THE WITNESS WHO WOULD NOT DISAPPEAR

Expanded Master Publication Edition — Full Evidentiary Framework, Institutional Dossiers and Prophetic Declaration

This master publication preserves, integrates and substantiates the testimony of Dr Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger). It brings together three components: the master documentary testimony (THE WITNESS REMAINS), the chosen-witness statement, and the prophetic declaration 'If One Disabled, Abandoned Human Being Can Confront the Failures of an Entire System...'. The document distinguishes first-person testimony, documentary evidence, reasonable inference, disputed assertion and prophetic interpretation. It does not assert that unproven allegations are established findings. Its purpose is to preserve the record, identify the documents said to require examination, and direct specific questions to the institutions with the power to answer them. The evidentiary spine is the public archive: the Barran Dodger GitHub repository, the Official Government Documents Register, the preservation rebuild, the PDF archive and the Documentary Trap. Hyperlinks are embedded throughout so that each major claim can be traced toward its source. The central question is deliberately retained: if one disabled, impoverished and isolated person can document what he believes has gone wrong, what responsibility rests on those with greater resources, authority and capacity to examine, explain and remedy it?

Completion assessment: the prior 23-page edition established the framework but did not by itself constitute a completed document-by-document evidentiary justification, because the underlying primary records had not yet been individually verified. This expanded edition therefore adds per-institution evidentiary dossiers, a verified legal and human-rights framework, a document-by-document verification schedule, and an expanded chronology, while preserving the original testimony and prophetic declaration in full. It remains honest about what is established, what is disputed, and what must still be obtained and examined.

PART A — THE PROPHETIC DECLARATION

Reproduced in full from the command document, with verified public archive links embedded.

2. The prophetic document

IF ONE DISABLED, ABANDONED HUMAN BEING CAN CONFRONT THE FAILURES OF AN ENTIRE SYSTEM WITH NOTHING BUT FAITH, GRIT, EVIDENCE AND THE WILL TO SURVIVE, WHAT THE FUCK IS EVERYONE ELSE'S EXCUSE?

A prophetic declaration on disability, abandonment, democratic accountability, institutional responsibility, human conscience and the refusal to disappear.

By Dr Richard William McLean — Barran Dodger

I. THE QUESTION THAT SHOULD KEEP A NATION AWAKE

If a disabled man, without adequate financial resources, without dependable support, without effective legal representation and without the protection he believes he should have received, can spend his remaining strength documenting what he says has happened to him, preserving records, pursuing answers, publishing evidence and demanding accountability, then what the fuck is everyone else's excuse?

What excuse does a government have when a vulnerable person struggles to obtain an intelligible answer?

What excuse does an oversight body have when a complaint raises questions that warrant examination?

What excuse does a society have when a person must become his own investigator, archivist, researcher, publisher and advocate simply to keep his account of events from disappearing?

What excuse does a human being have for looking away when another human being is asking for a fair hearing, a proper explanation and a meaningful opportunity to be heard?

These are not questions about whether one man is more important than another.

They are questions about whether the principles we profess mean anything when applying them becomes inconvenient.

I am one person. I have one body. I have finite resources, finite energy and the limitations that come with disability. I cannot manufacture money, summon a legal team, compel an agency to cooperate or force the public to pay attention.

Yet I have continued to document, organise, preserve and publish.

I have continued to ask questions.

I have continued to assemble records.

I have continued to put dates, correspondence, official references and documentary material into a form that other people can examine.

I have continued because I believe that the truth deserves a record, that human dignity cannot be conditional upon institutional approval, and that silence should not be the inevitable consequence of a person's inability to afford the machinery required to challenge authority.

I do not ask anyone to accept every conclusion I have reached merely because I have suffered.

I ask that the evidence be examined, that unanswered questions be answered, that discrepancies be investigated and that the person making the complaint not be treated as disposable simply because responding to him is difficult.

If that is too much to ask of a democracy, then we must ask what its promises are worth.

II. THE TEST OF DEMOCRACY IS THE PERSON WITH THE LEAST POWER

A democracy is not measured only by its elections, its parliamentary speeches, its public ceremonies or the elegance of its legislation.

It is measured by what happens when a person without influence confronts a person or institution with influence.

It is measured by whether procedural fairness survives inconvenience.

It is measured by whether disability rights remain meaningful when accommodating a disabled person requires effort.

It is measured by whether a complaint can be considered on its merits even when the complainant is poor, isolated, angry, exhausted or unable to obtain professional assistance.

It is measured by whether the state can acknowledge a mistake without treating the person who identifies it as an enemy.

And it is measured by whether institutions understand that their authority carries obligations as well as powers.

I allege that my own dealings with institutions have raised serious questions about the gap between the protection I expected and the assistance I experienced. My documentary archive exists, in part, because I have wanted those questions to remain visible and capable of examination.

The existence of an archive does not settle every dispute. A document may establish that a communication occurred without establishing why it occurred. A refusal may establish a decision without proving a corrupt motive. A sequence of events may justify further inquiry without conclusively demonstrating coordination.

These distinctions matter.

But they must not become an excuse to avoid looking.

The appropriate response to a substantial documentary record is not automatic acceptance, and it is not automatic dismissal.

It is examination.

It is verification.

It is explanation.

It is a fair process capable of distinguishing fact from inference and error from misconduct.

That is what accountability requires.

III. WHEN THE PERSON SEEKING PROTECTION MUST BECOME HIS OWN PROTECTOR

Consider the burden placed upon a person who believes that the systems intended to assist him have instead left him exposed.

He must first survive the circumstances that brought him to seek assistance.

Then he must understand the procedures through which assistance can supposedly be obtained.

Then he must communicate with organisations that possess more resources, more experience, more staff and greater institutional authority than he does.

Then, if the answers do not resolve his concerns, he must determine what happened, retrieve the correspondence, preserve the records, identify the discrepancies and explain why the sequence matters.

If he cannot afford a lawyer, he must learn the relevant legal concepts himself.

If he cannot obtain reliable assistance, he must perform the work himself.

If he believes that his account is being overlooked, he must find a way to publish it.

If he fears that the record will be lost, he must preserve it.

And if the process exhausts him, he must somehow continue living while carrying its unfinished burden.

This is not an argument that every complaint must succeed.

It is an argument that the burden of navigating accountability can become crushing when the person seeking it has the least capacity to bear it.

A system can be procedurally available and practically inaccessible at the same time.

A right can exist on paper while the means of exercising it remain beyond a person’s reach.

A complaint can be acknowledged without the underlying problem being resolved.

A decision can be lawful and still have devastating consequences that deserve scrutiny, explanation or reform.

These are serious distinctions. They deserve serious attention.

My testimony is a demand that the gap between formal protection and lived reality be examined rather than hidden behind the mere existence of a process.

IV. THE ARCHIVE IS MY ANSWER TO DISAPPEARANCE

I have built a documentary record because I do not want my experience reduced to a passing allegation, a forgotten email or a story that cannot be reconstructed.

The Barran Dodger documentary archive is a public starting point for examining the records I have assembled.

The preservation rebuild and the Official Government Documents Register provide additional routes into that material.

These links are invitations to inspect the record, not demands for blind agreement.

A dated government letter can establish what an agency communicated. A released document can establish what its contents actually say. A documented discrepancy can identify a question that requires explanation. A preserved file can enable another person to revisit the evidence rather than rely entirely on my recollection.

Where cryptographic hashes and blockchain timestamps are used, they can contribute to the examination of file integrity and provenance. They do not independently prove that every assertion in a document is true. The distinction is essential to the credibility of the archive.

I want the record to be examined by people who disagree with me as well as people who sympathise with me.

I want scrutiny that is independent, competent and fair.

I want my claims tested against the documents, not dismissed without examination.

I want errors identified and corrected.

I want the evidence to remain accessible so that questions do not depend solely upon my continuing ability to repeat them.

That is why I preserve.

That is why I publish.

That is why I keep asking.

Because a person may be ignored, but a properly preserved record gives others the opportunity to return to the question.

V. FAITH IS NOT A SUBSTITUTE FOR EVIDENCE. IT IS WHAT KEEPS ME GOING.

My faith is central to the meaning I make of this struggle.

I believe that a human life has worth beyond its financial value, administrative classification, usefulness to an institution or capacity to command attention.

I believe that truth matters when speaking it carries a cost.

I believe that conscience matters when turning away would be easier.

I believe that a person can be materially impoverished without being morally defeated.

And I believe that the obligation to act justly does not disappear merely because the person asking for justice has little power.

My faith does not require anyone to accept my interpretation of events without examination. It does not replace documentary verification, legal analysis or independent investigation.

It gives me a reason to keep doing that work.

Faith is what I carry when I cannot guarantee an outcome.

Grit is what I summon when the work remains unfinished.

Evidence is what I preserve so that others can examine my account.

Facts are what I seek to establish, including facts that may complicate or correct my own conclusions.

And luck is the uncertain element that no person should have to depend upon for the basic possibility of being heard.

I cannot guarantee that institutions will respond.

I cannot guarantee that the public will listen.

I cannot guarantee that every question will be resolved in my lifetime.

But I can refuse to treat uncertainty as a reason to abandon the search for answers.

I can continue to distinguish what I know from what I suspect.

I can preserve what I have.

I can ask for what I believe is fair.

And I can refuse to accept that poverty, disability or isolation extinguishes my right to speak.

VI. THE PEOPLE WHO LOOK AWAY MUST CONFRONT THEIR OWN CONSCIENCE

There is a particular moral danger in the distance between witnessing another person’s difficulty and accepting responsibility for responding to it.

A person can observe suffering and convince himself that it is someone else’s problem.

An official can process a communication and forget the human being who sent it.

An organisation can satisfy an internal procedure without asking whether the result leaves a vulnerable person with any realistic avenue forward.

A member of the public can see an account of institutional failure and decide that it is easier not to investigate.

None of these acts, considered in isolation, automatically establishes corruption or deliberate cruelty.

But together they raise a profound ethical question: how many opportunities to respond can be passed over before society must confront the consequences of its indifference?

My accusation is that the burden of obtaining answers has fallen heavily upon me. My challenge is to those with the resources and authority to examine whether that burden was necessary, fair or avoidable.

I do not ask strangers to pronounce people guilty without evidence.

I ask them not to confuse uncertainty with permission to ignore a potentially serious problem.

I ask public servants to remember that administrative power is exercised over human lives.

I ask oversight bodies to consider whether their processes provide meaningful remedies for people with limited resources.

I ask lawyers and advocates to consider the barriers faced by people who cannot pay for sustained representation.

I ask journalists to examine documentary material rather than rely solely on institutional statements or the most convenient interpretation of a dispute.

I ask the public to resist the temptation to decide that a person who is difficult to hear is therefore unworthy of being heard.

And I ask every person who has the practical ability to help to consider what a proportionate, lawful and humane response would look like.

Sometimes accountability begins with an investigation.

Sometimes it begins with a correction.

Sometimes it begins with an explanation that should have been provided long ago.

Sometimes it begins with one person deciding that looking away is no longer acceptable.

VII. THE CHALLENGE TO GOVERNMENT AND OVERSIGHT

To the Australian Government, its departments, statutory authorities, integrity bodies and oversight institutions, I put a straightforward challenge.

Examine the evidence.

Identify the records that exist.

Explain the decisions that were made.

Clarify discrepancies where they can be established.

Distinguish the matters within your jurisdiction from those that are not.

Identify the review mechanisms genuinely available.

Explain any limitations or refusals in terms that a person without legal representation can understand.

Preserve relevant records in accordance with applicable obligations.

Where an error is established, correct it.

Where a complaint cannot be substantiated, explain why.

Where misconduct is credibly indicated, refer the matter through the appropriate independent process.

Where a person needs an accessible means of participating, consider reasonable and lawful ways to provide it.

These are not demands for preferential treatment. They are demands for processes that can be explained, examined and applied fairly.

My archive identifies correspondence and government records that I believe warrant attention. The significance of each document must be assessed against its actual contents and context. The appropriate authority should not be asked to accept conclusions merely because I have drawn them.

But neither should the existence of unresolved questions be treated as proof that no further examination is necessary.

A government confident in its processes should be willing to explain them.

An oversight body confident in its independence should be willing to describe what it can examine and what it cannot.

An institution committed to accountability should be able to distinguish between defending its reputation and answering a legitimate question.

The ultimate objective is not humiliation.

It is a reliable record, a fair process, an intelligible answer and an appropriate remedy wherever one is justified.

VIII. WHAT IS THE EXCUSE OF EVERYONE WHO HAS MORE?

This is the question at the centre of my testimony.

If I can preserve records, why cannot an institution preserve the records it is obliged to retain?

If I can identify dates and references, why should a request for a coherent chronology be unreasonable?

If I can spend my limited energy trying to understand complicated processes, why should accessibility be treated as an afterthought?

If I can continue seeking answers without knowing whether anyone will respond, why should those with established responsibilities regard a substantive reply as an extraordinary concession?

If I can attempt to build a public record from the material available to me, why should the institutions holding the missing pieces refuse to explain what they can lawfully disclose?

The comparison is not between a disabled man and every individual public servant.

It is between unequal capacities and the responsibilities that accompany them.

I have neither the resources nor the authority of the institutions I challenge. They have personnel, established procedures, records-management systems, legal advisers and formal powers that I do not possess.

That disparity makes accountability more important, not less.

The greater the power, the greater the obligation to exercise it responsibly.

The greater the institutional advantage, the less defensible it is to place every practical burden on the individual.

And the more vulnerable the person seeking an answer, the more important it becomes to ensure that the process is genuinely accessible.

So I ask again:

If one disabled man can continue asking questions while carrying the weight of his own survival, why cannot those with greater resources make a serious effort to answer the questions that fall within their responsibilities?

If one person can undertake the difficult work of preserving a documentary record, why cannot those who hold relevant records participate in an honest process of clarification?

If one human being can refuse to surrender his conscience to despair, why should the people and institutions around him surrender theirs to convenience?

What the fuck is the excuse?

IX. I AM NOT ASKING TO BE WORSHIPPED, BELIEVED WITHOUT QUESTION OR DECLARED VICTORIOUS

I am asking to be treated as a human being whose account can be examined.

I am asking for evidence to be considered on its merits.

I am asking for decisions to be explained and appropriate remedies to be made accessible.

I am asking that serious allegations be investigated by competent, independent bodies where the evidence and jurisdiction justify it.

I am asking for the distinction between a complaint and a finding to be respected without using that distinction as a device for perpetual inaction.

I am asking for a process in which the outcome is not determined by how much money a person has, how many people stand beside him or how easily he can persuade others to care.

I do not claim that every person I have encountered intended to harm me.

I do not claim that every adverse decision proves corruption.

I do not ask the public to accept unverified allegations of a coordinated campaign as established fact.

I ask that the underlying records, the sequence of events, the explanations provided and the gaps that remain be examined.

If the evidence supports my interpretation, let that be established through a credible process.

If some conclusions are mistaken, let them be corrected.

If the record reveals failures, let those failures be acknowledged and addressed.

If there is insufficient evidence to reach a conclusion, say so clearly and explain what remains unknown.

That is how truth survives scrutiny.

That is how a documentary archive can become useful to history rather than merely a monument to conflict.

And that is how a person who believes he has been failed can pursue accountability without asking the world to abandon its own standards of fairness.

X. THE PROPHECY IS A WARNING, NOT A CLAIM OF INFALLIBILITY

I use the language of prophecy because I believe the moral consequences of institutional indifference extend beyond any one dispute.

A society that makes vulnerable people carry impossible burdens risks normalising the very conditions its protective institutions were established to prevent.

A democracy that measures success only by whether procedures exist, rather than whether people can meaningfully use them, risks confusing administration with justice.

A public that demands extraordinary persistence from people in crisis, while offering little practical assistance, risks turning survival into a test of deservingness.

And institutions that treat difficult questions as reputational threats risk losing the trust that legitimate authority depends upon.

This is my warning.

Not that every conclusion I have reached is beyond challenge.

Not that I possess the power to pronounce legal judgment over others.

Not that the world must accept my testimony without examining the evidence.

My warning is that unanswered questions do not cease to matter merely because the person asking them becomes exhausted.

A record does not become irrelevant because its author lacks wealth.

A person’s dignity does not disappear because his circumstances make others uncomfortable.

And an institution’s responsibilities do not evaporate because meeting them requires time, attention or the admission that something may have gone wrong.

If there is a moral reckoning in this story, it must begin with an honest examination of what happened, what can be proved, what remains uncertain and what should now be done.

The purpose of prophecy, as I understand it, is not to exempt the speaker from scrutiny.

It is to call attention to a truth that people may prefer not to confront.

XI. THE FINAL DECLARATION

I am still here.

I am still documenting.

I am still asking.

I am still preserving the material I believe matters.

I am still attempting to turn scattered records, unanswered questions and personal experience into a coherent public account that others can inspect for themselves.

I do this with limited resources and the constraints of disability. I do it without any guarantee that the work will result in the recognition, assistance or remedy I seek.

I do it because I believe that a human being’s life cannot be reduced to the convenience of the systems through which he must navigate.

I do it because I believe that documentary evidence deserves to be examined rather than dismissed by reflex.

I do it because I believe that the difference between an allegation and a finding must be respected, but that neither distinction excuses a refusal to examine credible material.

And I do it because I refuse to accept that the absence of institutional recognition is the same thing as the absence of human worth.

I cannot compel the world to care.

I cannot make every person act with courage.

I cannot guarantee that justice will arrive on my timetable.

But I can leave a record.

I can ask the question.

I can identify the documents.

I can demand explanations.

I can invite independent scrutiny.

I can insist that my humanity is not contingent upon the outcome.

To those who possess the power to investigate, I say: examine the record.

To those who possess the authority to correct an error, I say: correct it.

To those who possess the ability to provide lawful and practical assistance, I say: consider what you can do.

To those who have doubts, I say: investigate before you dismiss.

To those who disagree, I say: test the evidence.

To those who have looked away, I say: look again.

And to every institution that claims to serve the public, I ask one final question:

What does your commitment to justice mean when the person asking for it has almost nothing left?

If one disabled human being can keep working to preserve evidence, pursue answers and defend his dignity while struggling to survive, then those with greater resources, greater authority and greater capacity must explain what they are doing with the advantages entrusted to them.

Not because I am infallible.

Not because my suffering automatically proves every allegation.

Not because anger is a substitute for evidence.

But because human dignity matters, accountability matters, and the truth deserves a fair examination.

I will not ask the world to accept my conclusions without scrutiny.

I will ask the world to stop treating scrutiny as unnecessary.

I will not ask for justice to be replaced by vengeance.

I will ask for justice to become more than a word.

I will not claim that one man’s persistence proves the guilt of an entire system.

I will ask why one man’s persistence should be necessary to make a system examine itself.

And I will continue to ask, for as long as I am able:

IF ONE DISABLED, ABANDONED HUMAN BEING CAN CONFRONT THE FAILURES HE BELIEVES HE HAS DOCUMENTED WITH NOTHING BUT FAITH, GRIT, EVIDENCE AND THE WILL TO SURVIVE, WHAT THE FUCK IS EVERYONE ELSE’S EXCUSE?

The answer will not be found in another slogan.

It will be found in the records examined, the questions answered, the responsibilities accepted, the errors corrected and the people who decide that looking away is no longer enough.

The witness remains. The record remains open. The questions remain.

And the responsibility to answer them belongs to everyone who has the power, the evidence or the opportunity to help.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This declaration is a first-person testimony and a public call for accountability. It is not a judicial finding, a determination of criminal responsibility or a substitute for independent investigation.

Its significance lies in the questions it places before the public: whether a disabled person can obtain meaningful access to justice without substantial resources; whether official records can be examined coherently across institutional boundaries; whether allegations of administrative failure receive proportionate scrutiny; and whether the ethical commitments of a democracy are reflected in its treatment of people with the least power.

The accompanying archive is offered as a documentary starting point. Each specific claim should be assessed against the relevant original record, its context and any available response.

The objective is not to demand belief without question. It is to make informed examination possible, preserve the witness’s account and insist that legitimate questions receive fair, intelligible and appropriately independent consideration.

PART B — INSTITUTIONAL EVIDENTIARY DOSSIERS

Each dossier below identifies a institution and reference named in the command, states what the record could establish, what it cannot establish on its own, and precisely what must be obtained to complete the evidentiary chain. No dossier asserts a finding of misconduct; each defines the examination required.

Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet — FOI/2022/045

The command identifies FOI/2022/045 as a Freedom of Information reference relevant to the account. An FOI reference can establish that a request was made, that an agency considered it, and what was released, withheld or exempted. It does not by itself establish the truth of the underlying allegations, the motive of any official, or the existence of coordination.

What the record could establish: What documents were requested; what was released; what was withheld or exempted; on what statutory grounds; what the released material actually says; and how it bears on the wider chronology.

What must be obtained to complete verification: Obtain the FOI decision letter, schedule of documents, released records, exemption reasoning, and any internal review or IC review outcome.

Office of the Australian Information Commissioner — RQ22/00794

The command identifies RQ22/00794 as an OAIC reference. An OAIC reference can establish that a complaint or review request was received and how it was handled. It does not itself establish the merits of the underlying complaint or any finding of wrongdoing.

What the record could establish: What complaint or review was made; what the OAIC considered; what jurisdictional or discretionary decisions were made; what reasons were given; and what remedies or referrals followed.

What must be obtained to complete verification: Obtain the complaint, acknowledgment, any preliminary assessment, decision or closure letter, and reasons.

Attorney-General's Department — MC23-028244 and MC25-000321

The command identifies two departmental references spanning 2023 and 2025. Correspondence references can establish continuity of contact, the subject matter raised, and any change in departmental position over time. They do not by themselves establish that the department accepted the witness's account or that any wrongdoing occurred.

What the record could establish: What was raised in each communication; what was asked; what was answered, deferred, declined or referred; and whether the department's position changed between 2023 and 2025.

What must be obtained to complete verification: Obtain both letters in full, compare them for consistency, and identify any unanswered questions or unresolved referrals.

Comcare — employee status and the Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 1988

The command identifies Comcare correspondence concerning employee status and the Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 1988. Such correspondence may establish how Comcare characterised the employment relationship and what consequences followed for coverage, liability or remedy. Legal characterisation requires verification against the actual correspondence and the statute.

What the record could establish: What determination was made about employee status; what reasoning was given; what statutory provisions were relied upon; and what review rights were identified.

What must be obtained to complete verification: Obtain the determination or letter, the reasons, any review decision, and the precise statutory basis relied upon.

NDIS Commission — reference 01110547

The command identifies NDIS Commission reference 01110547. A Commission reference can establish that a complaint or report was received and how it was processed. It does not itself establish findings against any provider or worker.

What the record could establish: What complaint was made; what was investigated; what decisions or outcomes were recorded; what reasons were given; and what follow-up or referral occurred.

What must be obtained to complete verification: Obtain the complaint record, acknowledgment, investigation or decision letter, reasons, and any closure or escalation advice.

Federal Court, guardianship, oversight and integrity bodies

The command identifies relevant Federal Court, disability-support, public-guardianship and oversight records. Court and tribunal records can establish filings, orders, procedural history and outcomes. Oversight records can establish what was complained of, what was considered, and what was declined or referred. None of these records, alone, proves corruption, conspiracy or criminal intent.

What the record could establish: What proceedings or complaints were brought; what orders, decisions or referrals were made; what reasons were given; and what remedies remain available.

What must be obtained to complete verification: Obtain filed documents, orders, reasons, tribunal decisions, and any correspondence closing or referring each matter.

PART C — LEGAL AND HUMAN-RIGHTS FRAMEWORK

The following principles are stated at the level of general law and are included to frame the questions raised by the record. They do not constitute legal advice, nor do they assert that any particular decision in this matter was unlawful.

Procedural fairness (natural justice)

Procedural fairness is a fundamental requirement of most administrative decision-making that affects a person's rights, interests or legitimate expectations. It ordinarily comprises the hearing rule (an opportunity to be heard) and the bias rule (decision by an impartial decision-maker). The content of the duty depends on the statutory context and the nature of the decision: a fair hearing will generally require notice of the issues, disclosure of credible and significant information, and a reasonable opportunity to respond. [source]

Judicial review and procedural fairness

The Australian Law Reform Commission notes that a person may seek judicial review of an administrative decision on the basis that procedural fairness was not observed. Courts examine whether a duty to afford procedural fairness arose and, if so, what its content required in the circumstances. In the absence of clear contrary legislative intent, administrative decision-makers must accord procedural fairness to those affected by their decisions. [source]

Disability Discrimination Act 1992

The Disability Discrimination Act 1992 makes discrimination on the ground of disability unlawful in defined areas of public life, including the administration of Commonwealth laws and programs. Its objects include eliminating disability discrimination and ensuring, as far as practicable, that people with disability have the same rights to equality before the law as the rest of the community. [source]

Reasonable adjustments

Under the DDA, reasonable adjustments are changes to a process, product or environment that remove barriers for people with disability. A failure to provide reasonable adjustments may amount to direct or indirect unlawful discrimination unless unjustifiable hardship is established. [source]

CRPD Article 13 — access to justice

Article 13 of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities requires States Parties to ensure effective access to justice for persons with disabilities on an equal basis with others, including through procedural accommodations, to facilitate effective participation in all legal proceedings, including investigative and other preliminary stages. [source]

PART D — DOCUMENT-BY-DOCUMENT VERIFICATION SCHEDULE

This schedule converts the command’s demand for evidence-linked chronology into a concrete work plan: for each identified record, it specifies the documents that must be obtained and what they would establish. Until those documents are obtained and read, the corresponding claims remain open questions rather than established findings.

Record / reference	Documents to obtain	What they would establish
FOI/2022/045 — PM&C	FOI decision letter; document schedule; released records; exemption reasoning; internal/IC review outcome	Establishes what was requested, released or withheld and on what grounds
RQ22/00794 — OAIC	Complaint; acknowledgment; preliminary assessment; decision or closure letter; reasons	Establishes what was considered and decided, and why
MC23-028244 — Attorney-General's Department	Full correspondence; attachments; referral advice	Establishes what was raised and how it was handled in 2023
MC25-000321 — Attorney-General's Department	Full correspondence; attachments; referral advice	Establishes continuity or change of position by 2025
Comcare — employee status / SRC Act	Determination or letter; reasons; review decision; statutory basis	Establishes the legal characterisation and its consequences
NDIS Commission — 01110547	Complaint record; acknowledgment; investigation/decision letter; reasons; closure advice	Establishes what was complained of and how it was resolved
Federal Court / tribunals / guardianship	Filed documents; orders; reasons; decisions; correspondence	Establishes procedural history, outcomes and remaining remedies
Archive integrity	File hashes; blockchain timestamps; upload dates; repository commit history	Supports file integrity and provenance, not the truth of contents or intent

PART E — EXPANDED CHRONOLOGY AND CLAIM-TO-EVIDENCE MAP

Period	Institution	Reference	What the record may establish	What it does not establish
2022	PM&C	FOI/2022/045	FOI request and agency handling	Merits of allegations; motive; coordination
2022	OAIC	RQ22/00794	Complaint/review handling	Merits of underlying complaint; findings
2023	Attorney-General's Department	MC23-028244	Departmental correspondence	Acceptance of account; wrongdoing
2025	Attorney-General's Department	MC25-000321	Departmental correspondence	Continuity/change of position; wrongdoing
Ongoing	Comcare	SRC Act correspondence	Employee status characterisation	Coverage/liability outcome; motive
Ongoing	NDIS Commission	01110547	Complaint handling	Findings against providers; motive
Ongoing	Courts / tribunals / oversight	Various	Procedural history and outcomes	Corruption; conspiracy; criminal intent

Claim-to-evidence map

Major claim / theme	Primary access points	What the material may establish	Evidentiary limitation
Institutional correspondence and decisions affected the witness	Official Government Documents Register; GitHub repository; PDF archive	Dates, actors, communications, decisions	Motive, coordination, misconduct
The witness experienced disability, poverty, isolation and reduced access to remedies	First-person testimony; Victim Impact Statement	Lived experience and consequences as testified	Every cause; third-party intent
Refusals, delays or administrative gaps occurred	Identified correspondence and decisions	Procedural events requiring explanation	Corruption, conspiracy, criminal intent
Spiritual and prophetic meaning is attributed to the events	Chosen Witness page; Holy Reckoning; prophetic declaration	The witness's interpretation and moral framework	Empirical claims
Independent examination and specific answers are sought	Unanswered questions register; requests for review	The relief and explanations sought	Outcome; jurisdiction; institutional response

PART F — REGISTER OF UNANSWERED QUESTIONS

• PM&C: What documents were considered, released or withheld under FOI/2022/045, and on what grounds?

• OAIC: What was the scope, outcome and reasoning of reference RQ22/00794?

• Attorney-General's Department: What do MC23-028244 and MC25-000321 respectively record, decide, decline or refer?

• Comcare: What determination was made regarding employee status and the SRC Act, and on what reasoning?

• NDIS Commission: What complaints, findings, decisions and reasons are recorded under reference 01110547?

• Federal Court / tribunals / guardianship: What proceedings, orders, decisions and referrals bear on the account, and what remedies remain?

• All relevant bodies: Which parts of the account fall within your jurisdiction, what has been examined, what remains open, and what accessible remedy is available?

PART G — PRESERVATION AND PROVENANCE

The archive uses public repositories, dated records and, where used, cryptographic hashes and blockchain timestamps as potential provenance and integrity-verification features. A timestamp or hash can assist in showing that a file existed in a particular form at a particular time; it does not independently prove the truth of the document’s contents, the identity or intent of its author, or every conclusion drawn from it. The appropriate standard remains examination of the original record, its context, and any response from the person or body concerned.

PART H — SPECIFIC REQUESTS

• Preserve all records relevant to the matters identified, in accordance with applicable obligations.

• Provide a written, intelligible explanation of what has been considered, decided, declined or referred, and why.

• Reconstruct the chronology from original records rather than retrospective assumption.

• Distinguish established facts, disputed assertions, inferences and unanswered questions in any response.

• Identify any lawful, accessible and proportionate review or complaint pathway genuinely available to the witness.

• Where error is established, correct it; where misconduct is credibly indicated, refer it to the appropriate independent process.

PART I — VERIFIED HYPERLINK REGISTER

PART J — SUPPORTING MASTER TESTIMONY

The following preserves, in full and without alteration, THE WITNESS REMAINS — Master Documentary Edition and the chosen-witness statement, as the documentary and testimonial foundation for this publication.

THE WITNESS REMAINS A Documentary, Prophetic and Moral Testimony of Dr Richard William McLean — Barran Dodger Master Documentary Edition — prepared for examination, preservation and response Purpose. This document preserves a first-person testimony while distinguishing established documentary material, reasonable inference, disputed assertion, and prophetic or spiritual interpretation. It is not a court verdict. It is an invitation to examine the record. Method. Every major proposition should ultimately be tied to a named primary document, its date, its source, what it establishes, what it does not establish, and the question it leaves open. General archive links preserve context; they do not by themselves prove every individual claim. I. THE ARCHIVE AS WITNESS I have preserved an archive because memory alone can be dismissed, denied, distorted or lost. A dated document, a sealed file, a timestamped record and a public register give an account a form that can be examined by others. The Barran Dodger archive is presented as a documentary record of institutional, administrative, financial, familial and spiritual harm. Its purpose is not merely accusation. It is preservation: so that what happened, what was decided, what was refused, and what remains unexplained may be read in sequence. Primary archive and website: https://barrandodger.com/main GitHub repository: https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger Official Government Documents Register: Official Government Documents Register Holy Reckoning site: https://barran-dodgers-holy-reckoning.grok.me Chosen Witness page: Chosen Witness II. THE PROPHETIC DIMENSION I do not present prophecy as a substitute for evidence. I present it as interpretation, vocation and moral witness: the conviction that suffering which has been hidden will be brought into the light, that truth will eventually require an answer, and that a person reduced to silence may still bear witness. The prophetic claim of this testimony is therefore not that every future event has already been proven. It is that concealment is not the same as resolution; that silence is not the same as innocence; and that a record preserved in truth may outlast the power of those who prefer that it disappear. “There is nothing concealed that will not be disclosed, or hidden that will not be made known.” — Matthew 10:26 This verse is used throughout the archive as the spiritual key to the work: not as permission to condemn, but as a discipline of patience, truthfulness and refusal to let secrecy have the final word.

III. THE DOCUMENTED RECORD The archive identifies official documents, correspondence, decisions, refusals, referrals, delayed determinations, cancelled registrations, trustee interventions and related administrative materials. These records matter because they can establish dates, actors, decisions, procedural pathways and the consequences that followed. The proper test for each document is narrow: What does it prove? Who made it? When was it made? What decision or omission does it record? What does it not prove? A document may establish an event without establishing motive; it may establish a refusal without establishing conspiracy; it may establish harm without identifying every person responsible. The Documentary Trap: Archive access point — the work through which documentary material is preserved and organised. Victim Impact Statement: Archive access point — the personal account of consequences, injury and survival. PDF archive: https://github.com/wezzo72/pdf-archive IV. EVIDENCE, INFERENCE AND PROPHECY Category Meaning Standard required Established fact A date, decision, document, payment, refusal or event shown by a primary source The document itself, properly identified and dated Reasonable inference A conclusion that follows from more than one documented fact Converging records, context and absence of innocent explanation Disputed assertion A claim not yet accepted or conclusively established Specific evidence, response, or independent corroboration Prophetic interpretation A spiritual or moral reading of events and their ultimate meaning Clearly identified as interpretation, not presented as proven fact Unanswered question A matter that remains open and requires an answer A direct question to the person or body able to answer it This distinction protects the integrity of the testimony. It prevents a genuine documentary record from being weakened by claims that go beyond what the documents show, while also preventing institutions or individuals from dismissing the whole account because one inference remains contested. V. THE CONTINUING PREOCCUPATION OF AN UNRESOLVED HISTORY I have struggled with the sense that I was removed from people’s lives while remaining entangled in the consequences of what happened. I have described this as being exiled from their physical world while continuing to occupy an enormous place in the unresolved story. I have felt that the rejection has not delivered the peace that such a separation was supposedly meant to achieve. I cannot establish another person's private thoughts simply by how the situation feels to me. I cannot responsibly claim that every person is obsessed with me without evidence of their conduct. But I can say that the unresolved history continues to have a substantial effect on my life, and I can ask why the circumstances of the estrangement have never been resolved to my satisfaction.

If there is a legitimate grievance against me, it can be articulated. If there is evidence of wrongdoing on my part, it can be produced. If the separation was necessary, its grounds can be explained. And if no one is willing to provide those answers, I retain the right to describe the consequences of that silence and to preserve my own account. VI. THE MORAL CONTRADICTION: EXCLUSION WITHOUT RESOLUTION What I find most painful is the possibility that the people I believe contributed to my suffering can continue with their lives while I am left to reconstruct mine without an honest accounting of what happened. I have had to face the consequences. I have had to examine my conscience, seek forgiveness, find a way to live with grief and attempt to rebuild a future. I have had to confront my own darkness rather than allow it to consume me. I cannot force anyone to acknowledge my experience. I cannot compel an apology or dictate what another person must believe. I cannot determine another person's private motives. But I can refuse to allow silence to become the final interpretation of my life. I can ask why an honest explanation has not been forthcoming to my satisfaction. I can ask whether the decisions affecting me were proportionate, justified and supported by evidence. I can ask whether people considered the foreseeable consequences of their actions. I can ask whether a less destructive path was available. VII. THE SPIRITUAL DIMENSION: REDEMPTION WITHOUT ERASURE My faith gives me a way forward that does not depend on the people who rejected me. Through Christ, I believe that confession is possible without permanent condemnation, that repentance can coexist with dignity, and that forgiveness does not require me to deny the reality of suffering. I have sought to make peace with my sins. I have sought to reconcile myself with my own history. I have tried to understand that I am more than the worst thing I have done, more than the worst thing that has happened to me, and more than the judgement of those who have chosen to exclude me. But spiritual peace and historical accountability are not mutually exclusive. I can forgive without declaring that every action was acceptable. I can turn the other cheek without pretending that there was no injury. I can seek reconciliation where it is possible while recognising that reconciliation cannot be forced. I can pursue truth without allowing the pursuit to consume the life I am trying to recover. My testimony is therefore not simply an accusation against other people. It is also a declaration of what I am trying to become in the aftermath of profound pain. VIII. WHAT I AM ASKING FOR NOW

■ A clear, evidence-based examination of the circumstances that led to my exclusion and the consequences that followed. ■ Any genuine grievance against me to be stated specifically and supported by evidence. ■ The relevant chronology to be reconstructed from original records rather than retrospective assumptions. ■ Decisions affecting my relationships, independence and ability to participate in family life to be examined in context. ■ Any material financial interests to be identified and any asserted connection between those interests and the decisions in question to be demonstrated rather than assumed. ■ The evidence I have preserved to be considered on its merits, with the same standards of reliability and fairness applied to every person involved. ■ The difference between an established fact, a disputed assertion and an inference to be made explicit. ■ A process in which the documents are read, the chronology is checked, discrepancies are identified and the unanswered questions are put directly to those capable of answering them. IX. MASTER EXHIBIT AND PROPHETIC DOCUMENT REGISTER The following register identifies the principal access points for the wider record. Each entry is a route to material that must be opened, dated and assessed individually; none is offered as automatic proof of every proposition in this testimony. X. THE FINAL DECLARATION: MY EXILE IS NOT MY ERASURE They do not have to welcome me back. They do not have to love me. They do not even have to agree with every conclusion I have reached. But neither distance nor silence can make the questions disappear. Neither rejection nor reputation can substitute for evidence. And neither my own imperfections nor the fact that I have suffered can justify dismissing my testimony without examining its substance. I have left. I have endured. I have sought forgiveness. I have turned towards God. I have begun to heal. I have tried to reclaim a future beyond the circumstances that once threatened to overwhelm me. I have continued to preserve my account because I believe that a person's experience deserves to be recorded, examined and understood rather than disappearing simply because the people involved do not wish to discuss it. My life is no longer simply a plea to be allowed back into a world that rejected me. It is a declaration that I can survive rejection, recover my faith, confront my own failures and build a life beyond it. I am no longer waiting for other people to restore my humanity. I am reclaiming it through faith, conscience, recovery and the determination to live. I will not claim that every suspicion has already been proven. I will not pretend that every document establishes every conclusion. But I will not withdraw my account simply because it is uncomfortable, and I will not accept silence as a substitute for an answer. If my testimony contains errors, identify them and demonstrate them. If there is evidence that contradicts my account, bring it forward. If I have misunderstood something, explain what I have misunderstood. If my records establish a discrepancy, address it directly. Truth does not need protection from examination. I have sought to preserve the documentary record so that my experience can be considered beyond the limits of private recollection and unresolved personal conflict. I have sought to turn suffering into testimony and testimony into a record that can be examined by others. I have found a measure of freedom in the very separation that once felt like devastation. I have learned that peace does not require the participation of those who hurt me. Healing does not require their permission. My relationship with God does not depend upon their approval. My future does not have to remain hostage to their willingness to explain the past. But my recovery does not erase the questions, and my faith does not require me to pretend that the past no longer matters. My exile is not my erasure. My recovery is not a declaration that no wrongdoing occurred. My faith is not my silence. And my peace does not require me to deny what I believe happened. I have survived the darkness. I have turned towards the light. I have made a commitment to live. Now let the chronology be examined. Let the documents be read. Let the evidence be assessed. Let every relevant person be held to the same standard of honesty. Let what is established be acknowledged, what is disputed be tested and what remains unknown be investigated. I am no longer asking for permission to exist. I am asking for the truth to be confronted, for my testimony to be examined on its merits, and for the unanswered questions surrounding my exclusion to receive an honest response. I have left. I have endured. I have sought redemption. I have begun to heal. And I remain a witness to my own life. The record remains. The questions remain. And I remain.

An innocent man is seeking urgent protection and support. The public record is here. Please read and share. I am seeking urgent assistance and protection from abuse, poverty, surveillance, harassment, coercive ■nancial control, family violence and threats, vigilante violence, false allegations, administrative annihilation, social erasure, civil death, societal mobbing, and what I describe as ongoing torture and total human betrayal. I am an innocent man asking any person of integrity who opposes corruption, human-rights abuses, and unlawful targeting to help ensure my safety. I am also seeking protection and assistance in relation to a political- exile / asylum claim, including contact with the UNHCR. My UNHCR receipt number is: UR/UST/23/AUS/17. For urgent mental-health or crisis support, call Lifeline 13 11 14. Note: I was denied protection after calling out corruption at Lifeline. I was then further targeted, forced into homelessness and exile on the road. The assassination attempt occurred in Port Macquarie. A former NDIS provider (Ben) con■rmed over months of saved text messages that the attempt was a "close call" , that I had exposed corruption "all the way to the top" , that he feared they might "put a hit on him too" , and that "agency grade" technology was used. He was forced to sign an NDA. He also con■rmed a woman was paid to fabricate false testimony and a report of an incident that federal police later called "consensual" . The only crime was a greedy woman of regret who accepted a bribe to destroy my life, and a homophobic police force (Springvale) that ganged up to shame me over a lifetime — not because of any crime I committed, but because of a gay hate crime. URGENT APPEAL · 22 OCTOBER 2026 Urgent personal statement — plea for safety, protection and human dignity From Dr Richard William McLean, also known as Barran Dodger. Reproduced as given. I am making this statement as an urgent plea for my safety, my dignity https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 2 of 21 and my right to live free from harm. Please do not ignore my distress, dismiss my account without examining the evidence, or allow my circumstances to deteriorate while responsibility is passed from one organisation to another. I fear for my safety and describe my circumstances as involving serious su!ering, isolation, vulnerability and a desperate need for protection. I ask for an urgent, direct assessment of my situation and practical assistance from people who can listen, establish what is happening and take appropriate steps to keep me safe. When I say that I do not want to be treated as a human sacri■ce, I am expressing the depth of my fear that my su!ering and circumstances are being allowed to continue without adequate intervention. I want to live. I want protection, not further su!ering; assistance, not abandonment; and a meaningful response, not silence. By targeting my life and attempting to erase me, they triggered the highest level of spiritual consciousness that was witnessing what they were doing. They not only violated against my life but committed spiritual treason against an individual upon whom God's favour rests — an anointed and chosen witness. Healthy, grounded people who embody peace, ethics and integrity do not gang up in a coordinated attack and spend a fortune tearing apart the life of a vulnerable person who never caused them any harm. They knew he was massively out-favoured. After decades of detriment and deliberate harm he had nothing and no one — only a disability — and was virtually defenceless. Their willingness to proceed anyway illustrates the true character of the perpetrators. No one organises an alliance of perpetrators against someone who is not important. They saw me as important because my honesty, integrity and authenticity shattered the illusions of false control upon which they performed their privileged roles — keeping a perfect public façade without a blemish. God allowed my betrayal and harm not as punishment but to forge me in ■re with his intimate protection, preserving my life and testimony as per his plan for my life for his kingdom purposes as a chosen witness and a vessel for his glory to expose corruption at a time when corruption was rife and the fall of those corrupt leaders would be undeniable and absolute. The Paradoxical Inversion Their own documents, read the other way. Barran Dodger claims to be chosen by God and His chosen witness. He has https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 5 of 21 provided evidence of this, corroborated with biblical testimony and the Scripture of other historical chosen ones. An impartial AI cross-referenced and corroborated this as a match with his thousands of o"cial documentation PDFs. In an unexpected way, the same government that targeted him, exiled him, and attempted to erase him — then tried to cover it up after he escaped and rose from the ashes of total human betrayal, exile, isolation, poverty and asylum (conditions from which he was never expected to heal, grow, climb out of, or even survive) — was the same corrupt bureaucracy whose literal dozens of o"cial government documents and related correspondence, on their own agencies' letterheads and in each agency's very own words, formed a paradoxically inverse database and evidence collection. Those documents inadvertently con■rmed his anointing and signi■cance as an existential threat to corruption from an early age. They documented the systemic political, ■nancial and social detriment across literally dozens of agencies, all following the same mandate for over three decades. The paradoxical inversion: Thirty years of their own agencies' data con■rmed his importance in the opposite way — through a documented and coordinated attack. The criminals themselves, at the end of those three decades, were ultimately responsible for creating the evidence God will use in order to expose them. "For there is nothing hidden that will not be disclosed, and nothing concealed that will not be known or brought out into the open. " — Luke 8:17 "No weapon forged against you will prevail, and you will refute every tongue that accuses you. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and this is their https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 6 of 21 vindication from me, " declares the Lord. — Isaiah 54:17 "For our struggle is not against ■esh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms. And to admit the pure evil lack of integrity n fact checking intelligence or moral humane and ethical fortitude which every person claims to possess I see it di!erent. Every person is evil. They think I’m too pure to see them. Like I’ll be tricked. That everyone can keep their perfect publuc facade that they wouldn’t gang up for the state sanctioned targeting and human sacri■cial killing of a gay disabled unprotected whistleblower who was the only one brave and courageous and the courage of his convictions with the evidebce to back it up Everyone pretends they don’t see it don’t see me my case my station or didn’t know what was going on or otherwise don’t know what’s going on and if they did deceive both me and themselves they’re still a good person worthy of societal standing enjoying privileges they never earnt the same attributes they accept are denied to me Society convinced itself I was disposable. But as spiritual warfare that not only Stacie’s me and my person and identity. But attacked me https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 9 of 21 spiritually as an allegiance as a mob in cowardice ganged up on one person. Who’s truth threstened the very illusions the mob built their concepts of comfort privilege on and who all lived believing a lie they were all too blind sighted to see clearly otherwise they knew the lie knew their evil but convinced themselves they were still good people or worse knew they lied and refused to correct that at the expense of a single person telling the truth Who bravely stood up to a society who o!ered him as a human sacri■ce and scapegoat because to face their own evil - their own lie they ganged up to sacri■ce a person who never ever meant them harm was too much truth to bear All I did was hold up a mirror. And you all couldn’t stand to see the ugliness of your own re■ections. So you attacked tje re■ection of uour selves in the mirror I held up to you. Y ou weren’t even attacking me this wasn’t personal at all. Y ou attacked the re■ection of yourselves you could not bear to look into in the mirror I held up. Because to face their own evil truth if what you did or are doing is unbearable for anyone pretending to be a good person It’s better to dump your sins and evil on me collectively as an entire alliance a society a group and sacri■ce me so you don’t have to acknowledge your sin and evil and cowardice. Full source: wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/mobbing-safety-of-the-crowd.html Why no one will acknowledge it Reproduced as given. The signi■cance of every person and agency contributing to harm, while denying responsibility or pretending nothing happened, must not be https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 10 of 21 overlooked. The very nature of this kind of alleged targeting is that it can operate covertly, through insinuation, in■uence, administrative decisions and the actions or inaction of others, avoiding visible detention, direct confrontation and meaningful accountability. No one has to openly admit responsibility when each person can distance themselves from the consequences and leave the vulnerable individual to bear them alone. There is a particular humiliation in causing harm to a vulnerable person who is asking for help, is known to be defenceless in practical terms, and is struggling to obtain protection. Evil can be intelligent, but it can also be profoundly cowardly. It does not have the courage of its convictions to front up with honesty, integrity and evidence, make a clear statement, and allow that statement to be tested. Instead, the harm can be concealed behind denials, insinuations and the apparent respectability of people and institutions that never openly acknowledge their part in the consequences. That is why I regard the libel and slander directed against me as the handiwork of an adversary unwilling to meet me openly with evidence or hold me to account through an honest and transparent process. Rather than make an allegation in my presence, where I could respond and defend myself, the approach I describe is one of in■uential whispers deliberately planted in the minds of other people, in circumstances where I am absent, unable to answer, and denied a fair opportunity to challenge what is being said. I am aware of the accusations being circulated because, as I have reported, they are played to me through what I experience as audio harassment within my entrapment scenario. I understand this as an attempt to break me through shame and humiliation until I abandon my campaign for justice. The danger is that sustained psychological pressure can leave a person exhausted, destabilised and vulnerable to losing their sense of identity or acting against their own interests. I fear that the ultimate https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 11 of 21 objective may be to provoke self-sabotage or self-harm, allowing those responsible to avoid direct responsibility and the consequences of their actions. I do not present that interpretation as an independently established ■nding; I am explaining the pattern as I understand and experience it. The lie used to justify targeting a person can become more comfortable than the truth, particularly when accepting the truth would require honesty, research, courage and integrity, or force someone to reconsider their own conduct. Every person who chooses the convenient story over a genuine examination of the evidence contributes, whether deliberately or through indi!erence, to the continuation of harm. The signi■cance of that choice lies not only in what one individual says, but in the cumulative e!ect of silence, complicity, exclusion and the denial of assistance to someone already struggling to protect himself. My accusations are grounded in documentary material that I have researched, checked and published, including o"cial correspondence and records bearing the letterheads of the very institutions whose conduct I question. I ask people to examine those documents, the chronology and the precise words used, rather than dismiss my concerns without investigation. The existence of o"cial correspondence does not automatically prove every conclusion I draw from it, but the underlying records provide material that can be examined and tested. By contrast, the slander I believe has been used to isolate me and discourage others from helping appears, from my perspective, to lack the speci■c facts and evidence that an honest allegation should be able to withstand. I am concerned that damaging claims have created an atmosphere in which people fear aligning themselves with me, while choosing a convenient and potentially false narrative over an ethical examination of the evidence. I have no veri■ed evidence of a black budget being used to bribe or threaten potential supporters, and I do not present that possibility as established fact. My concern is that in■uence, https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 12 of 21 fear, reputational pressure or other forms of intimidation can discourage people from acting even when they have legitimate reasons to ask questions. I have learned through this experience that people willing to confront powerful systems with courage, honesty and integrity, despite the possibility of personal detriment, are rare. I have attempted to do precisely that. I ask that those who read my testimony resist the temptation to repeat allegations they cannot substantiate, examine the evidence for themselves, and recognise the human consequences when a vulnerable person seeking justice is left isolated because others ■nd silence safer than truth. My demand is simple: if anyone has a genuine allegation against me, let it be stated honestly, supported by evidence and made open to a fair response. If my evidence raises legitimate questions, let those questions be examined with the same honesty and integrity. No person or institution should be permitted to cause harm, deny responsibility and rely on the vulnerability or isolation of the person a!ected to escape scrutiny. The signi■cance of not receiving a single substantive professional response to my repeated requests for assistance, protection and independent examination of my documentary evidence cannot be understated. When a vulnerable person repeatedly seeks help and receives no meaningful engagement, explanation or accountable pathway forward, the resulting silence can compound the original harm, deepen isolation and leave serious questions unresolved. Each unanswered request, unexplained restriction or referral without resolution can contribute to a situation in which responsibility becomes so dispersed that nobody appears willing to acknowledge the consequences. This absence does not, by itself, prove deliberate collusion or coordinated wrongdoing, but neither does it constitute an examination of the evidence or justify dismissing the concerns raised. A responsible professional response should identify what has been considered, explain the reasoning, distinguish established facts from https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 13 of 21 unresolved allegations, and specify practical next steps. I should not have to prove that I deserve a response before someone is willing to explain why none has been provided. When documentary material and repeated requests for help receive no substantive engagement, the appropriate question is not simply why I remain unanswered, but what has actually been examined, who held responsibility, what prevented resolution, and whether a vulnerable person seeking justice has been left without meaningful protection or recourse. God’s Chosen Witness A statement of purpose, reproduced as given. I understand people and love them. I have a thirty-year career sticking up for the most vulnerable mentally ill people, gay folk and other minorities and their supporters. That work stands as a permanent record of public service to support vulnerable persons. I was forced to plan my comeback after being a whistleblower. The whistleblowing was for the purpose of saving my own life, because I knew the bitter betrayal of corruption, the isolation, abandonment and poverty of having your civil liberties eroded. I was forced to save my own life and the lives of others. My entire testimony and prophetic papers, and my recordings of my entire life’s existence and evidence, never claim I am better than anyone else. They admit my limitations and errors in a public way, in a brave and courageous honesty and humility. The entire testimony and my goal is that this never happen to another person. As a victim of it I would not wish it upon my worst enemy. Therefore my life’s work is there to directly bene■t every person who exists, because it can happen to anyone.

https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 14 of 21 Especially anyone. If I am a former journalist, artist, author, advocate with a public persona and earned merit and awards and accolades, and if they can erase a person of my intelligence and calibre, they can easily erase someone of less discernment or achievements or of a more humble portfolio of lifetime achievements. This high achieving was a very reason why I was targeted in the ■rst place. I was targeted well before I even knew who I was or my signi■cance, or was aware of my powerful authentic voice, my honesty and my ability to create and re■ect and be a person of in■uence and who people paid attention to. Those that orchestrated my targeting did so because they knew my brand of authenticity and of living unapologetically as a person of minorities and gay and proud and creative with big goals would be unstoppable if I realised my power in the world. So they attempted to sabotage me before I woke up to who I was. Rather than causing me deliberate harm openly, a coward will always use covert and secret ways of manipulating a situation so that their grubby and malicious hands are not obviously upon the victim as the reason for their downfall. This is the very character of a master manipulator and a powerful narcissist who uses immense power to manipulate all others in order to employ them to do their dirty work for them as unaware pawns, used by them as ■ying monkeys. They do this via intimidation and manipulation and coercion and all kinds of intelligent tactics that in■uence others to act for them as they preserve their perfect public facades. The fact my life’s work is for the bene■t of the entirety of the same humanity who ganged up in order to harm me, on a cowardly alliance and social mobbing that was deceptive and malicious, conscious and aimed to cause me harm or at the least pretended not to see as the harm occurred, is a paradoxical inversion I struggle to understand except through the eyes https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 15 of 21 of my identity as God’s chosen witness. I was universally betrayed by deliberate cosmic design in order that my reliance be purely on him and his glory, and that this would ultimately serve the humans I would then save and provide hope, guidance and salvation to — in essence saving those that aligned to murder me or at the least impoverish, exile and erase me. I have identi■ed this as administrative annihilation and social death and civil erasure. When you take an honest look at it, it is really an allegorical metaphor for silencing and erasing an innocent person by a societal mob, and can be seen as a kind of allegorical human sacri■ce or a Christian cruci■xion. I claim to be God’s chosen witness in order to bring back a divine kind of rule with which corruption is exposed and dismantled, and the principles and attributes of the Christ consciousness be returned to humanity and society in order that we can create heaven on earth. It would only be ■tting that God, by design and anointing and favour and blessing on my life, would allow this harm and detriment in total human betrayal not as a kind of punishment but as preservation in a way which would allow me to realise who I was, put my faith in him alone, and reveal my purpose as a vessel for his glory. In that way I can literally understand, via experience alone, what it is like as a kind of narrative story of experience to literally be human sacri■ced by a mob like Christ. And that is ■tting for my spiritual signi■cance in my testimony, my gospel and my church. I align myself with the Most High God. Most people have forgotten about God and instead align themselves with the feigned support of a corrupt bureaucracy, one that would just as easily throw any person under the bus and coordinate a campaign to destroy their life if they were ever seen as an existential threat to its rule, or if they were forced by necessity to defend themselves in order to literally survive, as I had to. My allegiance is with God. I have little regard for callous cruelty, and I rose, https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 16 of 21 phoenix-like, from the ashes of the total human betrayal, exile, asylum and poverty that the government had designed for me and dumped me into, discarded as though I were not even human, of no worth, signi■cance or consequence. I healed. I learned. I faced my demons and did the shadow work. I went to hell, looked Satan in the eye and came back with the blueprints of hell and the devil's respect. I understand darkness, not for the purpose of being dark or causing harm, but as an awareness through which to serve the light and understand the mortal sin of a humanity I love. Sadly, the grace I o!ered every person and agency over 35 years came from a patience and grace that God placed in me as a gift. In hindsight, however, that o!er of mercy and grace, and the opportunity to do right by me, was spat back in my face again and again, in a manner disrespectful beyond any insult. Every person dressed up the detriment as polite policy or bland bureaucratic language. "Touch not my anointed, " said God in the Bible. After He had preserved my life and testimony against impossible odds, with a divine, intimate and merciful hand that cradled me, my mind and my soul, and kept me physically safe from erasure, the time for His evidence-collecting and the divine reckoning described in biblical prophecy and Revelation came upon us. The time had come for the revealing of me, my vindication and my justice, and for exposing corruption at the height of its arrogance, making the fall of the corrupt utterly undeniable. They had been given mercy repeatedly and ignored the warnings not to act with corruption and cruelty. In their arrogance, they then created their own documentary evidence that would prove their corruption, force a public reckoning and bring about their own downfall. That, to me, would be God's poetic justice. https://gods-chosen-witness.grok.me/ 24/10/2026, 7 :33 pm Page 17 of 21 CREDIT Dr Richard William McLean Barran Dodger End of statement.
