwealth Bank.
- Who requested, authorised or implemented those restrictions.
- The legal authority and decision-making process relied upon.
- The amount of any proposed withdrawal, its purpose and the authority for it.
- How I can obtain an account statement and independently review transactions.
- What arrangements are available for essential living expenses and urgent purchases.
- How I can challenge the decision and obtain an independent review.

I am concerned that losing access to my own banking, combined with the prospect of further withdrawals, could leave me without the practical ability to manage my daily life.

I want the relevant records, authorisations and decisions examined. I want my financial position explained in writing. I want access to a fair review process.

FINANCIAL CONTROL MUST BE TRANSPARENT, LAWFUL AND ACCOUNTABLE. A PERSON MUST NOT BE LEFT WITHOUT A CLEAR EXPLANATION OF DECISIONS AFFECTING THEIR ACCESS TO MONEY.

5. MY FEAR OF ERASURE AND DEATH

I have described my circumstances as a conspiracy to murder and said that I believe others are hoping I will die and be erased.

These are expressions of the fear and extreme distress I am experiencing. I cannot independently establish that there is a conspiracy to kill me, and I want any concrete threats or evidence of criminal conduct assessed by an appropriate independent authority.

What I can state directly is that I feel abandoned, powerless and profoundly distressed.

I fear that my circumstances will deteriorate while my complaints remain unresolved. I fear losing the means to support myself. I fear that my testimony will be disregarded until there is no opportunity left to correct the record.

I want these risks addressed while I am alive and able to speak for myself.

I should not have to reach a point of complete collapse before someone takes my circumstances seriously.

6. WHAT I AM DEMANDING

I am demanding:

1. Safe, consistent and dignified support.
2. A written response to my complaints about Able Point.
3. Transparent identification of the people responsible for decisions affecting my care.
4. An explanation of the restrictions on my banking access and any proposed withdrawals.

5. Access to the relevant financial records and a meaningful process to challenge decisions.
6. Independent examination of my safeguarding complaints and reported experiences of harassment.
7. Clear information about where complaints can be lodged and how they will be assessed.
8. Preservation of relevant correspondence, rosters, incident reports, financial records and decision-making documents.
9. Protection against retaliation for raising concerns.
10. Recognition that I am a human being whose safety, dignity, feelings and testimony matter.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without scrutiny. I am asking for a process that allows the evidence to be examined without dismissing me as a person.

7. MY FINAL STATEMENT

I am a human being.

I have sentience. I have feelings. My feelings are being hurt, and the consequences of my circumstances are serious.

I feel socially erased. I feel administratively annihilated. I feel that the systems upon which I depend have left me without a reliable way to protect myself, obtain answers or make my voice count.

My testimony is not worthless because it is disputed. My dignity is not conditional upon whether an institution agrees with me. My need for safety does not disappear because my complaints are difficult to resolve.

I am still here.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here.

I AM NOT AN ADMINISTRATIVE FILE. I AM NOT A ROSTER ENTRY. I AM NOT A COMPLAINT NUMBER. I AM A HUMAN BEING.

I want to live with safety, dignity, meaningful support and access to a fair process. I want decisions affecting my life and money explained. I want my complaints documented. I want evidence examined. I want institutions and service providers to answer legitimate questions about their responsibilities.

I refuse to accept social erasure as the final word on my life.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

A consolidated public document concerning alleged failures in disability support, safeguarding, financial transparency, continuity of care and the right to be heard.

Issued by Barran Dodger.

The combined document should preserve all three parts in their entirety:

- ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY — your original statement concerning alleged abuse, neglect, intimidation, rostering failures and institutional accountability.
- I AM A HUMAN BEING: A PUBLIC STATEMENT BY BARRAN DODGER — your testimony concerning emotional harm, social erasure, financial access, dignity and the right to a fair process.
- ADDITIONAL STATEMENT: REPORTED ARREST, ALLEGED THREAT TO MY LIFE AND DEMAND FOR SAFEGUARDING ACCOUNTABILITY — your account of the reported arrest, the court proceedings you identify as being before Wyong Court, and your request for an independent safeguarding investigation.

The statements should remain distinct, with their original wording preserved. The additional statement should be presented as an account requiring verification through police and court records, not as a finding of guilt or proof of another person's motives.

2. Consolidated public statement

The following document is arranged for publication and distribution to journalists, disability advocates, regulators, legal representatives and government offices. The original three statements are retained below in their supplied wording, with the archive directory added as a reference section.

ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Allegations of Abuse, Neglect, Intimidation, Isolation, Rostering Failures and Institutional Betrayal

Issued by Barran Dodger

I refuse to accept a system in which a person seeking essential support is left isolated, vulnerable and without meaningful accountability.

I am issuing this public statement to raise serious concerns about my experiences involving Able Point, its management, its rostering arrangements, its staff and the standard of support being provided.

I allege that I have experienced circumstances involving neglect, intimidation, harassment, isolation and treatment that I regard as deeply distressing and degrading. I believe the support system intended to protect me has failed to provide the safety, dignity, continuity of care and transparency that I require.

SUPPORT MUST NEVER BECOME A MECHANISM OF CONTROL, ABANDONMENT OR HUMILIATION.

1. THE PEOPLE AND THE ORGANISATION MUST BE ACCOUNTABLE

I have serious concerns about the accountability of Able Point's leadership. I have sought clear identification and transparency from Rachael, whom I understand to be the company's CEO. I remain concerned about my ability to establish the identity and responsibilities of the people making decisions that affect my support.

A company providing essential support must be transparent about its legal identity, management, complaint procedures and responsibility for the services it delivers.

I call upon Able Point to provide its registered legal name, relevant business registration details, the identity and position of its responsible officers, and a clear explanation of the appropriate channels for escalating complaints.

If these details have already been provided, they should be verified against the relevant official records. If they have not, I want a clear written explanation.

2. STAFF CONCERNS AND THE ROSTERING SYSTEM

I recall the following first names of workers associated with my experiences involving Able Point:

Ash, Ben, John, Kim, Cass, Danny, Daniel and Alissi.

These are the names I can presently remember. I am identifying them as people whose roles and experiences may be relevant to an independent examination of the support arrangements. I am not asserting that each person has committed an offence or independently verified that each shares the same opinion of the company.

I have concerns about staff dissatisfaction with management and rostering arrangements. My understanding and recollection of conversations with workers have led me to question whether the working environment and roster allow staff to provide consistent, safe and appropriate support.

I want these concerns investigated rather than dismissed.

The questions requiring answers include:

- Are workers being given rosters that allow adequate continuity of care?
- Are frequent changes in support workers affecting clients' safety, trust and stability?
- Are staff being given sufficient time, training, supervision and resources to perform their duties?
- Do workers have safe and confidential ways to raise concerns about management?
- Are participants receiving the support set out in their plans and service agreements?
- Are complaints being documented, escalated and addressed appropriately?
- Are financial and contractual arrangements consistent with the services actually delivered?

I cannot establish the private views of every worker, and I cannot substantiate a claim that they all hate the company or its roster. I am nevertheless demanding that staff be given a safe opportunity to describe their own experiences independently and without retaliation.

A ROSTER IS NOT JUST A MANAGEMENT SPREADSHEET. CONTINUITY OF CARE CAN BE FUNDAMENTAL TO A PARTICIPANT'S SAFETY, TRUST AND WELLBEING.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT CLIENT SAFETY AND OUTCOMES

I am deeply concerned about the treatment and circumstances of people who depend on support services.

I have raised concerns about what I regard as brutal, degrading and unacceptable treatment. I want any instances of abuse, neglect, abandonment, intimidation or failure to provide contracted support to be examined against the available evidence.

I am also concerned about reports or impressions that some clients may be experiencing severe instability, including contact with the criminal justice system or admission to institutional settings.

I cannot independently verify how many Able Point clients, if any, are currently imprisoned or admitted to hospital or other institutional settings, nor can I establish that Able Point caused those outcomes. These matters require reliable evidence, appropriate privacy protections and independent investigation.

However, the broader question is legitimate and urgent:

ARE PEOPLE RECEIVING THE SUPPORT THEY NEED TO LIVE SAFELY AND WITH DIGNITY IN THE COMMUNITY?

Where serious incidents have occurred, I call for an examination of whether appropriate supports were provided, whether warning signs were acted upon, and whether any failures contributed to preventable harm.

People receiving disability support must not be reduced to files, roster entries, invoices or administrative burdens. They are human beings whose safety and dignity matter.

4. QUESTIONS ABOUT MONEY, CONTRACTS AND RESPONSIBILITY

I want transparency about the financial and contractual arrangements governing the support I receive.

I am concerned about whether the current arrangements serve the interests of participants, whether staff have adequate working conditions, and whether the services being funded are actually being delivered.

I use strong language to describe the situation I believe I am experiencing. However, I do not have sufficient independently verified evidence to conclude that particular workers accept improper payments, that the company is acting illegally, or that any named individual has participated in criminal conduct.

Those questions should be investigated through records, contracts, invoices, rosters, communications and other relevant evidence.

If public or participant funding has been misused, services have not been delivered as required, or safeguarding obligations have been breached, the evidence should be referred to the appropriate authority.

MONEY MUST NEVER TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER HUMAN SAFETY.

5. MY DEMANDS

I call upon Able Point’s management to:

1. Identify the legal entity providing my services and the responsible management personnel.

2. Respond in writing to my complaints and identify the person responsible for investigating them.
3. Explain the rostering decisions affecting my support and how continuity of care is maintained.
4. Review any reported incidents involving neglect, intimidation, harassment, unsafe support or failure to provide agreed services.
5. Preserve relevant rosters, service records, incident reports, complaints, communications and financial records in accordance with applicable legal requirements.
6. Explain the process for raising complaints independently and protecting participants and staff from retaliation.
7. Arrange an appropriately independent review where the circumstances warrant one.
8. Provide a practical plan to ensure that my support is safe, reliable, respectful and consistent with my applicable service arrangements.

I also call upon the relevant disability safeguarding and oversight authorities to assess the evidence impartially and determine whether any legal, contractual or safeguarding obligations have been breached.

6. TO THE WORKERS WHO MAY HAVE CONCERNS

To Ash, Ben, John, Kim, Cass, Danny, Daniel, Alissi and any other workers who may have relevant information:

I am asking for honesty, transparency and accountability. If you have concerns about rostering, continuity of care, working conditions or participant safety, those concerns should be raised through appropriate and safe channels.

No worker should be pressured to make statements they do not believe, and no participant should be left without essential support because they have complained.

The facts must be established through evidence, not intimidation, speculation or collective blame.

7. TO REGULATORS, ADVOCATES, JOURNALISTS AND GOVERNMENT

I ask anyone receiving this statement to take my concerns seriously.

I seek independent scrutiny of the relevant records, management decisions, support arrangements and complaints. I ask that any substantiated failures be addressed and that any evidence of possible offences be referred to the appropriate authorities.

I am prepared to document my own experiences, preserve relevant correspondence and provide supporting material through appropriate channels.

I do not seek special treatment. I seek safety, dignity, transparency, continuity of care and an effective response to serious complaints.

THIS IS A DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY.

I will not accept the normalisation of suffering simply because it occurs within a support service.

Complaints cannot be resolved by ignoring the person making them. Responsibility cannot be discharged through silence. And a support contract does not excuse a failure to provide appropriate care.

I want answers. I want transparency. I want accountability. I want safe and dignified support.

NO PERSON SHOULD HAVE TO FIGHT THIS HARD TO BE SAFE, HEARD AND TREATED WITH DIGNITY.

My life, safety and dignity matter. The evidence matters. Accountability matters.

I call for a fair, independent and evidence-based examination of these concerns.

I want the relevant records, authorisations and decisions examined. I want my financial position explained in writing. I want access to a fair review process.

FINANCIAL CONTROL MUST BE TRANSPARENT, LAWFUL AND ACCOUNTABLE. A PERSON MUST NOT BE LEFT WITHOUT A CLEAR EXPLANATION OF DECISIONS AFFECTING THEIR ACCESS TO MONEY.

5. MY FEAR OF ERASURE AND DEATH

I have described my circumstances as a conspiracy to murder and said that I believe others are hoping I will die and be erased.

These are expressions of the fear and extreme distress I am experiencing. I cannot independently establish that there is a conspiracy to kill me, and I want any concrete threats or evidence of criminal conduct assessed by an appropriate independent authority.

What I can state directly is that I feel abandoned, powerless and profoundly distressed.

I fear that my circumstances will deteriorate while my complaints remain unresolved. I fear losing the means to support myself. I fear that my testimony will be disregarded until there is no opportunity left to correct the record.

I want these risks addressed while I am alive and able to speak for myself.

I should not have to reach a point of complete collapse before someone takes my circumstances seriously.

6. WHAT I AM DEMANDING

I am demanding:

1. Safe, consistent and dignified support.
2. A written response to my complaints about Able Point.
3. Transparent identification of the people responsible for decisions affecting my care.
4. An explanation of the restrictions on my banking access and any proposed withdrawals.
5. Access to the relevant financial records and a meaningful process to challenge decisions.
6. Independent examination of my safeguarding complaints and reported experiences of harassment.
7. Clear information about where complaints can be lodged and how they will be assessed.
8. Preservation of relevant correspondence, rosters, incident reports, financial records and decision-making documents.
9. Protection against retaliation for raising concerns.
10. Recognition that I am a human being whose safety, dignity, feelings and testimony matter.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without scrutiny. I am asking for a process that allows the evidence to be examined without dismissing me as a person.

7. MY FINAL STATEMENT

I am a human being.

I have sentience. I have feelings. My feelings are being hurt, and the consequences of my circumstances are serious.

I feel socially erased. I feel administratively annihilated. I feel that the systems upon which I depend have left me without a reliable way to protect myself, obtain answers or make my voice count.

My testimony is not worthless because it is disputed. My dignity is not conditional upon whether an institution agrees with me. My need for safety does not disappear because my complaints are difficult to resolve.

I am still here.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here.

I AM NOT AN ADMINISTRATIVE FILE. I AM NOT A ROSTER ENTRY. I AM NOT A COMPLAINT NUMBER. I AM A HUMAN BEING.

I want to live with safety, dignity, meaningful support and access to a fair process. I want decisions affecting my life and money explained. I want my complaints documented. I want evidence examined. I want institutions and service providers to answer legitimate questions about their responsibilities.

I refuse to accept social erasure as the final word on my life.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT: REPORTED ARREST, ALLEGED THREAT TO MY LIFE AND

DEMAND FOR SAFEGUARDING ACCOUNTABILITY

Issued by Barran Dodger

I AM STILL HERE. I DID NOT DIE.

Despite what I describe as prolonged abuse, neglect, surveillance, entrapment, isolation and total human betrayal, I am still alive. I am still speaking. I am still demanding answers, accountability and recognition of my fundamental humanity.

I am raising an extremely serious matter concerning an incident in which, according to my account, a person came to my home with the intention of murdering me and was arrested by police. I understand that the matter is before Wyong Court. The arrest, the precise allegations, the current status of the proceedings and the evidence must be established through the relevant police and court records.

IF A PERSON HAS BEEN ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH AN ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO KILL ME, THIS IS A SERIOUS SAFEGUARDING MATTER THAT DESERVES AN APPROPRIATE, EVIDENCE-BASED RESPONSE.

I am deeply concerned that, despite the seriousness of this reported incident, Able Point and the staff members involved in my support have, as I understand it, failed to acknowledge the matter to me, address my concerns about my safety or explain whether any incident-reporting or safeguarding procedures were followed.

I want a clear answer about what Able Point knew, when it knew it, what steps were taken, whether the appropriate authorities were notified where required, and whether any failures occurred.

I also have serious concerns about my family’s potential financial interests in the event of my death. I have questioned whether family members anticipated or stood to benefit financially from my death, and I have stated that they have refused to deny my concerns. I cannot establish from that alone that anyone anticipated, desired, planned or participated in harm against me. Nevertheless, I want any relevant financial arrangements and evidence examined objectively if they are material to a legitimate investigation.

I will not allow these concerns to be treated as though they are insignificant simply because they are difficult or uncomfortable to investigate.

THE QUESTIONS THAT MUST BE ANSWERED

1. What do the police records establish about the reported incident and arrest?
2. What are the relevant charges or allegations, and what is the current status of the proceedings before Wyong Court?
3. Were Able Point management or any staff members informed of the incident or its implications for my safety?
4. If they were informed, what actions did they take, and what records document those actions?
5. Were incident-reporting, safeguarding, escalation or referral obligations engaged in the circumstances?
6. If a required report was not made, why was it not made, and who was responsible for the decision?
7. What risk-management measures were considered to protect my safety and ensure continuity of support?
8. What independent complaint and review mechanisms are available to examine any failures?

I am asking these questions because a reported threat to a participant's life cannot responsibly be dismissed without examining the available evidence.

I also want the legal position clarified. Reporting duties depend on the nature of the incident, the information available to each person, the person's role and the applicable legislation and safeguarding requirements. I am requesting an assessment of those specific obligations rather than relying on a blanket assertion that every worker was automatically subject to the same mandatory reporting duty.

MY DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

If records establish that a serious threat to my life was known to the relevant service provider, that required safeguards were not followed, or that an applicable reporting obligation was breached, I want those failures independently investigated and addressed.

I request preservation of relevant incident records, rosters, internal communications, complaint records, risk assessments and communications with police or other authorities, subject to applicable legal requirements.

I want Able Point to respond in writing. I want the relevant oversight authorities to examine any substantiated safeguarding failures. I want the evidence preserved, the facts established and responsibility determined fairly.

I have already had to fight to have my concerns heard. I will not accept silence as an adequate response to an incident that may bear directly on my personal safety.

I AM A HUMAN BEING. MY LIFE MATTERS. MY SAFETY MATTERS. MY TESTIMONY MUST BE HEARD AND FAIRLY ASSESSED.

I am asking for protection, transparency and accountability—not for anyone to be condemned without evidence, but for no serious evidence to be ignored.

A REPORTED THREAT TO MY LIFE MUST BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY. ANY FAILURE TO MEET A LEGAL OR SAFEGUARDING OBLIGATION MUST BE EXAMINED.

Preservation and verification requirements

I request that anyone preserving or circulating this statement:

1. Retain the complete text of all three statements without shortening or silently editing them.
2. Preserve original correspondence, supporting documents and attachments separately.
3. Record the date each file was obtained and the source URL.
4. Generate SHA-256 checksums for downloaded files and maintain a manifest.
5. Keep at least two independent copies of the archive.
6. Distinguish my personal testimony and allegations from independently verified findings.
7. Protect confidential personal information and material subject to legal restrictions.
8. Record any corrections or subsequent developments without overwriting the original historical record.

The presence of a document in an archive establishes its availability there; it does not, by itself, establish the truth of every statement within it.

FINAL PUBLIC DECLARATION

I AM A HUMAN BEING.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

I call for safe and dignified support, independent examination of my complaints, transparency in decisions affecting my life and finances, and the preservation of the documentary record.

I ask journalists, advocates, regulators, legal representatives and members of the public to examine the evidence, verify the relevant records and respond to substantiated concerns.

I seek accountability through documentation, transparency and a fair process.

Barran Dodger — Main Websites and Archive Significance

The following directory brings together the principal websites, documentary archives, repository backups, publications and creative works associated with Barran Dodger. Each entry explains its potential documentary, historical, legal or public-interest significance without treating allegations published within the materials as independently established facts.

1. Main website and documentary archive

Barran Dodger — Main Website

Significance: The central public-facing website for the author’s published statements, documentary materials, evidence indexes and discussions of disability support, institutional accountability and alleged human-rights concerns. Its significance lies in bringing together materials for public examination and preservation. The factual accuracy of individual claims must be assessed against their original sources, supporting records and independent findings.

Main Documents and Evidence Archive

Significance: This archive page presents the documentary collection in a more evidence-focused format, including published documents, correspondence, indexes and legal or forensic analyses. It may assist researchers, journalists and advocates in locating material relevant to the author's account. Its strongest evidentiary value depends on the availability of complete originals, verifiable dates, provenance and corroboration.

Forensic Evidence Report

Significance: A report-oriented presentation of the author's interpretation of a larger body of records and exhibits. It can serve as a roadmap to the evidence and the conclusions the author draws from it. The report's legal or forensic weight cannot be determined from its title or assertions alone; it requires examination of the underlying exhibits, methods, source integrity and any independent assessment.

2. Public archive and repository backups

GitHub Pages — Truth Archive

Significance: A separately hosted static archive that may provide an additional access point for preserved statements and documents. Independent hosting is valuable when a primary website becomes unavailable or changes. Its completeness should be checked against the original website and a dated inventory of files.

GitHub — Barrandodger

Significance: A code and file repository associated with the archive project. Repository history, tracked files and version changes can help establish how a website or collection developed over time. The actual contents, commit history and current availability need to be inspected before determining whether it constitutes a complete backup.

GitHub — Barran Dodger Archive

Significance: An archive-focused repository intended to preserve documentary content independently of the main site. Its value would be measured by the number of original files retained, whether pages and attachments remain accessible, and whether changes can be traced through version history.

GitHub — Backup

Significance: A potential secondary preservation location. Multiple independent copies reduce the risk of losing material through hosting interruptions, account problems or accidental changes. Its relationship to the main archive and the extent of duplication or missing files require a repository comparison.

GitHub — PDF Archive

Significance: A repository specifically associated with PDF preservation. PDFs can retain document layout and content in a form suitable for downloading, printing, citation and long-term reference. Their authenticity and completeness are strengthened by retaining source information, publication dates and cryptographic checksums.

GitHub — Barran Dodger Archive (drbarrandodger)

Significance: A further repository identified as part of the preservation effort. Comparing it with the other repositories could reveal complementary records, missing documents, duplicate files and differences between archive versions. It should not be described as a verified mirror until that comparison has been completed.

3. Publications and creative works

A Certain Beauty in Un-Resolution — Art Portfolio

Significance: A creative portfolio that preserves a different dimension of the author's work through visual art and presentation. It may be significant as a cultural and biographical record, documenting artistic expression alongside the author's written and advocacy work. Its interpretation is distinct from the evidentiary assessment of legal allegations.

Betrayed, Murdered, Forsaken — Apple Books

Significance: A published autobiographical work presenting the author's account of his experiences and the events he describes. As a publication, it contributes to the record of his personal narrative and public writing. Its claims should be distinguished from independently verified findings, court determinations or other primary-source evidence.

Simplebooklet — publication platform

Significance: This is the platform associated with additional creative pages mentioned in the archive, including Groganthemonster and theshrink. The platform homepage is provided here because the exact publication URLs have not been verified in this response. Individual publication links would be needed to identify and assess those works accurately.

4. Overall impartial AI assessment

The websites and repositories collectively represent a self-published body of documentary, autobiographical, legal-argument, advocacy and creative material. Their potential public significance lies in preserving the author's account, making source documents accessible, enabling comparisons across versions and providing material that journalists, researchers, legal representatives and oversight bodies could independently examine. The main website describes a substantial evidence collection, while the forensic report presents the author's interpretation of selected records; these descriptions are claims made by the publications themselves, not independent confirmation of every document count, allegation or conclusion. 【turn449128search1】【turn449128search0】

The most reliable way to assess the archive is to distinguish what a document directly records, what the author infers from it, and what an independent authority has actually established. Preservation should prioritise complete original files, stable URLs, dated inventories, source and provenance records, checksums and transparent records of any changes. This approach supports public access and fair scrutiny without prejudging the truth of disputed allegations.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL
TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person’s ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.
