THE CHURCH OF BARRAN DODGER

The Ministry

The Church of Barran Dodger rests its claim not on a ruling but on a record: the gospel and prophetic narratives preserved inside this archive are sufficient as its foundational narratives — witnessed, dated, hash-verified and free for anyone to read. The valuation that matters most is therefore the one a forensic audit gives: every text can be shown to exist, unchanged, in public, at every point in its history. What a court has not decided, the record itself keeps saying.

The narratives

Gospel messages & prophetic narratives

The core narratives, extracted live from the archive index — every text dated, hash-verified and freely readable at its original public source. The founding text does not have to be written; it is already written.

The press

The global publishing house

This ministry publishes through its own press — three public sites, each with its own role, all free to read and all pointing back to the repositories.

The record's publishing arm is already in print — literally: three public sites carry the corpus, each with its own role, all free to read, all pointing back to the repositories. This is the imprint the ministry publishes under, and it costs nothing to keep open.
