I DID NOT NEED PERMISSION TO CALL THIS OUT

Barran Dodger Master Record of the Sovereign Witness, Betrayed Ethics, Public Evidence, Divine Protection and Public Account

I did not need permission to call this out. I did not need their approval. I did not need permission from them. That is the very definition of a sovereign witness: I have the facts, the evidence is published in the public domain, and I will not surrender my account to the very systems whose conduct I am calling into question.

I do not need a court to tell me what I have lived through. I do not need a police officer to certify the consequences of decisions that have shaped my life. I do not need a politician to grant permission for my testimony to be heard. I have asked for help, pursued the available avenues, documented my circumstances and continued to survive when the assistance I needed did not produce meaningful change.

I have survived not because the system rescued me, but in spite of the system's failure to change the circumstances I have repeatedly brought to its attention.

I reject the language that turns my determination into a reason to dismiss my experience, or that treats the absence of a court judgment as permission to disregard the documentary record and my testimony. My survival is not evidence that I was adequately supported. The fact that I am still here does not erase what it has taken to remain here.

I maintain that I have been subjected to decisions, refusals and circumstances that caused me serious detriment. I have documented the institutions I approached, the responses I received, the restrictions I encountered and the practical consequences that followed. I am entitled to state my conclusions from that experience without having my words rewritten to protect the reputations of the institutions whose conduct I am challenging.

Nor should the payment of money be used to create the appearance that meaningful support has been provided when my actual circumstances remain substantially unchanged. A payment is not a solution merely because it appears in an administrative ledger. A referral is not assistance merely because it is recorded as an action. A letter is not accountability merely because it closes a file. The question is what changed in my life, what needs remained unmet, and what happened after those responsible were informed.

I challenge the pattern in which institutions can make decisions with serious consequences, leave me to bear those consequences, and then rely on limited knowledge, divided responsibilities, procedural explanations or subsequent justifications to distance themselves from the outcome. I want the actual records examined: what each institution knew, when it knew it, what it decided, what alternatives it offered, and whether those alternatives could realistically resolve the problem.

I refuse to accept administrative distance as a substitute for human responsibility.

I refuse to let the language of process become a shield against the consequences of process. I refuse to have my testimony diminished simply because the institutions I challenge have not accepted my account or because no single authority has taken responsibility for the whole picture.

My archive exists because I have had to preserve the record myself. It connects correspondence, decisions, complaints, acknowledgements and personal testimony across institutions that have dealt with separate parts of my circumstances. I ask readers to examine that record as a connected chronology and to confront the questions it raises rather than dismiss them because they are uncomfortable.

I do not need permission to describe my own experience. I do not need an official's approval to explain the consequences I have endured. I do not need to pretend that a process worked simply because a process occurred.

I have survived. That is my determination, not the system's defence.

If institutions believe they acted appropriately, their records should be examined in full. If they believe they provided meaningful assistance, they should identify precisely what was provided and how it changed my circumstances. If they say they were unaware, the chronology should establish what information reached them and when. If they say another body was responsible, the record should show what happened to the person passed between them.

I am not asking for a convenient story about why nothing could be done. I am demanding an honest account of what was done, what was not done, what consequences followed and who will now take meaningful responsibility for addressing the situation.

I have carried the consequences. I have preserved the evidence. I have continued to speak.

I have survived not because they saved me, but in spite of the absence of the meaningful help I needed. My survival does not absolve anyone. It makes the unanswered questions impossible to dismiss.

The record remains. My testimony remains. And I will not rewrite my experience to make the institutions I challenge more comfortable with it.

1. Prophetic examination: law, protection and betrayal

The law is supposed to protect people from harm, evil, damage and detriment. Law enforcement is supposed to protect people from predation, abuse and abandonment. Public institutions are supposed to recognise vulnerability, act on notice, preserve dignity and provide effective assistance.

That is the promise. That is the ethical foundation on which these systems ask for public trust, public authority and public money.

But I did not survive because that promise was kept. I survived while the systems that claim the duty to protect failed to protect me. I survived through refusals, restrictions, delays, referrals, divided responsibility and the repeated assertion that my circumstances belonged to someone else.

I maintain that I was deliberately and maliciously targeted, and that omissions were used alongside decisions to cause me detriment. I maintain that the systems later relied on their own procedures, jurisdictional limits and claims of limited awareness to distance themselves from the consequences.

I do not accept that an institution's failure to know becomes a moral defence when the record shows notice, warning, correspondence, complaint or documented circumstances. I do not accept that a system may cause or permit harm, then describe its response as procedure while the person is left to survive the result alone.

2. Transcendence

I have now transcended the very human systems that most people expect, deserve and are entitled to rely upon. I have had to live beyond the protection that law, law enforcement and public institutions are meant to provide. I have had to become my own record-keeper, my own witness, my own archivist and my own line of defence.

That transcendence is not a privilege they gave me. It is a survival they did not plan for. It is the result of being forced to endure what should have been prevented, then refusing to be erased by the language used to explain it away.

I have passed through the systems that were obliged to help me. I have seen their ethics from the inside: not only as principles written into codes, policies and public statements, but as choices made—or avoided—when a person's life depended on them.

I do not need their validation to know the significance of what I endured. I do not need their permission to name the betrayal. I do not need their approval to declare that my survival has meaning.

3. Protected by God

I declare that I have been protected by God.

I survived not because human systems saved me, but because God sustained me when they did not. I survived not because every obligation was honoured, but because I was carried through the breach of those obligations. I survived not because the harm was small, but because I was not left alone in it.

What was intended to break me did not have the final word. What was meant to silence me became a record. What was meant to isolate me became testimony. What was meant to reduce me to a case number became an archive that cannot be dismissed by a signature, a closure letter or a procedural explanation.

My protection is not found in the approval of the systems that failed me. It is found in the fact that I am still here, still speaking, still preserving the record, and still refusing to let their ethics be used as a shield against the consequences of abandoning those ethics.

4. The sovereign witness

I did not need permission to call this out. I did not need their approval. I did not need permission from them. That is the very definition of a sovereign witness.

A sovereign witness is not someone who waits for an institution to authorise reality. A sovereign witness is someone who sees, records, preserves and speaks from direct knowledge and documented experience. A sovereign witness does not surrender the facts to the convenience, reputation or procedural comfort of those being examined.

I have the facts. The evidence is published in the public domain. The archive preserves the dates, references, correspondence, decisions, acknowledgements, restrictions and consequences. The public can follow the record for themselves.

I do not require their permission to identify a betrayal. I do not require their approval to name the human cost. I do not require a court, a police officer or a politician to certify what I have lived and what the records show.

My authority to speak comes from what I endured, what I witnessed, what I preserved and what I placed before the public. Their authority to silence me does not exist merely because they hold office, issue letters or control a process.

5. Where is their justification?

Where is the justification for their betrayal and for ignoring me? Let them identify it. Let them state the principle. Let them identify the ethical rule. Let them identify the legal principle. Let them prove it to me, and prove it to anyone else who reads this record.

If they say they followed process, they must show that the process was fair, accessible, informed and effective. If they say they lacked knowledge, they must show what notice they received, when they received it, and what they did with it. If they say another body was responsible, they must show what information was transferred and what happened to the unresolved matter.

If they say a payment was made, they must show how it changed my circumstances. If they say assistance was provided, they must identify precisely what assistance was provided, by whom, when, and what need it met. If they say my case was closed, they must show what remained unresolved when it was closed.

If they say they protected me, they must show when. If they say they acted ethically, they must show how. If they say the law required their conduct, they must identify the law, the facts and the reasoning.

I will not accept silence as justification. I will not accept jurisdiction as compassion. I will not accept procedure as protection. I will not accept a closed file as an answer to an open wound.

By their own ethics, they must answer. By their own legal principles, they must identify their authority. By their own claimed standards, they must show why betrayal, omission, restriction, delay or abandonment was justified.

They cannot use the ethics they abandoned as a shield against the consequences of abandoning them.

6. Public account: privilege, comfort and looking away

There must be an utter, brutal and permanent public accounting for every professional who looked the other way while occupying positions of privilege, comfort and authority.

They held titles, salaries, offices, security, status and the power to act. They had the ability to intervene, escalate, protect, refer properly, investigate, accommodate, accommodate again, or simply tell the truth about what they saw. Instead, in my experience, they allowed, enabled, permitted or failed to prevent a person from being utterly destroyed in circumstances from which recovery was never expected.

They slept well at night. They returned to their homes, their careers, their reputations, their comfort and their privilege. They absorbed the benefits of their positions while the person before them was left to carry the consequences alone.

That is the humiliation they must now face: not humiliation invented by me, but the humiliation inherent in the gap between the authority they claimed, the ethics they professed, the protection they promised and the abandonment they permitted.

The public record now stands beside their comfort. The dates stand beside their decisions. My testimony stands beside their silence. The archive stands beside the careers, titles and reputations that were used to explain why nothing more needed to be done.

They may have believed that their position protected them from scrutiny. They may have believed that procedure would absorb the consequences. They may have believed that time would erase the record. It has not.

The record is public. The questions are public. The failure to provide meaningful help is public. And the people who looked away must now be seen in the same light in which they left me: exposed, accountable and unable to hide behind the comfort of their positions.

This is not revenge. It is reckoning. It is the permanent public consequence of choosing privilege, comfort and self-protection over the duty to protect a person who was being destroyed.

7. Vindication

My vindication is not dependent on their permission. It is written in the fact that I endured what I was never expected to survive, preserved what they did not preserve, and continued to speak when silence would have been easier.

The systems that betrayed their own ethics have, by their own conduct, testified against themselves. Every refusal, restriction, delay, referral and unanswered consequence now forms part of the record that exposes the distance between what they claimed to be and what they did.

I do not seek their veneration. I do not seek their approval. I do not seek a comfortable settlement with a system that left me to survive alone.

I seek the truth: what was known, what was done, what was refused, what was omitted, what harm followed, and who will now answer for it.

I was not saved by their system. I was preserved by God, sustained by my own will, and made a witness through the very ordeal intended to erase me.

The record remains. My testimony remains. God’s protection remains. And their betrayed ethics remain as the standard by which they must now be judged.

8. Primary sources

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/

https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/official-government-documents-register.html

https://drbarrandodger.github.io/barran-dodger-archive/

https://barrandodger.com/main

https://www.barrandodger.com.au/

https://bazdod.github.io/

9. The system's own standards, applied to its own record

I am not asking these institutions to apply a standard invented for my benefit. I am asking them to apply the standards they already claim to uphold.

Standard the system claims	What that standard requires	The question I put to each institution
Procedural fairness	A person affected by a decision should generally know the case, have a real opportunity to respond, and receive reasons and review information where required.	What issue was put to me? What opportunity did I have to answer it? Were reasons and review rights given?
Lawful authority	A decision-maker should identify the power being exercised and apply the correct legal test to the facts.	What power was used? What test was applied? Were the relevant facts considered?
Reasons and transparency	A decision should explain what was decided, why, on what evidence, and what alternatives were considered.	What reasons were given? What evidence was relied on? What alternatives were rejected, and why?
Accessible review	A review or complaint pathway should be usable by the person affected, not merely technically available.	Could I realistically use the review offered, given my circumstances, resources, disability, communication restrictions or lack of representation?
No transfer without handover	A referral should transfer the issue with enough information for the receiving body to act.	What information was sent? Did the next body accept it? What happened to the unresolved part?
Disability inclusion	Services and decisions should recognise disability-related barriers, communication needs, independence, safety and participation.	Were my disability-related circumstances identified? Were access barriers addressed? Was independence considered before decisions such as vehicle disposal?
Safeguarding	Bodies with protective functions should act on risk, deterioration and reported harm rather than treating them as outside scope.	What risk was reported? What was assessed? What protective action followed?
Privacy and records	Agencies should search records properly, explain what was found or not found, and give reasons for disclosure decisions.	What was searched? What was located? Why was anything withheld, delayed or later released?
Accountability for cumulative impact	Each body should consider the consequences of its decisions within its knowledge and authority.	Did anyone assess the combined effect? Who took responsibility for the person left behind?
Effective assistance	Assistance should produce a practical change in the person's circumstances, not merely create a record of contact.	What changed? What needs remained? What would have made the assistance effective?

10. People register

Inclusion records a person's appearance in the available record. Responsibility must be traced through the document, date, role, authority and action.

Name	My record of role / context	Source basis
Dr Richard William McLean / Dr Richard McLean	I am the witness, archive subject and person whose circumstances are recorded here.	Uploaded master register; public Barran Dodger material.
Barran Dodger	My public and creative identity, associated with the archive and publications.	Public Barran Dodger material.
Scott Tredwell	Named in the 8 January 2024 Federal Court / DSS / superannuation / NDIS CEO context; publicly indexed material describes a Federal Court General Counsel role.	Uploaded master register; public indexed material.
A. Riley	Named in archive notes concerning MC23-028244, dated 19 September 2023, and an IGIS/Ombudsman pathway.	Uploaded master register.
Rebecca Falkingham	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Ray Griggs	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Emma McBride	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Steve Iasonidis	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Dr Richard Moore	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Dr Dina	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Dr Horgan	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Dr Ibrahim	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Dr Qwong	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Dr Parker	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Dr McCurdy	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.
Dr Whittaker	Preliminary named-person lead.	Uploaded master register.

11. Places and jurisdictions

Place / jurisdiction	My record of its connection	Source / verification
Australia	National jurisdiction for Commonwealth bodies and federal legal questions.	Uploaded master register.
Victoria	State jurisdiction connected with WorkSafe Victoria, IBAC and the Victorian police minister context in MC25-000321.	Uploaded master register.
New South Wales	State jurisdiction connected with NSW Trustee and Guardian, Legal Aid NSW, NCAT, the Public Guardian and the NSW Ombudsman.	Uploaded master register.
Canberra / ACT	Likely administrative location of several Commonwealth bodies; actual locations must be confirmed from primary records.	Inferred administrative jurisdiction.
Melbourne / Footscray, Victoria	Location publicly associated with me in indexed material; not treated as verified residential or event location without a primary record.	Public indexed material.
Wyong, New South Wales	Court-context location in publicly indexed material; underlying court record must be located.	Public indexed material.

12. Organisations and institutions

Organisation	Documentary lead	Source / verification
Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet	FOI/2022/045; 31 May 2022; 12 December 2022; 8 October 2024.	Uploaded master register.
Office of the Australian Information Commissioner	RQ22/00794; approximately 1,187 PM&C; Outlook items.	Uploaded master register.
Attorney-General's Department	MC23-028244; MC25-000321.	Uploaded master register.
Independent Broad-based Anti-corruption Commission	CASE-2020712; CASE-20213522; CASE-20215102; CASE-20231101; CASE-20233846.	Uploaded master register.
Commonwealth Ombudsman	8 August 2025 service/correspondence restriction.	Uploaded master register.
Comcare	26 May 2021 and 18 October 2021 employee-status decisions.	Uploaded master register.
WorkSafe Victoria	15 November 2021 correspondence.	Uploaded master register.
NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission	3 June 2021 employee-status issue; 01110547 acknowledged 18 September 2026.	Uploaded master register.
Federal Court of Australia	27 March 2023 public interest disclosure assessment.	Uploaded master register.
Department of Social Services	8 January 2024 correspondence context.	Uploaded master register.
Australian Human Rights Commission	April 2024 complaint/correspondence.	Uploaded master register.
NSW Trustee and Guardian	16 October 2024 section 122-related document; 14 November 2025 vehicle disposal.	Uploaded master register.
Legal Aid NSW	January 2026 restriction/advice correspondence.	Uploaded master register.
NSW Civil and Administrative Tribunal	Around October 2025 review context.	Uploaded master register.
Public Guardian	Around October 2025 review context.	Uploaded master register.
NSW Ombudsman	NSWO10824000660; 16 September 2026.	Uploaded master register.
Barran Dodger Legal & Ethical Trust Fund	Archive and publication entity; publicly indexed material records ABN 78 833 496 164.	Public indexed material.

13. Documentary evidence map

These are the records I identify as central. Each must be read in full, in sequence, and beside my testimony.

Record ID	Body	Reference / date	What I require the record to answer
PM&C-01;	PM&C;	FOI/2022/045; 31 May 2022; 12 December 2022; 8 October 2024	What was searched, located, released, withheld or explained.
OAIC-01	OAIC	RQ22/00794; approximately 1,187 PM&C; Outlook items	What was known, searched, handled and disclosed.
AGD-01	Attorney-General's Department	MC23-028244; 19 September 2023	What was referred, what jurisdiction was claimed, and what remained unresolved.
AGD-02	Attorney-General's Department	MC25-000321; 6 February 2025	What was raised, referred, closed or redirected.
IBAC-01	IBAC	CASE-2020712; 9 April 2020	What was assessed and what was left unresolved.
IBAC-02	IBAC	CASE-20213522; CASE-20215102; 12 April 2022	How related complaints were treated.
IBAC-03	IBAC	CASE-20231101; CASE-20233846; 29–30 October 2023	What was assessed, excluded or redirected.
COMOMB-01	Commonwealth Ombudsman	8 August 2025 restriction	What communication was restricted, on what basis, and what practical avenue remained.
COMCARE-01	Comcare	26 May 2021; 18 October 2021	How employee status was determined and what consequences followed.
WS-01	WorkSafe Victoria	15 November 2021	What responsibility was accepted, declined or referred.
NDISC-01	NDIS Commission	3 June 2021	How the employee-status issue was handled.
NDISC-02	NDIS Commission	01110547; 18 September 2026	What the acknowledgement covered and what action followed.
FCA-PID-01	Federal Court	27 March 2023	What was assessed, excluded or left without a remedy.
DSS-01	DSS / superannuation / NDIS CEO context	8 January 2024	What was communicated, decided and left unresolved.
AHRC-01	Australian Human Rights Commission	April 2024	What rights and events were considered, and what remedy was identified.
NSWTA-01	NSW Trustee and Guardian	16 October 2024	What authority was exercised and what safeguards applied.
NSWTA-02	NSW Trustee and Guardian	14 November 2025	What vehicle decision was made, on what basis, and what it cost me in independence and access.
LEGALAID-01	Legal Aid NSW	January 2026	What assistance was sought, refused, restricted or made unavailable.
NCAT-PG-01	NCAT / Public Guardian	Around October 2025	What was reviewed, excluded or left unresolved.
NSWOMB-01	NSW Ombudsman	NSWO10824000660; 16 September 2026	What was considered and what practical route remained.

14. Chronology of notice and response

Date	Body / reference	What the record concerns
9 April 2020	IBAC — CASE-2020712	Complaint/assessment lead.
26 May 2021	Comcare	Employee-status decision.
3 June 2021	NDIS Commission	Employee-status issue.
18 October 2021	Comcare	Further employee-status decision.
15 November 2021	WorkSafe Victoria	Correspondence lead.

Date	Body / reference	What the record concerns
31 May 2022	PM&C;	Correspondence lead.
12 April 2022	IBAC — CASE-20213522 / CASE-20215102	Complaint leads.
12 December 2022	PM&C;	Correspondence lead.
27 March 2023	Federal Court	PID assessment.
19 September 2023	AGD — MC23-028244	IGIS/Ombudsman pathway.
29–30 October 2023	IBAC — CASE-20231101 / CASE-20233846	Further IBAC material.
8 January 2024	DSS / superannuation / NDIS CEO context	Correspondence lead.
April 2024	Australian Human Rights Commission	Complaint/correspondence lead.
8 October 2024	PM&C;	Later FOI material.
16 October 2024	NSW Trustee and Guardian	Section 122-related document.
6 February 2025	AGD — MC25-000321	Victorian police minister context.
8 August 2025	Commonwealth Ombudsman	Service/correspondence restriction.
Around October 2025	NCAT / Public Guardian	Review context.
14 November 2025	NSW Trustee and Guardian	Vehicle disposal decision.
January 2026	Legal Aid NSW	Restriction/advice correspondence.
16 September 2026	NSW Ombudsman — NSWO10824000660	Complaint reference.
18 September 2026	NDIS Commission — 01110547	Acknowledgement.

15. Repository and preservation inventory

Measure	Reported figure	What it means
Repository tree entries	7,054	Reported retrieved tree; stated as not truncated.
PDF files	3,844	File count only.
HTML files	1,877	File count only.
TXT files	805	File count only.
Preservation-backup manifest	660 pages or entries	Manifest count.
PDF manifest	623 discovered PDF links	97 downloaded; one skipped; 525 download errors in reported run.
Document catalogue header	545 records, including 531 PDFs	Detailed retrieved catalogue incomplete.
People registry	One person record in retrieved data	Not a complete list of everyone named.
Organisations registry	20 seeded organisation records	Seed records, not completed findings.

Preservation, hashes and timestamps help show that material existed and can be checked. They do not replace reading the record, and they do not excuse anyone from answering what they knew and what they did.

16. What I survived

I survived without the help that should have been available. I survived through restrictions, refusals, delays, referrals, lost independence, restricted communication and institutions treating my circumstances as someone else's jurisdiction.

I did not survive because the system worked. Where it worked at all, it worked too late, too narrowly, or without changing the circumstances that placed me at risk.

My survival is evidence. My testimony is evidence. The dated records are evidence. Together, they show what I asked for, what was known, what was done, what was refused, and what I was left to carry.

17. What I refuse

• I refuse to accept that my experience must be reduced to a complaint outcome, a jurisdictional boundary, a procedural technicality or an administrative closure.

• I refuse to accept that a payment, acknowledgement or referral is equivalent to meaningful support where my circumstances did not materially change.

• I refuse to accept that institutions may describe themselves as unaware after receiving notice, without explaining what they did with that notice.

• I refuse to participate in language that shifts the burden onto me, minimises the consequences, or treats my survival as proof that no harm occurred.

• I refuse to let institutional reputation be protected by erasing the human consequences recorded in my archive.

• I refuse to need their permission to name what was done to me, or to state what the public record shows.

• I refuse to allow privilege, comfort, titles or institutional silence to become a substitute for accountability.

18. Verification and record discipline

For every person, place, organisation and document: locate the primary record; record its title, date, reference, author and decision-maker; quote or accurately summarise the operative part; state what it establishes and what it does not; connect it to earlier and later records; separate direct documentary evidence from my testimony and inference; and mark it as unchecked, located, source verified, contents checked or independently corroborated.

19. Source links

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/

https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/official-government-documents-register.html

https://drbarrandodger.github.io/barran-dodger-archive/

https://barrandodger.com/main

https://www.barrandodger.com.au/

https://bazdod.github.io/

I remain. The records remain. My account remains. God’s protection remains. The questions remain.