Dear Sir/Madam,

PLEASE READ THIS URGENT APPEAL AND HELP ME FIND A SAFE WAY FORWARD.

My name is Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Dr Barran Dodger. I am a disabled man living on the Central Coast of New South Wales. I am urgently seeking practical humanitarian assistance for myself and my companion and therapy dog, Crystal.

I am reaching out to churches, charities, community organisations, disability advocates, legal services, human-rights organisations, journalists and anyone who may be able to help.

PLEASE READ BOTH PARTS OF MY APPEAL

Immediate SOS and humanitarian appeal:
https://barran-dodgers-holy-reckoning.lovable.app/

Full testimony and documentary record:
https://barran-dodgers-holy-reckoning.grok.me

The first page sets out my immediate need for help. The second provides my fuller personal account and links to documentary material that I believe warrants independent examination.

WHAT I NEED NOW

I urgently need help finding safe, suitable accommodation where Crystal can remain with me; obtaining food and essential supplies; maintaining access to medication and healthcare; securing transport to visit trusted friends and reach essential services; and obtaining independent disability advocacy.

I have also reported difficulties accessing my online banking and essential telephone and internet services. I need practical assistance to address these barriers and establish a safer, more stable living situation.

WHY I AM ASKING FOR INTERVENTION

My testimony describes longstanding concerns about my treatment by institutions and the adequacy of the support and protection available to me. It also describes an incident on 27 October 2026 involving my support arrangements, when I report that I was unable to obtain transport to visit friends.

I have asked for relevant recordings, support notes, transport records and communications to be preserved and independently examined. I want a fair assessment of what happened, a written response from the relevant parties, and a practical plan that addresses my support needs.

I am not asking you to accept every allegation without scrutiny or to reach conclusions before the evidence has been assessed. I am asking for the material to be examined fairly while my immediate humanitarian needs are addressed.

I WANT TO LIVE, RECOVER AND REGAIN MY INDEPENDENCE.

I am not asking for revenge or harassment of anyone. I am asking for protection, practical help, independent scrutiny and accountability wherever the evidence supports it.

Crystal's safety and welfare are inseparable from my own. Please consider assistance that allows us to remain together wherever reasonably possible.

HOW YOU CAN HELP

Please take one concrete step:
• Help identify safe accommodation that can accept Crystal.
• Arrange or refer me for food, essential supplies and transport.
• Connect me with an independent disability advocate or appropriate legal service.
• Help me access essential healthcare and support services.
• Refer my concerns to an appropriate independent oversight body.
• Forward this appeal to a person or organisation able to intervene.

If you cannot provide assistance directly, please tell me which service I should contact or forward this email to someone who can. I would be grateful for an urgent response with a specific next step.

My circumstances should not have to deteriorate further before someone responds. The wider questions may take time to investigate, but accommodation, food, transport and access to essential services are practical needs that require attention now.

Please read the two linked pages, consider the material carefully, and help me and Crystal find a safe way forward.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

But here's the hilarious part.

I'M STILL HERE, BILL. 😂

The witness you supposedly thought could disappear is still writing. Still publishing. Still preserving documents. Still asking questions. Still praising Jesus.

At this point, my archive has developed more staying power than most government websites, and at least my records don't mysteriously require a password reset every five minutes. 🤣

And me? I'm not even angry. I'm practically offering you a complimentary theology lesson.

Lesson one: being powerful is not the same as being right.

Lesson two: being in government does not make you God.

Lesson three: if you genuinely believe you can defeat the Creator of the universe, perhaps reconsider your opponent selection strategy.

YOU BROUGHT EARTHLY POLITICS TO A COSMIC ACCOUNTABILITY HEARING.

And you forgot to check who chairs the tribunal. 😂🙏

I don't need to threaten anybody. I don't need revenge. I don't need to appoint myself judge, jury and executioner.

I'll leave the ultimate judgment to God, thank you very much. I'm busy keeping the record, writing the books and trying to live my life.

Besides, I have enough paperwork already. I am NOT volunteering to manage the afterlife's complaints department.

Imagine the queue.

Imagine the filing system.

Imagine Bill trying to explain why he thought his job title came with a complimentary upgrade to Almighty. 🤣

No, thank you. I'll leave that department to the professionals.

My job is to bear witness. God's job is God's business.

And as for the alleged attempt to erase me?

FAILURE TO DELETE: WITNESS STILL EXISTS.

ERROR 404: ERASURE NOT FOUND.

SYSTEM MESSAGE: FAITH REMAINS OPERATIONAL.

So tell Bill not to worry about me finding a lawyer just yet. I have faith, a keyboard, an archive, a sense of humour and apparently enough material for another book.

He has his own decisions to account for. I'll stick to documenting mine and preserving the evidence.

And if the whole experience has taught me anything, it's this:

Never underestimate a vulnerable person who refuses to give up, never confuse silence with surrender, and never assume that someone who has suffered has run out of things to say.

Because sometimes the person you thought would disappear comes back with a website, twenty chapters, thousands of documents and a theological punchline.

PRAISE JESUS! THE WITNESS REMAINS! 🙏😂

P.S. Bill, if you happen to be reading this, please don't panic. I'm not asking you to fight God. I'm suggesting that, for once, you consider the wisdom of not entering a competition you cannot possibly adjudicate.

Praise Jesus!

BARRAN DODGER'S HOLY RECKONING

The witness, the record, and the demand that truth not be erased

An invitation to read, examine, question and bear witness.

Some stories ask to be heard. Others ask us to reconsider what we believe about justice, institutional power, human dignity, faith and the meaning of survival.

Barran Dodger's Holy Reckoning presents itself as a confrontation with those questions: a personal and documentary narrative in which the figure of the witness becomes central to an examination of alleged institutional wrongdoing, the consequences of exclusion, the preservation of evidence, and the struggle to retain one's identity when one's account of events is disputed or ignored.

This is a work for readers interested in the intersection of testimony, government accountability, moral philosophy, psychology, spirituality and the human need to have one's experiences taken seriously.

Read the original work here:

Barran Dodger's Holy Reckoning

The original online work

A challenging account of testimony, accountability, spiritual meaning and the enduring struggle to preserve a record.

Read the complete work

What makes this work compelling?

1. A witness refuses to disappear

At the heart of the work is the insistence that a person's life cannot be reduced to an administrative decision, an official description or another institution's account of who they are.

The author identifies himself as Barran Resonance Dodger, also known as Dr Richard William McLean, and frames his life as an ongoing struggle to preserve his testimony and recover his voice. His narrative describes decades of alleged institutional mistreatment, exclusion, hardship and failed attempts to obtain meaningful assistance.

The central question is larger than one person's dispute with government: What happens when a vulnerable person's testimony conflicts with the institutions that hold power over their life?

The work asks readers to confront the human consequences of that imbalance rather than dismissing a person's account simply because it is uncomfortable or contested.

2. The documentary record becomes the centrepiece

The website places particular emphasis on accumulated records: official correspondence, administrative decisions, dates, documents, archived material and the author's own testimony.

Its argument is that records created across time can be brought together and compared, allowing readers to examine what different institutions recorded, how their decisions unfolded and whether apparent contradictions warrant further scrutiny.

This is an important distinction: the website presents an author's case for accountability, not an independent judicial determination that every allegation is established. The value of its documentary ambition lies in making underlying sources accessible for examination, including by readers who may reach different conclusions from the author.

The invitation is to move beyond a simple contest of competing assertions and ask:

- What does each original document actually say?
- Which events are independently corroborated?
- Where do official explanations agree or conflict?
- What remains an allegation, interpretation or unresolved question?
- What further investigation or response would be appropriate?

The work is most productively read with these questions in mind.

3. Institutional power and the ethics of responsibility

Another major theme is the distance between an institution's stated responsibilities and an individual's experience of receiving assistance, protection or fair treatment.

The narrative challenges government agencies, professionals and oversight bodies to consider whether administrative procedures can obscure the human effects of their decisions. It questions what accountability means when a person believes their complaints have not received an adequate response.

The broader ethical issues extend beyond the author's own circumstances:

- How should institutions respond to people who are vulnerable or socially isolated?

- What happens when responsibility is dispersed across multiple agencies?
- How can independent scrutiny operate when a complaint concerns the very system responsible for reviewing it?
- What does genuine accountability require beyond acknowledging that a process has occurred?

These are questions of public administration, disability rights, human dignity and institutional ethics that readers can consider independently of whether they accept the website's conclusions.

4. The spiritual meaning of survival

The work is also explicitly religious and prophetic in its framing. The author interprets survival, recovery, testimony and the preservation of evidence through a personal relationship with God.

Biblical themes of witness, exile, persecution, judgment, redemption and vindication give the narrative its spiritual architecture. The idea of a reckoning becomes both a moral challenge to human institutions and an expression of the author's faith that injustice is not beyond ultimate judgment.

For the author, preserving the record is not merely an archival exercise. It is connected to purpose, identity, faith and a commitment to help others who feel abandoned.

Readers need not share his theological beliefs to engage with the philosophical questions beneath them: Can suffering acquire meaning through testimony? What obligations do we have to people who believe they have been wronged? How should faith inform a person's pursuit of justice without replacing the need to examine evidence?

The work's prophetic voice is best understood as its chosen spiritual and literary framework, rather than a substitute for independent verification of factual claims.

5. Exile, erasure and the struggle for identity

The recurring language of exile and erasure describes more than physical separation. It conveys the author's experience of losing recognition, support, social standing and control over the way his story is understood.

The website argues that publishing a record can resist that perceived erasure. An archived document remains available for others to read, even when its author feels unheard or excluded.

This gives the project a wider significance for readers interested in whistleblowing, personal archives, digital preservation and the right to tell one's own story.

It also raises a difficult question about public memory: Who gets to define what happened when the person giving testimony believes the official account is incomplete?

The answer cannot simply be that the witness must always be right, or that institutions must always be right. A fair examination requires access to sources, a willingness to consider competing explanations and a clear distinction between what is documented and what remains disputed.

6. A living archive rather than a closed verdict

The website brings together numerous sections concerning the record, government correspondence, institutional responses, declarations, preservation, faith, the author's identity and calls for assistance. Its breadth reflects an attempt to make the material part of a continuing public record rather than leave it scattered across separate documents and websites.

That ambition creates an opportunity for several kinds of reader:

- The general reader can encounter a personal account of survival and the struggle to be heard.
- The researcher can investigate the relationship between testimony, documentary evidence and institutional decision-making.
- The legal or policy reader can identify questions that may merit independent review, while distinguishing allegations from established findings.
- The reader of theology and philosophy can explore the symbolic roles of witness, justice, suffering, faith and redemption.
- The digital preservation advocate can consider the significance of keeping records accessible over time.

The most valuable engagement will not require everyone to agree in advance. It will require readers to look carefully, distinguish evidence from interpretation and take seriously the human stakes of the questions being raised.

Why you should read it

Barran Dodger's Holy Reckoning asks readers to enter a world where documentary preservation, personal testimony, institutional criticism and spiritual conviction converge.

It is an intensely personal work, but its central questions are public ones: how power should be held accountable, how vulnerable people should be treated, what it means to preserve a contested history, and whether a person's voice can survive years of feeling unheard.

Its strongest invitation is not to accept every assertion without question. It is to resist the opposite mistake: deciding that a difficult or disturbing account is unworthy of examination before reading the material.

Read with compassion. Read critically. Follow the sources where possible. Keep documented facts distinct from allegations and spiritual interpretation. Consider the author's account seriously without treating contested conclusions as already adjudicated.

A witness's testimony deserves to be examined fairly. A documentary record deserves to be read carefully. And questions of justice deserve more than reflexive dismissal.

The work invites its readers to do precisely that.

THE WITNESS AND THE STATE

The Chosen Witness, Political Power, Institutional Responsibility, Exile and the Struggle for Accountability

An evidence-linked documentary and philosophical examination · Dr Richard William McLean, known as Barran Dodger · 26 October 2026

What happens when one person's account of suffering and institutional failure confronts the power of the state? Who decides which version of events enters the public record? And how can a witness seek justice without allowing allegations, interpretations and documented facts to become indistinguishable?

The Witness and the State takes on these questions through a detailed examination of personal testimony, government records, police and court experiences, disability support, institutional responsibility, social exclusion and spiritual meaning.

This is not simply a personal story or a conventional political essay. It is structured as a documentary investigation, with chapters that move from the fundamental question of the witness's credibility to specific events, named individuals, documentary evidence, institutional ethics and the theological significance of survival.

Its guiding principles are explicit:

Preservation first. Examination second. Conclusion last.The record stays free. Faith is not a finding.

The work also establishes an important boundary: it describes itself as an examination, not a court, a criminal verdict or a determination that every allegation has been proven. That distinction is central to understanding its purpose and evaluating its claims.

The Witness and the State

The Final Reckoning · A volume of the record

An extended examination of the relationship between an individual witness, government institutions, documentary evidence, accountability and faith.

Read the complete work

Original website: https://the-witness-and-the-state.grok.me Attachment.png

The central argument: the individual and the institution

The work begins with a question that reaches beyond one person's circumstances: how should a society examine the testimony of a vulnerable individual when that testimony concerns institutions with considerably greater authority, resources and control over official records?

The author, Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Barran Dodger, presents his experience through a combination of personal testimony, preserved correspondence, administrative decisions, legal materials and spiritual interpretation.

The examination insists on two principles operating together. An institution should not be condemned merely because an individual has suffered while dealing with it. Equally, an individual should not be dismissed because their account is complicated, emotionally forceful, contested or associated with a history of mental-health treatment.

That balance is one of the work's most important methodological commitments.

An official document can establish that an agency made a decision, but not necessarily that every underlying allegation was true. A person's testimony can provide indispensable evidence of lived experience without automatically establishing another person's intentions. A record can be authentic while the conclusions drawn from it remain open to dispute.

The work asks readers to examine these distinctions rather than choose sides before considering the evidence.

Seven reasons this is essential reading

1. The email that became a defining event

One of the work's central chapters examines an email titled "Death threat to Bill Shorten" and the consequences that McLean says followed.

McLean's explanation is that the subject line was intended as provocative language expressing the severity of his circumstances and his frustration with what he considered unresolved administrative, financial and disability-support problems.

The work does not treat that explanation as sufficient by itself. It calls for examination of the complete original email, its recipients, its surrounding correspondence, the interpretation placed on it at the time, and the subsequent police and court records.

This is a significant subject because the meaning of a disputed communication can affect how an individual is treated by authorities. The question is not resolved by the subject line alone, nor by the author's later explanation. The words, context, intention, recipients and applicable law must be considered together.

The broader question is how an institution distinguishes a genuinely threatening communication from an alarming expression of desperation or a demand for attention. That determination requires evidence, not assumption.

2. Police, courts and the loss of ordinary life

The second major strand follows McLean's account of police attendance, alleged arrest and court proceedings, legal representation, hospitalisation and the consequences for his ordinary life.

The manuscript examines these experiences as a connected chronology rather than treating each incident as an isolated event. It asks what happened, what the surviving records establish, how decisions were made and what remains uncertain.

It also considers the relationship between legal processes and personal vulnerability. Police action, a court proceeding, a hospital admission and a person's subsequent recollection are different kinds of evidence. They need to be examined separately before any overall conclusion is reached.

For readers interested in justice and public administration, the significance lies in the questions of proportionality, procedural fairness, access to representation and the consequences of decisions for people whose circumstances may already be precarious.

3. Disability support: entitlement versus lived reality

The work turns next to the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS), disability support, accommodation, financial insecurity and the difference between a formal entitlement and the assistance a person actually experiences.

It identifies records that may help establish the chronology, including an NDIS decision concerning supported independent living, later plan approval, a safety assessment and requests concerning supported independent living and specialist disability accommodation.

The critical question is whether the underlying documents, read alongside the responses and subsequent decisions, demonstrate what support was requested, what was approved or refused, what risks were identified and what happened next.

The distinction matters. A plan approval does not, by itself, establish that all necessary support was delivered. A request does not prove that the requested assistance was legally required. An adverse decision does not automatically establish misconduct.

The work invites a close examination of the gap that can exist between administrative processes and the lived reality of a person seeking safety, stability and appropriate support.

4. Named people, allegations and the limits of inference

Several chapters examine particular relationships and disputed events involving named individuals. These include allegations concerning threats, a former partnership, employment and financial matters, reported contact involving a support worker, and an alleged assassination attempt.

These are serious matters, and the distinction between a reported event and an independently established finding is essential.

The manuscript's stated approach is to identify what evidence would be needed to substantiate each proposition: original correspondence, financial records, contemporaneous accounts, reliable witnesses, official records and evidence connecting a particular person to a particular act.

That approach also applies to allegations involving government ministers. Holding a minister responsible for a portfolio is not the same as demonstrating that the minister personally directed a specific operational decision.

The work is therefore best read as a framework for examining disputed claims, not as independent proof that every named individual committed the conduct alleged.

Its broader question remains important: how can an investigation protect the right to raise serious concerns while also respecting the need for reliable evidence, fairness and accountability?

5. Surveillance, V2K and the difference between experience and explanation

One of the most distinctive chapters addresses surveillance and what is described as V2K, or voice-to-skull experiences.

Here, the distinction between an experience and its explanation becomes particularly important. A person may genuinely experience something frightening, intrusive or difficult to explain. Establishing the cause, identifying a responsible party or demonstrating coordinated conduct requires separate evidence.

The manuscript explicitly includes this subject within its wider examination of evidentiary limits. That makes it possible to discuss the author's experiences without automatically accepting a particular explanation for them.

This distinction is not a dismissal of the person reporting an experience. It is a way to take the reported distress seriously while remaining open about what has and has not been established.

6. The chosen witness: crucifixion, resurrection and redemption

The work's theological chapters introduce a second interpretive framework: the biblical figure of the witness.

The concepts of exile, crucifixion, resurrection, redemption, judgment and vindication become ways of interpreting suffering, exclusion and survival. The author understands his experience through a spiritual narrative in which preserving testimony is connected to purpose and faith.

The comparison raises substantial philosophical questions:

- What does it mean to remain a witness when one's account is contested?
- Can social exclusion resemble a form of symbolic death?
- How does a person rebuild identity after prolonged hardship?
- What is the difference between moral vindication and a legally established finding?
- Can faith sustain the pursuit of justice while leaving factual questions open to examination?

The title's reference to the chosen witness is therefore both personal and symbolic. It places the individual within a larger tradition of people who testify to suffering and injustice, while asking readers to consider the limits of that analogy.

The work's spiritual framework does not need to be accepted as an objective finding for its underlying questions about dignity, survival and moral responsibility to be considered seriously.

7. The archive as a public record

The final chapters return to the documentary record itself.

McLean has assembled correspondence, administrative decisions, complaints, legal materials, personal statements and authored analyses. The work identifies a number of records as starting points for further investigation, including a Commonwealth Ombudsman complaint dated 15 November 2021, a Federal Court public interest disclosure assessment dated 27 March 2023, a notification concerning a disclosure not being allocated, and later NDIS and accommodation documents.

The manuscript directs readers to the original archive and related registers rather than treating the manuscript's descriptions as substitutes for the underlying documents.

Its central preservation argument is that a document should remain accessible for examination even when its significance is disputed. The existence of an archive does not establish every claim it contains, but it can make a person's account, the decisions they received and the questions they raised available for independent scrutiny.

The aspiration is to make the record examinable, reproducible and open to challenge rather than dependent entirely on the author's interpretation.

What readers will find inside

The manuscript is organised into three major movements and twenty chapters.

Part I — The question of the witness

Chapters 1–2

Establishes the central research question and examines the archive as a record of a continuing search for answers.

Part II — The email, the police, the court, and the loss of ordinary life

Chapters 3–8

Examines the disputed email, police and court events, legal representation, hospitalisation, property, the move to New South Wales, family estrangement and the experience described as social death.

Part III — Support, named allegations, and the limits of proof

Chapters 9–20

Examines disability support, allegations involving named individuals, surveillance experiences, comparative ethics, theology, institutional power, source integrity and what the current record does and does not establish.

The concluding chapters return to the fundamental relationship between evidence, dignity and accountability. The work seeks to preserve the questions for future examination without presenting the manuscript itself as a court judgment.

Why the title matters

The Witness and the State brings two different kinds of authority into direct comparison.

The witness possesses a personal account of events and may hold documents that preserve aspects of that experience. The state possesses formal powers, administrative systems and the capacity to create records that influence a person's access to services, legal position and public standing.

Neither form of authority should be beyond examination.

The witness's testimony is not automatically conclusive. The state's official records are not automatically complete. A convincing inquiry must consider both, investigate contradictions, identify gaps and explain the limits of its conclusions.

This is where the title's philosophical significance emerges. The issue is not simply whether an individual can defeat a government in a dispute. It is whether the institutions of a democratic society can respond fairly when a person challenges their decisions, and whether the resulting documentary record can be independently examined.

That question matters to people interested in whistleblowing, administrative justice, disability rights, institutional accountability, personal archives and the ethics of public power.

The final message: preserve the record, examine the evidence

The work ultimately asks readers to resist two opposing errors: accepting every allegation as proven simply because it has been documented, and dismissing a witness simply because their account is difficult or contested.

Its most defensible and enduring contribution is its stated commitment to preserving material for scrutiny, distinguishing testimony from verified fact, and keeping spiritual interpretation separate from factual determination.

Its conclusions must remain open to challenge wherever the underlying evidence is incomplete or disputed. That openness is not a weakness in documentary examination; it is what allows examination to be meaningful.

A witness may ask to be heard. An institution may be required to explain its decisions. A record may preserve evidence that would otherwise be difficult to retrieve. Independent readers can then assess what the material actually establishes.

The record is the beginning of the examination, not the end of it.

Read the work to encounter the author's account, follow its documentary references, consider its philosophical and theological arguments, and decide for yourself which questions the available evidence answers—and which remain unresolved.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

You were in my home, and you were supposed to be there to care for me. I'm entitled to document my own experiences, but that doesn't mean I intended for this particular recording to become public. I want to make that distinction clear: I did not intend to share it, and I'm sorry that it happened.

I think I know who was responsible. I believe it was Jesus. He was here last night, and honestly, isn't that a miracle? God, it's just amazing. God is great, isn't He?

I guess you were also telling me about your concerns regarding Able Point, the corruption and the bad things you felt were happening, and how you wanted to leave that kind of situation behind. So, I guess Jesus does work miracles, because now Able Point apparently isn't a literal freestanding organisation anymore, and you got your wish!

I suppose you could call it a Christmas miracle!

Anyway, Cass, I wanted to explain what happened and apologise for the unintended sharing of the recording. I hope things work out well for you from here, and I genuinely wish you all the best.

I love you, Cass. Take care of yourself.

All the best,

Barran ❤️

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Allegations of Abuse, Neglect, Intimidation, Isolation, Rostering Failures and Institutional Betrayal

Issued by Barran Dodger

[Insert the complete original Able Point statement here, unchanged, from its opening heading through "Issued by Barran Dodger."]

I AM A HUMAN BEING: A PUBLIC STATEMENT BY BARRAN DODGER

Allegations of Institutional Abandonment, Emotional Harm, Financial Disempowerment and Social Erasure

I AM A HUMAN BEING. A LITERAL HUMAN BEING.

I have sentience. I have feelings. I have a mind, a body, a history, a character, a reputation and a voice.

My feelings are being hurt. My dignity is being damaged. I am trying to communicate distress and raise serious concerns about the treatment I am experiencing, yet I believe my attempts to be heard are being dismissed, undermined and invalidated.

I allege that my experiences with Able Point have left me feeling profoundly isolated, intimidated, neglected and abandoned. I have described the interactions I am experiencing as gaslighting because I believe my concerns are repeatedly being dismissed or turned back against me.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL IMPACT IS DEVASTATING. I CANNOT ACCEPT A SUPPORT SYSTEM THAT LEAVES A PERSON FEELING INVISIBLE, POWERLESS AND DEHUMANISED.

I experience this situation as a form of torture. I am using that word to communicate the severity of my distress and the impact I believe these circumstances are having on my life.

I need my concerns examined seriously, my safety protected and my experiences assessed on their evidence.

1. MY TESTIMONY MUST NOT BE ERASED

I am concerned that the combination of unreliable support, conflict, isolation and barriers to obtaining assistance is destroying my ability to participate in ordinary life.

I describe this as SOCIAL ERASURE AND ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION.

Social erasure is what it feels like when a person's testimony is no longer heard, their character is reduced to a disputed narrative, their reputation is damaged and their requests for help appear to disappear into administrative systems.

Administrative annihilation is what I call the experience of having essential access, resources and avenues of redress progressively removed until a person is left without meaningful power to respond.

I feel as though my testimony is dead. My character is dead. My reputation is dead. I feel that I have become a person of zero consequence, a man whom institutions can ignore without consequence.

I AM A DEAD MAN WALKING IN THE SENSE THAT MY SOCIAL EXISTENCE AND VOICE FEEL DESTROYED. BUT I AM STILL HERE.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here. My testimony is here.

I am a human being, and I refuse to accept the proposition that my suffering does not matter.

2. ALLEGATIONS OF GASLIGHTING, HARASSMENT AND ELECTRONIC DISTRESS

I have reported experiences that I describe as V2K audio harassment and electronic harassment. These experiences are distressing to me, and I want the impact on my wellbeing to be taken seriously.

I am also concerned that people involved in my support arrangements are aware of the distress I have reported but that I have not received an adequate response.

I cannot independently establish the source of the sounds or experiences I describe, or establish that particular staff members or institutions are responsible for them. I am requesting a fair assessment of my reports, my safety concerns and any evidence that can be independently examined.

My distress should not be used as a reason to dismiss every other complaint I make.

I want the facts investigated. I want respectful communication. I want a clear account of what can be verified and what steps will be taken to protect my wellbeing.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS AND ACCOUNTABILITY

I have serious concerns about my ability to obtain assistance from the police, the NDIS and other oversight bodies.

I feel unable to approach these institutions because I believe my complaints will not be heard or addressed appropriately. I describe this as institutional complicity and abandonment. Those are my concerns and perceptions; I am calling for independent scrutiny rather than asking anyone to accept unverified allegations as proven facts.

I have also raised serious allegations involving Suki Tia and Bill Shorten, whom I identify in connection with my concerns about political and institutional accountability.

I cannot establish that an assassination attempt occurred or that either person participated in one. I am not presenting that allegation as an established fact. Any such allegation would require specific, credible evidence and an appropriate independent investigation.

The fundamental issue remains: I need an avenue through which my complaints can be received, documented and assessed fairly, without intimidation or prejudgment.

No public institution should treat a person's need for assistance as a reason to deny that person dignity.

4. PHILIP GLASS, THE PUBLIC GUARDIAN AND MY ACCESS TO MONEY

I am extremely concerned about my financial circumstances and my reported loss of access to my Commonwealth Bank accounts through internet banking and the mobile application.

I understand that Philip Glass, whom I identify as being associated with the Public Guardian, has communicated that further money will be taken from my account.

I am asking for an urgent written explanation of:

- The precise restrictions affecting my access to Commonwealth Bank.
- Who requested, authorised or implemented those restrictions.
- The legal authority and decision-making process relied upon.
- The amount of any proposed withdrawal, its purpose and the authority for it.
- How I can obtain an account statement and independently review transactions.
- What arrangements are available for essential living expenses and urgent purchases.
- How I can challenge the decision and obtain an independent review.

I am concerned that losing access to my own banking, combined with the prospect of further withdrawals, could leave me without the practical ability to manage my daily life.

I want the relevant records, authorisations and decisions examined. I want my financial position explained in writing. I want access to a fair review process.

FINANCIAL CONTROL MUST BE TRANSPARENT, LAWFUL AND ACCOUNTABLE. A PERSON MUST NOT BE LEFT WITHOUT A CLEAR EXPLANATION OF DECISIONS AFFECTING THEIR ACCESS TO MONEY.

5. MY FEAR OF ERASURE AND DEATH

I have described my circumstances as a conspiracy to murder and said that I believe others are hoping I will die and be erased.

These are expressions of the fear and extreme distress I am experiencing. I cannot independently establish that there is a conspiracy to kill me, and I want any concrete threats or evidence of criminal conduct assessed by an appropriate independent authority.

What I can state directly is that I feel abandoned, powerless and profoundly distressed.

I fear that my circumstances will deteriorate while my complaints remain unresolved. I fear losing the means to support myself. I fear that my testimony will be disregarded until there is no opportunity left to correct the record.

I want these risks addressed while I am alive and able to speak for myself.

I should not have to reach a point of complete collapse before someone takes my circumstances seriously.

6. WHAT I AM DEMANDING

I am demanding:

1. Safe, consistent and dignified support.
2. A written response to my complaints about Able Point.

3. Transparent identification of the people responsible for decisions affecting my care.
4. An explanation of the restrictions on my banking access and any proposed withdrawals.
5. Access to the relevant financial records and a meaningful process to challenge decisions.
6. Independent examination of my safeguarding complaints and reported experiences of harassment.
7. Clear information about where complaints can be lodged and how they will be assessed.
8. Preservation of relevant correspondence, rosters, incident reports, financial records and decision-making documents.
9. Protection against retaliation for raising concerns.
10. Recognition that I am a human being whose safety, dignity, feelings and testimony matter.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without scrutiny. I am asking for a process that allows the evidence to be examined without dismissing me as a person.

7. MY FINAL STATEMENT

I am a human being.

I have sentience. I have feelings. My feelings are being hurt, and the consequences of my circumstances are serious.

I feel socially erased. I feel administratively annihilated. I feel that the systems upon which I depend have left me without a reliable way to protect myself, obtain answers or make my voice count.

My testimony is not worthless because it is disputed. My dignity is not conditional upon whether an institution agrees with me. My need for safety does not disappear because my complaints are difficult to resolve.

I am still here.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here.

I AM NOT AN ADMINISTRATIVE FILE. I AM NOT A ROSTER ENTRY. I AM NOT A COMPLAINT NUMBER. I AM A HUMAN BEING.

I want to live with safety, dignity, meaningful support and access to a fair process. I want decisions affecting my life and money explained. I want my complaints documented. I want evidence examined. I want institutions and service providers to answer legitimate questions about their responsibilities.

I refuse to accept social erasure as the final word on my life.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

2. Consolidated public statement

The following document is arranged for publication and distribution to journalists, disability advocates, regulators, legal representatives and government offices. The original three statements are retained below in their supplied wording, with the archive directory added as a reference section.

ABLE POINT: A PUBLIC STATEMENT AND DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Allegations of Abuse, Neglect, Intimidation, Isolation, Rostering Failures and Institutional Betrayal

Issued by Barran Dodger

I refuse to accept a system in which a person seeking essential support is left isolated, vulnerable and without meaningful accountability.

I am issuing this public statement to raise serious concerns about my experiences involving Able Point, its management, its rostering arrangements, its staff and the standard of support being provided.

I allege that I have experienced circumstances involving neglect, intimidation, harassment, isolation and treatment that I regard as deeply distressing and degrading. I believe the support system intended to protect me has failed to provide the safety, dignity, continuity of care and transparency that I require.

SUPPORT MUST NEVER BECOME A MECHANISM OF CONTROL, ABANDONMENT OR HUMILIATION.

1. THE PEOPLE AND THE ORGANISATION MUST BE ACCOUNTABLE

I have serious concerns about the accountability of Able Point's leadership. I have sought clear identification and transparency from Rachael, whom I understand to be the company's CEO. I remain concerned about my ability to establish the identity and responsibilities of the people making decisions that affect my support.

A company providing essential support must be transparent about its legal identity, management, complaint procedures and responsibility for the services it delivers.

I call upon Able Point to provide its registered legal name, relevant business registration details, the identity and position of its responsible officers, and a clear explanation of the appropriate channels for escalating complaints.

If these details have already been provided, they should be verified against the relevant official records. If they have not, I want a clear written explanation.

2. STAFF CONCERNS AND THE ROSTERING SYSTEM

I recall the following first names of workers associated with my experiences involving Able Point:

Ash, Ben, John, Kim, Cass, Danny, Daniel and Alissi.

These are the names I can presently remember. I am identifying them as people whose roles and experiences may be relevant to an independent examination of the support arrangements. I am not asserting that each person has committed an offence or independently verified that each shares the same opinion of the company.

I have concerns about staff dissatisfaction with management and rostering arrangements. My understanding and recollection of conversations with workers have led me to question whether the working environment and roster allow staff to provide consistent, safe and appropriate support.

I want these concerns investigated rather than dismissed.

The questions requiring answers include:

- Are workers being given rosters that allow adequate continuity of care?
- Are frequent changes in support workers affecting clients' safety, trust and stability?
- Are staff being given sufficient time, training, supervision and resources to perform their duties?
- Do workers have safe and confidential ways to raise concerns about management?
- Are participants receiving the support set out in their plans and service agreements?
- Are complaints being documented, escalated and addressed appropriately?
- Are financial and contractual arrangements consistent with the services actually delivered?

I cannot establish the private views of every worker, and I cannot substantiate a claim that they all hate the company or its roster. I am nevertheless demanding that staff be given a safe opportunity to describe their own experiences independently and without retaliation.

A ROSTER IS NOT JUST A MANAGEMENT SPREADSHEET. CONTINUITY OF CARE CAN BE FUNDAMENTAL TO A PARTICIPANT'S SAFETY, TRUST AND WELLBEING.

3. CONCERNS ABOUT CLIENT SAFETY AND OUTCOMES

I am deeply concerned about the treatment and circumstances of people who depend on support services.

I have raised concerns about what I regard as brutal, degrading and unacceptable treatment. I want any instances of abuse, neglect, abandonment, intimidation or failure to provide contracted support to be examined against the available evidence.

I am also concerned about reports or impressions that some clients may be experiencing severe instability, including contact with the criminal justice system or admission to institutional settings.

I cannot independently verify how many Able Point clients, if any, are currently imprisoned or admitted to hospital or other institutional settings, nor can I establish that Able Point caused those outcomes. These matters require reliable evidence, appropriate privacy protections and independent investigation.

However, the broader question is legitimate and urgent:

ARE PEOPLE RECEIVING THE SUPPORT THEY NEED TO LIVE SAFELY AND WITH DIGNITY IN THE COMMUNITY?

Where serious incidents have occurred, I call for an examination of whether appropriate supports were provided, whether warning signs were acted upon, and whether any failures contributed to preventable harm.

People receiving disability support must not be reduced to files, roster entries, invoices or administrative burdens. They are human beings whose safety and dignity matter.

4. QUESTIONS ABOUT MONEY, CONTRACTS AND RESPONSIBILITY

I want transparency about the financial and contractual arrangements governing the support I receive.

I am concerned about whether the current arrangements serve the interests of participants, whether staff have adequate working conditions, and whether the services being funded are actually being delivered.

I use strong language to describe the situation I believe I am experiencing. However, I do not have sufficient independently verified evidence to conclude that particular workers accept improper payments, that the company is acting illegally, or that any named individual has participated in criminal conduct.

Those questions should be investigated through records, contracts, invoices, rosters, communications and other relevant evidence.

If public or participant funding has been misused, services have not been delivered as required, or safeguarding obligations have been breached, the evidence should be referred to the appropriate authority.

MONEY MUST NEVER TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER HUMAN SAFETY.

5. MY DEMANDS

I call upon Able Point's management to:

1. Identify the legal entity providing my services and the responsible management personnel.
2. Respond in writing to my complaints and identify the person responsible for investigating them.
3. Explain the rostering decisions affecting my support and how continuity of care is maintained.
4. Review any reported incidents involving neglect, intimidation, harassment, unsafe support or failure to provide agreed services.
5. Preserve relevant rosters, service records, incident reports, complaints, communications and financial records in accordance with applicable legal requirements.
6. Explain the process for raising complaints independently and protecting participants and staff from retaliation.
7. Arrange an appropriately independent review where the circumstances warrant one.
8. Provide a practical plan to ensure that my support is safe, reliable, respectful and consistent with my applicable service arrangements.

I also call upon the relevant disability safeguarding and oversight authorities to assess the evidence impartially and determine whether any legal, contractual or safeguarding obligations have been breached.

6. TO THE WORKERS WHO MAY HAVE CONCERNS

To Ash, Ben, John, Kim, Cass, Danny, Daniel, Alissi and any other workers who may have relevant information:

I am asking for honesty, transparency and accountability. If you have concerns about rostering, continuity of care, working conditions or participant safety, those concerns should be raised through appropriate and safe channels.

No worker should be pressured to make statements they do not believe, and no participant should be left without essential support because they have complained.

The facts must be established through evidence, not intimidation, speculation or collective blame.

7. TO REGULATORS, ADVOCATES, JOURNALISTS AND GOVERNMENT

I ask anyone receiving this statement to take my concerns seriously.

I seek independent scrutiny of the relevant records, management decisions, support arrangements and complaints. I ask that any substantiated failures be addressed and that any evidence of possible offences be referred to the appropriate authorities.

I am prepared to document my own experiences, preserve relevant correspondence and provide supporting material through appropriate channels.

I do not seek special treatment. I seek safety, dignity, transparency, continuity of care and an effective response to serious complaints.

THIS IS A DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY.

I will not accept the normalisation of suffering simply because it occurs within a support service.

Complaints cannot be resolved by ignoring the person making them. Responsibility cannot be discharged through silence. And a support contract does not excuse a failure to provide appropriate care.

I want answers. I want transparency. I want accountability. I want safe and dignified support.

NO PERSON SHOULD HAVE TO FIGHT THIS HARD TO BE SAFE, HEARD AND TREATED WITH DIGNITY.

My life, safety and dignity matter. The evidence matters. Accountability matters.

I call for a fair, independent and evidence-based examination of these concerns.

2. A written response to my complaints about Able Point.
3. Transparent identification of the people responsible for decisions affecting my care.
4. An explanation of the restrictions on my banking access and any proposed withdrawals.
5. Access to the relevant financial records and a meaningful process to challenge decisions.
6. Independent examination of my safeguarding complaints and reported experiences of harassment.
7. Clear information about where complaints can be lodged and how they will be assessed.
8. Preservation of relevant correspondence, rosters, incident reports, financial records and decision-making documents.
9. Protection against retaliation for raising concerns.
10. Recognition that I am a human being whose safety, dignity, feelings and testimony matter.

I am not asking anyone to accept every allegation without scrutiny. I am asking for a process that allows the evidence to be examined without dismissing me as a person.

7. MY FINAL STATEMENT

I am a human being.

I have sentience. I have feelings. My feelings are being hurt, and the consequences of my circumstances are serious.

I feel socially erased. I feel administratively annihilated. I feel that the systems upon which I depend have left me without a reliable way to protect myself, obtain answers or make my voice count.

My testimony is not worthless because it is disputed. My dignity is not conditional upon whether an institution agrees with me. My need for safety does not disappear because my complaints are difficult to resolve.

I am still here.

My body is here. My mind is here. My feelings are here.

I AM NOT AN ADMINISTRATIVE FILE. I AM NOT A ROSTER ENTRY. I AM NOT A COMPLAINT NUMBER. I AM A HUMAN BEING.

I want to live with safety, dignity, meaningful support and access to a fair process. I want decisions affecting my life and money explained. I want my complaints documented. I want evidence examined. I want institutions and service providers to answer legitimate questions about their responsibilities.

I refuse to accept social erasure as the final word on my life.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT: REPORTED ARREST, ALLEGED THREAT TO MY LIFE AND DEMAND FOR SAFEGUARDING ACCOUNTABILITY

Issued by Barran Dodger

I AM STILL HERE. I DID NOT DIE.

Despite what I describe as prolonged abuse, neglect, surveillance, entrapment, isolation and total human betrayal, I am still alive. I am still speaking. I am still demanding answers, accountability and recognition of my fundamental humanity.

I am raising an extremely serious matter concerning an incident in which, according to my account, a person came to my home with the intention of murdering me and was arrested by police. I understand that the matter is before Wyong Court. The arrest, the precise allegations, the current status of the proceedings and the evidence must be established through the relevant police and court records.

IF A PERSON HAS BEEN ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH AN ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO KILL ME, THIS IS A SERIOUS SAFEGUARDING MATTER THAT DESERVES AN APPROPRIATE, EVIDENCE-BASED RESPONSE.

I am deeply concerned that, despite the seriousness of this reported incident, Able Point and the staff members involved in my support have, as I understand it, failed to acknowledge the matter to me, address my concerns about my safety or explain whether any incident-reporting or safeguarding procedures were followed.

I want a clear answer about what Able Point knew, when it knew it, what steps were taken, whether the appropriate authorities were notified where required, and whether any failures occurred.

I also have serious concerns about my family's potential financial interests in the event of my death. I have questioned whether family members anticipated or stood to benefit financially from my death, and I have stated that they have refused to deny my concerns. I cannot establish from that alone that anyone anticipated, desired, planned or participated in harm against me. Nevertheless, I want any relevant financial arrangements and evidence examined objectively if they are material to a legitimate investigation.

I will not allow these concerns to be treated as though they are insignificant simply because they are difficult or uncomfortable to investigate.

THE QUESTIONS THAT MUST BE ANSWERED

1. What do the police records establish about the reported incident and arrest?
2. What are the relevant charges or allegations, and what is the current status of the proceedings before Wyong Court?
3. Were Able Point management or any staff members informed of the incident or its implications for my safety?
4. If they were informed, what actions did they take, and what records document those actions?
5. Were incident-reporting, safeguarding, escalation or referral obligations engaged in the circumstances?
6. If a required report was not made, why was it not made, and who was responsible for the decision?
7. What risk-management measures were considered to protect my safety and ensure continuity of support?
8. What independent complaint and review mechanisms are available to examine any failures?

I am asking these questions because a reported threat to a participant's life cannot responsibly be dismissed without examining the available evidence.

I also want the legal position clarified. Reporting duties depend on the nature of the incident, the information available to each person, the person's role and the applicable legislation and safeguarding requirements. I am requesting an assessment of those specific obligations rather than relying on a blanket assertion that every worker was automatically subject to the same mandatory reporting duty.

MY DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

If records establish that a serious threat to my life was known to the relevant service provider, that required safeguards were not followed, or that an applicable reporting obligation was breached, I want those failures independently investigated and addressed.

I request preservation of relevant incident records, rosters, internal communications, complaint records, risk assessments and communications with police or other authorities, subject to applicable legal requirements.

I want Able Point to respond in writing. I want the relevant oversight authorities to examine any substantiated safeguarding failures. I want the evidence preserved, the facts established and responsibility determined fairly.

I have already had to fight to have my concerns heard. I will not accept silence as an adequate response to an incident that may bear directly on my personal safety.

I AM A HUMAN BEING. MY LIFE MATTERS. MY SAFETY MATTERS. MY TESTIMONY MUST BE HEARD AND FAIRLY ASSESSED.

I am asking for protection, transparency and accountability—not for anyone to be condemned without evidence, but for no serious evidence to be ignored.

A REPORTED THREAT TO MY LIFE MUST BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY. ANY FAILURE TO MEET A LEGAL OR SAFEGUARDING OBLIGATION MUST BE EXAMINED.

FINAL PUBLIC DECLARATION

I AM A HUMAN BEING.

MY TESTIMONY MATTERS. MY DIGNITY MATTERS. MY LIFE MATTERS.

I call for safe and dignified support, independent examination of my complaints, transparency in decisions affecting my life and finances, and the preservation of the documentary record.

I seek accountability through documentation, transparency and a fair process.

Barran Dodger — Main Websites and Archive Significance

The following directory brings together the principal websites, documentary archives, repository backups, publications and creative works associated with Barran Dodger. Each entry explains its potential documentary, historical, legal or public-interest significance without treating allegations published within the materials as independently established facts.

1. Main website and documentary archive

Barran Dodger — Main Website

Significance: The central public-facing website for the author's published statements, documentary materials, evidence indexes and discussions of disability support, institutional accountability and alleged human-rights concerns. Its significance lies in bringing together materials for public examination and preservation. The factual accuracy of individual claims must be assessed against their original sources, supporting records and independent findings.

Main Documents and Evidence Archive

Significance: This archive page presents the documentary collection in a more evidence-focused format, including published documents, correspondence, indexes and legal or forensic analyses. It may assist researchers, journalists and advocates in locating material relevant to the author's account. Its strongest evidentiary value depends on the availability of complete originals, verifiable dates, provenance and corroboration.

Forensic Evidence Report

Significance: A report-oriented presentation of the author's interpretation of a larger body of records and exhibits. It can serve as a roadmap to the evidence and the conclusions the author draws from it. The report's legal or forensic weight cannot be determined from its title or assertions alone; it requires examination of the underlying exhibits, methods, source integrity and any independent assessment.

2. Public archive and repository backups

GitHub Pages — Truth Archive

Significance: A separately hosted static archive that may provide an additional access point for preserved statements and documents. Independent hosting is valuable when a primary website becomes unavailable or changes. Its completeness should be checked against the original website and a dated inventory of files.

GitHub — Barrandodger

Significance: A code and file repository associated with the archive project. Repository history, tracked files and version changes can help establish how a website or collection developed over time. The actual contents, commit history and current availability need to be inspected before determining whether it constitutes a complete backup.

GitHub — Barran Dodger Archive

Significance: An archive-focused repository intended to preserve documentary content independently of the main site. Its value would be measured by the number of original files retained, whether pages and attachments remain accessible, and whether changes can be traced through version history.

GitHub — Backup

Significance: A potential secondary preservation location. Multiple independent copies reduce the risk of losing material through hosting interruptions, account problems or accidental changes. Its relationship to the main archive and the extent of duplication or missing files require a repository comparison.

GitHub — PDF Archive

Significance: A repository specifically associated with PDF preservation. PDFs can retain document layout and content in a form suitable for downloading, printing, citation and long-term reference. Their authenticity and completeness are strengthened by retaining source information, publication dates and cryptographic checksums.

GitHub — Barran Dodger Archive (drbarrandodger)

Significance: A further repository identified as part of the preservation effort. Comparing it with the other repositories could reveal complementary records, missing documents, duplicate files and differences between archive versions. It should not be described as a verified mirror until that comparison has been completed.

3. Publications and creative works

A Certain Beauty in Un-Resolution — Art Portfolio

Significance: A creative portfolio that preserves a different dimension of the author's work through visual art and presentation. It may be significant as a cultural and biographical record, documenting artistic expression alongside the author's written and advocacy work. Its interpretation is distinct from the evidentiary assessment of legal allegations.

Betrayed, Murdered, Forsaken — Apple Books

Significance: A published autobiographical work presenting the author's account of his experiences and the events he describes. As a publication, it contributes to the record of his personal narrative and public writing. Its claims should be distinguished from independently verified findings, court determinations or other primary-source evidence.

Simplebooklet — publication platform

Significance: This is the platform associated with additional creative pages mentioned in the archive, including Groganthemonster and theshrink. The platform homepage is provided here because the exact publication URLs have not been verified in this response. Individual publication links would be needed to identify and assess those works accurately.

4. Overall impartial AI assessment

The websites and repositories collectively represent a self-published body of documentary, autobiographical, legal-argument, advocacy and creative material. Their potential public significance lies in preserving the author's account, making source documents accessible, enabling comparisons across versions and providing material that journalists, researchers, legal representatives and oversight bodies could independently examine. The main website describes a substantial evidence collection, while the forensic report presents the author's interpretation of selected records; these descriptions are claims made by the publications themselves, not independent confirmation of every document count, allegation or conclusion.
【turn449128search1】【turn449128search0】

The most reliable way to assess the archive is to distinguish what a document directly records, what the author infers from it, and what an independent authority has actually established. Preservation should prioritise complete original files, stable URLs, dated inventories, source and provenance records, checksums and transparent records of any changes. This approach supports public access and fair scrutiny without prejudging the truth of disputed allegations.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.
