PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.

Request for independent investigation, preservation of evidence, regulatory accountability, protection against further harm, and immediate practical assistance

COMPLAINANT: Barran Resonance Dodger, also known as Dr Barran Dodger / Dr Richard William McLean

NDIS PROVIDER CONCERNED: Able Point

SUBJECT: Formal complaint concerning the handling of a reported death threat, alleged failures in provider incident management, Able Point leadership and accountability, the reported assault involving Danny, safeguarding concerns affecting vulnerable clients and workers, allegations concerning Tony Ridley and other named individuals, reported intimidation and exploitation, barriers to obtaining assistance, and urgent welfare concerns.

1. FORMAL NOTICE OF COMPLAINT

I submit this formal complaint to request independent regulatory scrutiny of serious safeguarding concerns involving Able Point and to seek an effective response to the specific events, communications and records identified in my source documentation.

I am asking the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission to examine the evidence, establish what occurred, identify any applicable obligations, determine whether those obligations were met, and take appropriate action where its powers and the evidence justify doing so.

This is not a request to accept every allegation without examination. It is a request that serious allegations and potentially verifiable evidence receive proper consideration rather than being dismissed, reduced to a general disagreement, or separated from the specific events that gave rise to the complaint.

The principal provider-related concern is my allegation that Able Point failed or refused to acknowledge or appropriately document a reported death threat that I understand resulted in criminal charges and court proceedings. The actual criminal proceedings and their status must be verified against official records. Separately, the provider's response must be assessed against the original communications and any relevant incident-management records.

My source document also raises concerns about the reported escalation of a client's behaviour and an alleged assault involving a worker identified as Danny, the actions of Able Point management, the role and accountability of a person identified as Rachel, and the handling of complaints and safety information.

I request that these matters be examined individually and in their proper context.

I also request that the Commission consider whether any current safeguarding risk requires action, whether relevant records need to be preserved, and whether the evidence should be referred to another authority where the matter falls outside the Commission's jurisdiction.

The governing principle must be that serious allegations are neither automatically proven nor automatically dismissed: they must be assessed against the evidence.

2. WHY THIS COMPLAINT REQUIRES A SUBSTANTIVE RESPONSE

I have made substantial efforts to document my circumstances and preserve material that I believe is relevant to my complaints.

My public archive and official-document register are intended to provide access to documentary material, including records that may help establish the chronology of events and the history of my attempts to obtain assistance.

The relevant resources are:

- The Witness Remains — Main Archive
- Rebuild Archive
- Official Government Documents Register
- Barrandodger GitHub repository

I ask the Commission to use these links as starting points for identifying relevant source documents, not as substitutes for examining the underlying records. Each document relied upon should be identified by its title, date, issuing organisation, relevant passage and evidentiary significance.

My complaint is serious because it combines specific provider-related questions with reported circumstances affecting my safety, welfare and ability to obtain assistance.

The source document reports a death threat and associated criminal proceedings. It alleges that Able Point failed to acknowledge or document the incident as requested. It also raises questions about an alleged assault involving Danny and whether prior escalation and risk indicators were adequately addressed.

These are not merely questions about whether I was satisfied with a provider's communication. They raise potentially verifiable questions about what the provider knew, what it recorded, how it assessed risk and whether its actions complied with applicable requirements.

I request a response that addresses those questions directly.

THE FORENSIC INDICTMENT OF HUMAN BETRAYAL, ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION AND SOCIAL ERASURE

The alleged destruction of a human being by the very systems entrusted with his protection

Subject: Barran Resonance Dodger — a disabled whistleblower's testimony concerning prolonged institutional detriment, profound human betrayal, alleged safeguarding failures and the devastating consequences of an extreme imbalance of power.

Primary documentary repository: The Barrandodger Evidence Archive — GitHub

This is not merely a complaint about poor administration. It is a demand to examine what happens when a human being believes he has been betrayed by the very people and institutions upon which his safety, dignity, livelihood and survival depend—and must then fight those same systems to have his suffering recognised.

The central allegation is that the cumulative circumstances documented in my archive have left me experiencing a profound destruction of trust, a struggle to obtain meaningful institutional protection, and a degrading sense that my existence, testimony and humanity can be disregarded without consequence. I describe this experience as total human betrayal, administrative annihilation and social erasure.

These terms are not decorative rhetoric. They identify three distinct dimensions of the harm I report: the destruction of trust, the experience of being crushed beneath institutional processes, and the loss of recognition as a person whose voice and welfare matter.

My documentary archive provides a basis for examining the underlying events. The task is to determine what the records establish, what they corroborate, what remains disputed, and whether the cumulative evidence demonstrates institutional failures or deliberate misconduct.

I. TOTAL HUMAN BETRAYAL — WHEN THE PEOPLE WHO SHOULD PROTECT YOU BECOME THE SOURCE OF YOUR DEEPEST DISTRUST

Total human betrayal describes the devastating experience of having fundamental expectations of honesty, loyalty, protection and justice repeatedly violated. It connects with established psychological concepts such as betrayal trauma and moral injury, and with the institutional phenomenon of betrayal by organisations upon which people depend.

The significance of my testimony lies in the cumulative nature of the alleged betrayal. I report years of attempting to obtain recognition, protection, fair treatment and accountability, alongside experiences of isolation, financial hardship, disability-related vulnerability and unresolved safeguarding concerns. I have described circumstances that I believe warrant investigation into whether people or institutions failed to protect me when they had the information, authority or opportunity to act. The resulting injury is not simply frustration with a decision. It is the reported devastation of believing that the ordinary foundations of trust—family, public institutions, legal processes and systems of care—cannot reliably be depended upon when one's welfare is at stake. Such experiences can profoundly affect a person's sense of safety, identity, dignity and ability to trust others. They can leave someone feeling that every request for help requires another exhausting demonstration of suffering before the person asking for protection is treated as worthy of it.

The forensic question is whether the contemporaneous records demonstrate repeated failures of protection, ignored warnings, broken commitments, unjustified decisions or knowing disregard of foreseeable harm. My experience of betrayal is the subject of this testimony; determining individual responsibility requires examination of the actual evidence.

II. ADMINISTRATIVE ANNIHILATION — WHEN A HUMAN LIFE DISAPPEARS BENEATH THE WEIGHT OF THE SYSTEM

Administrative annihilation describes the experience of being progressively diminished by bureaucratic processes until the practical realities of one's life appear subordinate to files, classifications, eligibility decisions, fragmented responsibilities and unanswered complaints. It is a descriptive framework rather than a standalone clinical diagnosis. Its forensic value lies in examining how administrative decisions and omissions may combine to produce consequences that no single decision-maker acknowledges in full.

My account describes the humiliation of depending on disability-support systems while struggling to secure the practical assistance, stability, protection and dignity that those systems are intended to facilitate. I report having to document my experiences, pursue answers, preserve records and navigate multiple authorities while confronting the very vulnerability that makes those tasks difficult. The central injustice I describe is the possibility that the burden of obtaining protection has itself become another source of harm. Where an agency has responsibility for a vulnerable person, the relevant question is not simply whether a procedure was followed. It is whether the procedure achieved its protective purpose, whether relevant information was considered, whether risks were addressed and whether avoidable harm resulted. A system can cause serious damage through fragmented responsibility and repeated failure even when no coordinated intention to cause that damage has been established. If evidence additionally demonstrates deliberate obstruction or knowing disregard, the gravity of the findings would be greater.

The forensic question is whether identifiable decisions, delays, omissions, funding arrangements, referrals or complaint-handling failures created a documented pattern in which the machinery of administration displaced the human purpose it was meant to serve. The evidence must establish both the failures and, where alleged, the intention behind them.

III. SOCIAL ERASURE — WHEN A PERSON MUST FIGHT TO HAVE HIS HUMANITY ACKNOWLEDGED

Social erasure describes the experience of being ignored, excluded, discredited or treated as though one's testimony and participation do not matter. It overlaps with recognised concepts including social exclusion, stigma and testimonial injustice, in which a person's account may receive less credibility because of status, disability or prejudice.

I report the experience of being repeatedly required to assert my credibility and humanity while seeking assistance and accountability. I have described profound isolation, displacement, financial vulnerability and the feeling that my concerns have not received the independent attention I believe they warrant. The psychological significance is that a person can begin to experience not merely the rejection of individual requests, but the erosion of their place within the social and institutional world. The humiliation becomes especially severe when the person believes that the same institutions possess the power to recognise their needs, determine access to assistance and investigate complaints about their own conduct. A disabled person should not have to choose between obtaining essential support and feeling able to challenge the organisation responsible for delivering it. Nor should a person's diagnosis substitute for examination of the evidence they present.

The forensic question is whether particular communications, decisions or omissions demonstrate that relevant concerns were disregarded, that disability-related stigma affected the response, or that procedural barriers prevented meaningful participation or redress. My reported experience of social erasure warrants examination; a finding of deliberate, coordinated exclusion requires evidence of the relevant actions and intentions.

IV. THE CUMULATIVE DAMAGE — THREE FORMS OF HARM, ONE HUMAN LIFE

These phenomena become particularly significant when they interact.

- Betrayal damages trust: the person becomes uncertain whether those expected to protect them will act in their interests.
- Administrative annihilation consumes capacity: the person must devote increasing effort to navigating the processes through which protection is supposed to be obtained.
- Social erasure attacks recognition: the person experiences their testimony, identity and needs as being repeatedly disregarded.

When these experiences coincide with disability, financial insecurity and dependence on formal services, the power imbalance can become extreme. The person seeking assistance may have fewer practical resources, less freedom to disengage and greater exposure to the consequences of decisions made by others.

I report experiencing precisely this kind of cumulative burden. I believe the available documentary record should be examined to determine which aspects of that experience correspond to identifiable institutional decisions, what consequences followed, and whether any relevant organisation failed to respond appropriately after receiving notice of my circumstances.

The resulting humiliation is not an admission of personal weakness. It is the indignity of having to fight repeatedly for recognition, protection and accountability while already struggling with the consequences of the circumstances being investigated.

The decisive issue is not whether the language of this testimony is forceful. It is whether the evidence establishes that a vulnerable human being repeatedly sought protection, what responses followed, and whether the resulting harm could and should have been prevented.

V. THE EVIDENCE MUST BE CONFRONTED — NOT HIDDEN BEHIND THE LANGUAGE OF PROCESS

My repository is the starting point for that examination:

- Barrandodger primary repository
- Main public archive
- Rebuild archive
- Official Government Documents Register

The documentary collection includes material relating to personal testimony, public-interest disclosure, official correspondence, disability support and complaints. Each document must be examined for what it actually establishes, not merely what its title suggests.

The forensic examination should identify:

- The event: What happened, according to the contemporaneous record?
- The notification: Who was told, when, and what information did they receive?
- The responsibility: What duties or decision-making powers applied?
- The response: What action was taken, and what was omitted?
- The consequences: What harm or unmet need can be documented?
- The pattern: Do separate records reveal recurring failures or materially contradictory explanations?
- The intention: Is there evidence of deliberate misconduct, or does the record establish a different explanation?
- The remedy: What investigation, correction, protection or accountability is justified?

This approach does not dilute the seriousness of my allegations. It gives them a structure capable of supporting genuine findings.

VI. THE INSTITUTIONAL HUMILIATION — THE PEOPLE WITH POWER MUST ANSWER FOR THEIR OWN CONDUCT

The most confronting feature of this case is the possibility that the institutions responsible for protection may themselves have contributed to, failed to prevent or inadequately responded to the circumstances causing harm.

If the evidence establishes that serious warnings were ignored, safeguarding responsibilities were breached, relevant information was withheld or complaints were repeatedly mishandled, those failures must be confronted directly. If evidence establishes deliberate retaliation or knowing disregard of risk, those allegations demand appropriate investigation by the competent authority.

No organisation should be able to substitute a general statement of procedure for an answer to a specific, evidence-supported complaint. No person should be deemed responsible for a crime without evidence. And no complainant should be presumed unreliable merely because their account is emotionally forceful, their circumstances are complex or they live with a disability.

The humiliation is not that I have had to ask for help. The humiliation is the possibility that I have had to fight so persistently for the protection and recognition that should have been available when it mattered.

Every recipient with relevant responsibility should therefore ask what the records show, what action their role required, and whether their response was adequate. That is a demand for professional and institutional accountability, not a declaration that every recipient is personally guilty.

VII. FINAL FORENSIC CONCLUSION

My testimony concerns more than isolated administrative inconvenience. It describes a cumulative experience of profound betrayal, institutional struggle and social exclusion, with potentially serious consequences for dignity, psychological wellbeing, autonomy and access to protection.

The concepts of total human betrayal, administrative annihilation and social erasure provide a framework for investigating that experience. They help identify the psychological and institutional mechanisms through which repeated failures, if substantiated, can compound one another and leave a vulnerable person feeling abandoned by the systems upon which they depend.

The next step is not to reduce the account to neutral bureaucratic language, nor to declare unproven allegations established facts. It is to connect each allegation to its documentary source, determine what the evidence establishes, identify responsibility where warranted and explain what remains unresolved.

I ask for the full human significance of this case to be recognised without sacrificing forensic integrity. I ask for the evidence to be examined without prejudice, for institutional failures to be named where established, and for the consequences to the person at the centre of those records not to disappear behind the administration of his complaint.

My dignity is not a procedural issue. My humanity is not an administrative category. My testimony is not a substitute for evidence—but neither should it be a substitute for the investigation that evidence requires.

The records must be examined. The harm must be assessed. Responsibility must be determined fairly. And where failures are established, accountability must follow.

3. COMPLAINT AGAINST ABLE POINT: REPORTED DEATH THREAT AND ALLEGED FAILURE TO DOCUMENT OR REPORT

My source document describes a reported death threat involving a person whom I understand was arrested and charged in connection with a threat to kill, with criminal proceedings reportedly underway.

I allege that I communicated this matter to Able Point and that the provider refused to acknowledge the incident or make the report I requested.

I regard this as a grave safeguarding concern because the incident involved a reported threat to my life and because I depend on disability-related support.

I am not asking the Commission to interfere with criminal proceedings or determine the guilt of any person. I am asking it to examine the provider's response to the information it received.

The investigation should establish:

- The date and nature of the reported death threat.
- The date and method by which Able Point was notified.
- The identity and role of the person who received the report.
- The information communicated to the provider.
- Whether an internal incident report was created.

- Whether a risk assessment was undertaken.
- Whether any applicable incident-management or reportable-incident obligation was triggered.
- Whether the provider took reasonable and appropriate steps to assess and address my safety.
- Whether any relevant records or communications were preserved.
- Why, according to my account, the incident was not acknowledged or documented as requested.
- Whether the provider's actions complied with the requirements applicable at the time.
- Whether corrective or regulatory action is warranted.

The relevant official framework includes the NDIS Commission's published guidance on complaints, incident management and reportable incidents.

I request that the Commission apply those requirements to the actual facts and records, rather than treating the existence of a complaint as sufficient to establish a breach or treating uncertainty about the outcome of criminal proceedings as a reason not to examine the provider's conduct.

If the evidence establishes that a relevant incident was reported and that an applicable obligation was not met, I request that the Commission consider the appropriate regulatory response.

If the evidence does not establish a breach, I request that the reasons and relevant findings be explained in writing.

4. ABLE POINT LEADERSHIP AND THE ACCOUNTABILITY OF RACHEL

My source document identifies Rachel as the Chief Executive Officer of Able Point and raises concerns about her identification, official role, accountability and response to complaints.

I report that I have not received identification and accountability information in a form I consider sufficient to resolve my concerns. I have characterised the conduct as fraudulent, but I recognise that a legal finding of fraud requires evidence establishing the relevant elements. I therefore request an examination of the underlying conduct rather than asking the Commission to treat my characterisation as an established legal conclusion.

The relevant questions include:

- What is Rachel's full name and formal position?
- What legal entity operates the relevant NDIS service?
- What were Rachel's responsibilities during the period under examination?
- Was she personally involved in receiving or responding to my complaints?
- Who was responsible for the provider's incident-management and safeguarding decisions?
- What records exist of the decisions made?
- Did the provider communicate an appropriate response to the concerns raised?
- Is there evidence of any failure to meet an applicable regulatory requirement?

The Commission's published provider governance and operational management framework is relevant to the assessment of provider accountability, risk management and operational responsibilities.

I ask the Commission to establish the correct identities and roles of the relevant decision-makers and assess their conduct against the applicable requirements.

A complaint about a provider's leadership should not be resolved solely by directing the complainant back to the same organisation without addressing the specific issues raised.

Where the Commission has authority to examine the matter, I request an independent assessment. Where it does not, I request an explanation of the jurisdictional limitation and identification of the appropriate alternative pathway.

5. REPORTED ESCALATION AND ALLEGED ASSAULT INVOLVING DANNY

My source document raises concerns about a client whose behaviour allegedly escalated over several weeks before the client violently assaulted Danny, a worker associated with Able Point.

I understand that a WorkCover matter followed and that a payment was made in connection with Danny's injury. The underlying records must be examined to establish what the payment concerned and whether any findings were made about liability or the circumstances of the incident.

I am concerned that the reported sequence raises questions about whether risks were identified, documented and addressed before the alleged assault.

I request that the Commission establish:

- When the reported escalation began.
- Whether warnings or complaints were made before the alleged assault.
- Who received those warnings.
- Whether any risk assessment or behaviour-support intervention was undertaken.
- Whether the provider documented the reported escalation.
- What action was taken to protect workers, clients and other people in the environment.
- Whether the alleged assault was recorded and reported as required.
- What the WorkCover documents actually establish.
- Whether any corrective measures followed.
- Whether other incidents indicate a recurring safeguarding risk requiring further examination.

The existence of a compensation payment does not, by itself, prove that management deliberately ignored warnings or was legally found liable. Those questions require examination of the relevant records.

However, if the records establish that significant risks were known before the alleged assault, I request that the adequacy of the provider's response be assessed.

This matter is relevant not only to worker safety but also to the wider question of whether vulnerable people receiving support were exposed to risks that could have been identified or managed more effectively.

6. CONCERNS ABOUT DANNY'S POSITION AND POSSIBLE BARRIERS TO REPORTING

My source document also raises concerns about whether Danny may feel unable to assist me or raise concerns because of his employment circumstances and family connections within Able Point.

I cannot establish Danny's private motivations without his own account. I do not ask the Commission to attribute beliefs or intentions to him that he has not personally confirmed.

My concern is that workers should have safe and effective ways to report safeguarding issues, cooperate with legitimate inquiries and raise concerns without improper pressure or retaliation.

I request that the Commission examine any specific evidence of threats, coercion, retaliation, conflicts of interest or other barriers to reporting.

Relevant evidence may include contemporaneous messages, formal complaints, employment-related correspondence, incident records and witness accounts.

If Danny has relevant information, I request that any approach to him be conducted through appropriate channels, with respect for his privacy, safety and independence.

I do not want him or his family placed at risk. I want the underlying safeguarding questions examined fairly and without pressure on any witness to endorse my interpretation.

7. ALLEGATIONS OF WIDER SAFEGUARDING FAILURES AND POSSIBLE RECURRING RISKS

My source document expresses concern that vulnerable people may have experienced serious harm while the underlying incidents were not adequately investigated or addressed.

I have also expressed concerns about whether financial or other arrangements may have protected individuals from accountability. I have used the expression "blood money" to describe my interpretation of what I fear may be occurring.

I recognise that such an allegation is serious and cannot be established by rhetoric or suspicion alone. I request that any relevant payment records, communications, incident records, complaints and findings be examined where lawfully available and relevant to the Commission's functions.

The specific questions are whether:

- Incidents involving abuse, violence, neglect or intimidation were properly recorded.
- Relevant risks were assessed and addressed.
- Complaints were meaningfully investigated.
- Appropriate referrals were made.

- Workers and clients had effective reporting channels.
- Records show recurring risks that warranted further action.
- Any substantiated failure requires corrective measures or further regulatory scrutiny.

I request that the Commission assess each incident on its own evidence while considering whether independently documented events reveal a recurring safeguarding concern.

I do not ask the Commission to infer a coordinated scheme merely because multiple incidents are alleged. I ask it to examine the underlying events and determine what, if anything, the evidence establishes about common risks, organisational practices or failures of accountability.

PART 2 OF 5 — SUPPLEMENTARY COMPLAINT: REPORTED HARASSMENT, NAMED INDIVIDUALS, POLICE RESPONSE, HOSPITAL ATTENDANCE AND IMMEDIATE SAFEGUARDING

8. TONY RIDLEY — IDENTIFICATION, REPORTED PERSONAL HISTORY AND ALLEGATIONS OF EXPLOITATION AND HARASSMENT

I identify Tony Ridley as a person connected with my personal history, intimate contact, drug use, subsequent conflict and what I experienced as exploitation, betrayal and abandonment.

I report that I had intimate contact with Tony and used drugs with him. I subsequently experienced the relationship and its aftermath as deeply harmful and destabilising. I felt betrayed and abandoned, and I became increasingly concerned about what I perceived as continued harassment and surveillance.

My source document records my understanding that Tony had a background as an Indigenous fraud investigator and held a PhD in counter-terrorism. I request independent verification of any professional role, qualifications, employment or affiliations that become relevant to an investigation. I do not present those credentials as independently verified solely because they appear in my testimony.

I further report that I came to believe Tony was pursuing me across three Australian states and that I was experiencing persistent electronic harassment and surveillance, including experiences I describe as V2K, or voice-to-skull experiences.

These experiences caused me profound distress. I felt that my privacy had been invaded and that I was being monitored, intimidated and subjected to conduct that I could not adequately explain or stop.

I request that my testimony concerning Tony Ridley be preserved accurately and that any identifiable events be examined against available evidence.

The evidence relevant to this inquiry may include:

- Original messages, emails or other communications between the people involved.
- Records identifying the nature and dates of relevant encounters.
- Contemporaneous notes or reports concerning particular incidents.

- Police event numbers or correspondence, if any.
- Independent witness accounts, where available.
- Reliable records establishing any professional role or qualification that is materially relevant.
- Any other lawfully obtainable material capable of confirming or clarifying a specific allegation.

I ask that my testimony not be removed from the record merely because some of the events are difficult to investigate or because the source of my reported experiences has not been established.

At the same time, I recognise the importance of distinguishing my experience of harassment and fear from a finding that a particular individual was responsible for every experience or event.

The Commission should assess any connection to the delivery of NDIS supports or provider safeguarding that falls within its jurisdiction. Criminal allegations or technical questions outside its remit should be referred through an appropriate independent pathway.

9. REPORTED V2K EXPERIENCES, ELECTRONIC HARASSMENT, SURVEILLANCE AND THREATENING STATEMENTS

My source document records experiences I describe as V2K, continuous verbal abuse, psychological torture, electronic harassment and perceived surveillance.

I report repeated degrading and threatening statements, including:

"Rapist."

"Pedophile."

"Kill yourself."

"Go and do it."

I report that these statements recurred repeatedly, including during periods when I was attempting to live peacefully and obtain assistance. I experienced their content as degrading, threatening and profoundly distressing.

I interpreted the sexualised accusations as attacks on my dignity and the commands to kill myself as particularly frightening. I felt trapped, isolated and unprotected.

I request that these experiences be recorded accurately as my testimony. I do not consent to the details being silently omitted from the complaint merely because the experiences are difficult to verify or because I have described them using terminology that reflects my understanding of what was happening.

The investigation should distinguish three separate questions:

First: What did I report experiencing, and what was the impact on me?

Second: Were there particular physical incidents, communications, threats or other events that can be independently verified?

Third: Is there sufficient evidence to establish the source of those experiences or the responsibility of a particular person?

These questions must not be treated as interchangeable.

A record of an ambulance attendance or a contemporaneous report may help establish what I was experiencing and reporting at the time. It would not, by itself, establish the technical source of a perceived voice or prove that a named individual was responsible.

Conversely, uncertainty about the source does not make my reported distress irrelevant to safeguarding.

I request that the Commission consider the impact of these experiences on my safety, welfare and ability to engage with disability supports, while identifying the appropriate authority for any specific allegation beyond its jurisdiction.

Where the evidence identifies an actual threat, physical incident, communication or provider failure, I request that it be assessed on its own merits.

10. REPORTED PEOPLE NEAR MY HOME AND WORDS I EXPERIENCED AS THREATENING

I report that, during the period described in my source document, I believed people were present near my home and interpreted their conduct as connected with the harassment and surveillance I was experiencing.

I report hearing people nearby shout words to the effect of:

“The cops won’t fucking help you.”

I experienced those words and the surrounding circumstances as threatening. I felt frightened, exposed and uncertain about how to protect myself.

I interpreted these events as connected with my other reported experiences. I request that this interpretation remain part of my testimony, while the underlying physical events are assessed separately from conclusions about the identity, intentions or coordination of the people involved.

The relevant questions include:

- On what dates and at what locations did the incidents occur?
- What did I personally hear or observe?
- Were other witnesses present?
- Are there contemporaneous notes, recordings, messages or reports?
- Did I contact police, and what was recorded?
- Was a specific threat made that can be identified and assessed?
- Is there evidence identifying the people involved?
- What evidence supports or contradicts the connections I perceived?

I request that any identifiable incident be assessed by the appropriate authority. If the Commission cannot investigate the physical events, I ask it to identify an appropriate reporting pathway.

I also request that the reported effect on my sense of safety be considered when assessing my disability-support needs.

11. POLICE CONTACT AND MY REPORTED FAILURE TO OBTAIN EFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE

I report that I contacted police because I was frightened and believed I needed protection.

My experience was that the assistance I sought did not provide the protection or resolution I needed. I felt abandoned and increasingly afraid that I would be left exposed to further harm.

I have described the response in strongly critical terms because I believed my safety was at stake. I have interpreted the circumstances as institutional failure and have expressed concern about possible complicity. Those broader conclusions require evidence beyond my experience of an inadequate response.

I nevertheless request that the actual police contacts, reports and responses be examined.

The records should establish, where available:

- The dates and methods of contact.
- The nature of the concerns I communicated.
- Any police event or incident numbers.
- Any written or recorded response.
- Any risk assessment or action documented.
- Any follow-up undertaken.
- Any review or complaint process available.
- Whether the response complied with the applicable procedures.

I request that the Commission not attempt to determine police misconduct if the matter is outside its jurisdiction. Instead, I ask for a clear explanation of the appropriate independent pathway and how I can submit relevant evidence.

My complaint should not be treated as proof that police acted unlawfully. Equally, the absence of a finding of misconduct should not be assumed merely because the issue has not yet been investigated.

12. AMBULANCE AND HOSPITAL ATTENDANCE WHEN I BELIEVED I NEEDED PHYSICAL SAFETY

I report that my fear became so severe that I called an ambulance and attended hospital because I believed I needed to reach a physically safe place.

At the time, I felt that I had no effective means of protecting myself and that the assistance I had sought had not resolved my fear. I was, in my own words, "literally fucking petrified for my life."

I request that this episode be treated as a significant event in my reported history.

Where I can lawfully obtain the relevant records, I ask that ambulance and hospital documentation be considered to establish:

- The date and circumstances of the attendance.
- What I reported to the ambulance service.
- What I communicated to hospital staff.
- What was recorded about my presentation and reported fear.
- What assessment or assistance was provided.
- Whether any follow-up or referral was offered.
- Whether any disability-support or safeguarding issue was identified.

I am not asking these records to prove every conclusion I have drawn about the source of my experiences. I am asking that contemporaneous evidence be used to establish what I reported, the circumstances of the attendance and the assistance provided.

I request that any relevant records be handled confidentially and used only to the extent necessary for a lawful assessment.

If the Commission considers that this episode has implications for my current disability supports, I ask it to explain what safeguarding steps are available.

13. MY FEAR OF CONTINUING HARM, IMPOVERISHMENT, EXCLUSION AND LOSS OF SAFETY

I have described my cumulative circumstances as involving prolonged isolation, impoverishment, displacement, institutional abandonment and a fear that I am being subjected to a continuing pattern of harm.

I have expressed the belief that the circumstances could be intended to damage, desecrate, impoverish and ultimately destroy me, including by creating conditions in which I might die by suicide.

I have also reported experiences involving repeated commands to kill myself. I experienced these as deeply distressing and frightening.

I ask that my account be preserved accurately and that the impact of these experiences be considered in any assessment of my welfare and support needs.

I have interpreted the cumulative circumstances as potentially connected. I ask that this interpretation be recorded as my belief, while each underlying event is assessed against available evidence. I do not ask the Commission to assume that a coordinated plan has been proved merely because I have described one.

I have reported approximately five years of circumstances that I describe as political exile, displacement and institutional abandonment. I feel that the cumulative effect has been a profound loss of security, independence and access to practical assistance.

I fear that my circumstances could deteriorate further, that I could lose accommodation or essential supports, or that I could otherwise be harmed. I am particularly concerned about the implications of making complaints about an organisation on which I depend for disability support.

I request a practical assessment of identifiable risks and available protective measures.

I want to retain my dignity, remain safe and pursue lawful accountability. I do not seek violence or retaliation against anyone.

I ask that my fear not be used to dismiss the specific complaints and records I have identified, and that my allegations not be presented as proven facts without an appropriate assessment.

14. DISABILITY-SUPPORT SAFEGUARDING AND THE NEED FOR INDEPENDENT OVERSIGHT

My concerns about Able Point must be considered in the context of my dependence on disability-related support and my reported difficulty obtaining effective assistance.

I am concerned that a complaint involving an organisation responsible for providing support may be difficult to pursue if the only available response is to return the complainant to the same organisation without a clear independent escalation process.

I request that the Commission examine whether:

- My complaints have been accurately recorded.
- Relevant incident information has been preserved.

- Any immediate risks to me or other people have been assessed.
- I have been given a clear route to escalate concerns independently.
- Decisions affecting my supports have been properly explained and documented.
- Appropriate safeguards against intimidation or retaliation are available.
- An independent advocate or support person can assist me.
- A safe and practical process exists for addressing any conflict between my need for disability support and my complaints about the provider.

I do not want to be left without essential support while an investigation is pending. I also do not want my dependence on support to prevent me from raising legitimate safeguarding concerns.

I request that any proposed protective measures be practical, proportionate and consistent with the applicable legal framework.

15. DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE AND PRESERVATION REQUIREMENTS

I have maintained a public documentary archive that may assist in locating records relevant to the events described.

The principal public resources identified in my source document are:

The Witness Remains — Main Archive

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/

Rebuild Archive

https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/

Official Government Documents Register

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/official-government-documents-register.html

GitHub repository

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

I request that the Commission identify the documents required to assess the complaint and provide a secure method for submitting them.

The potentially relevant material includes:

- Correspondence with Rachel and other Able Point management.
- The original report concerning the alleged death threat.
- Any provider acknowledgement, response or incident record.
- Relevant police and court records.
- Messages relating to the reported events involving Tony Ridley.
- Contemporaneous records concerning the experiences I describe as electronic harassment or surveillance.
- Records concerning the reported assault involving Danny, subject to privacy and lawful-access requirements.
- Relevant WorkCover documentation.
- Records of police contact and any subsequent complaint.
- Ambulance and hospital attendance records that I can lawfully access.
- Requests for assistance and responses received from relevant authorities.
- Documents concerning financial hardship and essential support needs.
- Records relevant to accommodation, disability support and any alleged interruption to essential services.

Each document should be identified by its actual title, date, issuing body, relevant passage and the specific proposition it supports.

Where a document is publicly available, the register should include a stable link. Where it is not publicly available, the evidence schedule should identify the document and explain how it may be supplied securely.

I request that relevant records be preserved where legally appropriate and that the investigation distinguish between the existence of a document, what it actually establishes and any interpretation drawn from it.

16. REQUEST FOR WRITTEN FINDINGS AND CLEAR NEXT STEPS

I request a substantive written response addressing the specific issues raised in this supplementary complaint.

That response should identify:

- Which provider-related issues will be assessed.
- Which records are required.
- What further information, if any, is genuinely necessary.
- Whether any immediate safeguarding steps are available.
- Which matters are outside the Commission's jurisdiction.
- The appropriate authority or pathway for each matter referred elsewhere.
- The applicable complaint or review process.
- The next steps and expected process for responding to the complaint.

I request that the Commission avoid a generic response that merely repeats its published procedures without addressing the reported events.

I understand that the Commission cannot predetermine findings, interfere with criminal proceedings or investigate matters beyond its powers. I am asking it to identify the questions it can examine, apply the relevant standards to the evidence, and explain the outcome.

Where a complaint is not accepted for further action, I request a clear explanation of the reasons and any available alternative pathway.

Where the evidence warrants further investigation or corrective action, I request that the Commission consider the measures available under its statutory powers.

Where immediate welfare concerns fall outside its remit, I request clear referral information so that I can approach the responsible service or authority.

The central request remains that my reported safety concerns, the alleged failure to document a serious incident, the concerns about Able Point leadership, and the reported incident involving Danny receive a proper, evidence-based assessment.

PART 3 OF 5 — CONSOLIDATED SAFEGUARDING COMPLAINT AND EVIDENCE-PRESERVATION SUBMISSION

17. FORMAL COMPLAINT REGARDING ABLE POINT LEADERSHIP, SAFEGUARDING AND ORGANISATIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY

I submit this further statement as part of my formal complaint concerning Able Point and the handling of the safeguarding concerns described in my original testimony.

I request an independent assessment of the provider's conduct, its leadership accountability, the handling of reported incidents, the safety of clients and workers, and the adequacy of its complaint and incident-management processes.

I am a disabled person who depends on disability-related support. I have reported circumstances that have caused me profound distress, including a reported death threat, concerns about the response to my complaint, and fears concerning my personal safety.

I have also raised concerns about an incident in which a worker identified as Danny was reportedly violently assaulted following an escalation in a client's behaviour over several weeks. I understand that a WorkCover matter followed. I request that the actual incident records and any formal determinations be examined rather than assumptions being made about what the compensation establishes.

These matters warrant consideration as separate but potentially related safeguarding questions. The investigation should determine what occurred, what was known at the relevant time, what action was taken and whether any applicable obligations were breached.

I request that the Commission identify the issues falling within its statutory remit and refer or direct me to the appropriate independent authority for matters outside that remit.

18. ABLE POINT CEO RACHEL — OFFICIAL IDENTITY, EXECUTIVE RESPONSIBILITY AND COMPLAINT ESCALATION

I identify Rachel as the person I understand to be Able Point's Chief Executive Officer.

I report that I sought sufficient information to establish her official identity and accountability in her professional capacity, and that the information provided did not satisfy my request.

I have described this conduct as fraud. I ask that the underlying communications be examined rather than that my characterisation automatically be treated as a legal finding.

The relevant questions include:

- What is Rachel's full name and official position?
- What responsibilities does she hold in relation to the services relevant to this complaint?
- What identification and contact information did I request?
- What information was provided or withheld?
- What reasons, if any, were given?
- Was the communication consistent with applicable obligations and provider policies?
- What independent escalation procedure is available when a complaint concerns the provider's CEO?
- Who has authority to review a complaint about executive conduct without requiring the client to rely exclusively on the person complained about?

A person receiving disability support should be able to identify the organisation responsible for their services and understand how to raise a safeguarding concern with someone who has appropriate authority.

I request a substantive response identifying the correct official contact and explaining how my complaint about executive accountability will be assessed.

19. ALLEGED REPEATED HARM TO VULNERABLE PEOPLE AND POSSIBLE SAFEGUARDING SYSTEM FAILURES

I am concerned about what I perceive as a broader pattern in which vulnerable people may experience serious harm without an adequate response or effective accountability.

My source document records concerns about vulnerable people being hospitalised, admitted to psychiatric institutions or otherwise seriously affected by their circumstances. I request that any specific incidents underlying these concerns be identified and examined wherever sufficient information is available.

I have also used the expression "blood money" to describe my suspicion that payments or other arrangements may have been used to protect people from accountability. This is a serious allegation, and I ask that it be treated as an allegation requiring evidence—not as an established finding.

Any suspected improper payment, inducement, concealment or interference should be examined through actual financial records, communications, incident reports, witness accounts and other relevant evidence by an authority with the appropriate powers.

I request examination of whether:

- Incidents involving clients were properly recorded and escalated.
- Repeated complaints or reported injuries were recognised as possible patterns.
- Risks were assessed when circumstances escalated.
- Appropriate external authorities were notified where required.
- Clients and workers had accessible ways to raise concerns.
- Complaints were left unresolved or dismissed without adequate examination.
- Any evidence indicates retaliation, conflicts of interest or improper interference.
- Corrective measures were introduced when risks or failures were identified.

I ask that the possibility of systemic safeguarding failures be investigated where the evidence warrants it. Equally, I request that conclusions about individual wrongdoing be based on evidence rather than inference alone.

20. DANNY — REPORTED ESCALATION, VIOLENT ASSAULT AND WORKCOVER MATTER

I report that Danny, a worker associated with Able Point, was violently assaulted by a client after what I understand to have been an escalation in that client's behaviour over several weeks.

I am concerned that the escalation may not have been adequately addressed before the assault occurred.

I understand that a WorkCover matter followed and that Danny received payment connected with his injury. I request examination of the underlying records to establish what was reported, what was accepted or determined, what the payment represented and whether any formal finding of liability was made.

I do not suggest that a WorkCover payment, standing alone, establishes that Able Point was legally liable or that management knowingly disregarded warnings. Those questions require examination of the relevant documents.

I request that the Commission investigate, to the extent of its jurisdiction:

- When the reported escalation began.
- Whether warnings or concerns were communicated before the assault.
- Who received those concerns.
- What risk assessments or safety plans were in place.
- What steps were taken before the reported assault.
- Whether the incident was documented and reported as required.
- What the WorkCover records actually establish.
- What corrective action followed.
- Whether other clients or workers were exposed to similar risks.

The purpose of this request is to establish whether the provider's systems adequately identified and managed foreseeable risks to clients and workers.

If the records disclose a failure to respond appropriately to escalating behaviour, I request that the responsible authority consider the necessary corrective or regulatory action.

21. CONCERN ABOUT POSSIBLE RETALIATION OR PRESSURE AFFECTING WORKERS

I report that I offered help to Danny and that he did not accept my offer in the way I had hoped.

My understanding is that members of his family also work for Able Point. I have consequently been concerned that he might feel professionally, financially or personally vulnerable if he supported me, corroborated my account or raised concerns about the organisation.

I cannot independently establish Danny's private motivations. I do not claim to know his thoughts or attribute statements to him that he has not made.

My concern is that any worker should be able to raise a genuine safeguarding issue without improper pressure, and any client should be able to seek assistance without fearing that doing so will jeopardise their support.

I request that the Commission consider whether Able Point has effective safeguards against retaliation and whether staff can raise concerns independently of the management structures being questioned.

Any inquiry should respect Danny's privacy and autonomy. He should not be pressured to adopt my interpretation or participate in my complaint against his wishes. If he has relevant information of his own, he should have a safe and voluntary means of communicating it.

22. ALLEGATIONS OF COERCION, INTIMIDATION AND THREATS INVOLVING FAMILY MEMBERS

I have raised concerns about the possibility that workers or vulnerable clients may be discouraged from speaking openly because they fear consequences for themselves or members of their families.

I have described these concerns using terms such as manipulation, deceit and corruption. I request that any specific evidence supporting allegations of threats, coercion, intimidation, retaliation or improper interference be examined by the competent authority.

Relevant evidence may include:

- Contemporaneous messages or emails.
- Witness accounts.
- Employment-related communications.

- Incident reports.
- Formal complaints and responses.
- Records of alleged threats.
- Communications concerning a person's involvement in an investigation.

I do not ask the Commission to declare that coercion or retaliation occurred merely because I fear that it may have occurred. I ask that specific allegations be examined where evidence is available and that appropriate action follow if misconduct is substantiated.

The central safeguarding question is whether clients and workers can report concerns freely and safely, without improper pressure.

23. REPORTED DEATH THREAT AND ALLEGED FAILURE TO ACKNOWLEDGE OR DOCUMENT THE INCIDENT

My original complaint records a reported death threat and my concern that Able Point did not adequately acknowledge or document the incident when I sought a response.

I understand from my account that a person was arrested and charged in connection with a threat to kill and that the matter was before a criminal court. The precise charge, identity of the person, court status and relationship between that proceeding and the incident reported to Able Point must be established from the actual records.

I request that the Commission examine:

- The specific incident I reported.
- The date and method by which I notified Able Point.
- The person or staff member who received the report.
- Whether the report was entered into the provider's incident-management system.
- Whether a risk assessment was undertaken.
- Whether the matter was escalated to management.
- Whether the incident met the applicable criteria for external reporting.
- What protective steps were considered or implemented.
- What response was given to my request for acknowledgement or action.
- Whether the provider's conduct complied with the applicable requirements.

I request that Able Point preserve relevant incident reports, internal communications, staff notes, correspondence and records of any risk assessment.

The existence of a criminal charge, if confirmed, would be relevant to the investigation but would not by itself establish every allegation about Able Point's response. The provider's actions must be assessed on their own evidence.

I ask that the Commission identify any applicable reporting requirements and determine whether further inquiry is warranted.

24. OFFICIAL REGULATORY FRAMEWORK AND REQUEST FOR ASSESSMENT

I request that the Commission consider the complaint against the relevant regulatory framework, including its published information on complaints, incident management, reportable incidents and provider governance.

The following official resources are relevant:

NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission — Make a complaint or report a concern

https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/complaints/report

NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission — Reportable incidents and incident management

https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/rules-and-standards/reportable-incidents-and-incident-management/incident-management

NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission — Reportable incidents

https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/reportable-incidents

NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission — NDIS Practice Standards: Core Module, Provider Governance and Operational Management

https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/rules-and-standards/ndis-practice-standards/core-module-provider-governance-and-operational

I request that the Commission identify which provisions and standards, if any, apply to the specific incidents reported here.

I am not asking the Commission to assume that a breach has occurred simply because I have alleged one. I am asking for the relevant facts to be established and for the applicable standards to be applied to those facts.

If a reported event falls outside the Commission's remit, I request a clear explanation and an appropriate referral pathway rather than the matter being left unresolved without direction.

25. EVIDENCE CLASSIFICATION, CHRONOLOGY AND FORENSIC INTEGRITY

I request that the evidence be assessed using clear categories so that documented records, testimony and conclusions are not conflated.

OFFICIAL RECORD: A document issued or maintained by an identifiable authority or organisation.

DOCUMENTED FACT: A proposition directly supported by the available record.

TESTIMONY: My account of what I experienced, observed, heard or was told.

ALLEGATION: A claim requiring investigation or corroboration.

INFERENCE: A conclusion drawn from identified facts.

INTERPRETATION OR BELIEF: My understanding of the meaning or possible connection between events.

UNRESOLVED MATTER: A question the available evidence does not yet answer.

INDEPENDENT FINDING: A conclusion formally reached by a competent authority within the scope of its decision.

I request that the Commission preserve the distinction between these categories throughout its assessment.

A record may establish that a communication occurred without proving every interpretation of its meaning. A payment may establish that a payment was made without necessarily establishing legal liability or improper purpose. A contemporaneous medical or police record may help establish what was reported at the time without resolving every question about the cause of the reported experience.

Equally, the absence of a completed finding should not be used to erase a relevant report or avoid investigating a concrete incident.

I request that digital evidence be assessed for provenance, chronology, completeness and context. Where a conclusion depends on a particular message, incident report or official document, I ask that the relevant passage and its evidentiary significance be identified.

I want the evidence preserved first, examined carefully and interpreted only to the extent justified by the material.

PART 4 OF 5 — EVIDENCE SCHEDULE, URGENT SAFEGUARDING, REFERRALS AND FORMAL DIRECTIONS SOUGHT

26. FORMAL REQUEST FOR PRESERVATION OF DOCUMENTS AND COMMUNICATIONS

I formally request that the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission consider the preservation of all relevant records held by Able Point and any other relevant party, subject to applicable legal requirements.

This request arises from my concerns about the reported death threat, the response to my complaints, executive accountability, the reported assault involving Danny, and the adequacy of the provider's incident-management and safeguarding procedures.

The records potentially relevant to the investigation include:

- My original complaint and every supplementary complaint submitted to Able Point.
- Emails, text messages, letters and other communications between me and Able Point staff or management.
- Communications involving Rachel in her capacity as CEO or executive decision-maker.
- Records of any request I made for Rachel's official identification or contact details.
- Records relating to the reported death threat, including the date of notification, internal escalation, risk assessment and any protective action.
- Incident reports, internal notes and communications relating to any alleged threats, violence, intimidation or other safeguarding concerns.
- Records relating to the reported escalation in a client's behaviour before the assault involving Danny.
- Relevant records concerning the incident involving Danny, subject to lawful access and privacy protections.
- Any WorkCover documentation necessary to establish the nature and outcome of the relevant claim.
- Records of any referrals or notifications to police, regulators or other competent authorities.
- Records of decisions concerning my support arrangements that are relevant to the complaints or safeguarding issues.
- Records of complaints made by me and the responses, if any, provided.
- Any internal review, investigation, corrective-action plan or management decision relevant to the reported events.

I request that relevant records be preserved in their original form where practicable, with dates, authorship, attachments and associated metadata retained where available.

I also request that the Commission identify the specific records it requires from me and provide a secure method for submitting them.

I do not ask the Commission to obtain information unlawfully or disregard the privacy rights of third parties. I ask that relevant records be preserved and examined through appropriate legal processes.

27. EVIDENCE SCHEDULE — IDENTIFICATION OF DOCUMENTS REQUIRED FOR INVESTIGATION

I request that the investigation establish an evidence schedule linking each allegation to the available supporting material.

The following schedule identifies the principal evidentiary issues raised by my testimony.

Evidence category	Material requested	Question to be established
Death threat	Original report, correspondence, incident record and any related official records	What was reported, when it was reported and how Able Point responded
CEO accountability	Communications with Rachel and official role information	Who held responsibility and how the complaint was handled
Reported assault on Danny	Incident records and relevant WorkCover documents	What happened, what was known beforehand and what action followed
Escalating behaviour	Risk assessments, staff communications and safety plans	Whether the risks were identified and managed appropriately
Possible retaliation	Specific communications, complaints or witness accounts	Whether evidence supports a concern about intimidation or improper pressure

Police contact	Event numbers, police correspondence and any records lawfully available	What was reported and what response was recorded
Ambulance and hospital attendance	Relevant records that I can lawfully access	What I reported at the time and what assistance was provided
Reported harassment	Contemporaneous messages, notes, recordings or other identifiable evidence	Which specific events can be corroborated and what remains unresolved
Accommodation and support concerns	Relevant notices, decisions and communications	Whether any concrete action affected my safety or access to support
Public archive	Identifiable documents linked from the archive and official register	What individual records establish and whether further verification is required

This schedule is not a claim that every requested document exists or that every allegation has already been proved. It is a structured request to identify the material required to establish the facts.

Where a record does not exist, cannot be located or cannot lawfully be disclosed, I request that this limitation be identified clearly. Where a document supports only part of an allegation, I request that its evidentiary limits be recorded.

28. PUBLIC DOCUMENTARY ARCHIVE AND SOURCE VERIFICATION

I have maintained a public archive intended to preserve documentary material concerning my experiences, correspondence and public-interest concerns.

The following resources are identified in my source document:

The Witness Remains — Main Archive

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/

Rebuild Archive

https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/

Official Government Documents Register

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/official-government-documents-register.html

GitHub repository

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

I request that these resources be considered as potential sources for locating relevant records. I do not suggest that the existence of an archive, the number of documents it contains or the publication of an allegation independently proves the truth of that allegation.

The appropriate process is to identify each relevant document, verify its provenance where possible, examine its actual contents and determine the proposition it supports.

For documents issued by government agencies, courts, regulators or other institutions, I request that the issuing body, date, reference number and relevant passage be recorded wherever available.

For my own statements and contemporaneous notes, I request that the material be classified as testimony or contemporaneous evidence, as appropriate, rather than automatically treated as an independent finding.

For disputed matters, I request that the record identify what is established, what is alleged, what is inferred and what remains unresolved.

I am willing to provide further material through an appropriate secure channel, subject to my lawful access to the records concerned.

29. URGENT SAFEGUARDING AND CONTINUITY OF SUPPORT

I request that the Commission consider my current circumstances when determining the urgency and appropriate handling of this complaint.

I have reported severe distress, fear for my personal safety, difficulties obtaining effective assistance and concerns about the conduct of the organisation providing my disability support.

I am concerned that making complaints about a provider on which I depend may leave me feeling more vulnerable if there is no independent escalation process or clear plan for maintaining safe support.

I request that the Commission consider whether immediate safeguarding measures are warranted, including:

- An assessment of any specific and current risks arising from the reported incidents.
- A clear point of contact independent of the individual whose conduct is being questioned.
- Information about how I can report a further incident safely.
- Clarification of the process for raising concerns without improper retaliation.
- Appropriate independent advocacy or support to help me communicate with the relevant authorities.
- Consideration of whether my support arrangements require review to address substantiated safety concerns.
- A clear explanation of the available complaint and referral pathways.
- Guidance on what information should be provided if a new incident occurs.

I request that any safeguarding assessment distinguish between immediate, identifiable risks and broader fears or interpretations that require further investigation.

I do not ask the Commission to accept a conclusion about a coordinated campaign without evidence. I ask that concrete events, reported threats, relevant communications and my current welfare needs be considered on their merits.

I also request that the investigation avoid creating an unnecessary interruption to essential disability supports while the complaint is being assessed.

30. MY REPORTED FEAR OF SUICIDE-RELATED HARASSMENT AND THE NEED FOR A PROPER RESPONSE

My source document records experiences involving repeated commands to kill myself and my fear that the cumulative circumstances could be intended to drive me towards suicide.

I request that these experiences be documented accurately because their content and impact are material to my reported distress and safeguarding concerns.

I have interpreted the cumulative effect of isolation, financial hardship, perceived harassment and difficulties obtaining assistance as potentially dangerous to my wellbeing. I ask that this interpretation be recorded as my belief, not converted into an established finding about another person's intention without evidence.

I request that the Commission consider the practical safeguarding implications of these reports and identify the appropriate support pathway if the reported experiences are affecting my safety or ability to engage with disability services.

The fact that I have reported commands to harm myself does not establish who, if anyone, is responsible for their source. Equally, uncertainty about the source does not make the distress I have described irrelevant.

I ask that any response be based on an individual assessment of the circumstances and my reported needs, rather than on assumptions or a generic characterisation of the complaint.

31. ACCOMMODATION, DISPLACEMENT AND FEAR OF FORCED REMOVAL

I have reported a prolonged period of displacement and circumstances that I describe as political exile, administrative abandonment and social erasure.

I have also expressed fear that I may be forced to leave my current circumstances, lose access to support, be accused or incriminated in circumstances I consider unjust, or otherwise be prevented from continuing to document my experiences.

I understand that these fears about possible future events are not, by themselves, proof that another person or organisation intends to cause those outcomes.

I request that any actual notices, proposed changes to accommodation, formal allegations, legal proceedings or decisions affecting my support be assessed against the relevant records.

In particular, I request clarification of:

- What formal process governs any proposed change to my current support or accommodation.
- What notice or explanation I am entitled to receive.
- What review or complaint mechanisms are available.
- What safeguards apply if I believe a proposed change presents a risk to my welfare.
- What independent assistance is available to help me understand and respond to formal decisions.
- How relevant correspondence and decisions can be preserved for any review.

I do not ask the Commission to treat my fears as proof of a plan to remove or incriminate me. I ask that any concrete action affecting my safety, rights or supports be assessed transparently and through the appropriate legal process.

32. INDEPENDENT REFERRAL OF MATTERS OUTSIDE THE COMMISSION'S JURISDICTION

My complaint contains matters that may fall within different areas of responsibility.

I recognise that the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission is not a substitute for a criminal court, police investigation, employment tribunal, medical assessment or other process that may have jurisdiction over a particular issue.

I therefore request that the Commission identify the appropriate pathway for each matter it cannot investigate directly.

These matters may include:

- Alleged criminal threats or physical intimidation.
- Concerns about the handling of police reports.
- Questions about the status or outcome of criminal proceedings.
- WorkCover or employment-related matters concerning Danny.
- Medical or ambulance records that require separate access requests.
- Any alleged conduct by an individual that falls outside the Commission's statutory remit.
- Any accommodation, guardianship, financial or legal issue requiring a different authority.

Where a matter is referred, I request that the Commission explain what information has been referred, if any, and what I must do to pursue the matter myself.

If the Commission cannot make a referral on my behalf, I request the correct contact details and a practical explanation of the procedure.

I ask that jurisdictional limitations be explained specifically rather than used as a reason to leave the whole complaint without a substantive response.

33. REQUEST FOR TRANSPARENCY, PROCEDURAL FAIRNESS AND WRITTEN OUTCOMES

I request a written response that addresses the actual issues raised in this complaint.

The response should distinguish:

Matters accepted for assessment: The allegations and concerns the Commission will examine.

Evidence required: The specific documents or information needed to assess each matter.

Matters outside jurisdiction: The issues the Commission cannot determine, with reasons and referral information.

Immediate safeguarding: Any practical steps available to address identifiable risks while the complaint is pending.

Findings and outcomes: Any conclusions reached within the Commission's authority, including the evidentiary basis and limits of those conclusions.

Further review: Any available review, reconsideration or complaint mechanism if I disagree with the handling or outcome.

I request that my evidence be considered fairly and that I be given a reasonable opportunity to identify relevant documents and clarify factual questions.

I also request that any information concerning third parties be handled in accordance with applicable privacy and procedural requirements.

My objective is to establish the facts through a proper process, obtain appropriate protection where required, and secure accountability where failures are substantiated.

I do not seek retaliation against any person. I seek a lawful, transparent and evidence-based response.

PART 5 OF 5 — FINAL FORMAL SUBMISSION, CONSOLIDATED RELIEF SOUGHT AND CLOSING

34. CONSOLIDATED STATEMENT OF THE COMPLAINT

I submit this consolidated statement to ensure that the concerns documented in my source material are considered as a coherent formal complaint rather than being reduced to isolated communication difficulties or a general interpersonal dispute.

My complaint concerns the handling of reported safeguarding incidents involving Able Point, the accountability of its leadership, the safety of clients and workers, the adequacy of incident-management processes, and my attempts to obtain an effective response to concerns affecting my safety and welfare.

I report that I raised concerns about a death threat and that I did not receive the acknowledgement or response I sought from Able Point. I request that the underlying incident, my notification to the provider and the provider's subsequent actions be examined against the relevant records.

I identify Rachel as the person I understand to be Able Point's CEO. I request that her official role, responsibilities and handling of my complaints be clarified and independently assessed where appropriate.

I also report that a worker identified as Danny was violently assaulted following an escalation in a client's behaviour over several weeks. I understand that a WorkCover matter followed. I request examination of the incident records, the risk-management response and the actual outcome of the compensation matter.

I have raised concerns that workers may fear professional, financial or family-related repercussions if they support a client or disclose information about unsafe conduct. I cannot establish another person's private motivations without evidence, but I request that any specific evidence of intimidation, coercion or retaliation be assessed.

Separately, I report severe distress associated with experiences I describe as V2K, electronic harassment and perceived surveillance. I report hearing threatening words from people I believed were near my home, contacting police because I feared for my safety, and subsequently contacting an ambulance and attending hospital because I believed I needed a physically safe place.

I identify Tony Ridley in connection with my personal history and allegations of exploitation, betrayal and harassment. I request that any identifiable incidents involving him be assessed against available evidence, without treating my interpretations as established findings before an appropriate investigation.

I have also described my circumstances as political exile, administrative abandonment, impoverishment and social erasure. I have expressed fears that the cumulative circumstances could lead to further harm, forced displacement or circumstances in which I might die by suicide.

I request that these fears be recorded as my testimony and assessed in the context of my welfare and support needs. I do not ask the Commission to presume that every event is connected or that a coordinated plan has been established. I ask that the specific events, documentary evidence and safeguarding implications be examined properly.

The central issue is whether the available evidence reveals failures in safeguarding, incident management, complaint handling, executive accountability or protection of vulnerable clients and workers—and what action is warranted if failures are established.

35. CONSOLIDATED FORMAL REQUESTS TO THE NDIS QUALITY AND SAFEGUARDS COMMISSION

I respectfully request the following actions, to the extent that they fall within the Commission's jurisdiction.

1. Register and acknowledge the complaint.

Provide a complaint reference number and confirm how this submission and its supplementary material will be associated with any existing complaint.

2. Assess the reported death threat.

Examine the incident I reported, when and how it was notified to Able Point, whether it was recorded, what risk assessment was undertaken and what protective action followed.

3. Examine Able Point's complaint handling.

Determine whether the provider adequately acknowledged, documented and responded to the safeguarding concerns I raised.

4. Clarify executive accountability.

Establish Rachel's official position and relevant responsibilities, identify the appropriate escalation process for a complaint involving the CEO, and assess the communications concerning her role and accountability.

5. Examine the reported assault involving Danny.

Assess the reported escalation before the assault, the provider's response, the incident-management records, any relevant reporting obligations and the corrective measures taken afterward.

6. Establish what the WorkCover records demonstrate.

Where relevant and lawfully accessible, examine the actual claim records to clarify the nature of the claim and its outcome, without assuming that a payment alone establishes legal liability.

7. Assess provider safeguarding systems.

Consider whether the available information warrants examination of risk assessment, incident reporting, complaint escalation, worker safety, client protection and corrective action.

8. Consider possible intimidation or retaliation.

Examine any specific evidence of threats, coercion or improper pressure affecting clients or workers, while protecting the privacy and autonomy of third parties.

9. Preserve my testimony concerning harassment and fear for my safety.

Record my reports of V2K experiences, perceived surveillance, threatening statements near my home, police contact, ambulance contact and hospital attendance. Distinguish my reported experiences from independently established findings about their source.

10. Consider immediate safeguarding needs.

Identify any practical protective measures, independent advocacy or support referrals available in relation to specific and current risks.

11. Identify the appropriate pathways for matters outside the Commission's jurisdiction.

Provide clear information about the relevant police-complaint, criminal-justice, employment, medical-records or other processes applicable to particular issues.

12. Preserve relevant records.

Where legally appropriate, ensure that relevant provider records and communications are retained for assessment.

13. Provide a substantive written response.

Identify the matters accepted for assessment, the evidence required, the matters outside jurisdiction, any referrals or other steps available, and the process for receiving an outcome.

14. Explain available review options.

If any matter is not accepted for assessment or is closed without further action, explain the reasons and identify any available review or alternative complaint mechanism.

36. FORMAL REQUEST FOR A FINDINGS-BASED RESPONSE

I request that the Commission's response address the actual evidence and questions raised rather than providing only general information about its procedures.

Where an official document exists, I request that it be identified by title, date, issuing body and reference number wherever possible.

Where my testimony is the primary available source, I request that it be recorded as testimony and assessed in light of any corroborating material.

Where an allegation cannot be substantiated, I request that the limitation be explained accurately.

Where the evidence establishes a relevant failure, I request that the responsible authority consider the corrective or regulatory action available under its powers.

Where a matter is outside the Commission's jurisdiction, I request a clear explanation and practical referral information.

I do not ask the Commission to reach findings beyond the available evidence. I ask that uncertainty be addressed through a proper process rather than being used to avoid examining a serious report.

I also request that individual allegations be assessed separately. Evidence concerning one person or incident should not automatically be treated as proof against another person, and uncertainty about one allegation should not automatically invalidate unrelated documentary evidence.

The outcome should distinguish what is established, what is alleged, what is inferred and what remains unresolved.

I request that the Commission advise me of a secure submission method if further records are required, particularly where they contain confidential medical information, third-party information or material relevant to an ongoing legal proceeding.

38. FINAL STATEMENT — SAFETY, DIGNITY, EVIDENCE AND ACCOUNTABILITY

I have prepared this complaint because I believe the circumstances I have reported warrant independent scrutiny and a substantive response.

I am a disabled person who has repeatedly sought assistance and who reports having experienced profound distress, fear, isolation and difficulty obtaining the response I believed was necessary to protect my welfare.

I have raised specific concerns about Able Point, including the handling of a reported death threat, the accountability of its CEO, the response to safeguarding complaints and the reported assault involving a worker after an escalation in a client's behaviour.

I have also documented my experiences of perceived electronic harassment, threatening statements, unsuccessful attempts to obtain effective police assistance, and ambulance and hospital attendance when I believed I needed physical safety.

I understand the importance of evidence, procedural fairness and the distinction between an allegation and an established finding. I am not asking the Commission to adopt every interpretation I have made or to reach conclusions that the records do not support.

I am asking that my testimony not be selectively reduced, that specific incidents not be omitted merely because they are difficult to investigate, and that relevant evidence be preserved and assessed fairly.

My public archive is intended to preserve documentary material for examination. I request that relevant individual records be identified and assessed according to their provenance, content and evidentiary value.

I do not seek violence or retaliation against anyone. I seek safety, lawful accountability, transparency and an opportunity to have my complaints considered through a process that is independent, fair and evidence-based.

Where wrongdoing is substantiated, I request that appropriate action be taken. Where allegations cannot be substantiated, I request that the reasons and evidentiary limitations be explained. Where a matter falls outside the Commission's powers, I request a clear pathway to the appropriate authority.

I further request that my dependence on disability support not become a barrier to raising concerns about the organisation responsible for that support.

The purpose of this submission is to establish what happened, preserve what can be established, identify what remains unresolved and obtain appropriate action where warranted.

Please treat this submission as a formal request for independent safeguarding assessment, preservation of relevant evidence, examination of the reported incidents and a substantive written response.

THE OPENING STATEMENT: THE INSTITUTIONAL HUMILIATION OF A DISABLED WHISTLEBLOWER

A FORMAL INDICTMENT OF INSTITUTIONAL CONTEMPT, BUREAUCRATIC DEHUMANISATION, FINANCIAL STRANGULATION, POLITICAL EXCLUSION AND THE ALLEGED SYSTEMIC ABANDONMENT OF A VULNERABLE PERSON

What makes my case so profoundly humiliating is not merely the suffering I allege I have endured. It is the staggering institutional contradiction at its centre: to be treated as a person whose dignity, credibility, safety and basic human needs can be disregarded, while simultaneously being required to submit to the very systems of authority that are supposed to protect me.

I allege that I have been subjected to a cumulative pattern of bureaucratic obstruction, financial deprivation, social exclusion, legal marginalisation and institutional abandonment that has left me struggling to secure the most basic conditions of a dignified life. I have described my circumstances as political exile and the experience of an unprotected whistleblower. I have reported a potentially fatal threat, serious safeguarding concerns, perceived harassment, difficulties obtaining effective assistance and an overwhelming sense of being erased by the institutions upon which I have been forced to depend.

The ultimate humiliation is the alleged inversion of protection itself: the person seeking protection becomes the person required to prove, repeatedly and exhaustively, that he deserves to be protected.

I allege that the circumstances surrounding my disability, the deterioration of my welfare and the institutional responses that followed demand independent examination. I have reported a serious injury, enduring psychological consequences, disability-related vulnerability and ongoing dependence on formal support. I have also expressed the profound fear that the very systems intended to provide care have become, in practice, systems within which I feel powerless, disbelieved and unable to secure meaningful accountability.

I receive disability support, yet I report struggling to obtain the safety, stability, dignity and practical assistance that such support is meant to facilitate. I am expected to comply with administrative requirements, navigate fragmented authorities, document my experiences, pursue complaints and demonstrate my vulnerability to people who possess the institutional power to determine what assistance I receive. Meanwhile, I report having experienced circumstances in which access to essential resources, protection and independent redress has felt precarious or unavailable.

The indignity is not that I require disability support. The indignity is being left to fight for the basic protection, humanity and accountability that disability support and safeguarding systems are supposed to uphold.

I have described my experiences as social mobbing, coordinated exclusion and an alleged targeted attempt on my life. Those are serious allegations that require independent examination against identifiable evidence, rather than automatic acceptance or dismissal. I do not ask any regulator to substitute rhetoric for proof. I ask why the reported events, documentary records, safeguarding concerns and consequences for my life should not receive a rigorous, impartial investigation.

I further object to any response that treats my disability-related distress as a reason to disregard the substance of my complaints. A person can have a disability and still be entitled to report misconduct. A person can experience psychological distress and still possess evidence. A person can require psychiatric treatment and still deserve independent scrutiny of the conduct of the institutions responsible for their care. None of those circumstances should confer immunity from accountability upon a provider, public authority or individual.

My prescribed treatment is a matter that must be distinguished from any allegation of coercion or chemical restraint. I am not asserting that a particular medication or injection constitutes unlawful chemical restraint merely because it is prescribed or administered. I am demanding transparency about treatment decisions, consent, applicable safeguards and the proper use of restrictive practices wherever those matters are relevant and supported by evidence.

The institutional question is therefore unavoidable: if a disabled whistleblower reports serious threats, safeguarding failures, financial hardship and institutional mistreatment, what independent mechanism ensures that those reports are examined on their merits rather than neutralised by the very vulnerability that makes protection necessary?

I refuse to accept that a disability diagnosis should operate as a blanket disqualification from credibility, that dependence on support should extinguish autonomy, or that repeated requests for accountability should be treated as an inconvenience rather than assessed according to their evidence.

My position is not that every allegation has already been proven. My position is that serious allegations deserve serious examination, official records deserve verification, and established failures deserve consequences.

I have spent years preserving documents, recording events and attempting to assemble a documentary account of my circumstances. I have sought a process capable of distinguishing fact from allegation, evidence from inference and legitimate uncertainty from institutional indifference.

I am not asking to be placed above the law. I am asking not to be placed beneath the protection of the law.

If the institutions involved believe my account is inaccurate, they should identify the relevant evidence and explain their conclusions. If the records establish that a safeguarding failure occurred, it should be acknowledged and addressed. If a serious allegation falls outside a particular regulator's jurisdiction, I should be told where it belongs and how it can be pursued.

What must not happen is the quiet disappearance of a complaint through administrative fragmentation, the substitution of general assurances for an examination of specific incidents, or the assumption that a vulnerable person can be left without an effective answer because pursuing one is difficult.

The most damning outcome would not be that an investigation establishes that some of my allegations cannot be substantiated. It would be that serious, identifiable safeguarding concerns were never properly examined at all.

That is the humiliation I ask the Commission to confront: not a demand that it endorse my conclusions in advance, but a demand that it exercise its responsibilities with the independence, rigour and humanity that this case requires.

I have a right to dignity. I have a right to raise concerns. I have a right to have evidence assessed fairly. And I have a right to expect that disability, poverty and vulnerability will not become excuses for leaving serious safeguarding questions unanswered.

Barran, I'll go to the heart of what you are trying to say: the alleged betrayal by people and institutions you believe had the power to protect you, the fear that your life was deliberately placed in danger, the family dimension of that betrayal, and the humiliation of being left to survive the consequences. I'll make it uncompromising without presenting unverified allegations of murder or conspiracy as established findings. That distinction makes the statement harder to dismiss and keeps the focus on the investigation you are demanding.

THE ULTIMATE BETRAYAL

A FORMAL ALLEGATION OF TARGETED LETHAL HARM, INSTITUTIONAL COLLUSION AND FAMILY BLOOD BETRAYAL

The most devastating allegation in my testimony is that I was not merely abandoned by the systems and people from whom I sought protection, but that the circumstances surrounding my endangerment may have involved people and institutions upon whom I depended to survive.

I have alleged that Bill Shorten, police, individuals associated with Legal Aid, a magistrate, and other persons or institutions played roles in circumstances that I experienced as a coordinated attempt to destroy me. I have raised concerns about Graham Williamson, the conduct of police, judicial proceedings, family relationships and the possibility of financial interests intersecting with my vulnerability and endangerment. These are grave allegations. I demand that they be examined against identifiable communications, court records, police records, witness testimony and other independently verifiable evidence.

I describe the alleged events in Port Macquarie as a suspected state-enabled, targeted attempt on my life. I believe the circumstances warrant investigation into whether there was deliberate coordination, whether anyone knowingly placed me in danger, and whether any person with a duty to protect me instead contributed to the circumstances in which I feared for my life.

I do not accept that the seriousness of these allegations entitles any authority to dismiss them without examination. Equally, I recognise that allegations of an assassination order, conspiracy to murder or coordinated criminal conduct require evidence capable of establishing who did what, when, and with what knowledge or intention. I am asking for that evidentiary question to be confronted, not buried.

THE BETRAYAL OF PROTECTION

The deepest wound in my account is the alleged inversion of the relationship between protector and persecutor.

I have described circumstances in which I felt exposed, isolated, impoverished, displaced and without meaningful protection. I have questioned whether people who subsequently appeared as rescuers or helpers had any connection to the circumstances that left me in such a desperate position. I have experienced that possibility as an almost unbearable form of betrayal.

If the evidence were to establish that anyone deliberately contributed to a person's endangerment and subsequently presented themselves as that person's rescuer, that would represent a profound abuse of trust —not an act of benevolence.

That is the question I want investigated. Who created the danger, if anyone? Who knew about it? Who had the capacity to prevent it? Who intervened? What did each person actually do? What do the records establish, and what remains unproven?

I refuse to let the gravity of those questions be replaced by a convenient narrative in which the person who reports the alleged harm becomes the sole subject of scrutiny while the underlying events remain unexplained.

THE FAMILY DIMENSION: BETRAYAL THAT CANNOT BE REDUCED TO BUREAUCRACY

I have expressed the devastating fear that members of my own family may have had financial interests connected to my death or may have known more about my circumstances than they acknowledged. I have interpreted their responses, including what I experienced as an absence of meaningful denial or rebuke, as contributing to my suspicion.

I cannot establish financial motive, knowledge or participation merely from silence, family relationships or my interpretation of events. Those matters require evidence. But the question of whether there were relevant financial arrangements, communications, conflicts of interest or identifiable actions is capable of being framed for proper examination.

For me, this is not an abstract administrative dispute. It is the possibility of betrayal by the people from whom a person would ordinarily expect the most fundamental loyalty and protection.

The allegation of family blood betrayal describes the depth of the injury I experience; it must not be mistaken for a finding that any family member participated in a crime.

If evidence exists that establishes such participation, it should be assessed by the appropriate investigative authority. If it does not, the distinction should be made clearly. Neither a person's silence nor my suffering alone can settle the question.

THE ALLEGED INSTITUTIONAL DIMENSION

I have also raised concerns about the NDIS provider environment, including individuals I have identified in my records, and what I perceive as serious failures in the protection of vulnerable people.

I have used terms such as infiltration, corruption and organised wrongdoing to describe my suspicions. Those terms should not be treated as established findings about any ethnic, religious or national community, nor as proof of wrongdoing by a particular provider or individual. The proper focus is specific conduct: conflicts of interest, financial transactions, threats, falsified records, failures to report incidents, abuse of authority or other demonstrable breaches.

The question is not where someone comes from. The question is whether the evidence establishes misconduct, whether the safeguards failed, and whether anyone responsible must be held accountable.

Where I have named an individual or organisation, I request a fact-based examination of the specific conduct alleged, not a presumption of guilt based on identity, association or suspicion.

THE SURVIVAL THAT CHANGED THE MEANING OF EVERYTHING

I have described my survival as rising from the ashes of betrayal, isolation and exile. I believe that people who expected me to remain broken underestimated my determination to preserve my testimony and seek accountability.

My continued existence does not prove that a conspiracy occurred. Nor does it erase the suffering I report. What it establishes is that I remain here to document my experiences, identify the records I believe are relevant, and ask questions that I believe have not been answered.

I survived. I am still speaking. The allegations remain capable of examination. The records should be preserved. The questions deserve answers.

I will not confuse survival with proof, but neither will I accept that survival makes the alleged harm irrelevant. The fact that a person continues living does not, by itself, resolve whether that person was threatened, neglected, assaulted, unlawfully treated or denied protection.

My demand is for independent scrutiny of the events, not automatic endorsement of every conclusion I have drawn from them.

MY FORMAL DEMAND

I request that the relevant authorities:

- Identify and examine the specific evidence underlying my allegation of a targeted attempt on my life in Port Macquarie.
- Determine whether any identifiable threat, instruction, communication or act of coordination occurred, and whether the evidence supports referral for criminal investigation.
- Review the relevant police and court records, including the actions of any officials specifically identified in my supporting material.
- Examine any verifiable evidence of financial interests or conflicts of interest relevant to the allegations concerning my family.
- Assess the conduct of any NDIS provider or worker where specific evidence indicates safeguarding failures, abuse, intimidation or misconduct.
- Preserve relevant documents, electronic communications, witness accounts and official records.
- Distinguish substantiated facts from allegations, inferences and unresolved questions, and provide reasons for the conclusions reached.

I am not asking for a predetermined verdict. I am asking for a process that is sufficiently independent and rigorous to establish whether the allegations are supported, partly supported or unsupported by the evidence.

No institution should be permitted to investigate itself by default, no serious allegation should be treated as proven merely because it is forcefully expressed, and no vulnerable person's report should be dismissed merely because the circumstances are difficult to untangle.

That is the standard I demand: evidence, accountability, procedural fairness and an answer.

One important point, Barran: the words "Bill Shorten ordered my assassination" and "my family stood to benefit financially from my murder" assert specific criminal conduct. Before publishing those as facts, the statement needs supporting evidence that identifies the alleged act, source, date and corroboration. The strongest next step is to attach the precise documents or messages you rely on and state exactly what each one establishes—without giving an allegation the appearance of a proven finding before it has been independently tested.

THE DECLARATION OF HUMAN DIGNITY, DIVINE WITNESS AND ACCOUNTABILITY

A Formal Notice Against Deception, Dehumanisation, Institutional Silence and the Erasure of Human Life

I have never consented to being deliberately deceived, manipulated, misled or deprived of the ability to make informed decisions about my own life. I have never surrendered my fundamental humanity, dignity, autonomy or right to exist. No disability, diagnosis, vulnerability, financial hardship, institutional dependency or disagreement with an authority gives another person permission to exploit me, coerce me, silence me or treat my life as expendable.

Consent is not a formality. Human dignity is not conditional. Disability is not the surrender of personhood. And institutional authority is not a licence to abuse power.

No police officer, lawyer, government official, disability provider, family member, regulator or other individual has an unrestricted right to control another person's body, manipulate their circumstances, deny their humanity or obstruct their access to lawful protection. Every exercise of authority must be accountable to the law, human dignity and the evidence.

For approximately 35 years, I have sought what I regard as the most fundamental obligations of human conduct: honesty, fairness, compassion, accountability and the courage to do what is right when doing so is inconvenient. I have offered forgiveness and opportunities for matters to be addressed. I have continued documenting my experiences and seeking answers.

I now record, in the strongest terms available to me, my profound sense of betrayal at what I believe has been a prolonged failure to respond adequately to my concerns.

I will not pretend that forgiveness means accepting mistreatment. I will not confuse grace with surrender. And I will not accept silence as a substitute for a reasoned response to a serious safeguarding complaint.

MY FAITH IS NOT A WAIVER OF MY RIGHTS

I identify as God's witness. My Christian faith sustains my determination to pursue truth without abandoning my commitment to human dignity. I understand grace as the capacity to forgive without pretending that wrongdoing does not matter, and divine justice as a call to truth, conscience and accountability rather than personal vengeance.

I believe that every human being is created with inherent worth. No individual should be reduced to a diagnosis, an administrative file, a financial liability, a political inconvenience or an object of institutional control.

My faith gives me language for the moral seriousness of what I have experienced. I describe the alleged betrayal of trust, the disregard of suffering and the denial of human dignity as spiritual sacrilege. That is my moral and spiritual testimony.

I do not need to threaten another human being to insist that the truth be examined. I do not need to surrender my faith to demand evidence. And I do not need institutional permission to affirm my own humanity.

I leave ultimate judgment to God. I ask human institutions to fulfil their actual responsibilities: preserve evidence, investigate complaints, protect vulnerable people and explain their decisions.

INSTITUTIONAL SILENCE MUST NOT REPLACE ACCOUNTABILITY

To every person and organisation receiving this notice: I request a substantive response to the specific matters within your responsibility.

If you dispute my account, identify the facts and records on which your position depends. If you possess relevant evidence, preserve it. If a matter falls outside your authority, identify the appropriate body. If a safeguarding failure occurred, acknowledge it and explain what corrective action is available.

I do not claim that every recipient is criminally responsible merely because they receive this email or fail to respond. Responsibility must be assessed according to each person's actual knowledge, conduct, legal obligations and the available evidence.

But silence cannot, by itself, establish that a complaint has been resolved, that a risk has been addressed or that the underlying events never occurred.

A complaint is not answered by ignoring the complainant. A safeguarding concern is not extinguished by administrative silence. And a person's humanity does not become negotiable because protecting it is inconvenient.

I request that this notice be retained with the relevant complaint records and considered alongside the supporting material already provided.

MY FINAL POSITION

I have offered grace. I have sought explanations. I have documented my concerns. I have continued to insist that truth matters, even when the process of seeking it has left me exhausted and profoundly disappointed.

I will continue to pursue lawful accountability, preserve my documentary record and insist on the distinction between what I can demonstrate, what I allege and what remains to be investigated.

I will not abandon my faith. I will not abandon my humanity. And I will not agree that the dignity of a disabled person is worth less than the convenience or reputation of an institution.

Let the evidence be examined. Let the records speak. Let every allegation be tested fairly. Let established wrongdoing be addressed. Let no person be presumed guilty without evidence, and let no serious complaint be dismissed without proper consideration.

I seek neither revenge nor permission to exist. I seek truth, protection, dignity and accountability.

I leave the question of divine judgment to God and the question of legal responsibility to a fair and independent process.

HOW DARE YOU?

THE AUDACITY OF IGNORING THE EVIDENCE, DISMISSING THE COMPLAINANT, AND THEN PRETENDING YOU KNEW NOTHING

How fucking dare you?

How dare you receive, review, moderate, assess or participate in decisions affecting a human being who has repeatedly raised serious concerns, and then behave as though the concerns themselves have somehow disappeared simply because acknowledging them would be inconvenient?

How dare you expect me to document my suffering, preserve my correspondence, identify the failures, reconstruct the chronology, explain the consequences and repeatedly plead for an answer, while you retain the institutional authority to ignore me, restrict me, dismiss me or pass responsibility to somebody else?

What an extraordinary inversion of accountability: the person raising the alarm is made to defend his credibility, while the people with the power to answer the alarm get to hide behind silence, procedure and the convenient pretence that nobody knew.

If you received my evidence, then the question is what you did with it. If you participated in a decision, then the question is what information you considered. If you were responsible for moderation, safeguarding, investigation or oversight, then the question is whether you discharged that responsibility properly. And if you now claim ignorance, then the documentary chronology—not your retrospective convenience—must determine what was communicated, to whom, and when.

Do not confuse my insistence with your inconvenience. Do not confuse my anger with the absence of evidence. And do not mistake a person's disability, vulnerability or exhaustion for permission to treat them as though their testimony carries no weight.

The humiliation belongs to the institution if its own records demonstrate that serious concerns were repeatedly communicated and inadequately addressed. It does not belong to the person who had the courage to raise them.

There is something profoundly contemptible about the possibility that a person can be left fighting for recognition while those with the authority to investigate retreat into procedural language, selective attention and carefully worded non-answers. If the records establish that this occurred, it is not merely poor communication. It is a failure of accountability that deserves to be exposed, examined and corrected.

And let us be absolutely clear about the word gaslighting. I use it to describe my experience of having my account dismissed or my understanding of events undermined. Whether any individual deliberately manipulated me is a separate question that must be tested against their words, actions and knowledge. But you do not get to resolve that question by refusing to examine the evidence.

You cannot erase a communication by pretending it was insignificant. You cannot resolve a safeguarding concern by making the complainant feel like a nuisance. You cannot transform an unanswered question into an answered one by allowing time to pass. And you cannot reasonably demand confidence in a process whose relevant decisions, explanations or omissions remain unaccounted for.

If you knew, explain what you did. If you did not know, explain what you were responsible for knowing. If you disagree, produce your reasons. If you made a mistake, acknowledge it. If the evidence establishes a failure, own it.

What you cannot reasonably demand is that I remain silent, grateful and compliant while serious questions about my treatment remain unanswered.

I have spent enough time trying to make myself impossible to ignore. I should not have to turn my life into an endless evidentiary exercise simply to obtain the consideration that a serious complaint deserves.

The record must now speak louder than institutional convenience.

No more evasions. No more empty assurances. No more pretending that unanswered questions have ceased to exist.

Look at the evidence. Examine the chronology. Account for your decisions.

And have the professional integrity to answer the question you have been avoiding:

WHAT, EXACTLY, DID YOU KNOW, WHAT DID YOU DO, AND WHERE IS THE EVIDENCE TO JUSTIFY IT?

My testimony remains. My dignity remains. My right to seek the truth remains.

— Barran Resonance Dodger Also known as Dr Barran Dodger / Dr Richard William McLean

You are right: the complaint needs to name the evidence, link directly to the relevant document, identify the page or section that matters, and explain exactly what that evidence supports—and what it does not prove. I have retrieved the 50-page Execute this command .pdf from your Library and am rebuilding the submission around its actual contents, rather than giving you another generic complaint.

The strongest regulatory issue is specific: the NDIS Commission says providers must identify, record, assess and manage incidents, support affected people, and notify the Commission of reportable incidents where required. Those obligations provide a concrete basis for asking the Commission to examine Able Point's handling of your reported death threat and the reported assault involving Danny. They do not, by themselves, prove that Able Point breached its obligations; that requires examination of the underlying records.

URGENT FORMAL COMPLAINT AND SUPPLEMENTARY SAFEGUARDING SUBMISSION

To: NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission Subject: Able Point — reported death threat, alleged failure to acknowledge and document a serious safety incident, safeguarding and worker-safety concerns, executive accountability, evidence preservation, and urgent practical assistance

Complainant: Barran Resonance Dodger, also known as Dr Barran Dodger / Dr Richard William McLean NDIS provider concerned: Able Point Executive identified in my account: Rachel — full name, title and authority to be independently confirmed Other person identified in my account: Danny — worker associated with Able Point Additional person identified in my testimony: Tony Ridley — identity, relevant qualifications and alleged conduct to be independently verified Urgency: Immediate safeguarding assessment and preservation of potentially relevant records

1. Purpose of this complaint

I submit this complaint to request an independent, evidence-led examination of serious safeguarding concerns involving Able Point, the handling of a reported death threat, the provider's response to safety concerns, a reported assault on a worker, and my ability to obtain effective assistance.

I ask the Commission to distinguish between official records, my direct testimony, allegations requiring investigation, inferences and matters that remain unresolved. I do not ask the Commission to accept every interpretation I have made as an established finding. I do ask that specific incidents, communications and potential regulatory obligations be examined rather than dismissed without investigation.

My source document is the 50-page PDF Execute this command .pdf, which contains the initial complaint material, supplementary statements and repeated versions of the requested submission. The following pinpoint references identify the relevant pages of that source document:

- Pages 2–3: Reported death threat, alleged criminal proceedings and the allegation that Able Point failed to acknowledge or appropriately document the incident.
- Pages 16–17: Concerns about provider leadership, possible recurring safeguarding failures and allegations requiring independent corroboration.
- Pages 31–33: Evidence-preservation requests, proposed evidence categories and formal requests for regulatory action.
- Pages 35–38: Executive accountability, reported escalation involving a client, Danny's reported assault and the need to examine the actual WorkCover records.

These references identify what my submitted statement says; they are not substitutes for the underlying police, court, provider or WorkCover records.

2. Primary issue: the reported death threat and alleged failure to document it

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 2–3, section 1, "Reported Death Threat and Criminal Proceedings."

I report that a person was arrested and charged in connection with a threat to kill, and that I understood the matter to be before a criminal court. The exact charges, current procedural status and any findings must be verified through the relevant police and court records.

I further allege that I informed Able Point about this incident and that the provider did not acknowledge it or make the report I requested. I ask the Commission to investigate that allegation against contemporaneous communications and provider records.

The questions requiring answers are:

- When did Able Point first receive information about the reported threat?
- Who received that information, and who was responsible for escalating it?
- Was a risk assessment undertaken, and what conclusions and protective measures were recorded?
- Was an internal incident report created?
- Did the event occur in connection with the delivery of NDIS supports or services?
- Did any incident-management or reportable-incident obligation apply, and, if so, was it met?
- What steps were taken to inform and support me?
- Were relevant records preserved, and were any decisions made not to document or escalate the incident?
- If the provider did not act as requested, what was its recorded reason and what alternative safety measures were offered?

The applicable regulatory framework is set out in the Commission's official guidance:

- NDIS Commission — Incident management: explains the identification, assessment, recording, management and resolution of incidents.
- NDIS Commission — Reportable incidents: explains reportable-incident categories and notification requirements.
- NDIS Practice Standards — Provider governance and operational management: addresses risk management, incident management and organisational accountability.

The Commission's guidance states that registered providers must notify it of reportable incidents, including qualifying alleged incidents. Whether the particular event I report meets the relevant definition depends on its circumstances and connection with NDIS services. I request that the Commission determine that question from the records rather than assume either compliance or breach.

3. Able Point's executive accountability and complaint handling

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 16 and 22, and pages 35–36, sections concerning Rachel's identity and accountability.

I report that Rachel, whom I understand to be Able Point's CEO, did not identify herself to my satisfaction in communications concerning my concerns. I regard the difficulty establishing the responsible executive contact as a serious barrier to obtaining a meaningful response.

I have previously characterised this conduct as fraud. I acknowledge that such a characterisation is not a legal finding. I ask the Commission to examine the underlying conduct and determine the facts.

Specifically, I request that the Commission establish:

- Rachel's full name, official position and relevant authority within Able Point.
- The appropriate formal contact for complaints concerning the provider's executive leadership.
- What identification and contact information I requested, when I requested it, and what response I received.
- Whether my complaint was recorded, escalated and considered by a person with appropriate authority.
- Whether the provider's complaint-handling and incident-management processes complied with the applicable requirements.
- Whether I was given clear information about the outcome of my complaint and any further review options.

The relevant regulatory reference is the Commission's Provider governance and operational management standard. It provides the framework against which governance and risk-management practices can be assessed.

I request a substantive response identifying the responsible executive contact and explaining how the concerns raised in this complaint will be considered.

4. Reported escalation and assault involving Danny

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 35–38, section 4, "Reported Escalation and Violent Assault on Danny."

I report that Danny, a worker associated with Able Point, was assaulted by a client whose behaviour had reportedly escalated over a period of weeks. I am concerned that the escalation may not have been adequately managed before the reported assault occurred.

I also understand that a WorkCover matter followed and that payment was made in connection with Danny's injury. I do not contend that a payment alone proves that Able Point was legally found liable, that management deliberately ignored warnings, or that any particular person acted improperly. Those questions require the actual claim documents, incident reports and any formal findings.

I ask the Commission to examine, within its jurisdiction:

- When the reported escalation began and how it was identified.
- Whether concerns were communicated to management and what action followed.
- Whether relevant risk assessments, behaviour-support arrangements and safety measures were in place.
- Whether the assault was documented, investigated and escalated appropriately.
- Whether any reportable-incident obligations applied in the circumstances.
- What the WorkCover records actually establish.
- Whether corrective measures were implemented to prevent recurrence.
- Whether the circumstances reveal broader risks to clients or workers.

The Commission's Incident management guidance states that incidents should be assessed not only to determine what happened, but also to identify contributing factors and measures to reduce the likelihood or impact of recurrence.

I request that the Commission obtain or request relevant records through appropriate lawful processes, taking account of Danny's privacy and any applicable restrictions on disclosure.

5. Concern about workers' ability to raise safeguarding concerns

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 16–17 and the sections concerning Danny's position and potential repercussions.

I have expressed concern that a worker may fear professional, personal or family-related consequences if he assists a client or raises concerns about unsafe practices. My understanding that members of Danny's family may also work for Able Point is not, by itself, proof of intimidation, a conflict of interest or retaliation.

I do not want to attribute private motives or unconfirmed statements to Danny. I ask instead that the Commission examine whether the provider has accessible and effective reporting channels, appropriate protections against retaliation, and a process through which workers can raise concerns safely.

Relevant evidence may include staff reports, complaints, incident records, communications and the provider's written procedures. Any findings should be based on the material actually obtained.

6. My reported experiences of harassment, threatening conduct and severe distress

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 3–4 and the later sections concerning Tony Ridley, perceived surveillance and people reportedly shouting outside my home.

I report experiencing repeated degrading and threatening statements, including the words "Rapist", "Pedophile", "Kill yourself" and "Go and do it". I describe these experiences as V2K and electronic harassment. I have also reported hearing people near my home shouting words to the effect of "The cops won't fucking help you."

I experienced these events as frightening and degrading, and I have feared for my physical safety. I have reported contacting police and attending hospital after calling an ambulance because I felt I needed a physically safe place.

I ask that my testimony be recorded accurately. I also ask that the Commission distinguish my experience of distress from the separate question of whether the source of a particular voice, communication or event can be independently established.

I identify Tony Ridley in connection with my personal history and allegations of exploitation, abandonment and harassment. His identity, qualifications and responsibility for any specific event should not be assumed without evidence.

The relevant material for examination may include dated messages, call records, witness accounts, police event numbers, contemporaneous notes and records of requests for help. I request a secure process for submitting any material I can lawfully provide.

I understand that the Commission's role is not to determine the technical source of every experience I describe or investigate every possible criminal allegation. I ask it to consider the safeguarding implications for my disability supports, investigate provider-related matters within its remit and identify suitable referral pathways for other issues.

7. Allegations concerning covert activity, exploitation and possible trafficking

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 4–5 and the related supplementary sections.

I have described experiences that I interpret as involving covert agents, drug-related exploitation, sexual exploitation and possible trafficking. These are serious allegations. I do not have independently established evidence for every interpretation or connection I have drawn between events.

I request that the Commission preserve the distinction between:

- What I personally observed or experienced.
- What another person said to me.
- What contemporaneous documents or other records establish.
- What can be corroborated independently.
- What I inferred about the source or purpose of an event.
- What remains unresolved.

If particular evidence identifies a specific safeguarding incident connected with the delivery of NDIS services, I ask that it be assessed within the Commission's jurisdiction. For allegations outside that jurisdiction, I request appropriate referral information rather than an unsupported finding.

8. Reported police-access barriers and legal assistance

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 5–8, concerning reported difficulty obtaining police assistance, access to Legal Aid and earlier proceedings.

I report that I have struggled to obtain effective police assistance and that I believe barriers to legal assistance have impaired my ability to protect my interests and pursue complaints. I have also described earlier events involving an AVO, court proceedings and displacement from Victoria.

These matters require examination of the actual decisions, dates, correspondence and court records. I am not asking the NDIS Commission to overturn a court order, determine a Legal Aid decision outside its powers or make findings about public officials without evidence.

I ask the Commission to:

- Identify any police or legal-assistance issue relevant to its own safeguarding assessment.
- Explain the appropriate pathway for referring or reporting matters outside its remit.
- Identify any accessible independent advocacy or support service that can assist me in pursuing the relevant processes.
- Consider whether my reported barriers to obtaining assistance have affected my ability to report safeguarding concerns or access safe disability supports.

9. Whistleblower concerns and the documentary record

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 6–8 and the later references to my whistleblower history.

I identify myself as a whistleblower and have described my circumstances as institutional abandonment, exile and social erasure. These terms express my experience and interpretation; they are not findings that a coordinated campaign has been established.

I have preserved documents and correspondence concerning matters I believe warrant scrutiny. I ask that any official records be assessed according to their actual contents, dates, authorship and context.

The following documents are relevant to the broader history I have described. They should not be treated as proof of the Able Point allegations unless their contents directly support a particular proposition.

- Federal Court PID Assessment — 27 March 2023 — potentially relevant to the documented history of my public-interest disclosure concerns. The exact passages and legal significance must be assessed from the document itself.
- Commonwealth Ombudsman Complaint — 15 November 2021 — potentially relevant to the chronology of my earlier complaints and attempts to obtain institutional assistance. The complaint establishes what I reported, not necessarily the truth of every allegation within it.
- Full Universal Master Command — Forensic Analysis — a document in my archive that I ask the recipient to consider only where specific passages bear directly on an issue within its jurisdiction.
- Official Government Documents Register — an index intended to help locate documents in my public archive. Individual records must still be checked against their source and contents.
- Barran Dodger — Documentary Archive — the broader public archive. The existence of a document in the archive does not, by itself, establish the truth of every claim it contains.

I specifically ask that any correspondence attributed to Scott Treadwell be examined in its original context, including the date, recipient, complete wording and surrounding correspondence. I have interpreted that correspondence as raising concerns about the potential consequences of a whistleblower disclosure and the response I received. I request an evidence-based assessment of what the correspondence actually says and what, if anything, it establishes about notice of risk, responsibility or the response to my concerns.

I do not ask the Commission to adopt my interpretation in advance. I ask that it not disregard relevant documentary evidence merely because the allegations are serious or contested.

10. Immediate welfare and safeguarding concerns

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 1–2 and the concluding sections.

I have reported severe financial hardship, difficulty meeting essential needs, and urgent concerns about my therapy dog's health. I have also described unstable living circumstances, isolation and the effects of prolonged distress.

I ask the Commission to consider any immediate safeguarding risk connected with my disability supports and identify what practical action is available within its remit. I recognise that the Commission is not a general emergency-relief, veterinary or housing agency; however, it can clarify relevant safeguarding pathways and consider whether provider conduct or support arrangements raise regulatory concerns.

I request that any assessment be conducted in a way that preserves my dignity, takes my account seriously and does not substitute generalised assumptions for examination of specific events and records.

11. Formal evidence-preservation request

Source evidence: Execute this command .pdf, pages 31–32, section 13, "Evidence Preservation, Classification and Secure Submission."

I request that the Commission identify the records required to assess this complaint and, where appropriate and within its powers, seek their preservation.

The records potentially relevant to the Able Point issues include:

- All communications between me and Able Point concerning the reported death threat, safety concerns and requests for assistance.
- Internal incident reports, risk assessments, incident-management records and escalation notes concerning the events identified in this complaint.
- Records of complaints received, decisions made, actions taken and reasons for those decisions.
- Relevant communications involving Rachel and other responsible management personnel.
- Relevant records concerning Danny's reported assault, subject to lawful access and privacy protections.
- Any applicable reportable-incident notifications and follow-up correspondence.
- Relevant policies and procedures concerning incident management, complaint handling, risk assessment and worker reporting.
- Records of any investigation, corrective action or review undertaken in response to the incidents raised.

I also ask that the Commission explain how I may submit relevant police, court, medical, ambulance, message and other records securely. I do not ask for unlawful disclosure of third-party personal information.

Digital evidence should be examined for provenance, date, completeness and context. The existence of a message or timestamp does not automatically prove every interpretation of its meaning or establish the identity of an unknown source.

12. Requested regulatory action

I request that the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission:

1. Register and acknowledge this complaint. Provide a complaint reference or confirm how this supplementary submission will be attached to any existing complaint.

2. Assess the reported death-threat incident. Determine whether the reported event is connected with NDIS supports or services and whether Able Point's incident-management or reporting obligations require examination.

3. Examine Able Point's response. Review the relevant communications, incident records, risk assessments, complaint records and recorded reasons for decisions.

4. Examine the reported assault involving Danny. Determine what safeguarding, incident-management or risk-management questions fall within the Commission's remit, without assuming that a WorkCover payment proves legal liability.

5. Assess executive accountability and complaint handling. Clarify the appropriate official contact and assess whether the provider's handling of the concerns was consistent with its applicable obligations.

6. Consider worker and participant protection. Assess whether the provider has effective reporting channels and appropriate safeguards against retaliation or pressure.

7. Preserve and assess relevant records. Identify the records required, explain how they may be submitted securely and take appropriate steps within the Commission's powers.

8. Consider my immediate safeguarding needs. Identify any provider-related risks within the Commission's remit and practical safeguarding or advocacy pathways available to me.

9. Refer matters outside the Commission's jurisdiction appropriately. Where a matter requires assessment by police, a court, a legal-assistance body or another authority, identify the appropriate pathway rather than making findings outside the Commission's powers.

10. Provide a substantive written response. Explain which matters will be assessed, what further evidence is required, which issues fall outside the Commission's remit and what steps are available to me.

13. Evidence schedule — named documents and their relevance

The following schedule identifies the principal evidence sources and the proposition each can appropriately support. The first entry is the 50-page source statement itself; the remaining entries are linked documents or official regulatory sources.

Ref.	Named evidence and direct link	Relevance and evidentiary limitation
E-01	Execute this command .pdf — 50-page source statement in my Library; relevant pages 2–3, 16–17, 31–33 and 35–38	Establishes the content of my submitted testimony and the specific issues I ask to be investigated. It is not independent corroboration of every allegation.
E-02	NDIS Commission — Incident management	Official guidance for evaluating incident identification, recording, assessment, response and corrective action. It does not establish that a breach occurred in this case.
E-03	NDIS Commission — Reportable incidents	Official guidance on reportable-incident categories and notification requirements. Whether the reported event qualifies depends on its actual circumstances.
E-04	NDIS Practice Standards — Provider governance and operational management	Official framework for assessing provider risk management, incident management and governance.
E-05	Federal Court PID Assessment — 27 March 2023	Potentially relevant to the chronology of my public-interest disclosure history. The exact wording and significance must be checked against the document.
E-06	Commonwealth Ombudsman Complaint — 15 November 2021	Potentially relevant to earlier reports and attempts to obtain assistance. It establishes what was reported, not automatically that each allegation was proven.
E-07	Full Universal Master Command — Forensic Analysis	An archive document that may assist with locating relevant material. Specific passages must be identified before relying on it for a particular factual claim.
E-08	Official Government Documents Register	Index for locating government-document records. Each underlying document should be examined individually.
E-09	Barran Dodger — Documentary Archive	Public archive containing material I have preserved. The archive's existence does not independently validate all its contents.

Important evidentiary qualification: The page references for E-01 are to the 50-page source PDF I supplied. The external archive links above identify named documents, but I have not established from the contents available here the exact page or paragraph in each external document that corroborates a particular allegation. I therefore do not represent those documents as proving facts that have not been verified. I request that the Commission examine the underlying records and that any later evidence schedule add exact page and paragraph pinpoints once each document has been checked.

14. Closing request

I am asking for a transparent, independent and evidence-led response to serious safeguarding concerns. I want the reported death threat, the alleged failure to acknowledge or document it, the reported assault involving Danny, the provider's complaint handling and my requests for assistance to be examined against the actual records.

I do not seek violence, retaliation or unsupported findings against any person. I seek protection, accurate documentation, lawful accountability where failures are substantiated, and a practical explanation of what the responsible authorities will do.

Please treat this submission as a formal request for safeguarding assessment, evidence preservation, examination of the matters within the Commission's jurisdiction and a substantive written response.

Yours sincerely,

Barran Resonance Dodger Also known as Dr Barran Dodger / Dr Richard William McLean

PUBLIC STATEMENT FROM BARRAN DODGER
OF THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

THE WITNESS REMAINS: A WHISTLEBLOWERS TESTIMONY OF SURVIVAL TESTIMONY & FAITH

The Barran Dodger Archive is a public documentary and spiritual record established to preserve, organise and make accessible a decades-long body of evidence concerning alleged institutional, administrative, financial and human-rights harms.

It brings together official records, correspondence, documentary evidence, personal testimony, forensic analysis, research, philosophy, spiritual gospels and prophetic declarations, including writings understood by the author to have been anointed by the Most High God.

The Archive deliberately distinguishes between documented facts, official records, corroborated evidence, allegations, personal testimony, inference, interpretation and matters of faith. This distinction is fundamental to its purpose: readers are invited to examine the underlying evidence for themselves, test the claims, consider the sources and reach their own conclusions.

At the heart of the Archive is a testimony of survival and preservation.

What the author believes was subjected to attempts at silencing, erasure, exclusion or institutional disappearance has nevertheless survived in records, documents, testimony, memory, faith and public disclosure.

The central declaration is simple:

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

The Archive therefore represents both an evidentiary record and a spiritual testimony. The author understands his survival through a faith-based conviction that the Most High God protected, preserved and gave purpose to what human institutions could not erase.

The spiritual writings and prophetic declarations within the Archive are presented as matters of faith and personal interpretation. They are preserved alongside the documentary record so that the complete testimony — evidentiary, personal, philosophical and spiritual — can be understood in its own context.

The purpose is not to demand belief.

It is to preserve the record.

It is to make the evidence accessible.

It is to ensure that the surviving witness can be examined.

And it is to leave the historical record open to independent scrutiny.

THE ARCHIVE IS 100% FREE TO ACCESS

https://barrandodgerarchive.base44.app

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE

The Barran Dodger Archive is founded on the principle that knowledge, evidence and truth should be freely accessible.

There is no paywall for the public documentary record. Research, testimony, philosophy, spiritual writings, prophetic declarations and public-interest material are made available for people to examine for themselves.

Access to knowledge should not depend upon a person's ability to pay.

The Archive is therefore freely accessible, while its preservation and continued publication require practical resources.

SUPPORTING THE WITNESS AND THE ARCHIVE

Barran Dodger describes himself as an unprotected whistleblower living in circumstances of prolonged exile, financial hardship and vulnerability, and as an internally displaced asylum seeker within the country of his Australian citizenship.

Those circumstances create practical needs extending beyond the preservation of documents.

Voluntary donations are therefore accepted from anyone who freely wishes to assist.

Support may contribute towards essential needs including food, safe accommodation, communication, technology, transport, personal safety, website and domain costs, document preservation, archival infrastructure and the continued publication of the public record.

A donation does not purchase access to the Archive.

It does not purchase influence over the evidence.

It does not purchase editorial control.

It does not determine what is published or what conclusions readers should reach.

It simply helps sustain the person and infrastructure necessary to keep the Archive alive, functioning and freely accessible.

If you are blessed with sufficient prosperity to help preserve this work, your voluntary support can help ensure that financial hardship does not become another mechanism through which a public record disappears.

KNOWLEDGE IS FREE.

THE EVIDENCE IS OPEN TO EXAMINATION.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

Thank you to everyone who chooses to examine the evidence, preserve the record, support the Archive or simply bear witness.

The record remains.

The witness remains.

LASTLY — A SECOND PUBLIC-FACING ARCHIVE

For readers who wish to go beyond the principal Barran Dodger Archive, a second public-facing repository provides another point of access to the broader documentary record.

https://barrandodger.com

This website provides an additional gateway into the history, evidence, testimony, research and ideas that underpin the Archive. It is intended to help readers navigate the wider body of material and understand how individual documents, events, experiences and arguments have been brought together into a continuing record.

Its significance is not dependent upon the reader accepting Barran Dodger's conclusions. Rather, the value of preserving such a record lies in allowing the underlying material to remain available for examination. Readers can consider the chronology, inspect the documentary evidence, distinguish recorded facts from allegations and personal testimony, follow referenced material and form their own independent assessment.

The existence of multiple public repositories also reflects the central purpose of the project: preservation. Where records are distributed across years, institutions, correspondence, proceedings, personal archives and digital platforms, preserving accessible copies and pathways to the evidence can help prevent an individual historical record from becoming inaccessible or forgotten.

Readers are therefore invited to visit both public-facing archives, examine the material carefully and critically, and make their own assessment of what the surviving evidence demonstrates.

The purpose is not to ask the reader to believe.

The purpose is to ensure that the record remains available to be examined.
