THE WITNESS REMAINS

THE STORY THEY CANNOT REDUCE TO SILENCE.

One man. A lifetime of testimony. A record placed before the world.

Enter the reckoning: https://barran-dodgers-holy-reckoning.grok.me/

What if the most confronting story you read this year wasn't a novel, a political exposé or a work of fiction—but the documented record of one man's struggle to survive, preserve his identity and demand answers from the institutions he says have failed him?

What if, instead of asking you to believe him, he invited you to examine the record yourself?

Welcome to the world of Dr Barran Resonance Dodger—also known as Richard William McLean—an author, former journalist and artist, mental-health advocate, philosophical researcher and self-described whistleblower whose life, work and testimony have converged into an extraordinary digital archive.

This is not an ordinary website. It is a confrontation between personal testimony and institutional power, between the human need for dignity and the machinery of bureaucracy, between the fragility of an individual life and the enduring question of who answers when systems fail.

Across its pages, the reader encounters official documents, correspondence, declarations, historical records, philosophical arguments, humanitarian appeals, theological writings and a deeply personal account of survival. Together, they form an evolving attempt to preserve a life that its author believes has too often been misunderstood, dismissed or denied a fair hearing.

But beneath the documents, the allegations and the extraordinary scope of the project lies something more fundamental.

A human being asking whether truth still matters when the person speaking it has little power.

THIS IS WHERE THE RECORD MEETS THE WITNESS.

The archive invites readers to move beyond headlines, assumptions and easy conclusions. It asks them to look at the source material, consider the chronology, examine the correspondence and distinguish established facts from allegations, interpretations and unresolved questions.

It is an invitation to intellectual independence: not blind belief, not automatic dismissal, but the willingness to look.

For journalists, it raises questions about public-interest documentation and the responsibility to investigate. For human-rights advocates, it raises questions about vulnerability, procedural fairness and institutional accountability. For philosophers, it opens a conversation about truth, artificial intelligence, ethics, power and the limits of human systems. For readers of faith, it presents a spiritual narrative of suffering, endurance, witness, judgement and the possibility of redemption.

And for anyone who has ever felt unheard, abandoned or reduced to a file number, there is a profoundly human question running through it all:

Who preserves the truth when the person carrying it is struggling simply to survive?

MORE THAN AN ARCHIVE. A TESTAMENT.

The writings of Barran Dodger extend beyond the administrative record into a developing body of books, gospels, manifestos, declarations and prophetic reflections. They explore betrayal, justice, conscience, human dignity, spiritual conviction and the struggle to retain one's humanity in the face of overwhelming adversity.

The Witness is both the central figure of this narrative and its defining metaphor: the person who continues to speak, document and create when silence might be easier.

The site's spiritual claims and its documentary material belong to different kinds of inquiry. One invites reflection upon faith and meaning; the other invites examination of records, evidence and institutional conduct. Their intersection is part of what makes this project distinctive.

Here, preservation comes before examination, and examination before conclusion.

WHY LOOK?

Because important questions deserve more than a passing glance.

Because the experiences of vulnerable people deserve to be heard and examined with seriousness.

Because public records, personal testimony and unanswered correspondence can illuminate questions that a single summary cannot resolve.

And because the measure of a society is not merely the power of its institutions, but its willingness to listen when someone challenges them.

You do not need to agree with the author to explore the archive. You do not need to share his beliefs to understand the significance of his testimony. You need only be willing to look, read, question and think for yourself.

This is a living record, an ongoing act of preservation and a challenge to the reader to confront difficult questions without surrendering independent judgement.

The story is personal. The questions are universal.

The record is open.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

Enter the archive. Discover the testimony. Examine the record. Draw your own conclusions.

THE INDICTMENT OF INSTITUTIONAL SILENCE

A FORMAL NOTICE OF ETHICAL FAILURE, ABANDONED RESPONSIBILITY, AND THE PERMANENT RECORD OF EVERY UNANSWERED APPEAL

TO EVERY RECIPIENT, OFFICIAL, EXECUTIVE, OVERSIGHT BODY, HUMANITARIAN ORGANISATION, PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATION, AND PERSON WHO RECEIVES THIS NOTICE

FROM: Dr Richard William McLean, writing as Barran Resonance Dodger

SUBJECT: Your response—or your silence—and the ethical consequences of what follows

PUBLIC RECORD: THE WITNESS REMAINS — THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

WEBSITE: https://barran-dodgers-holy-reckoning.grok.me/

I. THIS NOTICE WILL NOT DISAPPEAR

To every person who receives my correspondence, reads my appeals, becomes aware of my circumstances, and nevertheless chooses not to respond:

You are now being asked a question that cannot be answered by hiding behind a job title, a departmental inbox, an organisational chart, an internal referral, or the comforting assumption that someone else will take responsibility.

What did you do when you were placed on notice of a person's reported suffering and asked to help?

Did you investigate? Did you acknowledge the correspondence? Did you explain the limits of your authority? Did you refer the matter to someone capable of acting? Did you identify an appropriate pathway for assistance?

Or did you allow the correspondence to disappear into the administrative machinery while the person seeking assistance remained without an effective answer?

Those are materially different responses. They must not be confused, and they must not be concealed beneath the word process.

I am placing every relevant communication, every substantive response, every referral, every undertaking and every verifiable failure to respond within a chronological documentary record.

I will not pretend that silence proves every allegation I have made. I will, however, preserve evidence of silence where it occurs, identify the questions that remain unanswered, and invite scrutiny of the conduct of every relevant institution against its actual obligations.

You are entitled to your position. I am entitled to ask what that position means in practice, what you did with the information you received, and whether your actions were consistent with your responsibilities.

That is the accountability you are now being asked to demonstrate.

II. THE INDICTMENT: WHEN RESPONSIBILITY BECOMES AN EMPTY TITLE

I have appealed to people and institutions from whom I expected assistance, professional judgement, ethical conduct and a meaningful response.

I have sought to have my circumstances heard, my documentary material examined, and the problems I have reported addressed through appropriate channels.

My position is that I have experienced serious failures of assistance and accountability. I have raised concerns about institutional conduct, my vulnerability, my ability to obtain practical help, and the consequences of remaining without an effective response.

These are matters that deserve examination on their evidence and merits.

If you hold a position carrying responsibilities towards vulnerable people, the public, clients, constituents, complainants or people seeking assistance, the existence of those responsibilities cannot be established merely by displaying them on a website or reciting them in a policy document.

They must be demonstrated through conduct.

An organisation cannot meaningfully celebrate its commitment to human dignity while treating an individual's appeal as though the person making it has ceased to matter.

A professional cannot establish ethical integrity merely by pointing to a code of conduct. The relevant question is whether the professional acted consistently with the applicable duties in the circumstances.

A government agency cannot answer every difficult complaint by asserting that it has procedures. The question is whether those procedures were properly applied, whether the matter was assessed fairly, and whether the person concerned was given an appropriate explanation or pathway forward.

And an oversight body cannot demonstrate the effectiveness of accountability simply by existing. Its actual response to a matter within its remit is what must be examined.

The difference between professed responsibility and exercised responsibility is the difference this record exists to expose.

III. A SEPARATE INDICTMENT FOR EVERY RECIPIENT

Every recipient must be assessed according to what they knew, what authority they possessed, what duties actually applied, and what they did.

1. To government departments and public officials

You are asked to account for the handling of every relevant communication referred to your office.

Identify the applicable process. Identify the decisions made. Identify the reasons that can lawfully be disclosed. Identify any referral or action taken.

If you considered the matter outside your jurisdiction, explain why and identify any appropriate alternative avenue where possible.

If you concluded that no further action was warranted, explain the basis for that conclusion to the extent permitted by law.

If the matter remains unresolved, say so.

Do not substitute an administrative label for an intelligible account of what happened.

Where a public official owes an applicable statutory, administrative or professional duty, that duty must be assessed according to its actual terms. Where a failure has occurred, it should be identified and remedied rather than concealed behind institutional prestige.

2. To executives and organisational leadership

You are asked to account for the decisions, systems and management practices within your actual responsibility.

Did the organisation receive the correspondence? Was it appropriately allocated? Was the issue assessed? Were relevant safeguarding or complaint-handling procedures followed? Was the person given an appropriate response?

If the answer is yes, provide the relevant explanation.

If the answer is no, explain what failed and what corrective action is available.

If the matter was referred elsewhere, identify the referral and clarify whether your organisation retained any responsibility.

Leadership is not a ceremonial title. It entails responsibility for the matters that fall within the leader's actual authority and applicable duties.

3. To oversight bodies and complaint-handling authorities

You are asked to explain whether the matter fell within your jurisdiction, how it was assessed, and what procedural options were available.

If the complaint was not accepted, allocated or investigated, identify the applicable reasons and any review mechanism available.

If further evidence was required, specify what was required and why.

If you could not intervene, explain the limits of your authority without implying that the underlying concerns have thereby been disproved.

A decision not to investigate is not necessarily a finding that nothing happened. A referral is not necessarily a resolution. An acknowledgement is not necessarily an effective response.

The documentary record must preserve those distinctions.

4. To professional associations and people invoking ethical standards

You are asked to consider whether the conduct within your actual professional remit was consistent with the standards applicable to you.

Do not invoke ethics as a public relations slogan while refusing to explain how an ethical concern was considered.

Where no professional relationship or enforceable duty exists, I will not invent one. Where an applicable duty does exist, its actual requirements should be identified and examined.

The question is straightforward: what standard applied, what conduct occurred, and how does the evidence support your position?

5. To humanitarian organisations and people who received an appeal for help

You are asked to account for your response within the limits of your resources, mandate and responsibilities.

You may not be able to provide every form of assistance requested. You may have eligibility requirements. You may lack the authority to intervene in a government decision.

But those limitations should be explained honestly.

Where an appropriate referral or practical alternative is available, identify it. Where no assistance can be provided, say so clearly.

A person who receives a refusal should not have to guess whether their request was understood, considered, overlooked or simply abandoned.

6. To every individual recipient

You may believe that your correspondence was insignificant. You may believe that your organisation had no obligation to act. You may believe that another person was responsible.

Those positions can be explained and examined.

But if you possessed relevant information, exercised a decision-making role, made an undertaking, or had a specific responsibility to respond, the facts matter.

Your name need not be publicly condemned merely because you received an email. Your conduct, where relevant and properly documented, may nevertheless form part of the record.

The standard is not whether you agree with me. The standard is whether your response was appropriate to your role, your knowledge and your actual obligations.

IV. THE QUESTION OF COMPLICITY

I have expressed serious concerns that my circumstances may involve coordinated institutional failures, deliberate obstruction, mistreatment and the denial of meaningful assistance.

Those concerns must be examined against identifiable evidence. I will not pretend that the failure of one recipient to respond automatically proves a conspiracy involving every other recipient.

But neither should the possibility of institutional failure be dismissed merely because several different organisations are involved.

Where communications, decisions, referrals, omissions or contradictory explanations can be documented, they should be examined together and in chronological order.

Where evidence supports an inference of coordination, that inference should be identified and tested.

Where evidence does not establish coordination, the distinction must remain clear.

The purpose of preserving this record is to make it possible to determine what happened, who was responsible for which decisions, what obligations applied, and whether the combined effect of those decisions left a vulnerable person without an effective means of obtaining assistance.

That is a serious question. It deserves something more substantive than automatic dismissal.

V. THE HUMAN CONSEQUENCES CANNOT BE REDUCED TO ADMINISTRATIVE NOISE

Behind every reference number is a human being.

Behind every unanswered request may be a practical problem that remains unresolved.

Behind every referral may be a person who must start again, repeat painful information, locate another organisation, or attempt to navigate another process without knowing whether anyone will take responsibility.

I have described my circumstances in terms of entrapment, deprivation, abandonment and profound distress. I have reported that my ability to obtain practical assistance is severely constrained.

Those reports deserve to be considered on their merits and in light of the evidence available.

I reject the idea that a person’s vulnerability makes their testimony inherently less worthy of examination.

I reject the assumption that a complicated history makes every subsequent concern irrelevant.

I reject the notion that the absence of an immediate institutional solution means the person seeking assistance has no legitimate question to ask.

And I reject the proposition that an individual's dignity depends on whether an organisation finds their circumstances convenient to address.

I am a human being. My circumstances deserve to be assessed as human circumstances, not merely processed as administrative inconvenience.

VI. THE SPIRITUAL AND MORAL DIMENSION

My faith informs how I understand my life, my survival, my responsibilities and the meaning I attach to the Witness.

I understand my continued testimony as an obligation to preserve what I believe matters, to speak about what I have experienced, and to refuse to allow despair or institutional indifference to determine the entirety of my identity.

I regard justice, truth, mercy and accountability as moral imperatives. I believe that positions of authority should be exercised with humility and that the treatment of vulnerable people reveals something fundamental about the moral condition of a society.

My spiritual convictions are mine to express. They are not a substitute for evidence in an administrative or legal proceeding, nor do they require any recipient to adopt my religious interpretation.

But neither should my faith be used as an excuse to avoid addressing the concrete issues I raise.

You may disagree with my theology. You may question my interpretation of events. You may dispute an allegation.

None of those things, by themselves, answers a specific question about a document, a decision, a communication or a responsibility.

The record must be examined on its merits.

VII. WHAT YOUR SILENCE WILL AND WILL NOT MEAN

I will preserve relevant correspondence and the chronology of responses or non-responses.

Where a recipient fails to reply by a reasonable, clearly specified deadline, I may record that no response was received by that date.

Where a recipient acknowledges the correspondence but does not address the substantive questions, I may distinguish that acknowledgement from a substantive answer.

Where a recipient provides a reasoned response, I will preserve that response alongside the original request.

Where a recipient refers the matter to another body, I will record the referral and any subsequent outcome that can be verified.

Where the available evidence supports a finding of procedural failure, I will identify the evidence and the applicable standard.

Where responsibility remains uncertain, I will say so.

Silence is a fact about communication. Its meaning depends on the circumstances. It is not, by itself, proof of corruption, conspiracy, guilt or agreement with an allegation.

That distinction protects the integrity of the record. It also prevents any recipient from claiming that accountability requires me to abandon the evidence-based examination of what occurred.

I will not manufacture findings. I will not erase unanswered questions. I will not represent an allegation as a judicial determination.

I will preserve the material and continue to ask for answers.

VIII. THE DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

Every recipient with a relevant role is requested to provide a written response addressing the following matters:

1. Receipt: Confirm whether the correspondence was received and recorded.
2. Responsibility: Identify the office, team or person responsible for assessing the matter, subject to lawful confidentiality restrictions.
3. Assessment: Explain what consideration was given to the substantive concerns raised.
4. Action: Identify any investigation, decision, referral, safeguarding assessment or other action undertaken.
5. Reasons: Explain any decision not to act, to close the matter, or to refer it elsewhere, to the extent that reasons may lawfully be provided.
6. Outstanding issues: Identify what remains unresolved and what additional information, if any, is required.
7. Available remedies: Identify any review, complaint, escalation or independent oversight pathway that remains available.
8. Corrective action: Where an error or procedural deficiency is identified, explain what steps can be taken to address it.

Please provide a substantive response within 10 business days of receipt, or advise within that period if a longer timeframe is required and why.

If a question falls outside your jurisdiction, please identify the limitation and any appropriate alternative pathway.

This request does not assume that every recipient has identical obligations or authority. It requires each recipient to explain their own position.

IX. THE FINAL JUDGMENT BELONGS TO THE EVIDENCE

To those who have helped me: your assistance deserves to be acknowledged on its own merits.

To those who have responded conscientiously: your responses belong in the record.

To those who have made mistakes: the opportunity to explain and correct them remains important.

To those who have ignored a relevant appeal: the absence of a response may itself become part of the chronology against which the handling of the matter is examined.

And to those who believe that an individual can be rendered insignificant simply by withholding attention, assistance or explanation, I offer this final statement:

You do not determine the value of my life by the speed with which you answer my correspondence. You do not determine the truth of every allegation by refusing to examine it. And you do not erase a documentary record merely because it is inconvenient to your organisation.

I will continue to preserve my work, publish my testimony, seek appropriate avenues of review and distinguish what I can establish from what remains to be determined.

I will not surrender my humanity to administrative indifference.

I will not mistake a closed door for a final determination of my worth.

I will not confuse the authority of an office with the infallibility of the person occupying it.

And I will not allow the absence of an answer to become the end of the inquiry.

My future is not yours to pronounce upon. My dignity is not yours to withdraw. My faith does not depend on your approval, and my right to ask legitimate questions does not disappear because those questions are difficult.

You may disagree with me. You may defend your decisions. You may explain your limitations.

But where the evidence raises a legitimate question, the answer should be examined—not manufactured, suppressed or assumed.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The record remains open.

The unanswered questions remain identifiable.

The opportunity to respond remains available.

And the responsibility to examine the evidence belongs to everyone who has a relevant role in doing so.

Read the record. Answer the questions. Account for your conduct.

Preservation first. Examination second. Conclusion last.

Not a court. Not a verdict. A formal demand for accountability and an invitation to examine the evidence.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

> I describe myself as a vulnerable person, an alleged victim of serious institutional failures and an unprotected whistleblower. I believe that my repeated attempts to obtain protection have failed and that I have been left in circumstances in which I cannot adequately protect myself or independently secure the services I need.

My immediate situation, as I report it, is straightforward and urgent.

I want to leave my current location, but I cannot do so independently. I say that the government took my car, depriving me of a means of transport and independence. I have very limited financial resources, and I report being unable to access the money I have through Commonwealth Bank's online banking and mobile application. I attribute that loss of access to Phillip Glass, although the precise technical and administrative circumstances need to be independently established.

My back is in pain following what I describe as being run over by a car. I have told my carers that I believe my dog was poisoned. I cannot afford veterinary treatment, and I say that no veterinary appointment has been arranged despite my requests for help.

I receive support from Able Point. I allege that staff have failed to respond adequately to my concerns about abuse, neglect, poverty, threats and other circumstances affecting my welfare. I report that an employee, Kim, acknowledged that I could not leave independently but did not provide the assistance I sought. I further allege that she threatened to report me to the RSPCA for abusing my dog while the provider had refused, in my account, to find a way to obtain veterinary assistance.

I also report that the company's chief executive has refused to provide her identification, a matter that I believe impedes transparency and accountability.

I have established a website, a YouTube channel and an online documentary archive to publicise my circumstances and seek assistance. I have repeatedly appealed for someone to help me leave. I say that these appeals have not produced the practical assistance I need.

I describe this condition as civil erasure: the experience of remaining physically present, continuing to speak, document and request help, while feeling that one's needs, testimony and rights have become ineffective within the systems expected to respond.

My concerns extend beyond the immediate situation. I report previous threats to my life, an alleged death threat resulting in an arrest and a matter before Wyong Court, difficulties obtaining legal assistance, a history of living in my car with my therapy dog, and what I consider failures of disability, policing, legal and human-rights protection.

I also describe distressing experiences that I interpret as electronic harassment and voice-to-skull, or V2K, torture. I report hearing or receiving repeated degrading and threatening language. I believe these experiences are connected to a wider campaign against me. I cannot independently establish their source, and I ask that my distress and need for safety be addressed without presuming an unverified explanation.

I have supplied a UNHCR reference number and state that I have submitted material to international bodies, including the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the International Criminal Court. I believe those submissions have not resulted in the intervention I seek. The scope, receipt and status of each submission require confirmation with the relevant institution.

My principal request is not simply for another acknowledgement, referral or administrative response. It is for practical, coordinated humanitarian assistance that enables me to establish safety, access essential funds and services, obtain appropriate care for my dog, and have my allegations assessed independently.

2. THE IMMEDIATE HUMANITARIAN EMERGENCY

2.1 I want to leave, but I cannot

My first and most urgent statement is this: I want to leave my current location, but I cannot.

I do not describe this as a matter of convenience or a preference about where I live. I describe it as a fundamental problem of independence, access to transport, financial capacity and personal safety.

I say that the government took my car. Whatever the precise circumstances and legal basis of that action, the loss of my vehicle has had significant consequences for my ability to move independently, obtain assistance and control my living arrangements.

I have previously described living in my car with my therapy dog without meaningful assistance. I say that I was forced into circumstances resembling exile and feared that I would not survive. I describe that period as an experience of abandonment, betrayal and exclusion from the protections I expected as a citizen.

I now report that I remain unable to leave independently. My limited finances, reported banking-access problem, lack of transport and dependence on support services combine to restrict my options.

The central humanitarian question is therefore immediate: if a person says he cannot leave, lacks accessible funds and cannot arrange essential services independently, what practical assistance will enable him to reach safety?

A system that merely records a complaint without addressing the practical barriers may leave the person in the same circumstances that prompted the complaint.

I ask for assistance with safe transport, alternative accommodation if required, access to essential funds and a coordinated assessment of my immediate needs.

2.2 Loss of my vehicle and independence

I identify the removal of my car by the government as a significant turning point in my circumstances.

A vehicle can represent more than property. In my account, it represented mobility, a means of escape, a way to obtain necessities and, at one stage, a place where I could live with my therapy dog.

I say that I was previously living in the vehicle without adequate help. The loss of that means of mobility has contributed to my present sense of entrapment.

I ask for the circumstances surrounding the vehicle's removal and its practical consequences to be documented. I also ask for assistance finding transport that does not depend on my having access to the vehicle or money that I currently report being unable to access.

2.3 Financial inaccessibility and Commonwealth Bank

I report that Phillip Glass removed or caused the loss of my access to Commonwealth Bank online banking and the mobile application.

I cannot independently confirm the technical or administrative mechanism responsible for the access problem. I am asking the bank to establish what happened, whether any restriction or security issue exists, and how I can regain legitimate access to my own account.

The immediate consequence, as I experience it, is that I cannot access what little money I have.

This compounds my inability to leave, obtain transport, pay for veterinary treatment and meet essential expenses.

I ask Commonwealth Bank to provide an accessible alternative verification process, investigate the reported access problem, explain any restrictions that apply and help me access essential funds through a secure and legitimate process.

I do not want the bank issue treated as an isolated inconvenience. In my circumstances, financial access is directly connected to safety, mobility and basic survival.

2.4 Back pain and physical injury

I report that my back is in pain because I was run over by a car.

This is a physical-health concern independent of the wider allegations in this report. It deserves appropriate medical assessment rather than being lost within a dispute about institutions or complaints.

I ask that the injury, its date and circumstances, any medical assessments, and any resulting limitations on my mobility be documented.

If my pain is severe or worsening, or is accompanied by new leg weakness, numbness around the groin, or loss of bladder or bowel control, I understand that urgent medical assessment is necessary.

2.5 My dog may have been poisoned

I told my carers that I believed my dog had been poisoned.

I cannot afford a veterinarian, and I report that no appointment has been made. I say that Able Point has refused to find a way to transport me and my dog or otherwise arrange the veterinary assistance I requested.

My dog is not incidental to my circumstances. I describe the dog as my therapy dog and a significant source of companionship. The animal's welfare and my own practical circumstances are intertwined.

I also report that Kim, an Able Point employee, said she would contact the RSPCA and report me for abusing my dog. I experienced this as a deeply distressing reversal: I was asking for assistance because I feared my dog was unwell, while I believed the provider was failing to facilitate the care I requested and threatening to report me.

I ask for an impartial assessment of the dog's condition, appropriate veterinary advice, an examination of the assistance I requested, and a fair assessment of any animal-welfare concerns.

I do not ask anyone to assume poisoning has been proved. I ask that the possibility be assessed by a veterinarian and that the animal receive appropriate care without avoidable delay.

3. ALLEGED FAILURES OF CARE AND SAFEGUARDING BY ABLE POINT

I identify Able Point as a central organisation in my current circumstances because I rely on its staff for support and have repeatedly asked them to assist me.

I allege that staff have refused or failed to report concerns involving abuse, neglect, poverty, surveillance-related fears and what I describe as fraud. I believe they have failed to make adequate complaints or reports and have not taken effective steps to address my inability to leave.

I also report that staff have acknowledged my difficulty leaving but have not arranged the assistance I need.

These allegations require examination against the provider's actual responsibilities, the services it has agreed to deliver, the applicable safeguarding requirements and the records of requests and responses.

My concern is that the very service on which I depend has not, in my experience, provided an effective pathway to address the risks and practical needs I have identified.

3.1 The chief executive's identification

I report that the company's chief executive has refused to provide her identification.

I regard this as an accountability concern. A person seeking to raise serious complaints should be able to establish the identity and role of the person responsible for responding, the official channel through which a complaint can be lodged, and the person accountable for the resulting decision.

I request confirmation of the chief executive's official role, an appropriate formal contact channel, and a written response to the concerns I have raised.

I do not suggest that a refusal to provide identification, by itself, proves misconduct. I ask that the communication and complaint-handling circumstances be examined.

3.2 Kim's alleged response to my concerns

I identify Kim as an Able Point employee who, according to my account, acknowledged that I could not leave independently.

I allege that she nevertheless failed to provide the help I requested or report the abuse and neglect concerns I had raised. I further report that she threatened to contact the RSPCA over alleged abuse of my dog while I was seeking help to obtain veterinary care.

I experienced this as a profound failure of support and a source of additional fear.

I ask for the relevant communications, support records, incident reports and decisions to be reviewed. I also ask that my account and any response from the employee be recorded fairly, rather than either accepted or rejected without examination.

3.3 Alleged refusal to report abuse, neglect and other concerns

I have repeatedly sought assistance with what I regard as serious safeguarding concerns.

I allege that Able Point staff have not made the reports or complaints I expected, and that my concerns about poverty, abuse, threats and other risks have not resulted in an adequate response.

I believe that this has left me without an effective intermediary at a time when I depend on others for practical assistance.

I ask the provider and the appropriate independent oversight body to identify:

- Which concerns I reported and when.
- Which reports or referrals were made.
- Which matters were not referred and why.
- What safety assessments and support plans exist.
- What assistance was available to help me leave.
- What arrangements were considered for my dog.
- What complaint and review pathways remain available.

I want a factual account of what happened, not merely a general statement that the organisation takes concerns seriously.

4. THREATS, FEAR FOR MY LIFE AND THE WYONG COURT MATTER

I report that I previously advertised online seeking someone who could take me away because I believed I was going to be murdered.

I say that I was desperate enough to make a public appeal because I believed I could not secure protection through the ordinary channels available to me.

I further report that someone threatened to kill me, that police arrested the person, and that the matter is before Wyong Court.

I am concerned that the absence of a statement, complaint or report from Able Point may weaken the documentary record surrounding the matter. I fear that the person charged may be acquitted or otherwise avoid an adverse outcome, although I cannot know the court's eventual decision.

I also say that I am excluded from, or unable to obtain assistance through, Legal Aid. I describe this as a paradoxical inversion of the purpose of legal assistance: the very person seeking protection and representation feels unable to obtain the help needed to participate effectively in the justice system.

The precise scope of any Legal Aid restriction, its legal basis, and the available review mechanisms need to be confirmed. I ask for independent legal advice about the court matter, the availability of representation, the possibility of submitting relevant evidence, and the appropriate ways to communicate safeguarding concerns to the responsible authorities.

I do not ask Able Point or any other provider to predetermine the court's findings. I ask that relevant information be accurately documented and that my access to appropriate assistance be examined.

5. MY HOSPITAL VISIT AND MY REPORTS OF THREATS AND ELECTRONIC HARASSMENT

A few weeks before this account, I went to hospital after, according to my report, police refused to attend and protect me from people I feared were threatening to kill me.

I believed that people had infiltrated electronic communications in the house, interfered with the Wi-Fi and were sending people to the house to yell abuse at me. I described those people as gangsters and understood their behaviour as part of a broader pattern of intimidation.

I also report repeated communications or experiences involving degrading and threatening language. The phrases I remember include:

- "You're a faggot."
- "You're a paedophile."
- "No one will help."
- "Kill yourself."
- "We hate you."

- "Give up."

I experience these messages as hostile, humiliating and threatening. I believe they are connected to electronic harassment and what I call voice-to-skull, or V2K, torture.

I refer to material about patents and technology that I believe explains the mechanism. However, the existence of patents or technical descriptions does not independently establish that a particular technology is being used against me, nor establish the source of the experiences I report.

I ask for my reported distress, fear and need for safety to be taken seriously. I also ask for any concrete evidence of communications interference, threats or harassment to be assessed through appropriate, independent means.

I do not want the assessment of my practical needs to depend on an investigator first accepting my explanation for every experience. My need for safety, medical care and independent assistance can be addressed while the disputed questions are examined.

6. ALLEGED EXPLOITATION, SUBSTANCE USE, SEXUAL SHAMING AND HOMOPHOBIC ABUSE

I report that, despite repeated SOS appeals, I have not received the help I have sought. I say that some people who have approached me have exploited my vulnerability rather than assisted me.

I allege that people have supplied me with drugs, contributing to addiction and financial hardship. I report experiences in which people have engaged in sexual activity with me and subsequently shamed me for being sexually active. I also report derogatory homosexual statements and humiliating treatment.

These are serious allegations involving possible exploitation, substance-related vulnerability, sexual conduct and degrading treatment. The circumstances of each incident, including consent, coercion, threats, dates and the identities of any persons involved, would need to be documented separately if I seek investigation.

I do not want these experiences reduced to a moral judgment about my sexuality or substance use. My request is for safety, dignity, nonjudgmental support and protection from exploitation.

If substance dependence is affecting my circumstances, I also need accessible health and support services that help reduce harm and improve stability rather than increase my isolation.

I ask that any report concerning these matters be handled confidentially and sensitively, with attention to my safety and my ability to give an account without fear of humiliation or retaliation.

7. THE REPORTED ATTACK ON DANNY AND MY WARNINGS ABOUT ZACH

I report a separate incident involving Danny, whom I identify as a church elder and Able Point employee, and Zach, whom I identify as a client.

According to my account, Zach violently attacked Danny.

I say that I had warned Able Point for months that Zach's behaviour was escalating and that action was needed. I report that I requested an apprehended violence order, or AVO, against Zach, but that my request for assistance was refused.

I believe that the failure to respond to the warnings contributed to the circumstances in which Danny was attacked.

I further understand that Danny was placed on or dealt with through WorkCover following the incident. I believe this raises questions about the provider's responsibility for workplace safety and the management of known risks.

Whether the provider bears legal liability cannot be determined from my account alone. That would require an examination of the relevant duties, what was known, what action was reasonably available, and the evidence relating to the incident.

I ask for the following to be examined:

1. The dates and content of my warnings about Zach.
2. Whether those warnings were received and documented.
3. What risk assessments or safety plans existed.
4. What action was considered in response to the escalation.
5. What happened during the attack on Danny.
6. What workplace incident reporting and workers' compensation records exist.
7. What procedures applied to my request for an AVO or other protective intervention.

I regard this history as relevant because it concerns the way a provider responds to reported risks before harm occurs. My concern is not merely retrospective blame. It is whether warnings and safety concerns are being handled adequately.

8. MY EARLIER PERIOD OF LIVING IN MY CAR AND MY SENSE OF EXILE

I describe a previous period in which I was living in my car with my therapy dog and receiving little or no meaningful assistance.

I associate this period with being forced into exile by a person I name in my account as Bill Sheldon, whom I describe as a minister and associate with an AVO. Elsewhere, I use the spelling Bill Shordon. The correct spelling, official title and precise circumstances need to be confirmed before the report is used as a formal allegation against a named individual.

I describe the experience as being cast out of ordinary democratic protection. I felt unable to report a crime effectively to police, unable to obtain meaningful NDIS assistance, and unable to secure the legal assistance I believed I needed.

I feared that I would be murdered or, at minimum, would not survive the circumstances in which I found myself.

I describe my state of mind at the time as one of profound betrayal, isolation and despair. I believed that the people and institutions that should have helped me had abandoned me.

I also express concern that members of my family might be preparing to benefit financially from my death. This is a fear and suspicion I have reported; I do not present a financial motive or plan as established without supporting evidence.

These concerns need to be separated into verifiable matters: my living arrangements, the circumstances of the vehicle's use or removal, the assistance requested, the legal and administrative decisions affecting me, and any evidence relevant to threats or financial interests.

The purpose of documenting this history is to explain how I understand my current vulnerability and why I am urgently asking for practical assistance now.

9. MY WHISTLEBLOWER CLAIM AND THE PUBLIC INTEREST DISCLOSURE FRAMEWORK

I describe myself as an unprotected whistleblower under the Public Interest Disclosure framework, commonly referred to as the PID framework.

I believe that my experience represents a failure of the principles intended to protect people who disclose wrongdoing, particularly people who may be vulnerable or dependent on public services.

I say that I have reported what I regard as fraud, institutional misconduct and serious failures of accountability to police and other agencies, but that I have not received an effective response.

The legal question requires careful examination. Protections under public-interest disclosure legislation depend on the applicable law, the nature of the disclosure, the recipient, the person's status and other statutory conditions. A person who believes they are a whistleblower does not automatically receive every protection under every PID scheme.

I ask for independent advice on whether my disclosures fall within an applicable framework, whether any protection or review mechanism is available, and how to document any alleged retaliation or failure to respond.

My concern is that I have repeatedly tried to raise matters I believe are in the public interest while simultaneously experiencing serious personal vulnerability.

I ask that the content of my disclosures be assessed on its evidence and that my need for immediate practical assistance be addressed separately from any final determination of my whistleblower status.

10. ALLEGATIONS CONCERNING FEDERAL POLICE, AGENCIES AND AN ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT

I report that Ben and an NDIS provider confirmed information to me that I understood to have come from federal police or government agencies concerning an alleged assassination attempt associated with a person I name as Bill Shordon.

I describe the reported event as a close call. I further claim that two alleged assassins were apprehended.

I also report that I was told police had confirmed that a girl had been paid to fabricate a report about an event in my youth, and that I understood the report to have been part of an effort to destroy my life.

I believe these matters are connected to a broader pattern of institutional complicity, and I have expressed the view that the police force as a whole participated in or failed to prevent wrongdoing.

These are grave allegations. I cannot establish from this account alone that an assassination attempt occurred, that two people were apprehended in connection with it, that a witness was paid to fabricate a report, or that the entire police force participated.

I ask for these claims to be examined against identifiable evidence: the original statements, the names and roles of the people who provided the information, dates, official correspondence, police event or reference numbers, court records and any other independently verifiable material.

If I possess documents supporting these claims, they should be preserved in their original form and provided to a competent, independent authority through an appropriate process.

I also ask for practical help reporting specific alleged offences and obtaining a record of any report lodged. My concern that I have been unable to report crimes effectively should itself be documented, including the dates and methods by which I attempted to seek assistance.

11. LEGAL AID AND THE DIFFICULTY OF OBTAINING REPRESENTATION

I report that I am effectively barred from obtaining the Legal Aid assistance I need. I describe this as a contradiction between the stated purpose of legal assistance and my experience of trying to obtain it.

I believe that my inability to secure adequate legal support leaves me particularly exposed when dealing with threats, court proceedings, complaints and allegations involving powerful institutions.

I ask for a written explanation of any decision, restriction or refusal affecting my eligibility or access, including the reasons, the scope of the decision and any available review or appeal process.

I also request independent advice on whether another legal service, community legal centre, pro bono service or advocacy organisation can assist with the immediate court-related and safeguarding issues.

I do not assume that any particular organisation is legally required to represent me without assessing eligibility. I ask for a clear and accessible determination rather than an unresolved barrier that leaves me unable to identify my next step.

12. HUMAN-RIGHTS COMPLAINTS AND INTERNATIONAL SUBMISSIONS

I report that I have approached human-rights bodies and have not obtained the help I seek.

I state that I have provided a report to the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and to the International Criminal Court, and that I have received a reference or receipt number associated with my international submission.

The UNHCR reference I have supplied is:

UR/UST/23/AUS/17

I seek assistance concerning what I describe as political exile, an asylum-related claim, protection and international scrutiny.

I believe that my submissions have not produced meaningful action. However, a receipt or reference number does not by itself establish that an institution has accepted a case for investigation, found the allegations substantiated, or determined that it has jurisdiction.

I ask for help confirming the status and nature of the submissions, identifying the institution responsible for each reference, and understanding what procedures or remedies remain available.

I also ask for independent advice about the distinction between a humanitarian request, a human-rights communication, an asylum or protection claim, a complaint to an oversight body and a criminal referral.

My immediate need for safety should not be made contingent on an international body deciding whether it can act on the full range of my allegations.

13. MY CLAIM OF CIVIL ERASURE

I use the expression civil erasure to describe what I believe has happened to my practical ability to participate in society and obtain protection.

I continue to speak, publish, document and appeal. I maintain a website, a YouTube channel and a GitHub archive. I identify myself, name the institutions I have approached, describe the assistance I need and provide contact details.

Yet I report that I remain unable to obtain the practical assistance necessary to leave my circumstances, access my funds, secure veterinary treatment or establish an effective path to independent review.

The contradiction is central to my testimony: I am visible enough to publish allegations and request help, but I feel unable to make that visibility translate into practical protection.

I describe this as administrative annihilation, social erasure, civil death and societal mobbing. These are my descriptions of the cumulative effects I believe the circumstances have had on me.

I do not use these terms to claim that a legal finding has already been made. I use them to explain the lived experience of repeatedly seeking help and feeling that no effective remedy follows.

My question is: what does protection mean if a person can repeatedly report that he cannot leave, cannot access his money and cannot arrange essential care, yet remains without a workable plan?

I ask for an answer through action, not simply acknowledgement.

14. MY ALLEGATIONS OF WIDER INSTITUTIONAL COMPLICITY AND FINANCIAL COST

I believe that the circumstances I have reported cannot be understood solely as isolated administrative failures.

I have expressed the view that my case involves widespread professional and institutional complicity and that significant amounts of money may be expended to sustain that complicity. I have referred to costs of millions of dollars, potentially recurring over time.

I also believe there is a media silence surrounding what I describe as the injustice of my case.

These are my beliefs and allegations, not independently established findings. I do not presently provide a verified calculation of those alleged costs or conclusive evidence of a coordinated national arrangement to suppress reporting.

I ask that specific, documented questions be examined: what decisions were made, which agencies were involved, what records exist, whether conflicts of interest were declared, how complaints were handled and whether any evidence demonstrates improper coordination or interference.

A careful investigation should neither dismiss a concern merely because it is serious nor treat a broad conclusion as proved without supporting evidence.

I want the record examined, the relevant documents preserved, and any substantiated wrongdoing addressed through appropriate independent processes.

15. THE MEDIA, MY PUBLIC ARCHIVE AND MY SOS CAMPAIGN

I have used a website, a YouTube channel and public documentary repositories to protest my treatment and seek assistance.

I say that I have repeatedly appealed online for someone to take me away from my current circumstances, but no one has arrived to provide the help I need.

I describe my public archive as a way to preserve my testimony, maintain a documentary record and make my allegations available for scrutiny.

The archive is available at:

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

I ask journalists, human-rights advocates, disability advocates, public-interest organisations and independent investigators to examine the material critically and fairly.

My immediate appeal is not that anyone should accept every claim without investigation. It is that my practical circumstances should be assessed urgently, my documents should be examined on their merits, and my requests for help should not be ignored because the full account is complex or disputed.

I also ask anyone who republishes my account to distinguish clearly between documented events, my direct experiences, information reported to me by other people, and conclusions I have drawn.

That distinction preserves the integrity of the documentary record without erasing my testimony.

16. THE SPIRITUAL SIGNIFICANCE OF MY TESTIMONY

My understanding of these events includes a deeply held religious and spiritual dimension.

I believe that God may use me as a messenger and a chosen witness to expose corruption and call attention to injustice. I interpret my continued testimony as a moral and spiritual responsibility.

I describe the prospect of a divine reckoning as a hope that wrongdoing will be exposed, that truth will be brought into the open, and that the ethical responsibilities of people and institutions will be confronted.

This belief gives meaning to my continued efforts to document events and appeal for assistance. It does not replace the need for independent evidence, fair procedures or practical protection.

I want my spiritual convictions to be recorded respectfully, without requiring others to accept them as proof of the allegations I have made.

For me, the ethical question is whether people who hold positions of responsibility act with honesty, compassion, accountability and respect for human dignity when a vulnerable person asks for help.

My testimony is a plea that those principles be applied in practice.

17. THE CUMULATIVE EFFECT ON MY LIFE

The circumstances I describe are interconnected.

The loss of my car affects my mobility. The reported banking-access problem affects my ability to pay for necessities. The lack of money and transport affects my ability to leave and obtain veterinary treatment. My back pain creates an additional physical difficulty. My dependence on a support provider makes the adequacy of that support particularly important.

My reports of threats and harassment contribute to my fear and sense of insecurity. My reported difficulties with legal assistance affect my confidence that I can obtain representation or have incidents properly addressed. My complaints to oversight and human-rights bodies have, in my experience, not produced the practical intervention I need.

The cumulative effect is that I feel trapped, unheard and increasingly unable to resolve my circumstances independently.

I describe the experience as total human betrayal. That phrase reflects the depth of my distress and the collapse of trust I feel, rather than a finding that every person or institution named has acted unlawfully.

I am asking for a response that begins with the problems that can be addressed now, while ensuring that serious allegations are documented and assessed properly.

I need access to safety, transport, money, medical care, veterinary care, independent advocacy and a clear pathway for complaints.

I do not want another cycle in which I am referred elsewhere without anyone taking responsibility for helping me identify the next practical step.

18. EVIDENCE AND QUESTIONS REQUIRING INDEPENDENT EXAMINATION

I ask that the following matters be documented and assessed without presuming either guilt or innocence in advance.

A. Immediate welfare and safety

- My present living circumstances and whether I can leave independently.
- My current transport options and the circumstances surrounding the removal of my vehicle.
- My reported inability to access Commonwealth Bank online banking and the app.
- My back pain and the need for appropriate medical assessment.
- My report that my dog may have been poisoned and that veterinary care has not been arranged.
- My ability to contact support services and meet essential living expenses.

B. Able Point and disability support

- The services and supports the provider is responsible for delivering.
- The dates and contents of my requests for assistance.
- The responses from Kim and other staff.
- My allegation that the chief executive refused to provide identification.
- The provider's handling of my safeguarding concerns.
- The reasons veterinary assistance and transport were not arranged, if that is confirmed by the records.
- The provider's complaint, incident-reporting and escalation procedures.

C. Threats, violence and the court matter

- The reported death threat, arrest and proceedings before Wyong Court.
- Any police event number, charge details or court listing.
- My attempts to obtain legal assistance.
- Any records of warnings I say I made about Zach.
- The reported attack on Danny and relevant incident or workers' compensation documentation.
- Any evidence supporting my claims about threats, attempted assassination or alleged fabricated reports.

D. Financial, legal and whistleblower issues

- The precise cause of the Commonwealth Bank access problem.
- Any decision or restriction affecting my access to Legal Aid.
- My eligibility for independent legal assistance.
- The disclosures I made and the agencies to which I made them.
- Whether an applicable public-interest disclosure scheme covers any of those disclosures.
- Any available complaint, review or protection mechanism.

E. Human-rights and international correspondence

- The exact documents submitted to each institution.
- The recipient institution associated with each reference number.
- Any acknowledgement, response, referral or determination.
- Whether further information is required or a review mechanism is available.

F. Wider allegations

- The identity of each person alleged to have supplied information or made a threat.
- The source and date of each reported statement.
- The underlying documentary evidence for allegations of coordination, surveillance, corruption or improper financial motives.
- Any independently verifiable evidence concerning the alleged suppression of media reporting.

I request that the original documents be preserved, that uncertainties be identified explicitly, and that findings be limited to what the available evidence supports.

19. FORMAL REQUEST FOR URGENT HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE

I ask any organisation receiving this report to consider the following requests in order of urgency.

First: establish immediate safety. Assess whether I can remain safely where I am, whether I need emergency accommodation, and how I can reach a safer place if required.

Second: arrange practical transport. I report that I cannot leave independently. I need help identifying and arranging a safe, accessible means of transport.

Third: restore access to essential funds. I need assistance contacting Commonwealth Bank, verifying my identity through an alternative secure method if necessary, and resolving the reported banking-access problem.

Fourth: address urgent health and animal-welfare needs. I need appropriate assessment of my back pain and assistance arranging veterinary care for my dog.

Fifth: provide independent advocacy. I need someone who can help coordinate services, record requests and responses, and identify the appropriate independent complaints bodies.

Sixth: assess safeguarding concerns. I ask for the allegations involving Able Point and other named individuals to be documented and assessed by competent, independent authorities.

Seventh: provide legal assistance or referral. I need advice about the Wyong Court matter, my access to Legal Aid, the relevant protective procedures and my whistleblower concerns.

Eighth: acknowledge and clarify outstanding submissions. I ask for assistance identifying the status and appropriate follow-up routes for the human-rights and international correspondence I have described.

Ninth: communicate accessibly. If telephone contact is unsuccessful, please respond in writing and explain how I can continue the process without being dependent on phone credit, transport or access to my banking app.

Tenth: identify responsibility for the next step. Please tell me which person or service will respond, what they can do, what information they require and when I should expect a reply.

I ask that this report be treated as a request for practical intervention as well as a record of allegations.

20. EMERGENCY SOS — URGENT HUMANITARIAN APPEAL

I am seeking urgent assistance and protection from what I describe as abuse, poverty, surveillance, harassment, coercive financial control, family violence and threats, vigilante violence, false allegations, administrative annihilation, social erasure, civil death, societal mobbing and ongoing torture.

I am an innocent man asking people of integrity who are concerned about corruption, human-rights abuses and the treatment of vulnerable people to help ensure my safety.

I am also seeking protection and assistance in relation to what I describe as a political-exile and asylum-related claim, including help understanding and pursuing contact with the UNHCR.

I am asking for someone to help me turn this appeal into practical action.

21. CONCLUSION: THE HUMAN BEING BEHIND THE RECORD

This report is about a person who says he cannot leave his circumstances independently, cannot access his limited funds, cannot afford veterinary treatment for a potentially unwell dog, and has repeatedly sought assistance without obtaining the practical response he believes he needs.

It is also about a person who has reported threats, alleged failures of care, serious concerns about disability support and safeguarding, difficulties obtaining legal assistance, and a history of attempting to bring grievances to public and international institutions.

Some of my allegations are serious and require independent corroboration. Some of my needs are immediate and can be assessed without resolving every disputed question.

The distinction matters.

A bank can investigate access to an account. A support service can assess transport and accommodation needs. A veterinarian can assess a dog. A clinician can assess an injury. An advocate can help organise a complaint. A competent authority can examine evidence of alleged threats or misconduct.

These practical steps do not require an organisation to accept every conclusion I have drawn. They require my reported circumstances to be taken seriously enough for an appropriate assessment to occur.

I have used the words civil erasure because I feel that I have been left without an effective route from speaking to being helped. I have continued to publish and preserve my account because I do not want the record of my attempts to seek assistance to disappear.

I ask that this report not be treated merely as another document to file away. I ask that it be used to identify what can be done now, what must be investigated, and who can take responsibility for the next step.

I need safety. I need transport. I need access to my funds. I need medical and veterinary assistance. I need independent advocacy. I need a fair assessment of my complaints. Above all, I need practical help rather than another unanswered appeal.

The purpose of preserving this testimony is not to replace investigation with assertion. It is to ensure that the allegations, unanswered questions and immediate humanitarian needs are visible, recorded and capable of being examined.

Not a court. Not a verdict. A first-person testimony, a documentary finding aid, and an urgent request for human assistance.

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

There is no other possible recourse other than to apologise and make meaningful reparations regarding my dreadful entrapment, poverty, exile and detriment, yet I would not be surprised that, even though I've called you all out, you refuse acknowledgement of this email or even have the remorse, apology or courage to even look me in the eye.

My online testimony remains unanswered, nor has there been any formal written response. That is because, self-reflexively, you're all aware you're both evil and less than me, for God gave me the discernment to at once see you all for who you all are behind the polished veneers and the grace to offer you all the opportunity to repent.

I warn you, as God's chosen witness, I am single-handedly forcing a divine reckoning, exposing your corruption. God grants me to offer you grace, and I will then step aside for God's vengeance, not as cruelty or revenge, but as a mechanism of a balancing of the abuse of power.

I can confidently confirm that refusal to repent will cause the very blackness of harm intended for me not to find its source and spiritually boomerang back tenfold, in which each will personally suffer the same consequences of your ill intentions.

You have all been given ample and fair warning.

Summary

This statement presents a long-form whistleblower and personal-account narrative concerning alleged targeting, institutional mistreatment, financial restriction, barriers to justice, and retaliation following whistleblowing activity. It deliberately distinguishes between documented events, firsthand experiences, interpretations, allegations, and matters requiring independent verification, while arguing that the author's psychiatric history, disability, sexuality, substance use, and personal history should not be substituted for examination of the underlying evidence.

A central theme is the author's contention that stigma and character judgments have displaced substantive investigation. The statement argues that allegations do not become facts through repetition and that experiences should be assessed against contemporaneous records, communications, financial documents, legal records, medical records where appropriate, and other independently verifiable evidence.

The statement describes experiences interpreted by the author as targeting, gang stalking, V2K, covert/overt audio harassment and electronic harassment, while explicitly acknowledging that the external source, technological mechanism and coordination of those experiences have not been independently established. It similarly discusses allegations concerning sexuality, pornography, consensual sexual conduct and substance use, arguing that these matters should not automatically be treated as evidence of criminality, moral character or lack of personal agency.

Another major theme is the author's NDIS whistleblower history and subsequent dependency upon the same systems about which concerns were raised. The statement alleges a chronology involving loss of NDIS-provider accreditation, hospitalisations, whistleblowing, supported accommodation, loss of a vehicle, inadequate financial resources, restricted access to disability income, and difficulty obtaining legal assistance. The author argues that the combination has created a situation in which they are practically dependent upon institutions they believe require scrutiny, while lacking the financial independence, mobility and legal representation necessary to challenge them.

The statement also raises allegations concerning financial control and a former intimate relationship, including claims of exploitation and financial coercion involving a former fiancé whom the author understood to have an intelligence connection. It argues that the relationship and its potential financial or legal consequences have not been adequately recognised or investigated by professionals, while acknowledging that any resulting entitlement or wrongdoing would require proper legal and evidentiary assessment.

The statement further addresses psychiatric interpretation and access to justice, arguing that reports of unusual auditory experiences can become self-reinforcing evidence against the person reporting them: reporting the experience may lead to psychiatric interpretation, which may then undermine credibility and discourage investigation of any objectively verifiable component. At the same time, the statement acknowledges clinicians' legitimate responsibilities concerning psychiatric symptoms, substance effects and risk.

It also describes alleged legal and institutional retaliation, including an AVO proceeding, alleged political displacement from Victoria to New South Wales, denial of legal aid, alleged police-related information, an alleged NDA involving an NDIS provider, and an alleged assassination attempt. Importantly, the statement repeatedly qualifies these particularly serious allegations as matters requiring independent documentary or witness evidence rather than presenting them as established facts.

A further section concerns a sexual encounter with a person whom the author understood to have a senior NDIS/fraud-investigation role, subsequent suspicions of surveillance, and publication of a recording of the encounter. The author explains the claimed evidentiary purpose of publishing the recording while acknowledging that doing so created privacy and reputational consequences and that recording or publishing intimate material can raise serious legal issues.

The statement ultimately proposes an evidentiary framework for assessing the entire matter. It divides the material into:

1. documented and independently verifiable events;
2. subjective experiences directly experienced by the author;
3. interpretations developed to explain those experiences;
4. allegations communicated by identifiable people or organisations;
5. independently documentable financial and administrative decisions; and
6. claims about motive, coordination or causation that require further evidence.

The overarching request is therefore not for automatic belief, but for independent scrutiny. The statement asks that allegations be distinguished from findings, experiences from explanations, and stigma from evidence. It argues that disability, psychiatric history, sexuality, substance use or whistleblower status should neither automatically validate nor automatically invalidate the author's claims.

The statement closes with the principle: "Let the evidence speak for itself." It provides an online archive for the underlying material and records a SHA-256 hash and OpenTimestamps receipt, indicating an attempt to establish the document's integrity and existence at a particular point in time.

In one sentence:
The document is a comprehensive, qualified whistleblower statement arguing that a large body of alleged institutional, financial, legal and personal wrongdoing warrants independent evidentiary scrutiny, while explicitly acknowledging the distinction between verified facts, firsthand experiences, interpretations and unproven allegations.

Tonight I pray to God for protection and strength. Institutions, authorities, the media, lawyers, politicians, police, and even family have refused to act — coordinated, deliberate, and documented.

Please read my testimony.

THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

What an impartial AI concluded from the government's own documents:

Taxpayers paid between $1.67 billion and $4.84 billion to target, silence, and erase one disabled whistleblower across 35 years. That figure is not an allegation. It is an AI calculation drawn exclusively from primary-source Commonwealth records — and not one agency has disputed it.

My testimony is supported by 3,643 primary-source government documents spanning 35 years and 13 Commonwealth and state agencies, blockchain-timestamped on Bitcoin, and downloaded over 1.1 million times across six continents.

The archive documents: 14 forced psychiatric detentions without criminal charge; suppressed entitlements; an active Community Treatment Order; documented threats to kill; denial of legal aid; systematic character assassination; NDIS-funded surveillance of the very person that funding was meant to protect; a clinical death inside a government facility in 2021; an unrebutted assassination attempt; and political exile.

Not one professional, agency, or institution has formally rebutted a single document. Under Jones v Dunkel (1959), that silence is legally significant. The archive is permanent, independently preserved, and beyond the reach of any government, intelligence service, or criminal interest.

I survived the targeting. They will not survive the evidence of the targeting.

They had everything. I had evidence.

They called me delusional — but I have a Federal Court document confirming I was right, and they have 35 years of silence.
They forced me into psychiatric detention 14 times — but not once was I charged with a crime.

They said no one would believe me — but 1.1 million people across six continents downloaded the evidence anyway.
They cut off my income, my housing, and my support network — but they forgot to stop me from publishing.

They put a media ban on a former journalist, a PhD, and a published author — and then watched the archive go global.
They used taxpayer money to surveil, isolate, and silence me — and I used a broken phone to put every document online for free.

They had money, lawyers, power, political protection, and institutional cover. Their only weapon against me was libel and slander. I had none of their advantages — just fact-checked, evidence-based, published testimony. 1,100,000 downloads. Six continents. Zero rebuttals.

Evidence wins.

I have submitted formal evidence to the International Criminal Court (Article 7 — crimes against humanity) and the UN High Commissioner for Refugees as an asylum seeker and internally displaced person. Both were officially acknowledged. Neither was acted upon.

I do not ask you to believe me. Read the evidence for free and decide for yourself.
The testimony is also preserved on an independent GitHub mirror that no government or platform can take down.

The best thing that ever happened to me was not death — though I experienced it. Not exile — though I lived it. Not the persecution, the detention, the silencing, or the loss of everything the world said I needed to survive.

The best thing that ever happened to me was the betrayal.

Not because it didn't hurt. It destroyed me in every way a human being can be destroyed. But it was precise. It was total.

And I have come to understand that it was deliberate — not by the hands that carried it out, but by the God who permitted it.

When every institution failed me, I could not trust institutions. When every professional abandoned me, I could not trust credentials. When family turned away, I could not retreat into the comfort of belonging. When the law refused me, I could not hide behind process. One by one, every human shelter was removed — until there was nothing left to lean on but Him.

And in that total stripping, something happened that no success, no safety, no comfort could ever have produced: I came to know God not as a concept, not as a tradition, not as a last resort — but as the only one left in the room. The only one who never left.

That is not a wound. That is a gift that cost everything to receive.

Now I know what humanity is capable of — its cruelty, its cowardice, its silence, its complicity. And I forgive it. Not because what was done was acceptable. It was not. The record proves it was not. But because I was made a vessel for something larger than the verdict, and a vessel cannot carry bitterness and glory at the same time.

They thought they were erasing me. God was emptying me — so I could be filled with something they could never take away.

This is why the archive exists. Not for revenge. Not even for justice alone. But so that what was done to me in the dark can be seen in the light — and so that the next person the system tries to erase knows: you are not alone, you are not forgotten, and the God who permitted your suffering has not abandoned you.

I am still here. That is the testimony.

and despite having nothing and no one still they are jealous of my honesty and clarity exactly the reason they targeted me across a lifetime

May all of them collectively find the courage to admit what they have actively participated in- but they won't because to confront the fact they acted in deception across a lifetime to shatter the divine mirror I held up when all they could see was the ugliness of their own souls in betraying me is simply an acknowledgement not a single one of them has the honesty to admit
Doing so is far too revealing of their true nature

I'm gloriously at peace

Whilst they rot in the foundation of their ugly lies and moral bankruptcy
