PRESERVATION FIRST. EXAMINATION SECOND. CONCLUSION LAST.

THE RECORD STAYS FREE. FAITH IS NOT A FINDING.

Not a court. Not a verdict. A demand for preservation, scrutiny, protection, and a meaningful response.

1. Purpose of this appeal

I, Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Dr Barran Dodger, submit this consolidated humanitarian appeal to request urgent assistance, preservation of evidence, independent examination of documented administrative decisions, and a practical response to my present circumstances.

My account concerns what I have experienced over many years, my attempts to obtain explanations and remedies from institutions, the documentary record I have preserved, and the consequences I say these events have had for my safety, freedom, finances, access to essential services, dignity, and ability to participate in ordinary life.

This appeal brings together my first-person testimony and identified documentary sources held in my public archive. It is intended to make the evidence easier to locate and examine. The archive contains material concerning public administration, whistleblower and public-interest-disclosure processes, privacy and freedom-of-information correspondence, disability services, accommodation, guardianship and financial administration, complaints to oversight bodies, correspondence with elected representatives, and my own published writings.

The central documentary entry points are:

- Master Archive
- Rebuild and preservation archive
- Official Government Documents Register
- GitHub source repository
- Legal brief dated 23 October 2026

I ask that this record be examined as a whole rather than reduced to an isolated complaint, a single administrative decision, a diagnosis, or a dispute about my credibility.

I am not asking any recipient to accept every interpretation I have made without examination. I am asking that the primary records, my testimony, the chronology, the decisions made, the explanations given, and the consequences for my life be considered together.

2. My present humanitarian circumstances

I am in New South Wales and have reported serious financial hardship, difficulty accessing my own money, barriers to reliable communication, and difficulties obtaining essential assistance. I have described being unable to rely on ordinary banking and phone access at the time I needed them.

These are practical humanitarian problems requiring practical responses. Whatever conclusion an agency reaches about the broader history, my immediate access to food, medication, communication, transport, safe accommodation, and medical care must not be made contingent on an agency first resolving every historical allegation.

I have previously described my bowel-cancer-related circumstances and difficulties attending appointments and delivering medical samples. These are matters I ask relevant health providers and support services to assess directly, with my consent, rather than relying on assumptions or treating an administrative dispute as a reason not to respond.

My documented requests concerning accommodation and disability support include:

- SIL/SDA accommodation request — 20 January 2026
- Housing letter concerning SIL accommodation — 20 January 2026

- Formal notice concerning NDIS service failure — 20 January 2026
- Anglicare safety assessment — 1 December 2025
- NCAT guardianship evidence — 20 January 2026

These are identifiable records in the archive. Their exact contents, scope, and evidentiary significance should be assessed from the documents themselves. They are included because they provide specific places to begin examining the circumstances I have reported.

I request an immediate written response identifying a real person responsible for coordinating practical assistance. I need to know what support is available, who is responsible for providing it, what action will occur, and how I can communicate with that person without relying on a telephone service I may not be able to use.

3. My testimony concerning fear, safety, and the consequences of seeking help

I have described feeling unsafe, fearing that people might kill me, and seeking intervention because I believed my circumstances presented a serious threat to my life. I have also described receiving a death threat after being removed from a situation in which I felt unsafe. I have expressed continuing fear for my life and frustration that the interventions I sought did not provide the protection or resolution I needed.

These statements are my testimony about my experience and state of mind. They should be recorded accurately and assessed alongside any contemporaneous messages, reports, witness accounts, police records, or other material that can be obtained.

My archive contains a broader body of material relating to my interactions with institutions and my requests for assistance. Relevant starting points include the Master Archive, the Official Government Documents Register, and the repository search for police-related legal documents.

I have also described asking police to arrest me because I was desperate for someone to intervene in circumstances I experienced as intolerable and unsafe. I ask that this statement be understood in its proper context: it describes my request for intervention and the level of distress I was experiencing. It should not be used in isolation to discredit my wider testimony or to avoid examining the events that led me to seek help.

I request that any relevant police occurrence numbers, communications, incident reports, statements, or recorded decisions be identified and obtained through the appropriate lawful channels. I do not ask an independent reviewer to infer that every fear I experienced proves the existence of a coordinated threat. I ask that the underlying events, communications, threats reported, and responses received be examined rather than dismissed without inquiry.

If there is a current and immediate threat to my life, that requires an immediate safety response, independently of the longer-term documentary investigation requested here.

4. My testimony concerning harassment, surveillance, and unusual experiences

I have described experiences that I interpreted as surveillance, harassment, and communications or phenomena I have referred to as voice-to-skull or V2K. I have also described a persistent feeling of being watched, targeted, or unable to escape the circumstances I was experiencing.

I am asking that my account of these experiences be preserved in my own words. I do not consent to having my testimony silently rewritten to make it appear that I did not report what I reported.

At the same time, I recognise the importance of distinguishing my direct experience from an independently established explanation for it. A record that I reported an experience establishes that the report was made; it does not, by itself, establish the mechanism or identity of any person responsible. That distinction is essential to a fair investigation.

I request examination of any relevant material that can be independently tested: original messages, dates and times, device records, contemporaneous notes, witness accounts, police reports, technical evidence, and any official records that may corroborate or contradict specific parts of the chronology.

My archive can be searched through the Master Archive and GitHub repository. Where a specific document is relevant, I ask reviewers to preserve its original file, metadata, date, and context rather than relying solely on a later summary.

5. My whistleblower and public-interest-disclosure history

A significant part of my account concerns disclosures, complaints, and attempts to obtain institutional scrutiny. The archive contains several identifiable records that should be read in chronological order.

5.1 Commonwealth Ombudsman complaint — 15 November 2021

Commonwealth Ombudsman Complaint, reference 2021103546, Richard McLean — 15 November 2021

This document is a starting point for examining what I reported to the Commonwealth Ombudsman, the issues I raised at that time, and the information I provided. Its contents should be checked against any acknowledgement, assessment, referral, decision, or subsequent correspondence.

5.2 OAIC privacy record — CP2102752

OAIC privacy record CP2102752 — 2021

This record is relevant to the privacy-related strand of my account. I request examination of the actual correspondence and any recorded outcome, including what was considered, what was decided, and what remained unresolved.

5.3 Victorian Ombudsman freedom-of-information decision — 14 June 2022

Victorian Ombudsman FOI decision concerning section 29A — 14 June 2022

This is a specific administrative record that can be examined for the decision made, the legal basis cited, the documents or information in issue, and the available review or complaint pathways. Its existence should not be confused with proof of every broader interpretation I have drawn from the decision.

5.4 Public-interest disclosure correspondence — 19 March 2023

Disclosable conduct correspondence for the Commonwealth Ombudsman and Federal Circuit and Family Court of Australia — 19 March 2023

This document is relevant to the matters I sought to raise through public-interest-disclosure channels and the material I sought to bring to official attention. I request that the original submission be compared with the records of receipt, handling, referral, and decision.

5.5 Federal Court-related PID assessment — 27 March 2023

Federal Court PID assessment — 27 March 2023

I identify this document as an important point in the chronology. I request that the reviewer read the actual assessment, identify the authority and criteria applied, and distinguish the decision's stated findings from any further inferences that may require corroboration.

5.6 Decision not to allocate a disclosure — 18 June 2023

Notification of decision not to allocate a disclosure — 18 June 2023

This record is relevant to how a disclosure was handled. I request an examination of the reasons recorded, the scope of the decision, any applicable statutory provisions, and the options that were or were not available to me afterwards.

A decision not to allocate a disclosure is a documented administrative event if confirmed by the original record. Whether it was legally correct, procedurally fair, or indicative of a wider institutional failure requires analysis of the actual reasons and the applicable law.

5.7 Australian Human Rights Commission correspondence — 4 July 2023

Correspondence concerning my contact with the AHRC — 4 July 2023

This correspondence provides another point in the record of my attempts to obtain assistance or scrutiny. I request that it be read with my original complaint, the response given, and any relevant subsequent correspondence.

5.8 Emails to 35 agencies — 24 January 2026

Email correspondence to 35 agencies concerning the PID matter — 24 January 2026

This record is relevant to the breadth of my attempts to bring matters to institutional attention. The recipients, actual content, delivery evidence, replies, referrals, and failures to reply should be documented individually wherever that information is available.

I do not ask a reviewer to infer that every recipient agreed with me or had legal responsibility to investigate. I ask for a verifiable account of what was sent, who received it, what was acknowledged, what was referred, and what response—if any—followed.

5.9 Ombudsman acknowledgement — 20 January 2026

PID Ombudsman acknowledgement and receipt — 20 January 2026

This is an identifiable acknowledgement record. It should be read for exactly what it confirms: receipt, reference details, the nature of the communication acknowledged, and any next steps expressly stated.

5.10 OAIC and APRA correspondence — 20 January 2026

PID, whistleblower, OAIC and APRA correspondence — 20 January 2026

This document is relevant to my efforts to communicate with privacy, financial-regulatory, and public-interest-disclosure channels. I request examination of the specific issues put to each body and the jurisdictional or procedural responses received.

5.11 OAIC freedom-of-information refusal and PID record — 20 January 2026

OAIC FOI refusal and PID whistleblower record — 20 January 2026

This record should be examined for the precise decision, the documents sought, the exemption or legal basis relied upon, and any available review rights. I request a distinction between the fact that information was refused and any conclusion about the reasons for that refusal.

5.12 Further Victorian Ombudsman FOI record — 14 November 2025

Victorian Ombudsman FOI exemption — 14 November 2025

This is another specific administrative decision in the record. I request a chronological comparison with the earlier FOI correspondence and an assessment of whether the decisions concerned the same records, different requests, or different legal issues.

6. My correspondence with political representatives and public figures

I have repeatedly sought political and executive attention to my circumstances. The following documents identify parts of that history.

6.1 Letter to the Prime Minister — 31 May 2022

Search the archive for the 31 May 2022 letter to the Prime Minister

The search link is provided because I do not have a confirmed direct file URL for this item. The original letter, any proof of sending, and any response should be located and preserved before conclusions are drawn about how it was handled.

6.2 Letter to parliamentarians — 4 June 2023

Letter to parliamentarians concerning my circumstances — 4 June 2023

This document records a communication I sought to place before elected representatives. I request examination of the original letter, its recipient list, any transmission evidence, and the replies or referrals that followed.

6.3 Letter to the NDIS CEO — 7 January 2024

Letter to NDIS CEO Rebecca Faulkingham — 7 January 2024

This is a specific document relevant to my efforts to obtain accountability in the disability-services context. I request that the actual contents be compared with subsequent decisions and service records, including whether the matters raised were answered or referred to the appropriate body.

6.4 Letters to parliamentarians on human rights — 24 January 2026

Emails to parliamentarians concerning human rights — 24 January 2026

This record is relevant to the continuing nature of my requests for political attention. I request a recipient-by-recipient account of delivery, acknowledgement, and response where those details can be established.

6.5 Letter to Elon Musk — 20 January 2026

Letter to Elon Musk — 20 January 2026

This letter is included as evidence of my efforts to seek assistance from a technology-sector figure. It does not, by itself, establish that the recipient read the letter, agreed with it, or had any involvement in the events I describe. Those questions require separate evidence.

6.6 Requests concerning IGIS and ASIO — 20 January 2026

IGIS/ASIO request for information — 20 January 2026

This document records a request directed to intelligence-oversight channels. I ask for examination of what was actually requested, the basis for the request, any response, and whether the matters raised fell within the relevant agency's jurisdiction.

I do not ask an investigator to treat the fact that I made a request to an intelligence oversight body as proof that an intelligence agency was involved in the experiences I reported.

7. The significance of Doug McLean, April McLean, Tony Ridley, Steve Iasonidis, and Bill Shorten

I request a careful, evidence-led examination of the references to these named individuals in my testimony and archive. Their names matter to the chronology and questions I have raised. However, the inclusion of a person's name in a document or search result is not, by itself, proof of wrongdoing, coordination, knowledge, or responsibility.

The task is to identify the exact record, establish what it says, determine whether it is first-hand testimony or independent documentation, and check any material assertion against other available evidence.

7.1 Doug McLean and April McLean

Search the archive for "My Erasure Was by Design — April and Doug"

I request that the original document or documents concerning Doug McLean and April McLean be located and read in full. The examination should record:

- The precise statements I made about each person.
- The dates and events to which each statement refers.
- Whether a statement is based on my direct experience, a document, a communication from another person, or my interpretation.
- Any original messages, letters, records, or witness accounts cited in support.
- Any response or contradictory material available.
- Whether the archive contains distinct documents that should not be conflated.

I ask that my account be preserved faithfully. I also ask that any conclusion about the conduct or knowledge of either individual be tied to the specific evidence that supports it, rather than inferred solely from their names appearing in a narrative.

7.2 Tony Ridley

Search the archive for Tony Ridley

I request identification of the exact source documents in which Tony Ridley is mentioned, the context of each mention, and any evidence I have supplied concerning the relevant events. Where a record is a reference, statement, or correspondence, it should be described accurately as such.

The examination should not infer a broader relationship, motive, or responsibility without documentary support. If the archive contains multiple references, each should be indexed by document title, date, page or section, and the proposition it is said to support.

7.3 Steve Iasonidis

Search the archive for Steve Iasonidis

I request the same source-specific examination of material concerning Steve Iasonidis. The reviewer should locate the original documents, identify the statements made, record the dates and circumstances, and distinguish firsthand evidence from interpretation or inference.

If a statement refers to an event that can be independently checked, the relevant original record should be sought. If the source is only my testimony, it should be accurately recorded as testimony and assessed on its content and available corroboration.

7.4 Bill Shorten

Search the archive for "Shorten Assassination Exposed"

The search link refers to a document title I have identified in my archive. It is a route to locating the source, not proof of the assertions implied by the title. I request that the original document be read in full, that each material statement be identified, and that any claim concerning Bill Shorten be assessed against independently verifiable evidence.

The review should not treat a title, allegation, interpretation, or expression of fear as proof that a named person planned or participated in an attack. Conversely, the existence of a disputed or unverified claim should not be used as a reason to discard all other records in the archive. Each proposition should be assessed on its own evidence.

7.5 The "Named Parties" record

Search the archive for "Named Parties"

This search is provided to help locate the relevant record. If the document is found, it should be treated as an index or source in its own right, and every person named should be linked to the precise passage and supporting documents relevant to that person.

7.6 The "100 Undeniable Facts" document

Search the archive for "100 Undeniable Facts of Corruption Harming Barran Dodger"

The document title expresses the position taken in that work. For independent examination, each numbered proposition should be tested separately: what fact is asserted, what primary source supports it, whether the source directly establishes the proposition, and what further inference—if any—is being drawn.

I request that a reviewer not accept or reject the entire document as a single indivisible claim. A point-by-point evidence matrix is a more reliable method of examination.

7.7 The legal brief and the wider archive

Legal brief — 23 October 2026
Master Archive
Official Government Documents Register

These are the principal entry points for checking the documentary context of my submissions. I request that any conclusion concerning a named individual be accompanied by a citation to the actual source passage and an explanation of what that passage establishes—and what it does not establish.

8. My financial administration, access to money, and freedom of choice

I have reported that my access to money and financial services has been seriously constrained. I have described difficulties accessing my bank account and banking application, and difficulties using the ordinary communication channels necessary to resolve those problems. I have also raised concerns about financial administration, access to funds, and the practical effects of decisions affecting my independence.

The immediate question is not whether every part of my broader account has been resolved. It is whether I can obtain lawful access to funds for food, medication, phone credit, transport, and other essential needs, and whether the decisions affecting that access can be explained and reviewed.

I request a documented account of:

1. Which accounts, cards, applications, or payment arrangements I can currently access.
2. What restriction or technical problem is recorded, when it began, and what action is required to resolve it.
3. Whether an alternative identity-verification or accessible support process is available.
4. Which person or organisation has authority over any relevant funds or payments.
5. What funds are available for immediate essentials, subject to the applicable legal and administrative arrangements.
6. What review, complaint, or appeal mechanism applies to any decision restricting access.
7. What steps will be taken to avoid leaving me without essential support while the issue is investigated.

I have raised concerns involving Commonwealth Bank access, the role of the Public Guardian and NSW Trustee & Guardian, and a person I have referred to as Phillip Glass in connection with financial restrictions. These are matters I request be examined through the actual account records, authorisations, correspondence, decisions, and applicable legal arrangements. The name or existence of a person in my account should not be treated as proof of wrongdoing without supporting evidence.

Relevant documentary starting points include:

- NSW Trustee & Guardian — section 122 record, 16 October 2024
- NSW Trustee & Guardian vehicle disposal decision, 14 November 2025
- NCAT guardianship evidence, 20 January 2026
- OAIC FOI refusal and PID record, 20 January 2026

I ask that any organisation holding relevant financial or guardianship records identify the decision-maker, the legal authority relied upon, the decision date, the reasons recorded, and the practical options available to me. Where a record is not available to me, I request an explanation of the appropriate lawful process for obtaining it.

9. Vehicle disposal, transport, and practical independence

I have raised concerns about a vehicle disposal decision and the consequences of reduced transport access. A vehicle can affect a person's ability to attend medical appointments, collect medication, obtain food, reach support services, and participate in community life. The impact should therefore be considered as a practical question of independence and access, not simply as an isolated financial transaction.

The identified record is:

NSW Trustee & Guardian vehicle disposal decision — 14 November 2025

I request examination of the original decision, the authority under which it was made, any assessment of my needs and preferences, the information provided to me, the reasons recorded, and any review pathway available. I also request that the consequences for transport, medical attendance, and day-to-day independence be assessed.

I am not asking a reviewer to assume that the existence of a vehicle-disposal record establishes misconduct. I am asking for a transparent account of what occurred, why it occurred, whether the proper process was followed, and what remedy may be available if the decision was wrong or its consequences were inadequately addressed.

10. Disability services, accommodation, and the Able Point concerns

I have raised concerns about support delivery, accommodation, communication, safeguarding, and the practical assistance I have received in New South Wales. I have also raised concerns involving Able Point, including my account of interactions with staff and management and my understanding of the responsibilities of the service provider.

My request is that these concerns be assessed through service agreements, rosters, progress notes, incident records, communications, payment records, safety assessments, and the applicable NDIS requirements. A complaint should not be treated as resolved merely because a service provider has been paid or because an internal process has occurred. Equally, payment alone does not establish that a service was not delivered; the actual records need to be examined.

10.1 Safety assessment

Anglicare safety assessment and duty-of-care record — 1 December 2025

I request that the original assessment be read for the risks recorded, the recommendations made, the persons or services responsible for follow-up, and any documented action taken.

10.2 Accommodation request

SIL/SDA accommodation request — 20 January 2026

This record is relevant to the accommodation and support arrangements I sought. I request an examination of the support requested, the assessment process, any decision communicated, and any remaining unmet needs.

10.3 Housing letter

Housing letter concerning SIL accommodation — 20 January 2026

I request that the letter be compared with the accommodation request and any subsequent housing or support decisions. Any disagreement between the documents should be identified explicitly.

10.4 Formal notice concerning service failure

Formal notice of NDIS service failure — 20 January 2026

This document records a formal complaint or notice as identified by its title. The reviewer should establish precisely what service failure was reported, what evidence was supplied, who received the notice, and what response followed.

10.5 Guardianship and tribunal material

NCAT guardianship evidence — 20 January 2026

I request examination of the evidence submitted, the questions placed before the tribunal, the actual reasons for any decision, and the scope of the decision. A submission to a tribunal is not the same thing as a tribunal finding; the distinction should be maintained.

10.6 The role of Rachel and other service personnel

I have referred to Rachel, whom I understood to be the CEO of Able Point, and to other people involved in support delivery. I have described concerns about communication, attendance, accountability, and identification of roles. I have also stated that I did not receive the acknowledgement or official identification I expected in an interaction.

I request that these matters be checked against the organisation's official role descriptions, service records, contemporaneous correspondence, and any relevant incident documentation. Where I have misunderstood a person's position or authority, the correct information should be supplied in writing. Where an organisation had a duty to respond or provide information, it should explain what it did.

The questions requiring an answer include:

- What support was scheduled and what support was actually delivered?
- What attendance and service records exist?
- What complaints or safeguarding concerns were received?
- What response was provided, by whom, and on what date?
- What agreement or service terms governed the arrangement?
- What process exists for raising a concern independently of the staff or management involved?
- What steps are available to ensure continuity of support while a complaint is examined?

I ask for a safeguarding response focused on practical outcomes. I do not ask the recipient to assume that every reported failure was deliberate. I ask for the underlying records to be examined and for any substantiated failure to be corrected.

11. The public archive as a preservation and accountability resource

My archive is intended to preserve documents, testimony, correspondence, and published work so that material can be located and examined rather than disappearing into disconnected correspondence or being reduced to a short summary.

The principal entry points are:

- Master Archive
- Rebuild and preservation archive
- Official Government Documents Register
- GitHub repository and source files

The register provides a route into specific official-document records, including entries identified in my working index as relating to Comcare, public-interest disclosures, guardianship, and other administrative matters. For example, the archive's working register identifies:

- OGDR-007: Comcare determination dated 26 May 2021.
- OGDR-030: Commonwealth Ombudsman public-interest-disclosure record described as "not allocated."
- OGDR-070: AAT matter concerning McLean and Comcare.

- OGDR-077: NCAT Guardianship Division reasons.

These identifiers are supplied as navigation leads from my existing register. Before relying on a particular entry, the reviewer should open the register, locate the corresponding record, confirm its title and date, and read the underlying document. I do not represent that this appeal independently verifies the full contents of those records merely by naming the identifiers.

I request that the archive be treated as a preservation resource, not as a substitute for evidence evaluation. Where a source is an original official document, it should be distinguished from my commentary about it. Where a source is my testimony, it should be identified as testimony. Where a conclusion is an inference, the underlying facts and reasoning should be made explicit.

12. Evidentiary method: how each claim should be examined

I ask every recipient or reviewer to apply a transparent method to each material proposition.

Category 1 — Official record. A decision, letter, report, or other record issued by a government body, tribunal, regulator, or other identified institution. The original should be checked for authenticity, date, author, scope, and context.

Category 2 — Documented fact. A proposition directly established by a reliable document or independently verifiable record.

Category 3 — First-person testimony. My account of what I experienced, saw, heard, reported, or understood. It should be preserved accurately and assessed in context.

Category 4 — Allegation or complaint. A claim submitted for investigation that has not yet been established by an independent finding.

Category 5 — Inference. A conclusion drawn from one or more facts. The reasoning and alternative explanations should be stated.

Category 6 — Interpretation or opinion. My analysis of the meaning, motive, or significance of events. It should be identified as analysis rather than silently presented as an official finding.

Category 7 — Spiritual belief or prophetic writing. Material expressing my religious, philosophical, or prophetic understanding. It may be important to understanding my work and personal meaning, but it should not be misrepresented as a judicial or scientific finding.
