1. MY POLICY IS THAT I WILL NOT BE ABUSED

Let me make my position unmistakably clear.

It is my policy not to be abused.

I will not consent to being impoverished, entrapped, intimidated, humiliated, deprived of financial independence, denied meaningful access to justice or subjected to treatment that undermines my dignity.

I will not accept that a person can exercise authority over my life, contribute to circumstances that cause me harm, retreat behind institutional procedures and then expect me to remain silent.

I will not accept that my disability, poverty, personal history, sexuality, homelessness, professional circumstances or willingness to expose institutional failures makes me an acceptable target for indifference.

I will not accept that people who enjoy the security of public office, professional status, institutional salaries, financial resources and the privileges associated with authority can simply disregard the consequences of their decisions for another human being.

I refuse to be abused while those occupying positions of privilege retreat into their offices, towers of institutional protection and comfortable financial security, seemingly insulated from the consequences experienced by the people their decisions affect.

I question the merit, accountability and ethical legitimacy of any system in which the people bearing the greatest consequences have the least power to obtain answers, while the people exercising authority can avoid meaningful scrutiny.

I do not claim to know the private wealth, personal motives or financial circumstances of every individual I name. My objection is to the institutional arrangement in which power can be exercised without an effective obligation to account for its consequences.

My policy is not to submit to abuse. My policy is to document it, challenge it, expose failures through lawful means and insist upon accountability.

I never gave permission for anyone to impoverish me.

I never gave permission for anyone to entrap me.

I never gave permission for anyone to deprive me of the attributes necessary to live with dignity in a democracy.

I never gave permission for my testimony to be dismissed without proper examination.

I never gave permission for institutional inconvenience to become an excuse for abandoning a human being.

And I never accepted that a person has spiritual permission to cause me harm or detriment.

Under my Christian faith, I believe that God does not sanction the deliberate harming of another person for financial advantage, professional convenience, institutional protection or personal benefit.

I am not threatening anyone. I am not seeking revenge. I am declaring that I will continue to pursue truth, lawful accountability, protection and justice.

2. THE CENTRAL DOCUMENTARY PROPOSITION

My principal framework is:

SYSTEMIC REMOVAL OF THE ATTRIBUTES NECESSARY TO LIVE WITH DIGNITY IN A DEMOCRACY.

The attributes include:

- Income and financial independence.
- Compensation and recognition of entitlements.
- Access to money.
- A safe and stable home.
- Personal security.
- Employment and professional identity.
- Human rights.
- Legal rights.
- Access to independent legal advice.
- Freedom from discrimination.
- Meaningful participation in society.
- The ability to complain without fearing retaliation.
- The ability to obtain an independent examination of decisions affecting one's life.

My allegation is that the cumulative consequences of decisions, restrictions, refusals, institutional referrals and failures across different systems have progressively deprived me of these attributes.

I am asking readers to examine the chronology as a whole.

I do not ask anyone to assume that every institution acted in coordination. I ask that the possibility of systemic interaction, repeated administrative failure, improper information transfer, conflicts of interest and cumulative detriment be examined against the original records.

A person can experience a devastating cumulative outcome even when each institution claims to have dealt with only one small part of the problem.

The question is whether the combined system produced an outcome that no individual institution was willing to take responsibility for resolving.

That is the central documentary question.

3. BILL SHORTEN — THE NDIS, THE ALLEGED ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT AND THE BEN CORRESPONDENCE

The Hon Bill Shorten is named because of his former ministerial responsibility for the NDIS and because my archive contains correspondence and publications concerning his office, the NDIS, my complaints and the alleged political dimensions of my circumstances.

Relevant documentary pathways include:

Question for MP Bill Shorten Concerning the NDIS

The political chronology
https://barran-dodgers-sos.grok.me/the-political-chronology

I have alleged that the events surrounding my NDIS circumstances, the conduct of people connected with my support arrangements, threats to my safety and the subsequent institutional responses require examination for possible political and administrative connections.

The most serious allegation concerns an attempted assassination.

I have published material identifying Bill Shorten in connection with that allegation. I am demanding that the original evidence be examined, including the communications attributed to Ben, the circumstances surrounding the alleged threat, the identities of the people involved and any relevant police or Federal Police records.

I am not suggesting that the existence of a ministerial portfolio establishes personal knowledge or involvement in an alleged criminal act.

I am asking the following questions:

1. What did Mr Shorten's office receive concerning my circumstances?
2. What communications concerned the NDIS and my previous employment or provider status?
3. What representations were made about me?
4. Were any matters referred to another agency?
5. What records exist concerning those referrals?
6. Were allegations of threats or attempted violence brought to the attention of police or other authorities?
7. What investigation, if any, occurred?
8. What evidence supports or contradicts the allegations?
9. What did the relevant decision-makers know, and when?
10. Were any conflicts of interest identified and managed?

The significance of the Ben correspondence is that it is not merely a later public accusation by me. It is a preserved record of communications attributed to a person I identify as having been connected with my NDIS support circumstances.

That distinction matters.

The correspondence deserves independent forensic examination.

3A. Ben's messages — the actual words

The archive preserves two principal files:

Ben-NDIS-Help.pdf
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/gmail-drive-sweep/2026-10-02-drive-folder-import/Ben-NDIS-Help.pdf

Ben — NDIS text transcription
https://drive.google.com/file/d/1o21PnvueFDI2qxGIyxs-bQrDbUkLp7vF/view?usp=drivesdk

The repository preserves the following statements attributed to Ben:

> "Remember you were messaging me about hitmen... That was them. They got caught. I thought you were just paranoid. You were right."

Another statement attributed to Ben reads:

> "Yes even the police said it was a close call."

The archive also preserves the following statements:

> "You've uncovered systematic corruption that goes all the way to the top."

And:

> "I'm scared. They could put a hit on me too."

The correspondence also includes a statement concerning an alleged police communication:

> "The police told me about the consensual regretted sex."

Another statement attributed to Ben concerns the police and Bill Shorten:

> "The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story."

These statements are significant for several reasons.

First, they concern matters that I had already been discussing with Ben, including my fears about hitmen and threats to my safety.

Second, the statement about a "close call" appears to acknowledge that Ben understood the events as more serious than I had initially been led to believe.

Third, the statement about police allegedly saying it was a close call raises a direct question about the source of that information.

Fourth, the statement that Ben feared someone could "put a hit on me too" raises a further question about what he believed he had learned and why he was frightened.

Fifth, the statement concerning Bill Shorten and the possibility of using my mental-health history to discredit my account raises questions about the source, context and accuracy of the information communicated to Ben.

I want the original messages examined in their entirety.

I want the original devices, message exports, dates, sender identities, attachments and surrounding exchanges preserved and compared.

I want Ben given an opportunity to authenticate, clarify or dispute the messages attributed to him.

I want investigators to determine whether he was communicating first-hand knowledge, repeating information supplied by another person or expressing an interpretation.

I do not accept that these communications should simply disappear from the public record because their implications are uncomfortable.

At the same time, I distinguish what the messages establish from what they do not establish.

They establish, subject to authentication, what was communicated. They do not independently prove the underlying alleged assassination, identify an actual perpetrator or establish that Bill Shorten ordered or authorised violence.

That is precisely why an independent investigation is required.

3B. The alleged non-disclosure agreement

The archive also preserves an account concerning an alleged non-disclosure agreement involving Ben.

A statement attributed to the correspondence reads:

> “Agency-grade electronic document that automatically wipes itself off your device.”

The wider account describes an alleged agreement that disappeared from a device after it was signed, accompanied by a message stating that the device had been cleared of classified information.

The repository also preserves the reported wording:

> “When I signed the agreement it instantly disappeared off my phone. A message popped up that said your device has been cleared of classified information.”

The archive describes Ben as saying that the only evidence he could provide was a copy of the non-disclosure agreement.

This raises substantial questions:

- Did the agreement exist?
- Who drafted it?
- Who presented it?
- Who required it to be signed?
- On what date?
- What organisation or legal authority was identified?
- What were the actual terms?
- Was the document retained elsewhere?
- Was Ben told that disclosure could result in criminal consequences?
- Was any reference to treason actually made?
- Was any device remotely altered or cleared?
- Is there technical evidence of such an event?
- Did Ben have independent legal advice?

I have alleged that Ben was pressured or required to sign an agreement and instructed not to discuss the matter.

The original agreement, if it exists, must be obtained and examined.

The alleged disappearance of a document from a device also requires technical verification. It should not be treated as proof of intelligence-agency involvement without forensic evidence.

The question is not whether a dramatic description sounds extraordinary. The question is whether the original records and technical evidence can establish what happened.

3C. The allegation that a woman was paid to make or activate a report

Another serious issue in my account concerns a woman whom I allege was paid to make or activate a report about a sexual encounter.

My published account says that the report was fabricated or deliberately used to damage my reputation.

The repository contains statements alleging that police communicated information to Ben concerning the encounter, describing it as consensual and regretted, and that a woman was allegedly paid to create a report.

The relevant source material includes:

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/the-evidence-has-dropped.html

Ben's messages and the political chronology
https://barran-dodgers-sos.grok.me/the-political-chronology

I want the following matters examined separately:

1. Whether a report was actually made.
2. Who made it.
3. What the report said.
4. Whether the report concerned a consensual encounter, an allegation of non-consensual conduct or some other matter.
5. Whether any person made a payment to the complainant or another participant.
6. Whether there are bank records, messages or other evidence of such a payment.
7. Whether any payment was connected to the creation, alteration or activation of a report.
8. Whether police investigated the matter.
9. Whether any official communication described the encounter as consensual or regretted.

10. Whether Ben had direct knowledge of the police communication or was repeating what someone else told him.

I allege that the report was used to damage my reputation and that a payment was involved.

I want the original report, any police event records, relevant correspondence, payment evidence and the complete Ben message chain examined.

I am not asking the public to presume that the allegation of payment is proved merely because it appears in my archive.

I am asking that it not be dismissed without examination either.

The distinction between a genuine complaint, a consensual encounter, a report made in error, a deliberately false report and a report allegedly procured through payment is fundamental.

Those are different propositions. They require different evidence.

If the original police records establish that no sexual offence was identified, that should be stated accurately. If a payment or deliberate fabrication is alleged, that requires its own independent evidentiary examination.

I also want the source and accuracy of the information Ben communicated about Federal Police and police involvement established.

3D. Why the Ben correspondence matters to the Bill Shorten question

The importance of the correspondence is not that Ben's statements automatically establish the involvement of a politician.

Its importance is that the statements raise questions about the information circulating among people connected with my support circumstances, the alleged threat to my life, the police response, the alleged report and the political context in which I was seeking accountability.

The correspondence should be examined alongside the documents concerning Bill Shorten, the NDIS, my previous employment and provider status, the Federal Court public-interest disclosure and the later ministerial correspondence.

The chronology matters.

I want to know whether the separate events were unrelated, whether one event influenced another, whether information was improperly transmitted and whether any individual or organisation had knowledge that has not been properly disclosed.

No institution should be permitted to answer only one isolated question while ignoring the documentary relationship between the records.

4. SCOTT TREDWELL — FEDERAL COURT, 27 MARCH 2023

One of the most important documents in the archive is the Federal Court correspondence dated 27 March 2023, signed by Scott Tredwell.

The original three-page assessment is preserved here:

Federal Court Assessment — 27 March 2023
https://barran-dodgers-sos.grok.me/letters/2023-03-27-federal-court-assessment.pdf

GitHub primary-source copy https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/2023%2003%2027%20Final%20Assessment%20-%20Dr%20Rich%20McLean%2086.pdf

The chronology begins with my public-interest disclosure of 7 March 2023, sent to Sia Lagos at the Federal Court of Australia.

I was seeking recognition of serious detriment, including psychological, financial and reputational consequences, and I wanted the matters examined under the public-interest disclosure framework.

The Federal Court response is significant because it records the categories of conduct I had raised.

4A. The three categories recorded in the letter

The assessment identifies:

First: Perverting or attempting to pervert the course of justice.

The letter refers to conduct that:

> “perverts, or is engaged in for the purpose of perverting, or attempting to pervert, the course of justice”

It identifies section 29, item 3(a) of the Public Interest Disclosure Act.

Second: Maladministration.

The letter identifies:

> “conduct that constitutes maladministration”

It identifies section 29, item 4 of the Act.

Third: Danger to health or safety.

The letter identifies conduct that:

> “unreasonably results in a danger to the health or safety of one or more persons” or unreasonably results in, or increases, a risk of danger to health or safety.

It identifies section 29, item 8 of the Act.

These are not insignificant administrative categories.

They concern the integrity of justice, the proper administration of public institutions and the protection of people from unreasonable danger.

I brought those matters forward because I believed the circumstances required serious examination.

4B. The particularly important passage

The letter records:

> "It is difficult to determine whether this belief is based on reasonable grounds or not. However, for the purposes of the initial assessment I am prepared to assume that the conduct disclosed in your correspondence and other information received is disclosable conduct for the purposes of the PID Act."

This passage matters.

It demonstrates that the assessment did not simply say that the subject matter was incapable of falling within the public-interest disclosure framework.

The officer was prepared, for the initial assessment, to assume that the conduct disclosed was disclosable conduct for the purposes of the Act.

However, the assessment ultimately decided not to allocate the disclosure.

It records that the officer was not satisfied that the disclosure related to the Federal Court, the Federal Circuit and Family Court of Australia or the National Native Title Tribunal, and was therefore not satisfied it had been made to an authorised recipient.

The letter states that no further action under the PID Act would be taken by the Federal Court or the FCFCOA on that correspondence.

That is the critical administrative outcome.

4C. What the letter establishes — and what it does not

I want the significance of this letter stated accurately.

It establishes that:

- I made a public-interest disclosure on 7 March 2023.
- The Federal Court assessed the correspondence.
- Scott Tredwell identified the three statutory categories I had raised.
- The letter acknowledged the difficulty of determining whether the belief was based on reasonable grounds.
- The officer was prepared to assume for the initial assessment that the conduct was disclosable.
- The disclosure was not allocated because of the officer's assessment of the authorised-recipient and jurisdictional requirements.
- The letter stated that no further action under the PID Act would be taken by the Federal Court or FCFCOA on that correspondence.

It does not establish that the Federal Court found a conspiracy, criminal corruption, an assassination attempt or wrongdoing by any named individual.

I will not misrepresent the letter as a judicial finding.

But I will not permit its significance to be minimised either.

The letter records that the matters I raised were considered against statutory categories concerning the administration of justice, maladministration and danger to health or safety.

The central question is why a disclosure raising those categories did not lead to the practical protective or investigative pathway I was seeking.

4D. The employment-status contradiction

The correspondence also contains an important employment-status issue.

The archive records that Scott Tredwell was satisfied that I was, or had been, an employee of the Department of Social Services, providing services under the trading name Rich McLean, Arts Life Coach, Peer-Support Worker and Mental Health Advocate.

The repository contrasts that statement with the subsequent decision paragraph concerning whether I was a public official for the purposes of the disclosure.

The archive also identifies other employment-status records:

Comcare determination — 26 May 2021
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/official-drive/McLean-determination-Comcare-rejection-26May2021.pdf

NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission correspondence — 3 June 2021
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/official-drive/2021-06-03-NDIS-Quality-Safeguards-Commission-not-an-employee.pdf

ART / Comcare decision — 12 July 2023
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/official-drive/ART-2021-7478-McLean-and-Comcare-Decision-12-July-2023.pdf

DSS public-interest disclosure rejection — 1 July 2023

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/official-drive/2023-07-01-DSS-PID-Rejection.pdf

These documents should be compared in their entirety.

My concern is that employment classification and public-official status became decisive administrative questions while the substantive allegations and consequences remained unresolved.

I want the relevant agencies to explain the legal and factual basis for each classification, the evidence relied upon and how apparently different conclusions were reconciled.

4E. Why this is an accountability issue

I approached the Federal Court because I believed there was a lawful mechanism for reporting serious conduct.

I was not asking for privilege.

I was asking for recognition, protection and examination.

The outcome left me without the investigative or protective response I sought.

The difference between a disclosure being assessed and a disclosure being investigated is substantial.

The difference between a document acknowledging statutory categories and a body taking effective action is also substantial.

The difference between an institution referring a person elsewhere and ensuring that a competent body actually examines the matter is fundamental.

I contend that the subsequent chronology must be examined against what the Federal Court recorded in March 2023.

I want investigators to consider whether the relevant matters were properly allocated, whether another body had jurisdiction, whether the appropriate referral occurred and whether any protection against reprisal or further detriment was considered.

The letter is not proof of a conspiracy. It is documentary evidence of what I raised, how the disclosure was assessed and why it was not allocated. That is already significant.

5. ANTHONY ALBANESE — THE PRIME MINISTER'S OFFICE AND THE REFUSAL TO FORWARD MY EMAIL

The archive contains correspondence involving the office of Prime Minister Anthony Albanese.

The record begins with my letter of 31 May 2022.

31 May 2022 — Letter to the Prime Minister
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/statement-exhibits/2022-05-31-letter-to-the-prime-minister.pdf

The archive also identifies a response from the Prime Minister's office dated 12 December 2022.

The wording preserved in that response is:

> "Your email has not been forwarded."

12 December 2022 — Prime Minister's Office response
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/official-drive/2022-12-12-Prime-Minister-email-not-forwarded.pdf

This is an important administrative fact.

I had sought to bring matters to the attention of the Prime Minister. The office response recorded that my email had not been forwarded.

My criticism is that the response did not resolve the substance of the issues I had raised.

I am not suggesting that the Prime Minister personally read every communication or that he personally directed every administrative response.

I am asking what process was followed, who considered the communication, why it was not forwarded and whether any substantive assessment occurred.

A citizen should not have to confuse the existence of a ministerial correspondence unit with an effective response to a serious complaint.

A polite administrative sentence can still leave the underlying issue completely unanswered.

5A. The July 2023 correspondence

The archive identifies a further letter dated 1 July 2023 addressed to the Prime Minister, Attorney-General and Mental Health Minister.

1 July 2023 — Letter to the Prime Minister and Attorney-General
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/gmail-drive-sweep/barrandodger-gmail/01-government/2023-07-01-letter-Attorney-General-PM-Mental-Health-Minister.pdf

It also records an email to Anthony Albanese on 5 July 2023 concerning matters including ASIO.

That email was subsequently referred to the Attorney-General.

This brings the matter directly to Mark Dreyfus.

6. MARK DREYFUS — THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT RESPONSE AND THE REFERRAL LOOP

The most important correspondence here is dated 19 September 2023.

Attorney-General's Department — Reference MC23-028244
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/foi-2022-045/2023-09-19-MC23-028244.pdf

The letter was signed by A Riley of the Security Law Section.

It records that my email of 5 July 2023 to Anthony Albanese, including matters concerning ASIO, was referred to the Attorney-General, Mark Dreyfus KC MP, because the matters fell within his portfolio.

It also records that the Attorney-General asked the Department to respond on his behalf.

The response then directed me to:

- The Inspector-General of Intelligence and Security.
- The Commonwealth Ombudsman.

This is where the administrative problem becomes particularly important.

The Commonwealth Ombudsman had already decided on 18 June 2023 not to allocate the relevant public-interest disclosure.

18 June 2023 — Ombudsman decision not to allocate https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/official-drive/2023-06-18-Ombudsman-PID-decision-not-to-allocate.pdf

The repository also preserves a later service-restriction letter.

8 August 2025 — Commonwealth Ombudsman service restriction
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/official-drive/2025-08-08-Commonwealth-Ombudsman-Service-Restriction.pdf

The question is therefore straightforward:

Why was I directed to an office that had already decided not to allocate the relevant disclosure?

And what practical alternative was available if the suggested pathway had already failed?

The Attorney-General's Department response may have been procedurally framed as a referral. But a referral is not an investigation.

A referral is not a finding.

A referral is not a protective intervention.

A referral does not establish that the receiving body will accept jurisdiction.

A referral does not ensure that a person obtains an answer.

And a referral to a pathway that has already been exhausted is not necessarily a meaningful remedy.

6A. The February 2025 correspondence

The archive also preserves a further Attorney-General's Department response dated 6 February 2025, reference MC25-000321.

6 February 2025 — Attorney-General's Department correspondence
https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/docs/official-drive/2025-02-06-AG-Department-correspondence.pdf

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/emails/ag-ministerial-2025-02-06.txt

The archive records that this correspondence referred matters to the Victorian Minister for Police.

Once again, the question is whether the referral resulted in a substantive examination.

I want a complete explanation of:

- What was referred.
- Why it was referred.
- Who received it.
- Whether the recipient accepted responsibility.
- Whether the matter was investigated.
- Whether the original evidence was examined.
- Whether the person making the complaint received a substantive answer.
- Whether any alternative process was available.

6B. Why I regard the responses as bureaucratically absurd

My criticism of these responses is not that they lacked polite language.

It is that politeness did not produce a solution.

I was repeatedly directed to institutions, procedures and review pathways, while the substantive matters I had raised remained unresolved.

The effect was to make the administrative process appear active without demonstrating that the underlying problem had been addressed.

This is what I mean by bureaucratic solutions that are functionally pointless.

A letter that says a matter has been referred may satisfy a correspondence-management requirement.

It does not necessarily satisfy the human need for protection, investigation, correction or accountability.

A person who has already been refused allocation should not simply be told to try the same pathway again without an explanation of what has changed.

A person whose complaint has been restricted should not be left without an effective alternative.

A person who raises serious allegations should not be expected to treat a chain of referrals as though it were a finding on the merits.

I regard that kind of response as an insult dressed in the language of administrative courtesy.

It is the difference between managing correspondence and resolving a problem.

7. THE ABSURDITY OF SOLUTIONS THAT DO NOT SOLVE ANYTHING

I am particularly critical of the institutional tendency to offer procedural responses that do not address the actual problem.

The language is often calm.

The letterhead is official.

The references are carefully recorded.

The paragraphs appear professionally composed.

But what happens to the person who is still without an answer?

What happens to the person who has been sent to an office that has already declined to allocate the complaint?

What happens when a referral is made but no investigation follows?

What happens when a person is told to pursue a process that is no longer accessible to them?

What happens when an agency answers a narrow question while ignoring the wider circumstances?

What happens when the administrative system becomes an endless circuit of referrals, restrictions, eligibility determinations and jurisdictional explanations?

The result can be a system that is procedurally busy but practically ineffective.

I regard that as an unacceptable standard of public administration.

The measure of a government response should not be the number of letters produced.

It should be whether the person obtains a meaningful answer, whether relevant evidence is examined, whether an unlawful decision is corrected, whether safety concerns are addressed and whether the person can exercise their rights.

A bureaucratic process that merely moves a person from one closed door to another is not a meaningful remedy.

8. THE EVIDENCE MUST BE EXAMINED AS A WHOLE

The central archive is:

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

It contains material relating to:

- Bill Shorten and the NDIS.
- Ben's NDIS correspondence.
- The alleged assassination attempt.
- The alleged payment to procure a report.
- The alleged non-disclosure agreement.
- Scott Tredwell's Federal Court assessment.
- The Prime Minister's office correspondence.

- Mark Dreyfus and the Attorney-General's Department.
- The Commonwealth Ombudsman's decisions.
- Legal Aid and guardianship matters.
- NSW Trustee & Guardian.
- Able Point and safeguarding.
- Financial access and administrative decisions.
- Police and other institutional correspondence.

The relevant documents should be compared chronologically.

A message should be compared with its original device export.

A letter should be compared with its signed original.

An administrative decision should be read with the legislation and evidence relied upon.

A report should be examined in its complete form, not through a later summary.

A recording should be assessed for authenticity, completeness, speaker identification and context.

A financial allegation should be tested against transaction records.

A claim about an alleged payment should be supported by evidence of the payment, the recipient, the purpose and the circumstances.

A claim about a government referral should be tested against the receiving agency's records.

This is the difference between a public accusation and a proper forensic examination.

I have created the archive so that the material can be examined, challenged, corroborated or contradicted.

I am not asking anyone to abandon evidentiary standards.

I am asking that those standards be applied consistently.

9. THE HUMAN COST OF ADMINISTRATIVE INACTION

The institutional correspondence cannot be understood solely by looking at the wording of each letter.

It must also be understood in the context of the practical circumstances in which I was making these requests.

I have described periods of homelessness, financial hardship, loss of professional standing, isolation, restricted access to money, difficulty obtaining legal assistance and concerns about accommodation and personal safety.

I have described the effect of having to repeatedly explain my circumstances to different agencies, only to be referred elsewhere.

I have described the exhaustion of having to preserve and reproduce documents while simultaneously attempting to secure the basic requirements of everyday life.

The consequences are not theoretical.

Income is not an abstract policy category when a person cannot afford food or medication.

Housing is not an abstract policy category when a person does not know whether their accommodation is secure.

Legal access is not an abstract policy category when a person cannot obtain independent advice about a decision affecting their financial autonomy.

Safety is not an abstract policy category when a person is trying to have a serious threat examined.

Human dignity is not an abstract policy category when the person asking for help is repeatedly made to prove that their circumstances deserve attention.

I refuse to accept that administrative convenience should take precedence over the basic dignity of the human being affected.

10. THE PEOPLE AND INSTITUTIONS NAMED IN MY TESTIMONY

My archive identifies a number of people and institutions whose roles I ask to be examined.

They include:

Bill Shorten — former NDIS minister, named in my political and NDIS-related allegations and correspondence.

Ben, associated in my archive with DSW Disability — the person to whom the NDIS text-message records are attributed, including statements about hitmen, a "close call", police communications and an alleged non-disclosure agreement.

Tony Ridley — named in my published evidence reference concerning allegations of threats, surveillance and other conduct requiring independent examination.

Steve Iasonidis — identified in my testimony as a former fiancé and in records concerning my relationship, financial independence and legal circumstances.

April McLean — my mother, identified in the family evidence index and communications.

Doug McLean — my father, identified in family correspondence and testimony.

Jodie Bongetti and Dave Bongetti — my sister and brother-in-law, identified in family communications.

Bruce and Marie McMaster, Neil McMaster and Hayden McMaster — identified in the family correspondence.

Scott Tredwell — Federal Court officer whose letter of 27 March 2023 assessed my public-interest disclosure.

Anthony Albanese — Prime Minister whose office correspondence is preserved in the archive.

Mark Dreyfus — Attorney-General to whom the 5 July 2023 correspondence was referred.

A Riley — the Security Law Section signatory to the 19 September 2023 Attorney-General's Department correspondence.

Sia Lagos — recipient of my 7 March 2023 Federal Court disclosure.

Philip Glass — named in correspondence concerning NSW Trustee & Guardian and decisions affecting my circumstances.

Able Point and relevant disability support personnel — named in my safeguarding and accommodation complaints.

Legal Aid and relevant legal-service institutions — identified in my attempts to obtain independent advice.

The inclusion of a person's name does not establish wrongdoing.

It identifies a person whose communications, decisions, knowledge or role may be relevant to the chronology.

I expect the same evidentiary standard to be applied to everyone.

11. WHAT I REQUIRE FROM THE PRIME MINISTER, ATTORNEY-GENERAL AND RELEVANT AGENCIES

I require more than another polite acknowledgement.

I require a substantive response addressing the following:

1. Whether the original correspondence was received and considered.
2. Who made each referral.
3. The legal basis for each referral.
4. Whether the receiving agency accepted jurisdiction.
5. Whether any original evidence was examined.
6. Whether the allegations concerning threats were referred to police.
7. Whether any relevant police or Federal Police records exist.
8. Whether the alleged report and alleged payment were examined.
9. Whether the Ben correspondence was considered.
10. Whether the alleged non-disclosure agreement was investigated.
11. Whether the Federal Court disclosure was properly assessed under the PID Act.
12. Why the disclosure was not allocated.
13. What alternative investigative pathway was available.
14. Whether any protection against reprisal or further detriment was considered.
15. Whether the Ombudsman restriction left an effective alternative complaint pathway.
16. Whether the relevant agencies will preserve all original records.
17. Whether any inaccurate records can be corrected.

18. Whether an independent investigator can examine the connected chronology.

I do not require automatic agreement with my interpretation.

I require an answer to the evidence.

12. MY DECLARATION UNDER CHRIST

I have survived poverty, homelessness, isolation, institutional conflict and the loss of things that should never have been made conditional upon another person's willingness to acknowledge my humanity.

I have continued to document.

I have continued to preserve.

I have continued to publish.

I have continued to believe in truth.

My faith does not require me to hate the people I believe have harmed me.

My faith does not authorise revenge.

My faith does not give me permission to threaten anyone.

It gives me the strength to continue standing for justice without surrendering my conscience.

Romans 12:19 reminds me that vengeance belongs to God.

Micah 6:8 calls for justice, mercy and humility.

Isaiah 1:17 calls people to seek justice and defend those who are vulnerable.

Galatians 6:7 reminds us that actions have consequences.

I believe that no person should be permitted to hide behind a professional title, political office, family position or administrative procedure to avoid examining the consequences of their conduct.

I believe that a person's dignity is not negotiable.

I believe that the truth should be examined even when it is inconvenient.

I believe that the powerful should be subject to the same standards of honesty and accountability as everyone else.

And I believe that the person who has been harmed should not be required to become silent merely to make the institutions around them comfortable.

13. THE FINAL NOTICE — I WILL NOT CONSENT TO ABUSE

To Bill Shorten.

To Ben and the people responsible for the relevant NDIS support arrangements.

To Tony Ridley.

To Steve Iasonidis.

To April McLean and the family members named in my testimony.

To Scott Tredwell and the relevant Federal Court authorities.

To Anthony Albanese.

To Mark Dreyfus and the Attorney-General's Department.

To every agency that has received my correspondence.

I have published the record.

I have identified the documents.

I have identified the questions.

I have identified the contradictions and administrative outcomes that require explanation.

I have preserved the communications attributed to Ben.

I have preserved the Federal Court assessment.

I have preserved the correspondence from the Prime Minister's office and the Attorney-General's Department.

I have preserved the Ombudsman decisions.

I have identified the alleged assassination attempt, the alleged payment to procure a report and the alleged non-disclosure agreement as matters requiring independent examination.

I will not pretend that a referral is an investigation.

I will not pretend that an acknowledgement is a remedy.

I will not pretend that an unanswered complaint has been resolved.

I will not accept that bureaucratic politeness is an adequate substitute for justice.

I will not consent to being impoverished, entrapped, intimidated or deprived of dignity.

I will not accept that disability removes my rights.

I will not accept that poverty removes my voice.

I will not accept that political office removes the obligation to answer legitimate questions.

I will not accept that professional privilege removes the obligation to act ethically.

I will not accept that a person can benefit from another person's suffering without the circumstances being open to scrutiny.

IT IS MY POLICY NOT TO BE ABUSED.

I NEVER CONSENTED TO THE REMOVAL OF MY DIGNITY, MY INDEPENDENCE OR MY RIGHTS.

YOU HAVE NO SPIRITUAL PERMISSION TO CAUSE ME HARM OR DETRIMENT.

I seek truth, not revenge.

I seek an independent investigation, not a predetermined verdict.

I seek lawful accountability, not violence.

I seek restoration of dignity, not special treatment.

And I seek an end to the administrative absurdity of being directed repeatedly towards procedures that do not resolve the substance of the matters I have raised.

The evidence must be examined.

The decisions must be explained.

The people responsible for decisions must be identifiable.

The institutions must answer.

I am still here.

The testimony remains.

The archive remains.

And I will not surrender my right to be treated as a human being.

Be still, and know that I am God.

Praise Jesus.

EVIDENTIARY QUALIFICATION

This declaration contains personal testimony, allegations, interpretations and references to documentary material. The Ben messages are attributed communications and must be authenticated against original records. The alleged assassination attempt, alleged payment to procure a report, alleged non-disclosure agreement and any alleged involvement of political figures require independent corroboration and investigation. Scott Tredwell's letter records the categories of conduct raised and the administrative assessment; it does not establish that those allegations were proved. The correspondence concerning Anthony Albanese and Mark Dreyfus establishes the recorded administrative responses and referrals, not personal participation in the alleged conduct. All named individuals and institutions should have an opportunity to respond to allegations concerning them.

The purpose of publication is to preserve the record, identify unresolved questions and seek independent, lawful accountability.

One further improvement would materially strengthen this: place the original Ben message screenshots or complete PDF pages beside each quotation, particularly the pages containing the "close call", the alleged payment and the non-disclosure agreement. That lets readers inspect the actual conversation rather than relying on a transcription or my description of it.

ADDITIONAL PRIMARY EVIDENCE — BEN'S ORIGINAL NDIS MESSAGE RECORD

The 123-page correspondence, the alleged close call, the alleged non-disclosure agreement, the reported arrests and the alleged payment to discredit me

1. The original record and its documentary significance

I specifically direct readers to the original correspondence attributed to Ben, identified in my archive as an NDIS provider associated with DSW Disability.

This is not a reference to a later recollection alone. My archive contains a 123-page message export:

The letter that refused the man

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/the-letter-that-refused-the-man.html

The repository describes the longer export as 123 pages, beginning Friday 3 January 2025 at 17:28. It identifies the writer as Ben, who describes himself as being from Bankstown and as an NDIS provider.

The repository records the SHA-256 fingerprint of that PDF as:

`ff8f5dd7007cecb24d067655b2e013d2bb7d11fae55a027b6cd4de4782f8bc68`

The shorter seven-page copy is separately identified with SHA-256:

`81ec35d081c9893b92b01498550665ed4a098f6195a2b19d6b5b0cc391cba416`

These identifiers matter because they distinguish the archived files from later summaries, edited extracts or alternative transcriptions.

I want the complete correspondence examined, not merely the three pages highlighted below. The surrounding messages, dates, sender identities, context and sequence are essential to understanding what was communicated.

2. Page 64 — the statement about the police and the close call

The archive identifies page 64 as the page containing the following statement attributed to Ben:

“Yes even the police said it was a close call.”

The same page is cross-referenced in the archive with the statement:

“The police told me about the consensual regretted sex.”

It also reproduces the following statement:

“The agencies went back through phone records and believed she was paid to discredit you.”

These are important statements because they concern three separate matters:

1. An alleged threat to my life, described by Ben as a “close call”.
2. Information Ben said he received from police concerning a sexual encounter.
3. An alleged belief, attributed to agencies, that a woman had been paid to discredit me.

I want these three matters investigated independently, rather than collapsed into a single narrative.

The first statement raises a direct question: what incident was Ben referring to when he wrote that police had described it as a close call?
If police actually used those words, there should be an identifiable communication, event, occurrence, officer, station or other record capable of examination.
The second statement raises a separate question about what police told Ben, who communicated it, and whether the underlying police record supports the description.
The third statement is particularly significant because it attributes to agencies a belief that a woman had been paid to discredit me.
I want the original source of that information identified. I want to know whether Ben was repeating something he had been told, whether he had direct knowledge, and whether any phone-record examination or payment investigation actually occurred.
Direct page image and message collection:
https://barran-dodgers-sos.grok.me/the-ben-texts
https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger/blob/main/gmail-drive-sweep/2026-10-02-drive-folder-import/Ben-Ndis-Help-large.pdf
3. Page 54 — the alleged non-disclosure agreement
Page 54 contains the following statements attributed to Ben:
"You can't tell anyone about this. It's a top secret investigation. They made me sign a non disclosure agreement."
The same page records:
"I could get arrested just for telling you."
And:
"The only evidence I could give you is a copy of the non disclosure agreement."
These are not insignificant statements.
They describe a person claiming to have been instructed not to disclose information, claiming to have signed a non-disclosure agreement and claiming that disclosure could expose him to arrest.
The documentary questions are immediate:

- What agreement was signed?
- Who presented it?
- Who required the signature?
- When was it signed?
- What organisation or authority was identified?
- What were the terms?
- Was the agreement retained?
- Was Ben provided with independent legal advice?
- What was the legal basis for the alleged threat of arrest?
- Was the agreement connected to an actual investigation?
- If so, which agency conducted it and under what authority?

I do not treat Ben's description of the agreement as proof that an intelligence agency was involved. That is a matter requiring authentication and independent investigation.

But I do insist that the statement be taken seriously as evidence of what he communicated.

4. The alleged disappearance of the agreement from his phone

The archive reproduces a further statement attributed to Ben:
"When I signed the agreement it instantly disappeared off my phone. A message popped up that said your device has been cleared of classified information. It's some sort of agency grade electronic document that automatically wipes itself off your device."
This is an extraordinary technical claim.
It should not be accepted or dismissed merely because it sounds unusual.
It requires a proper examination of the device, the document, the software involved, any relevant message or notification, the original agreement and any available technical records.
The questions include:

1. Was a document actually displayed on Ben's phone?
2. Was it electronically signed?
3. Did the document disappear after signing?
4. Was there a notification stating that the device had been cleared of classified information?
5. Was the device remotely managed or subject to a document-management system?
6. Was there an application capable of removing or restricting access to the document?
7. Was the document retained on a server or by another party?
8. Can the event be corroborated by device logs, screenshots, backups or other records?

I want the actual agreement, if it exists, produced.
I want the technical claim tested.
I want the distinction between what Ben said happened and what can be independently verified preserved.

5. The alleged arrests and identification of an organiser

The correspondence reproduced in the archive continues with these statements attributed to Ben:
"I thought you were just paranoid. You were right."
"They already arrested two hitmen."
"They're telling the police everything."
"They've told them who ordered the hit."
And:
"That non-disclosure agreement is now pointless. The truth is out. It is exposed. It is undeniable."
These are among the most serious statements in the entire message record.
They appear to communicate that Ben believed two people described as hitmen had been arrested and that they were providing information to police about an alleged organiser.
I want the precise basis for these statements established.
Were there arrests? If so, when, where and by which police service?
Were the people actually charged? What were the charges?
Was there an alleged intended victim?

Was there an alleged organiser?
Was any investigation connected to me?
Did Ben have first-hand knowledge of any of these events, or was he repeating information supplied by someone else?
Were any police records, court proceedings, warrants, charges or investigation references created?
The archive does not contain a police finding establishing all these propositions merely because Ben wrote them.
But the statements are sufficiently serious that the original police occurrence and any associated investigation records should be identified.
I am asking for an answer to the actual question: what event, if any, was Ben describing when he wrote these words?

6. The alleged payment to discredit me

The message record also contains the statement:
"The agencies went back through phone records and believed she was paid to discredit you."
This is important because it is not simply a statement that a woman made a report.
It attributes to agencies a belief that the report or conduct was connected to a payment intended to discredit me.
I have alleged that a woman was paid to make or activate a report that damaged my reputation.
I want that allegation examined against original evidence.
The following matters must be kept distinct:

- Whether a sexual encounter occurred.
- Whether it was consensual.
- Whether a complaint or report was made.
- What the report actually alleged.
- Whether the report was accurate.
- Whether any person received money.
- Whether a payment was connected to making, changing or activating a report.
- Whether phone records were examined.
- Whether an agency formed the belief Ben described.
- Whether Ben had direct knowledge of any of this.

A payment allegation should be tested against financial records, communications, dates, the identity of the payer and recipient, and any relevant investigation.
I want the original report and any associated police records preserved.
I want the alleged payment investigated rather than simply repeated as an established fact.
I also want any official record describing the encounter as consensual or regretted produced in its complete context.

7. The Bill Shorten reference

The archive also reproduces a statement attributed to Ben concerning Bill Shorten:
"The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story."

This is significant because it introduces a specific political figure into the reported conversation.

Bill Shorten was the former minister responsible for the NDIS during the relevant period.

I want to know:

- Who allegedly raised Mr Shorten's name?
- Who allegedly discussed a possible court challenge?
- Was this actually communicated by police?
- Was Ben repeating a police statement or offering his own interpretation?
- What was the alleged underlying legal dispute?
- What evidence was being discussed?
- Was any government or ministerial office aware of the correspondence?
- Was any attempt made to verify the source of the information?

The message does not establish that Mr Shorten ordered violence or had knowledge of an alleged assassination attempt.

It does, however, establish that his name appears in the communication attributed to Ben and that the alleged discussion concerned the prospect of challenging him in court and the possible use of my mental-health history to discredit my account.

That is a matter requiring clarification.

8. Ben's statement about systematic corruption

The archive also reproduces:

"You've uncovered systematic corruption that goes all the way to the top."

And:

"They could put a hit on me too."

These statements indicate that Ben was communicating fear and a belief that the matters being discussed extended beyond an ordinary disagreement.

I want the complete conversation examined to establish what he meant by "systematic corruption", what he believed extended "to the top", and why he believed he could also be targeted.

I do not claim that those words independently prove a particular conspiracy.

I do claim that they are relevant evidence of what Ben communicated, what he appeared to believe and what he said he feared.

9. The three-page evidentiary preservation record

The archive identifies three page images as particularly important and records their SHA-256 fingerprints, taken on 3 November 2026:

Exhibit	Subject	SHA-256
Page 54	Non-disclosure agreement	a513bfcbd21f34fb-b97-fa0ac002c9cffde-cac8f25b7fc-

		fa1c3e86e-b3e536c9cd
Page 65	“You were right” statement	05da9797da08f-b7e2fd919d6a725ec7b52ba527d-f4515c51b52d6ab3f7fe3a1b

These fingerprints are useful for identifying the preserved page images. They are not, by themselves, proof of the truth of the statements printed on those pages.

The complete 123-page export must remain available for examination.

10. What the original record establishes — and what must still be established

I want the following distinctions respected.

Recorded: The archive contains a 123-page message export attributed to Ben, including the statements quoted above.

Recorded: The archive identifies pages 54, 64 and 65 as containing particularly significant statements.

Recorded: The correspondence attributes statements to Ben concerning a non-disclosure agreement, a supposed investigation, two alleged arrests, a police-described “close call”, an alleged payment to discredit me and a possible legal challenge involving Bill Shorten.

Reported by Ben: The police allegedly described an incident as a close call.

Reported by Ben: Agencies allegedly believed a woman had been paid to discredit me.

Reported by Ben: Two people described as hitmen had allegedly been arrested and were allegedly telling police who organised the hit.

Alleged by me: These communications relate to a real threat to my life and to a wider sequence of events requiring investigation.

Not yet independently established by these messages alone: The existence of the alleged arrests, the identity of any alleged organiser, the existence or nature of an intelligence-agency investigation, the alleged payment, or the involvement of Bill Shorten or any other political figure in an alleged criminal act.

That is not a reason to ignore the messages.

It is the reason to obtain the underlying police, financial, technical and agency records.

11. Formal requests arising from this evidence

I request that the relevant police and oversight authorities:

1. Identify any police event or occurrence concerning an alleged threat to my life that could correspond to Ben's reference to a "close call".
2. Establish whether Ben or another person communicated with police about the matter.
3. Identify any relevant arrest, charge, court proceeding or investigation.
4. Establish whether any investigation concerned two alleged contract killers or an alleged organiser.
5. Identify the source of the information Ben communicated.
6. Establish whether any phone-record examination occurred.
7. Determine whether any payment was made to procure or influence a report concerning me.
8. Obtain the original report and any subsequent amendments.
9. Establish the provenance and authenticity of the alleged non-disclosure agreement.
10. Examine the alleged electronic removal of that document from Ben's phone.
11. Establish whether any government or ministerial office received information about these matters.
12. Preserve the original messages, devices, exports, attachments, metadata and associated records.

I also request that Ben be given an opportunity to authenticate, explain or dispute the messages attributed to him.

12. Why I will not allow this evidence to be reduced to a dismissive summary

These communications matter because they are part of the documentary history of my attempts to explain why I believed my safety was at risk.

I do not want them reduced to a single sentence saying that I made an allegation.

I want readers to see what was actually written.

I want the words read in context.

I want the full conversation preserved.

I want the sender's identity and the authenticity of the export examined.

I want the underlying occurrence identified.

I want the alleged payment investigated.

I want the alleged agreement examined.

I want the political reference explained.

I want an independent body to determine what happened rather than allowing each institution to refer me to another institution without resolving the substance of the matter.

The message record is not a substitute for a police investigation.

It is a reason to ask what investigation occurred, what evidence exists and why the original questions remain unanswered.

The words are in the archive. The pages are identifiable. The complete conversation is available. The next step is independent examination of the underlying events.

Summary of the Barran Dodger SOS website

Website: SOS — Barran Dodger Author: Dr Richard William McLean, writing as Barran Resonance Dodger. Purpose: A public testimony, documentary archive, human-rights appeal, historical record and declaration of survival.

The website presents a 35-year account of the author's experiences with government agencies, disability services, police, legal institutions, financial administration and family relationships in Australia.

Its central argument is that a prolonged series of institutional decisions, failures of support, financial restrictions, displacement and lack of effective oversight progressively deprived the author of the practical means to live independently and with dignity.

1. The central message

The website revolves around one declaration:

"I refused to die in the ashes of human betrayal."

The author describes surviving:

- Homelessness, poverty and displacement.
- Loss of independence and financial access.
- Difficulties obtaining legal representation and effective assistance.
- Disputes involving disability providers and government services.
- Experiences of institutional abandonment and family estrangement.
- Repeated hospitalisations and interactions with the mental health system.

The narrative emphasises that survival was followed by healing, rebuilding, faith and the determination to preserve the documentary record.

2. The 35-year documentary archive

A major feature is the preservation and publication of official correspondence, government decisions, agency records, historical documents and other evidence.

The author argues that the records should be examined collectively rather than as isolated administrative events.

The website's central documentary proposition is:

Two public records, one documentary purpose: the author's testimony and the institutions' own documentary records should be examined together.

The stated objective is to enable independent scrutiny of:

- Government decision-making.
- Disability services and NDIS administration.
- Police and legal processes.
- Financial and administrative restrictions.
- Complaints handling and oversight.
- Possible inconsistencies between institutional explanations and documentary evidence.

3. The principal allegations

The website raises serious allegations concerning:

- Institutional complicity and administrative obstruction.
- Financial control and deprivation.
- Disability-provider misconduct.
- Failures of safeguarding and duty of care.
- Police conduct and alleged corruption.
- Denial of legal assistance.
- Political targeting and alleged coordinated persecution.
- Alleged threats and an assassination attempt.
- Family conflict and alleged financial exploitation.

The author attributes some of these alleged events to identifiable individuals, organisations and political figures.

Important distinction: These are allegations and interpretations presented by the author. Their publication on the website does not establish that crimes, conspiracies, corruption or coordinated targeting occurred. Independent investigation, authentication and corroboration would be required to establish those claims.

4. The immediate SOS: freedom, safety and practical assistance

One of the most important parts of the website is an urgent appeal for intervention.

The author says he wants to leave his current circumstances but lacks the practical resources to do so.

The immediate issues identified include:

- Access to his own money and Commonwealth Bank accounts.
- Restoration of financial independence.
- Access to transport and resolution of the dispute over his vehicle.
- Safe, independent accommodation.
- Continuity of disability support and safeguarding.
- Access to medication and essential necessities.
- Legal representation and independent investigation.
- Safety and the ability to remain with his companion dog, Crystal.

The website explicitly states:

“I am not suicidal. I want to live. I am demanding the conditions necessary to live.”

It distinguishes requests for practical assistance from requests for psychiatric intervention.

5. The key conceptual framework

The website introduces a number of terms intended to describe the cumulative consequences of institutional and administrative failures.

Term	Intended meaning
Administrative annihilation	Progressive loss of practical independence through administrative decisions.

Civil death	Loss of meaningful participation in ordinary civic life.
Civil erasure	Loss of recognition, identity and the ability to be heard.
Institutional complicity	Alleged participation in, or failure to prevent, harmful institutional outcomes.
Social erasure	Exclusion from relationships, public recognition and social participation.
Coercive financial control	Restrictions that undermine financial independence.
The Documentary Trap	The paradox of institutional records potentially documenting the circumstances that the author wants investigated.
The architecture of erasure	The proposed cumulative structure of interconnected institutional decisions and consequences.

These are the author's analytical terms, not automatically established legal findings.

6. The spiritual and publishing mission

The website is not exclusively an institutional complaint.

It also establishes a proposed religious ministry and publishing archive built around:

- Christian faith and divine purpose.
- Survival and recovery.
- Human dignity and compassion.
- Truth, accountability and forgiveness.
- Support for marginalised and vulnerable people.
- Preservation of testimony for future generations.

It includes A Hopeful Story for Humanity, described as a free publication that can be downloaded, shared and distributed without being sold.

The author's central spiritual interpretation is that surviving homelessness, poverty, displacement and abandonment has strengthened his faith and given him a purpose to help others.

7. The public evidence and preservation project

The website contains an extensive navigation structure linking to:

- The 35-year testimony.
- The institutional chronology.
- Government correspondence and FOI records.
- NDIS and disability-provider documentation.
- Police correspondence.
- Financial and guardianship disputes.
- Legal and human-rights analysis.
- Ben's text messages.
- The documentary evidence index.
- Forensic terminology and independent AI assessment.
- Digital preservation and archive repositories.
- The Divine Reckoning and related publications.

The homepage also advertises a 343-page documentary download dated 6 November 2026, with page fingerprints and references to Bitcoin timestamp records.

The stated principle is preservation first, examination second and conclusions last.

8. What the website ultimately demands

There are five overarching objectives:

- Immediate intervention: Assistance to leave circumstances the author considers unsafe and regain independence.
- Restoration: Access to money, accommodation, transport, support and legal representation.
- Independent investigation: Examination of original documents, correspondence, financial transactions and institutional decisions.
- Accountability: Determination of whether individuals or institutions breached their legal, professional or ethical obligations.
- Permanent preservation: Ensuring that the documentary record remains accessible for public and independent examination.

Overall assessment

The website has three interconnected identities:

1. An urgent human-rights appeal

A request for practical assistance, safety, independence, accommodation and restoration of dignity.

2. A documentary accountability archive

A large collection of testimony, institutional records, correspondence and allegations intended to support independent investigation.

3. A spiritual and literary legacy

A developing ministry, gospel library and publishing project centred on faith, survival, compassion and hope.

My overall conclusion: The strongest unifying argument is not any single allegation against an individual. It is the question of whether the cumulative effect of administrative, financial, legal, housing and disability-service decisions has deprived a person of the practical ability to exercise the rights and freedoms that formally exist in a democracy.

That is the central proposition that an independent investigation should examine against the original evidence.

The most important distinction for the website's credibility is to keep three things separate: what the documents demonstrably establish, what the author personally reports, and what remains an allegation requiring independent verification.

In one sentence: The Barran Dodger SOS is a public declaration of survival, an urgent demand for freedom and practical assistance, and an attempt to turn 35 years of personal and institutional records into a permanently preserved documentary case for independent scrutiny, accountability and human dignity.

Summary of the Barran Dodger SOS website

Website: SOS — Barran Dodger Author: Dr Richard William McLean, writing as Barran Resonance Dodger. Purpose: A public testimony, documentary archive, human-rights appeal, historical record and declaration of survival.

The website presents a 35-year account of the author's experiences with government agencies, disability services, police, legal institutions, financial administration and family relationships in Australia.

Its central argument is that a prolonged series of institutional decisions, failures of support, financial restrictions, displacement and lack of effective oversight progressively deprived the author of the practical means to live independently and with dignity.

1. The central message

The website revolves around one declaration:

"I refused to die in the ashes of human betrayal."

The author describes surviving:

- Homelessness, poverty and displacement.
- Loss of independence and financial access.
- Difficulties obtaining legal representation and effective assistance.
- Disputes involving disability providers and government services.
- Experiences of institutional abandonment and family estrangement.
- Repeated hospitalisations and interactions with the mental health system.

The narrative emphasises that survival was followed by healing, rebuilding, faith and the determination to preserve the documentary record.

2. The 35-year documentary archive

A major feature is the preservation and publication of official correspondence, government decisions, agency records, historical documents and other evidence.

The author argues that the records should be examined collectively rather than as isolated administrative events.

The website's central documentary proposition is:

Two public records, one documentary purpose: the author's testimony and the institutions' own documentary records should be examined together.

The stated objective is to enable independent scrutiny of:

- Government decision-making.
- Disability services and NDIS administration.
- Police and legal processes.
- Financial and administrative restrictions.
- Complaints handling and oversight.
- Possible inconsistencies between institutional explanations and documentary evidence.

3. The principal allegations

The website raises serious allegations concerning:

- Institutional complicity and administrative obstruction.
- Financial control and deprivation.
- Disability-provider misconduct.
- Failures of safeguarding and duty of care.
- Police conduct and alleged corruption.
- Denial of legal assistance.
- Political targeting and alleged coordinated persecution.
- Alleged threats and an assassination attempt.
- Family conflict and alleged financial exploitation.

The author attributes some of these alleged events to identifiable individuals, organisations and political figures.

Important distinction: These are allegations and interpretations presented by the author. Their publication on the website does not establish that crimes, conspiracies, corruption or coordinated targeting occurred. Independent investigation, authentication and corroboration would be required to establish those claims.

4. The immediate SOS: freedom, safety and practical assistance

One of the most important parts of the website is an urgent appeal for intervention.

The author says he wants to leave his current circumstances but lacks the practical resources to do so.

The immediate issues identified include:

- Access to his own money and Commonwealth Bank accounts.
- Restoration of financial independence.
- Access to transport and resolution of the dispute over his vehicle.
- Safe, independent accommodation.
- Continuity of disability support and safeguarding.
- Access to medication and essential necessities.
- Legal representation and independent investigation.
- Safety and the ability to remain with his companion dog, Crystal.

The website explicitly states:

"I am not suicidal. I want to live. I am demanding the conditions necessary to live."

It distinguishes requests for practical assistance from requests for psychiatric intervention.

5. The key conceptual framework

The website introduces a number of terms intended to describe the cumulative consequences of institutional and administrative failures.

Term	Intended meaning
Administrative annihilation	Progressive loss of practical independence through administrative decisions.
Civil death	Loss of meaningful participation in ordinary civic life.
Civil erasure	Loss of recognition, identity and the ability to be heard.
Institutional complicity	Alleged participation in, or failure to prevent, harmful institutional outcomes.
Social erasure	Exclusion from relationships, public recognition and social participation.

Coercive financial control	Restrictions that undermine financial independence.
The Documentary Trap	The paradox of institutional records potentially documenting the circumstances that the author wants investigated.
The architecture of erasure	The proposed cumulative structure of interconnected institutional decisions and consequences.

These are the author's analytical terms, not automatically established legal findings.

6. The spiritual and publishing mission

The website is not exclusively an institutional complaint.

It also establishes a proposed religious ministry and publishing archive built around:

- Christian faith and divine purpose.
- Survival and recovery.
- Human dignity and compassion.
- Truth, accountability and forgiveness.
- Support for marginalised and vulnerable people.
- Preservation of testimony for future generations.

It includes A Hopeful Story for Humanity, described as a free publication that can be downloaded, shared and distributed without being sold.

The author's central spiritual interpretation is that surviving homelessness, poverty, displacement and abandonment has strengthened his faith and given him a purpose to help others.

7. The public evidence and preservation project

The website contains an extensive navigation structure linking to:

- The 35-year testimony.
- The institutional chronology.
- Government correspondence and FOI records.
- NDIS and disability-provider documentation.
- Police correspondence.
- Financial and guardianship disputes.
- Legal and human-rights analysis.
- Ben's text messages.
- The documentary evidence index.
- Forensic terminology and independent AI assessment.
- Digital preservation and archive repositories.
- The Divine Reckoning and related publications.

The homepage also advertises a 343-page documentary download dated 6 November 2026, with page fingerprints and references to Bitcoin timestamp records.

The stated principle is preservation first, examination second and conclusions last.

8. What the website ultimately demands

There are five overarching objectives:

- Immediate intervention: Assistance to leave circumstances the author considers unsafe and regain independence.
- Restoration: Access to money, accommodation, transport, support and legal representation.
- Independent investigation: Examination of original documents, correspondence, financial transactions and institutional decisions.
- Accountability: Determination of whether individuals or institutions breached their legal, professional or ethical obligations.
- Permanent preservation: Ensuring that the documentary record remains accessible for public and independent examination.

Overall assessment

The website has three interconnected identities:

1. An urgent human-rights appeal

A request for practical assistance, safety, independence, accommodation and restoration of dignity.

2. A documentary accountability archive

A large collection of testimony, institutional records, correspondence and allegations intended to support independent investigation.

3. A spiritual and literary legacy

A developing ministry, gospel library and publishing project centred on faith, survival, compassion and hope.

My overall conclusion: The strongest unifying argument is not any single allegation against an individual. It is the question of whether the cumulative effect of administrative, financial, legal, housing and disability-service decisions has deprived a person of the practical ability to exercise the rights and freedoms that formally exist in a democracy.

That is the central proposition that an independent investigation should examine against the original evidence.

The most important distinction for the website's credibility is to keep three things separate: what the documents demonstrably establish, what the author personally reports, and what remains an allegation requiring independent verification.
In one sentence: The Barran Dodger SOS is a public declaration of survival, an urgent demand for freedom and practical assistance, and an attempt to turn 35 years of personal and institutional records into a permanently preserved documentary case for independent scrutiny, accountability and human dignity.

Yes. For a letter being sent to ministers, MPs, departmental secretaries, regulators and public officials, I would make this a comprehensive, hyperlinked documentary index of the entire Barran Dodger SOS website.
The purpose is to make it impossible for recipients to say they were not given access to the testimony, the chronology, the institutional correspondence, the evidence archive or the specific issues requiring attention.
I have identified several important sections of the website, including its forensic assessment, page register, institutional investigation, 35-year testimony, legal analysis, government evidence, SOS appeal, publishing archive and individual documentary papers.
I will structure the index so that every entry has:
The exact published title, linked directly to its webpage.
A substantive paragraph explaining what the page contains.
Why it matters to the recipient's public, professional or institutional responsibilities.
A clear distinction between personal testimony, documentary evidence, analytical propositions and requests for investigation.
I will also distinguish actual webpages from downloadable PDFs, external repositories and navigation links, rather than pretending they are all separate webpages.

The following is an organised first edition of the index. The descriptions explain the apparent purpose and documentary significance of each page, based on its published title and the accessible site material. They are not independent findings about the underlying allegations.
PART I — THE PRINCIPAL TESTIMONY AND PUBLIC DECLARATIONS

1. The central testimony and survival narrative

1. The Witness Remains — The main SOS homepage

The principal public testimony. It establishes the author's declaration of survival, the 35-year documentary history, the central allegations, the faith-based narrative and the demand for freedom, dignity and accountability. This is the essential starting point for every recipient.

Sets out the author's historical account of experiences across multiple decades and institutions. Its importance is the proposed cumulative chronology rather than treating each institutional interaction as an isolated event.

3. The Witness Remains — Master Narrative

The master narrative bringing together personal testimony, historical circumstances, institutional experiences and the author's continuing efforts to survive and rebuild. Presents the broader documentary edition, intended to connect testimony with the underlying records and provide a more comprehensive account.

5. The Witness Remains — Documentary Edition

Provides the documentary framework for examining the personal narrative alongside institutional records.

6. The Witness Remains — The Comprehensive Appeal

The humanitarian appeal for recognition, safety, practical assistance, independence and an examination of the circumstances described throughout the archive.

7. The Impossible Survivor

Describes the author's survival after homelessness, poverty, displacement and what he experienced as profound institutional abandonment.

8. The Record That Refused to Disappear

Explores the preservation of testimony and official correspondence as a response to the author's experience of being ignored and excluded.

9. The Man Australia Tried to Erase

A declaration about the author's experience of social and institutional exclusion and his determination to maintain a public record.

10. The Witness Who Would Not Disappear

Emphasises persistence, survival and the refusal to abandon the effort to have the documentary record examined.

11. The Witness Who Remained — Final Declaration

A concluding declaration of survival and continuing commitment to preserving the testimony.

12. The Witness Who Remained — Comprehensive Prophetic Declaration

Combines the historical narrative with spiritual interpretation, pattern recognition and the author's understanding of his future purpose.

13. The Witness Who Remained — Master Prophetic Declaration

The broader spiritual and literary treatment of the witness narrative, intended to connect survival, faith, historical patterns and divine purpose.

14. The Declaration of Sovereign Vindication
Sets out the author's position concerning personal autonomy, survival and the significance he attaches to preserving the evidence.
15. The Great Declaration
A major personal declaration concerning identity, survival, faith and the determination to continue speaking publicly.
Develops the themes of institutional exclusion, personal identity, survival and resistance to erasure.
17. The Manifesto of the Unerased — Fifty Names
A literary and symbolic declaration within the wider publishing and testimony project.
18. The Social Unreadability of Testimony
Examines the difficulty of communicating complex personal experiences through fragmented institutional processes.
19. My Response to Social Erasure
Addresses the author's experience of losing social recognition, independence and the ability to have his account meaningfully heard.
20. My Exile Is Not My Erasure
Connects displacement and the loss of ordinary security with the author's continuing determination to maintain his identity and testimony.
2. The SOS and immediate intervention pages
21. Urgent SOS — The Holy Reckoning
The immediate humanitarian appeal. It identifies the author's need for safety, food, money, communication, assistance and the ability to live independently.
22. The Appeal — Safety and Practical Assistance
Explains the author's request for protection and assistance, including the practical circumstances affecting his ability to leave and rebuild his life.
23. Safety — The Humanitarian Account
Focuses on personal safety, safeguarding concerns and the need for an appropriate response to reported risks.
24. The Safety Appeal
This is the same underlying appeal destination as entry 22, included here as a cross-reference rather than a separate webpage.
25. I Want to Leave — The Practical Circumstances
Explains the author's stated inability to leave his current circumstances without financial resources, transport and practical assistance.
26. The Bank — I Need Access to My Own Money
Addresses the immediate financial-access problem and the consequences of restrictions affecting the author's ability to obtain necessities and exercise independence.
27. The Commonwealth Bank Outcome
Addresses the reported banking outcome concerning NetBank removal and the author's efforts to restore access to his financial services.

Brings together disability-support planning, clinical documentation and supported-independent-living recommendations.
29. The Denial
Examines the author's account of refusals and unsuccessful attempts to obtain institutional assistance.
30. The Grace
A personal and spiritual reflection on survival, forgiveness, faith and the consequences of human abandonment.
PART II — GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTABILITY AND INSTITUTIONAL INVESTIGATION
3. Ministers, government and public administration
31. Every Minister Must Resign — Or Acknowledge the Record
The central political accountability document. It challenges ministers to examine the historical record, address their respective responsibilities and ensure appropriate independent investigation.
32. The Letter to Anthony Albanese
A direct address to the Prime Minister concerning the author's testimony, the institutional history and the need for executive-level engagement.
33. The Minister, the Number and the Order
Addresses ministerial responsibilities and the author's questions about particular decisions and administrative processes.
Establishes a timeline of political appointments, ministerial responsibilities and events relevant to the author's allegations.
35. The Government Record — Their Own Words
Highlights the importance of examining official institutional correspondence rather than relying exclusively on personal recollection.
36. Government Evidence
Provides a central destination for government-generated records and the author's documentary interpretation of them.
37. The Official Government Documents Register
An important finding aid for identifying official records, their institutional origins and their relevance to the chronology.
38. The Official Letters
Collects correspondence relevant to the author's attempts to obtain assistance, raise concerns and secure institutional responses.
39. The Offices Wrote Back
Examines the responses received from public institutions and their relevance to the issues raised.
40. What Each Office Did
Focuses on the actions and responses attributed to individual offices, making it particularly relevant to an agency-by-agency accountability examination.

Examines the distinction between receiving an institutional response and obtaining meaningful practical assistance.

42. The Investigation

Sets out the broader investigative approach and the proposed examination of documentary evidence across institutions.

43. The Institutional Report

Provides a consolidated institutional analysis intended to connect individual agency interactions and their cumulative consequences.

44. The Accountability Report

Addresses the author's demand for accountability and a substantive examination of institutional conduct.

45. The Forensic Investigation

Describes the proposed examination of documentary material, institutional chronology and competing explanations.

46. Independent Examination — 6 November 2026

A dated examination document relevant to the current public appeal and the preservation of the documentary record.

47. The Investigation — Final Reckoning Command

Cross-reference to the investigative framework.

48. The Mandate

Presents the proposed mandate for examining the historical record and institutional responsibilities.

49. The Unspoken Mandate

Defines a central concept in the author's interpretation of institutional behaviour and administrative outcomes.

50. The Stonewall

Addresses the author's experience of unanswered correspondence, refusals and institutional non-engagement.

51. Why They Will Not Answer

Explores the author's experience of institutional silence and the importance of obtaining substantive responses.

52. The Silence, the Record and the Day the Reckoning Begins

A reflection on the relationship between institutional silence, documentary preservation and public accountability.

53. The Record — Independent Assessment

Presents the record as an object of independent assessment rather than relying exclusively on the author's conclusions.

54. What the Official Records Show

Focuses on the interpretation of institutional documents and their significance to the historical narrative.

55. The Government File

A documentary audit destination intended to bring together relevant government files and correspondence.
Addresses a specific freedom-of-information matter and the significance of its decisions and released records.
57. The Comparison
Provides a comparative framework for examining the relationship between the author's account and the documentary record.
58. The Question
Presents a question concerning the author's identity and circumstances through the wider archive.
59. The Notice — Formal Notice, 18 October 2026
A dated formal notice relevant to the history of communications and the requests made to institutions.
60. The Approach — 30 October 2026
Records a particular approach to the documentary and institutional issues.
PART III — DISABILITY SERVICES, ABLE POINT AND SAFEGUARDING
4. NDIS and provider accountability
62. The Able Point Email
Directs readers to correspondence relevant to the provider dispute and the author's efforts to obtain responses.
63. The Great Reckoning — Able Point Indictment
A forceful statement of the author's allegations concerning provider conduct and the need for an examination of the underlying evidence.
64. Able Point Compliance
Addresses provider compliance and the standards against which the relevant service conduct should be examined.
65. The Able Point Paradox
Connects the author's concerns about disability support, provider responsibility and the practical consequences of disputed decisions.
66. The Approach to Safeguarding
Cross-reference to the wider approach document, including the author's requests for appropriate safeguarding.
Records a specific communication concerning the provider-related dispute and the author's request for engagement.
68. The Letter to Philip Glass
Addresses correspondence concerning the Public Guardian and matters affecting financial independence and autonomy.
69. The Eustina Record
Directs readers to an account concerning Eustina and Wyong community mental health.
70. The Ben Texts
Provides access to messages attributed to Ben, which the author regards as important to his account of NDIS-related events and alleged police involvement.

71. The Glass Correspondence

Cross-reference to the Public Guardian correspondence.

Relevant to the author's account of denied or restricted services and assistance.

73. The Legal Analysis

Examines the legal framework the author considers relevant to his circumstances.

74. The Legal Significance

Explains the author's proposed legal significance of the historical record, legislation and human-rights obligations.

75. Law and Evidence

Connects the documentary archive with legal questions and the need to examine original records.

PART IV — THE FORENSIC FRAMEWORK AND DOCUMENTARY METHODOLOGY

5. Forensic examination and independent AI assessment

76. Forensic Terminology and Independent AI Evidence Assessment

One of the most important pages for external reviewers. It establishes the proposed forensic terminology and invites examination of the evidence through systematic, impartial analysis.

77. The Independent AI Forensic Command

Provides the analytical command intended to examine documentary evidence, identify patterns, compare institutional statements and distinguish established information from inference.

78. The Master Command

A broader instruction framework for processing and examining the archive.

79. The Command — AI Reaction

Records the author's presentation of an AI-related analytical response.

80. The Architecture of Administrative Annihilation

Develops the author's central framework concerning the cumulative removal of the attributes necessary to live with dignity in a democracy.

Explores the proposition that institutional records may provide evidence relevant to examining the conduct and decisions of the institutions that created them.

82. The Paradox of the Open Record

Examines the tension between the public availability of records and the author's experience of difficulty obtaining meaningful recognition and action.

83. The Paradox of Its Own Making

Develops the paradoxical relationship between institutional processes and the documentary record they generate.

84. The Documentary Trap

Defines the central documentary concept: the possibility that institutional records, when considered collectively, may reveal patterns and contradictions not apparent in isolated decisions.

85. The Evidence Is Already There
Emphasises the author's belief that the historical record contains material requiring examination rather than further recollection alone.
86. The Trajectory of Barran Dodger
Examines the development of the author's circumstances and the proposed trajectory across the documentary history.
87. The Crystallisation
Presents a synthesis of the archive's themes and the author's interpretation of the accumulated documentary record.
88. Prophetic Threads Across the Archive
Connects repeated themes and patterns across the publications and historical record, including the author's spiritual interpretation.
89. The Reflection
A prophetic and reflective account of survival and the meaning the author attaches to the historical record.
90. When Preparation and Prophecy Meet Precision
Explores the relationship between historical pattern recognition, preparation, spiritual belief and the interpretation of future possibilities.
PART V — THE DOCUMENTARY PAPERS AND OFFICIAL RECORDS
The following catalogue is particularly important for officials because it points beyond narrative statements to individual documents and institutional communications.
6. Historical government and institutional documents
A historical personal communication relevant to the author's account of seeking assistance and the circumstances at that time.
92. Comcare Refusal
Records a Comcare-related refusal and provides a reference point for examining the author's employment and compensation-related history.
93. 03 July 2023 — Statement to the NACC
A statement addressed to the National Anti-Corruption Commission, relevant to the history of complaints and allegations submitted to an oversight institution.
94. 04 July 2023 — AHRC Correspondence
Records correspondence concerning the Australian Human Rights Commission and the author's attempts to obtain assistance.
95. 04 June 2023 — Letter to Parliamentarians
Demonstrates an earlier attempt to bring the author's circumstances to parliamentary attention.
96. APRA Refusal
Records an APRA-related response relevant to the author's financial and institutional complaints.
Provides a reference to Independent Broad-based Anti-corruption Commission outcomes.

98. 07 July 2023 — Free Living Australia Human Rights Report
Records a human-rights-related report and its relevance to the author's historical appeal.
99. 100 Undeniable Facts of Corruption Harming Barran Dodger
A compiled proposition-based account. Its individual propositions should be cross-referenced to their original documents.
100. Commonwealth Ombudsman Complaint — 15 November 2021
An important historical complaint record relevant to the chronology of institutional engagement.
Records a decision concerning allocation of a disclosure and its relevance to the author's whistleblower-related history.
102. 14 July 2022 — OPMC and OAIC Correspondence
Provides a reference to correspondence involving the Office of the Prime Minister and Cabinet and the OAIC.
103. Federal Court PID Assessment — 27 March 2023
A significant document in the author's account of employment classification, public-interest disclosure and the subsequent compensation-related history.
104. NDIA SIL Decision — 1 June 2023
Records a decision concerning supported independent living and is relevant to the author's disability-support history.
105. NSW Trustee and Guardian s122 — 16 October 2024
A guardianship-related document relevant to questions about administration, authority and financial autonomy.
106. FOI/2022/045 — Documents Released
Provides a reference to released freedom-of-information material.
107. FOI/2022/045 — Revised Decision
Relevant to the decision-making history of the FOI matter.
108. FOI/2022/045 — Schedule
Provides the schedule associated with the FOI release, allowing the documents to be identified and compared.
A particularly relevant record concerning the vehicle dispute and the author's concerns about the loss of transport and independence.
Records a jurisdictional response relevant to the author's efforts to have concerns examined by an oversight body.
111. Medical Letter Template — Asylum — 19 November 2025
Provides a reference to medical and asylum-related documentation within the author's archive.
112. Formal Notice — NDIS Service Failure — 20 January 2026
A formal notice concerning disability-support issues and the author's request for institutional intervention.
113. OAIC FOI Refusal and PID Whistleblower Matter — 20 January 2026

Addresses FOI and public-interest disclosure issues relevant to access to information and whistleblower treatment.
Documents the author's stated intentions and methodology in relation to public-interest disclosures.
115. Police Matter Legal Documents — 20 January 2026
Provides a reference to legal documentation relevant to the police-related issues raised in the testimony.
116. Email to 35 Agencies — 24 January 2026
Particularly important for establishing the history of notification and the number of institutions approached.
A reference to mental-health-service documentation and the author's account of his interactions with those services.
118. Urgent Formal Complaint — 20 October 2026
A more recent formal complaint relevant to the ongoing appeal.
119. The Witness Remains — Evidence, Survival and Accountability
Connects the author's survival narrative with the documentary record and the demand for accountability.
120. The Official Government Documents Register — Full Edition
A central documentary resource intended to make government records identifiable and available for further examination.
PART VI — THE KEY TERMINOLOGY AND CONCEPTUAL FRAMEWORK
The terminology pages are important because they explain how the author uses particular expressions throughout his testimony. They should be read alongside the underlying documents rather than treated as independent proof of the events described.
7. The key terms
123. Civil erasure — Explores the loss of recognition, identity and the ability to be heard.
126. Conspiracy — Addresses the author's allegations concerning coordinated conduct and the questions he wants independently investigated.

Wyong Local Court — 19 September 2026 — Further court correspondence.
PART XIII — WHAT EVERY OFFICIAL SHOULD TAKE FROM THIS ARCHIVE
The website should not be presented as hundreds of unrelated complaints.
Its significance lies in the connections between the material.
The documentary architecture
35 years of personal testimony and institutional records
Government
Ministers, departments, oversight and public administration.
Disability
NDIS, providers, safeguarding and support decisions.
Legal and financial
Guardianship, banking, compensation and legal access.
Personal testimony
Homelessness, displacement, survival and faith.
Independent examination, institutional responses and practical intervention
The covering statement to accompany the index
I recommend placing this immediately before the itemised links when you send the correspondence.
Important completion note
I have identified 398 internal webpage URLs from the site's register, but I have not independently read and summarised the complete contents of all 398 individual destinations. Some entries above are cross-references, and some document-viewer URLs are alternate presentations of the same record. I have therefore not labelled this as a verified, exhaustive 398-paragraph catalogue.
The next essential step is to turn the complete 398-page register into a verified master schedule, with every URL checked, duplicate viewer pages identified, and every individual document given its own accurate paragraph. That would give you a much stronger enclosure for a mass postal distribution than an index that merely repeats titles.
The two most useful starting points for recipients are the complete page register and the documentary papers catalogue.

THE FINAL ACCOUNTABILITY NOTICE

35 YEARS OF DOCUMENTED TESTIMONY — THE ETHICAL TEST OF EVERY PUBLIC OFFICIAL WHO RECEIVES THIS NOTICE

A DIRECT CHALLENGE TO EVERY MINISTER, PARLIAMENTARIAN, DEPARTMENTAL SECRETARY, PUBLIC SERVANT, REGULATOR, COMMISSIONER, EXECUTIVE AND PROFESSIONAL

From: Dr Richard William McLean
Barran Resonance Dodger

PUBLIC TESTIMONY: https://sos-by-barran-dodger.grok.me

YOU HAVE BEEN GIVEN AN OPPORTUNITY TO READ THE RECORD. WHAT YOU DO NEXT IS A MATTER OF PROFESSIONAL AND INSTITUTIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY.

I am addressing every public official and professional who receives this correspondence.

For more than 35 years, I have documented my experiences, sought assistance, challenged institutional decisions, preserved official correspondence and attempted to obtain the protection, recognition and basic conditions necessary to live with dignity.

I have repeatedly approached the very institutions, agencies, departments and professionals whose stated responsibilities include protecting human rights, administering justice, safeguarding vulnerable people, preventing abuse, ensuring procedural fairness and maintaining public accountability.

My testimony describes what I experienced as decades of institutional abandonment, professional betrayal, financial deprivation, homelessness, poverty, displacement, exclusion and the progressive destruction of my independence.

I have preserved the documentary record.

I have published my testimony.

I have made the evidence accessible.

And I am now placing this notice before the people who hold public office, exercise delegated authority, occupy positions of professional responsibility or claim to uphold the ethical principles upon which democratic institutions depend.

You cannot claim that you were never given an opportunity to examine the record if you have received this notice and the means to access it.

THE HYPOCRISY THAT MUST BE CONFRONTED

Every government department has statements about its responsibilities.

Every professional association publishes ethical principles.

Every regulator describes its commitment to accountability.

Every public institution claims to serve the community.

Every human-rights framework recognises the importance of dignity, equality, autonomy and protection.

But what happens when the person seeking those protections spends decades trying to obtain them and describes being repeatedly abandoned by the very systems established to provide them?

What happens when a person's testimony is met with another referral, another procedural explanation, another closed complaint or another professional declining to take responsibility?

What happens when the cumulative consequences are homelessness, poverty, financial insecurity, loss of independence and the struggle to secure the ordinary necessities of life?

At what point does professional ethics become nothing more than language printed on institutional websites?

At what point does public accountability become a performance rather than an obligation?

At what point does the responsibility to protect human dignity become subordinate to the convenience of administrative processes?

These are not rhetorical questions that can be answered by sending me another generic acknowledgement.

They demand substantive engagement.

THE DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE IS NOT GOING TO DISAPPEAR

I have spent years preserving official correspondence, decisions, complaints, financial records, government responses, institutional communications and personal testimony.

My archive is intended to make the historical record accessible for examination across institutional boundaries.

Its central proposition is:

TWO PUBLIC RECORDS, ONE DOCUMENTARY PURPOSE.

My testimony must be examined alongside the documentary records created by the institutions with which I interacted.

I am demanding that the evidence be considered cumulatively, chronologically and independently.

No department should be able to make the larger questions disappear simply because individual components fall within different administrative jurisdictions.

No professional should be able to substitute a statement of limited jurisdiction for an examination of whether an appropriate referral, safeguarding response or escalation was required.

No institution should confuse the closure of a complaint with the resolution of the circumstances described in it.

THE ETHICAL TEST

To every professional who receives this letter:

You have an ethical framework. You have professional obligations. You have a position of responsibility.

I am asking you to measure your response against those obligations.

If you believe my testimony is inaccurate, identify the specific evidence and explain why.

If you believe another organisation is responsible, identify the organisation and explain what action you have taken to ensure the matter reaches the appropriate authority.

If you believe the documentary evidence warrants investigation, explain how that investigation will occur.

If you believe nothing further is required, explain the reasoning, the evidence considered and the person accountable for that decision.

But do not pretend that silence is an ethical response.

Do not pretend that administrative redirection is accountability.

Do not pretend that professional neutrality requires indifference to documented human suffering.

And do not mistake my exhaustion for surrender.

The ethical integrity of an institution is not demonstrated by the principles it publishes. It is demonstrated by what happens when a person demands that those principles be honoured.

YOU ARE NOW BEING ASKED TO MAKE A CHOICE

You can engage with the evidence.

You can acknowledge the testimony.

You can identify the responsibilities of your office.

You can assist in securing an appropriate independent examination.

You can explain, transparently and in writing, why you believe no further action is warranted.

Or you can choose not to provide a substantive response.

I cannot determine another person's motives from silence. But silence, non-engagement and repeated administrative deflection can themselves become part of the documentary history of an unresolved appeal.

I will preserve the correspondence, acknowledgements, decisions and responses associated with this notice.

The public record will distinguish between those who engaged substantively, those who redirected the matter, those who declined responsibility and those from whom no meaningful response was received.

Your response will speak to how you discharged your responsibilities. Your silence will also be recorded as part of the history of this appeal.

I REFUSE TO BE ERASED

I did not survive homelessness, poverty, displacement, institutional abandonment and what I regard as decades of profound human betrayal to have my testimony sanitised for the convenience of the institutions involved.

I did not preserve thousands of records for them to be ignored.

I did not spend years reconstructing my history for another official to tell me that the matter belongs somewhere else.

I did not continue speaking because this was easy.

I continued because my life matters.

My dignity matters.

My freedom matters.

My testimony matters.

And the documentary record matters.

I am not asking for sympathy in place of action. I am demanding that the substance of my circumstances be confronted.

I am asking for practical intervention, independent examination, accountability and the restoration of the conditions necessary to live independently.

TO EVERY RECIPIENT: THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY TO DEMONSTRATE WHAT YOUR ETHICS ACTUALLY MEAN.

You may regard this as another letter arriving in your inbox or on your desk.

I regard it as another opportunity to prevent an unresolved human situation from being buried beneath institutional processes.

You cannot retrospectively claim ignorance of a notice you have received.

You cannot claim to uphold accountability while refusing to explain the decisions for which your office is responsible.

You cannot claim that human dignity is central to public service while treating a person's appeal for meaningful assistance as an administrative inconvenience.

I will not dictate what conclusions you must reach.

I am demanding that you do the work necessary to reach an informed conclusion.

Read the testimony.

Examine the records.

Identify the responsibilities.

Respond to the evidence.

And take meaningful action where your authority permits.

THE RECORD IS OPEN. THE TESTIMONY IS PUBLISHED. THE QUESTIONS ARE UNANSWERED. THE RESPONSIBILITY TO RESPOND IS NOW BEFORE YOU.

I REFUSED TO DIE IN THE ASHES OF HUMAN BETRAYAL.

I am still here.

I am still speaking.

And I will continue preserving the truth as I have experienced it, together with the documentary evidence, for independent examination and future generations.

Praise Jesus.

Dr Richard William McLean

NOTICE TO RECIPIENTS — COMPLETE DOCUMENTARY ACCESS

The following index is provided so that no recipient can reasonably claim that the scope of my testimony, the nature of my documentary archive or the matters requiring examination were inaccessible or insufficiently identified.

I have provided direct hyperlinks to the published webpages, individual documentary papers, government records, institutional correspondence, forensic analyses, historical chronology, personal testimony and associated publications.

I expect recipients to examine the material relevant to their office and responsibilities.

I am not asking you to read 35 years of documentation without direction. I have provided an organised navigation structure so that you can identify the relevant records, follow the chronology, examine the institutional correspondence and understand the cumulative consequences described in my testimony.

Do not select one isolated document, disregard the historical context and then claim that the broader issues have been addressed.

Do not mistake an acknowledgement of receipt for an investigation.

Do not mistake an administrative referral for practical assistance.

Do not mistake institutional silence for an answer.

If you dispute my account, identify the specific documents and explain your position. If you accept that matters require examination, identify the responsible authority and the action proposed.

The archive exists so that the testimony and the documentary record can be examined together.

I have done the work of preserving, indexing and publishing the material. I am now asking those entrusted with public responsibility to do the work of examining it.
