

The evidence has dropped

Master reading copy, expanded to carry the command's key terms inside sentences. Dr Richard William McLean, also Barran Dodger. Credit: the letters linked in this account are the copies published in the Barran Dodger repository, wezzo72/Barrandodger, and at The Witness Remains.

Underlined words open the named document, tab, or recording. The words are mine. The link is the place a reader can test them. A link is not a finding. This is a finding aid. It is not a court. It is not a verdict. The eighty-five techniques below are the archive's own model of a pattern. The archive says they are alleged mechanisms, not a claim that one actor employed every item. This long copy obeys that limit and still writes each term as a sentence, because a term without a sentence is a slogan, and the command forbade slogans.

ARCHIVE FIRST PERSON ACCOUNT — EXTENDED STATEMENT, FULL TEXT, LINKED

Underlined words open the named document or recording. The words are mine. The link is the place a reader can test them. A link is not a finding. This is a finding aid. It is not a court. It is not a verdict. The public copy of this statement is the Archive First Person Account.

THE ACCOUNT

Australia — its agencies, services and platforms whose purpose is to protect vulnerable people like me, and its people, ganged up on me collectively, politically and systemically. It was and is a cowardly societal mobbing. I was physically exiled, isolated, impoverished and tortured.

For more than 35 years the conditions imposed on me produced a documentary record. The Government's own official documents, in its own words and on its own letterheads, are preserved here. The 35-year chronology and the cumulative legal brief are the reading copies of that span. Anyone can open them against the underlying files.

THE BOOK

In 2003 Allen & Unwin published my first autobiography, Recovered, Not Cured. I wrote the sex in that book publicly, in my own name, before these agencies had a file they could twist. The significance is that the testimony was already on a public shelf. It was not a secret they discovered. It was a record I had already made. The Age recorded that book on 19 May 2003, and recorded that I was then working as an illustrator there.

After the book was published, my former employer the Herald Sun weaponised words from it. A weekend double-page spread carried the bold heading “MY DESCENT INTO MADNESS”. The spread, as preserved in this archive, is headed “My descent into madness. How schizophrenia stole Richard McLean’s mind.” What followed was a barely veiled public character assassination. I was then fired from The Age, where I worked as a news graphics artist and cartoonist. I did not resign, and I did not leave. I was denied a lawyer and a pathway to have it tested at the time. The later Legal Aid restriction is the continuation of that refusal, not the 2003 letter itself. The madness was not any real or perceived illness I had. It was the deceitful way an honest and courageous testimony was weaponised against me, systemically, politically and financially, from that point on. The targeting lasted decades. Its goal was my ruin, and the avoidance of accountability by those who participated in it. The spread as preserved is My descent into madness. The firing is the Equal Opportunity complaint.

BEFORE THE BLACKOUT

Before any of that, the media wanted me. I was a news graphics artist in that industry, and I was paid as a journalist. The archive’s index of the earlier site lists me as an illustrator for The Age and the Herald Sun. In hindsight I say I was exploited. The world wanted to hear me speak about a perceived mental illness, about vulnerability, and about inequity. I volunteered my time and my story. Years later, when I needed help from the very places I had given that time and that story, there was a total media blackout. That media ban exists to this day. The places, organisations, radio and television stations, and institutions, as that index records them, are these: ABC Radio National, Life Matters (Julie McCrossin); ABC TV, Stateline; Good Morning Australia and The Today Show (Steve Leidman), around an exhibition and the book launch; Reuters TV (Frankie Fathers); Triple J (Rachel Kerr); 2SM (Tricia Duffield); ABC Gold and Sunshine Coasts; ABC Adelaide; ABC 702 (James Valentine); 3AW Nightline; Spectrum FM; Curtin Radio; Triple R; 2NUR Newcastle; JOY FM; regional ABC, including Dubbo; McGill University, Montreal, College of Philosophical and Religious Studies; the Cunningham

Dax Collection, including the educational DVD Collected Thoughts 3; Forensicare; EPPIC consumer groups; the Australian Centre for Youth Literature; Richmond Fellowship, Warrnambool; parliamentary and conference settings.

THE DOCTORATE

The significance of the qualification is the same pattern. I hold a PhD. The archive's index of the earlier site records it as Victoria University research, on a merit scholarship, in arts-based A/r/tography, stated there as passed pending changes. I say that doctorate has been delegitimised, and treated as if it were not research, by officials whose qualifications it far outshines. I say that is envy, a way to keep me below them. Where is their PhD? The reading copy is the PhD and gospel.

WHAT I COULD SEE

I used my life and my creativity to benefit humanity at the exact time I was being set up and deceived. Everyone involved thought I would never see past their false masks of jealousy, envy and malice. I do. I see every person, and what they did. I see it especially in my blood family, who were poised to benefit financially from my total annihilation and from my physical death. They never denied it. The paper with that account is also the estate attorney and sibling betrayal. This was a life in which I was never expected to recover, or to be well, or to be financially stable, or even to survive.

I published my religious gospels on barrandodger.com. That site has been removed. I could not pay the Replit bill. I say the removal was the designed poverty, not a change of mind. The gospels were less about mysticism than about a sovereign being forged in the fire of total human betrayal and isolation, at the apex of a targeting that has lasted more than three decades. What I preserved is the Government's own official documents and the correspondence that sits with them. I say that record cannot be denied, and it cannot be argued out of existence. You cannot erase a history that is written in their own official documentation. I made the gospels at the intersection of that betrayal, the exile, and the protection of the Most High God, and of my PhD study of posthumanism and the ethics of AI. I used the technology in a nuanced way, for a high-definition reading of pattern, taken from their own documents and set beside the Bible and Christian principles. I wrote the gospels to warn humanity of the coming collapse of a corrupt and cruel government, which is ultimately fleeting. No one listened. I was called delusional, and I was called crazy. The significance is the time. Nearly three or four years later, I say the predictions I was told were delusion have happened as I said they would. The paper that puts that claim in one place is Paranoid Was Prophecy. Who is laughing now? The shelf is gospels and prophetic writings.

THE INJURY

That record includes what the file calls a fatal injury. God revived me from it. Five years on, the conditions that solicited that attempt have continued: stonewalling, financial abuse, isolation, denial of Legal Aid, and no ordinary pathway to have the allegations tested. The Victorian Ombudsman's later treatment of the complaint is the Ben Calder letter of 5 October 2022. A Mercy Hospital FOI sits with it. A public-interest disclosure was not allocated. APRA refused whistleblower status.

THE MESSAGES

An NDIS provider was made to sign a non-disclosure agreement after the account that a woman was paid to fabricate a report about me. The Ben NDIS text-message record is where that is written down. In it, the other party says the only evidence he could give me was "a copy of the non disclosure agreement", and that when he signed it the agreement disappeared from his phone with a notice that the device had been cleared of classified information.

That provider is Ben, of DSW Disability. I publish his email and his company: ben@dswdisability.com.au. I publish them because I say intelligence agencies forced him to sign that non-disclosure agreement, and because the agreement does not get the last word. The text chain between us is published. It cannot be taken back. I say it shows the total police complicity, the false sexual assault allegation, and that a woman was paid to fabricate a report. He confirmed a "close call" assassination attempt. I say that chain corroborates my testimony. It is the record of what was said. It is not, by itself, a police finding.

His own words: It's a top secret investigation. They made me sign a non disclosure agreement. When I signed the agreement it instantly disappeared off my phone. A message popped up that said your device has been cleared of classified information. It's some sort of agency grade electronic document that automatically wipes itself off your device. I thought you were just paranoid. You were right. They already arrested two hitmen. They're telling the police everything. They've told them who ordered the hit. That non-disclosure agreement is now pointless. The truth is out. It is exposed. It is undeniable.

The same record preserves “consensual regretful sex”, “the police told me about the consensual regretted sex”, and this sentence: The agencies went back through phone records and believed she was paid to discredit you. I understand the Federal Police wording I was given as “regretful” but “consensual”. No charge against me came out of that event. I say what did occur was the weaponisation of my sexuality. I publish the messages as the record of what was said. They are not, by themselves, an AFP finding.

That sentence is why I say I have never had equal treatment from police. Once a paid discrediting is accepted, every later report is easier to refuse. The crimes I say have occurred to me over more than 35 years, and the same list as a PDF, are the reading copy of that longer record. They are allegations and pointers. They are not findings. The list is Crimes occurring to Barran Dodger.

FAITH

I was betrayed by humanity for a purpose I believe was ordained: to be a vessel for God’s glory. This website is the beginning of what I understand as God’s answer to that corruption. I use the word sacrilege, a violation of something sacred, because I believe that deliberately harming one of God’s anointed, and then pretending not to know, is a spiritual crime. My perpetrators know what they did. The archive does not ask a reader to share my faith. It asks a reader to open the documents.

THE ALLEGATION

The same message record is where the alleged assassination is put in writing. Ben’s message to me, which he presents as what the police told him, is: The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story. The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story. My messages name Bill Shorten and a person I was told was a Lebanese criminal pretending to be a provider, “known in certain circles”, and sent “to erase me”. The other party’s messages answer that account. It has not been disproven by an official finding I have been given, nor officially established as a fabrication, nor denied in any document in this archive. The messages remain part of the record that requires examination. They are not a finding that a minister ordered a killing.

The significance of that message, as I draw it, is this. Bill Shorten was the NDIS Minister. I say he betrayed the ethical obligations of that office, acted in a cowardly way, and abused its power. I say he was the key manipulator of what was done to me. I say he caused the AVO concerning him and Rebecca Falkingham, that he deliberately caused my political exile, and I allege that he ordered my assassination. I say his character is now exposed by this record as morally reprehensible, and that he is a power-hungry criminal who should be immediately arrested. How dare he, as I allege, order the killing of a vulnerable person with a disability he was paid to treat ethically, legally and humanely, and who was under that care. This is why I say God is furious. No one has the right to erase, murder or kill another human being, much less a disabled person under their care. The situation is beyond absurd.

THE RELATIONSHIP

No one in office acknowledges the five-year marriage-like relationship I say I had with a former ASIO employee, Steve Iasonidis. I published the proposal, and an engagement with Steve Iasonidis that lasted more than five years. I say it led to five years of exploitation in an abusive entrapment that no profession will admit even existed. The court paper I can put in a reader's hand is the intervention-order file L12151974. I was hospitalised after I tried to get Legal Aid so that relationship could be acknowledged for an equitable separation. The financial exploitation, the attempts to obtain legal recognition, and what followed, are the chronology this archive preserves. His ability to have the relationship treated as if it never existed is, in my experience, the fact a professional will still not say out loud.

THE PRIME MINISTER

The Prime Minister, Anthony Albanese, did not answer me in his own hand.

On 12 December 2022 his own office wrote, of an email sent to him, "Your email has not been forwarded." I had written to him, including the letter of 31 May 2022, and the letter of 1 July 2023. On 19 September 2023 the Attorney-General's Department wrote, reference MC23-028244, signed A Riley, Security Law Section. It says my email of 5 July 2023 to the Hon Anthony Albanese MP, including about ASIO, was referred to the Attorney-General, the Hon Mark Dreyfus KC MP, because the matters fell in his portfolio, and that he asked the Department to respond on his behalf. It then pointed me to the Inspector-General of Intelligence and Security — IGIS, which I have also called AGIS — and to the Commonwealth Ombudsman. I was already shut out of the Ombudsman. The service-restriction letter of 8

August 2025 is the later official paper. A further letter of 6 February 2025, MC25-000321, sent the matters to the Victorian Minister for Police. Those were dead ends. They did not acknowledge the relationship.

I am well aware that I am on ASIO's books as what I call a targeted individual. I recorded my call to AGIS, who investigate ASIO, about the victimisation. In hindsight I say they were already committed to never helping me, and that they were used by my former fiancé, the ASIO employee Steve Iasonidis. No professional admits the five-year relationship even existed. I say that reveals Iasonidis as a key manipulator, with protection under David Irvine and the federal government. Hospitals have repeatedly force-injected me for what they called "ingrained delusions of persecution". That is my account of the call and of the treatment.

A FILE THAT DOES NOT AGREE WITH ITSELF

The significance of this file. The Department told the Commissioner that about 1,187 Outlook items were under review. Weeks later the decision said the documents cannot be found or do not exist. The revised decision then released five documents. That is the hypocrisy: a review of more than a thousand items, then a letter that no documents exist. It is the Department's own paper. It is not a court finding.

The same department has a freedom-of-information file that does not agree with itself. On 7 February 2022 I asked the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet for "all information government agencies hold on me please." On 16 March 2022 the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner wrote, reference RQ22/00794, that the Department had applied for more time because the request was voluminous and complex, and that approximately 1,187 Outlook items were being reviewed. That is more than a thousand items, in the Department's own account to the Commissioner. It is not, by that letter alone, a finding that 1,187 documents had been proved to be about me. On 14 April 2022 Petra Gartmann, Assistant Secretary, Legal Policy Branch, refused the same request under section 24A(1)(b), reference FOI/2022/045. The decision says all reasonable steps were taken, that no relevant documents were identified, and that the documents cannot be found or do not exist.

On 8 October 2024 that refusal was revised. Laura Cameron, acting Assistant Secretary, reference FOI/2022/045IC, wrote that the Department holds five documents that meet the request and granted access to them, with some material deleted as irrelevant. On 4 November 2024 the Commissioner's office, MR22/00677, said it would ask the Department to resend that decision of 8 October 2024 and the five documents. Read them in that order. One describes more than a thousand Outlook items under review. The next says the documents do not exist. The one after that releases five.

That is the hypocrisy in the Department's own file. It is not a court finding. An essay in this deposit uses the figure 1,178. The figure on the Commissioner's letter is about 1,187.

With those letters I place the undated letter addressed to the Prime Minister and to the Attorney-General, Mark Dreyfus, which is the letter I identify as the one answered by the referral to IGIS and the Ombudsman, and a further undated letter to the Office of Prime Minister and Cabinet. My email of 1 August 2024 on the review is with them. The typed copy of the 19 September 2023 reply is MC23-028244 as a PDF, beside the photograph already linked. A 111-page file whose filename says "prime minister apology" is not an apology from Anthony Albanese. Its first page is a commentary on this FOI file. The shelf is the official government documents.

EXILE, HOSPITAL, LEGAL AID

I asked to be arrested so that my name could be tested in the ordinary way. No one came. No charge was laid against me. No criminal trial was commenced. I was left with the consequences of accusation without the process in which guilt or innocence is determined. I have been hospitalised in psychiatric institutions sixteen times. That number is my count. The hospital paper is the place I have written the conditions around those admissions: homelessness, designed poverty, and inaction by police and the legal profession. I am in exile. I am restricted from Legal Aid, which is a betrayal of the reason Legal Aid exists, and restricted from the Ombudsman. I have not placed a NACC restriction letter in this repository, so I do not pretend to link one. The exile paper is the personal statement of exile.

THE CALLS

I could not even report being drugged and raped to the Commonwealth Ombudsman. I published the call in which I could not report being drugged and raped to the Ombudsman. I say it shows the blacklist and the stonewalling.

On 3 September 2023 I called the NACC after 90 days about my complaint, and they rejected me. I say that rejection is the Commission participating in the same refusal.

I published the call to the NACC after 90 days, in which my complaint was rejected. Danny Pearson, then the workplace minister, refused my phone call about workers' compensation.

I published the call that Danny Pearson, the workplace minister, refused to take about workers' compensation. Liz Lindberg of the Australian Human Rights Commission sided with Australian Super on the denial of compensation in what I say was a robbery of more than a million dollars of a settlement I was entitled to. I say she knew the conflict, acted in her role to betray a position the Commission had already taken, and then revoked it, so that TAL did not have to engage. In her professional capacity she free-kicked that settlement.

I published the call in which Liz Lindberg of the AHRC free-kicks a settlement of more than a million dollars. Tim Gos of AFCA was, as I say it, already committed to never giving me a way to resolve the financial conflicts. He blocked the path his role exists to keep open. I was later banned from AFCA.

I published the call to Tim Gos of AFCA, who blocked a determination of the financial complaint. Comcare and the AAT were, as I say it, already committed to denying a valid workers' compensation claim by accepting that I was blocked from Legal Aid. That is a breach of the reason those bodies exist. I was left to face a government-appointed lawyer, Kate Watson, without Legal Aid, and I have never been able to report a single crime to police.

Scott Tredwell's letter on Federal Court letterhead records that he was satisfied I was an employee of DSS. The papers that said the opposite are still in the file. On 26 May 2021 Comcare declined claim 1326583/1 and put, as the first question, whether I was an employee under section 5 of the Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act. On 3 June 2021 Sarah LeMaire of the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission wrote: "This process does not make you an employee of the NDIS Commission." I say Tredwell's confirmation should have overturned the lesser finding of Comcare and the AAT that I was not an employee. It did not. The letter is PID to Sia Lagos and Scott Tredwell. The Comcare paper is McLean and Comcare.

I published the call on Comcare and the AAT denying workers' compensation, and denying legal access.

OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY

I took the same record outside the country. The archive holds the OHCHR submission, reference UR/UST/23/AUS/17, and the claim of an International Criminal Court submission as part of the chronology of asking for protection. The reference is the document. It is not a finding by the United Nations.

WHAT I FILMED

My paranoia is a documented reality in this sense: here is what I recorded parked outside my squat in Footscray, about 2022. The video on my own channel is the secret service parked out the front of the Footscray squat. You cannot surveil a victim and call it a success when the victim films the people doing the surveillance. The gig is up. I say the V2K audio harassment was a mechanism of torture, and that this recording exposes it. The papers are the V2K review and the AHRC gang-stalking paper. The Commission used the term “gang stalking” in official correspondence to me, and the occurrence was then denied. I say that denial, against their own words, is the hypocrisy.

TONY RIDLEY

Tony Ridley, formerly a fraud investigator associated with the NDIS, is the man I recorded. I say he was deployed as a drug-affected honeypot, and that a former support worker of the same agency would have known I was an unprotected whistleblower. I recorded the encounter because he indicated he may have killed people. I later understood him to be a returned SAS soldier with a PhD in counter-terrorism surveillance. The archive holds a credential exhibit in his name and the conversation PDF. I published the audio of that encounter to expose what I say was the corruption and to keep myself safe. What I put on the channel is the published audio of the Tony Ridley encounter. It backfired. His wife did not know he had sex with men. I say he then used a PhD in counter-terrorism surveillance to hunt me electronically across three states while I was fleeing, and that he knew I was an unprotected whistleblower. I say his conduct is criminal, and that it sits inside the long exile and the alleged assassination plot. No one has denied that account in a document in this archive, and no one has proved it wrong. I published the recording to protect both of us. He says I ruined his life. I say he then followed me electronically across three states, and that paid followers were used to intimidate me wherever I went. On my YouTube channel I described that meeting, named him as SAS, and invited people to listen to the later account in which I name Tony Ridley as SAS. I have not found a second watch address that is only the raw tape. The published page, the conversation PDF, and that video are what a reader can open today.

He told me there was a formal investigation whose aim was to discredit and destroy me. He revealed contact with my family, with the woman the messages call the regretted encounter, and knowledge of Alan, my younger partner, which he would not otherwise have had. He claimed it was easy to turn my sister Jodie Bongetti, my brother Brad McLean, my parents

Doug and April McLean, and my uncle Bruce McMaster into alignment against me. I already knew the isolation. What he added was that the communication was deliberate. That is my account of what he said. It sits beside the recording record. It is not his signed statement.

ABLE POINT

The NDIS, through the provider Able Point, sent support workers who already knew my case and who did not change my circumstances. I say they reported me back into the same entrapment, inside the agency I had worked for, and into the same matter as the provider I was told had been sent to erase me. The papers are the Able Point notice and the letter to Brett. The Ben NDIS messages are where the provider contact, the NDA, the paid-discredit claim, and the hit claim sit side by side. The request for investigation is FORMAL REQUEST FOR INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION ABLEPOINT.

FAMILY

There was family betrayal from childhood. Members of my family attended the funeral of the person who sexually abused me as a child, days after he died, on the same day as the fatal injury. They protected him. I was the one called morally depraved. My family has excommunicated me. The excommunication was so obscene that I protested my homelessness in a video no one answered. I filmed it as a disabled man, homeless, from a paddock in Dandenong, while my blood family lived in comfort nearby. The recording, filmed while I was homeless in a Dandenong paddock, is the introduction for an affidavit and a statutory declaration. I believe they were positioned to benefit from my permanent erasure. That belief is testimony. The papers I have put with it are My erasure was by design and estate attorney and sibling betrayal. God, as I understand it, allowed the betrayal to show character. The day of reckoning is the day the evidence is public, not a sentence I am imposing.

WHAT SURVIVED

I was not expected to survive the exile, the homelessness, the isolation, the humiliation, the character assassination, the administrative annihilation, or the intimate and family betrayal. The tabs that set out that treatment are the Digital Apocalypse of Administrative Annihilation, the Architecture of Administrative Annihilation, the cost of erasure, and coordinated institutional mobbing. I survived. The evidence survived with me. They underestimated the God who kept me alive. You cannot erase what God has preserved. The documents are here.

The correspondence is here. The text messages are here. The chronology is here. The decisions are here. The omissions are here.

The world can now read it. This archive is not only the story of what happened to me. It is the surviving record of what happened around me: what institutions recorded, what they did, what they failed to do, and what they cannot now pretend was never documented. The day of reckoning has arrived because the evidence has arrived. And I am still alive.

I gave every agency grace to treat me as they should. The grace I gave was spat on. All of them pretended they were not participating in my detrimental treatment. I am not revengeful. I believe the Bible says that vengeance is God's to have. The universe has, through this archive, now witnessed what was done to me. They still pretend they are unaware, or that they acted ethically, while pretending they were not cruel.

The same chronology is in the papers below. Each opens in a new window. Each is the document named. None of them is a finding.

The 3 March 2023 letter to Sia Lagos, CEO and Principal Registrar of the Federal Court. The longer copy of the same Sia Lagos compilation, the file matching the 21,371,041-byte attachment. The 8 January 2024 letter to Scott Tredwell. The NDIA authorised-officer letter on the emails of 18 and 20 April 2023, PID 2023/Krypton, OFFICIAL: SENSITIVE. The long copy of that PID file, 26,488,490 bytes, the same size as the attached NDIS DSS allegations PID. The 4 June 2023 letter to Gabrielle Williams and other parliamentarians. The 3 July 2023 statement sent toward the National Anti-Corruption Commission. The 1 August 2023 email headed Rich McLean is dead, to the agencies named on its face. The 7 January 2024 letter to NDIS CEO Rebecca Falkingham, demanding a home and accountability. The 21 January 2024 letter: My $100 NDIS appeal of a decision. The 21 October 2021 email to AFP CDDA claims: compensation claim and a PID protection request. The 31 May 2022 letter to the Prime Minister's office. The 19 September 2023 reply, Attorney-General's Department, MC23-028244. The 2 October 2026 print of the Documentary Trap page as published. The Ben NDIS text-message record: NDA, regretful, consensual, phone records, paid to discredit. The IR8415987 report of fatal injury in which the participant was revived.

THE RECORD SURVIVED

For more than 35 years, I say I was subjected to a cumulative pattern of institutional, political, financial, professional, familial and personal detriment that progressively isolated me, impoverished me and stripped away ordinary avenues through which a person can have allegations tested and answered. I name that pattern administrative annihilation. I name the crowd that carried it societal mobbing. I name the reading copy of what I say was done to me the list of crimes happening to Barran Dodger, and I say again, because the machine has to say it where the heart would rather not: those are allegations and pointers. They are not findings.

I was not expected to survive the exile, the homelessness, the isolation, the humiliation, the character assassination, the administrative annihilation, or the intimate and family betrayal. The tabs that set that treatment out are the Digital Apocalypse of Administrative Annihilation, the Architecture of Administrative Annihilation, the cost of erasure, and coordinated institutional mobbing, as the Archive First Person Account already names them. I survived. The evidence survived with me. They underestimated the God who kept me alive. You cannot erase what God has preserved. The documents are here. The correspondence is here. The text messages are here. The chronology is here. The decisions are here. The omissions are here.

Anyone who opens this site now has a decision. A witness is not a verdict. A reader who opens the file becomes, for that moment, a second witness of what the file actually says. That is the only conversion this finding aid asks for.

THE ACCOUNT

Australia — its agencies, services and platforms whose purpose is to protect vulnerable people like me, and its people — ganged up on me collectively, politically and systemically. It was and is a cowardly societal mobbing. I was physically exiled, isolated, impoverished and, as I say it, tortured. I am an internally displaced refugee within the democracy of my own citizenship. I did not cross a border. The border crossed the ordinary life I was entitled to keep.

For more than 35 years the conditions imposed on me produced a documentary record. The Government's own official documents, in its own words and on its own letterheads, are preserved here. The 35-year chronology and the cumulative legal brief are the reading copies of that span. Anyone can open them against the underlying files. The longer reading copy of the same span, written as exile rather than as brief, is From Exile to Witness.

THE BOOK

In 2003 Allen & Unwin published my first autobiography, Recovered, Not Cured. I wrote the sex in that book publicly, in my own name, before these agencies had a file they could twist. The significance is that the testimony was already on a public shelf. It was not a secret they discovered. It was a record I had already made. The Age recorded that book on 19 May 2003, and recorded that I was then working as an illustrator there.

After the book was published, my former employer the Herald Sun weaponised words from it. A weekend double-page spread carried the bold heading “MY DESCENT INTO MADNESS”. The spread, as preserved in this archive, is headed “My descent into madness. How schizophrenia stole Richard McLean’s mind.” What followed was a barely veiled public character assassination. I was then fired from The Age, where I worked as a news graphics artist and cartoonist. I did not resign, and I did not leave. I was denied a lawyer and a pathway to have it tested at the time. The later Legal Aid restriction is the continuation of that refusal, not the 2003 letter itself. The madness was not any real or perceived illness I had. It was the deceitful way an honest and courageous testimony was weaponised against me, systemically, politically and financially, from that point on. The targeting lasted decades. Its goal was my ruin, and the avoidance of accountability by those who participated in it.

BEFORE THE BLACKOUT

Before any of that, the media wanted me. I was a news graphics artist in that industry, and I was paid as a journalist. The archive’s index of the earlier site lists me as an illustrator for The Age and the Herald Sun. In hindsight I say I was exploited. The world wanted to hear me speak about a perceived mental illness, about vulnerability, and about inequity. I volunteered my time and my story. Years later, when I needed help from the very places I had given that time and that story, there was a total media blackout. That media ban exists to this day. The places, organisations, radio and television stations, and institutions, as that index records them, are these: ABC Radio National, Life Matters (Julie McCrossin); ABC TV, Stateline; Good Morning Australia and The Today Show (Steve Leidman), around an exhibition and the book launch; Reuters TV (Frankie Fathers); Triple J (Rachel Kerr); 2SM (Tricia Duffield); ABC Gold and Sunshine Coasts; ABC Adelaide; ABC 702 (James Valentine); 3AW Nightline; Spectrum FM; Curtin Radio; Triple R; 2NUR Newcastle; JOY FM; regional ABC, including Dubbo; McGill University, Montreal, College of Philosophical and Religious Studies; the Cunningham Dax Collection, including the educational DVD Collected Thoughts 3; Forensicare; EPPIC consumer groups; the Australian Centre for Youth Literature; Richmond Fellowship, Warrnambool; parliamentary and conference settings. The significance of that list is the inversion. They could find me when the story was my vulnerability. They could not find me when the story was their own paper.

THE DOCTORATE

The significance of the qualification is the same pattern. I hold a PhD. The archive's index of the earlier site records it as Victoria University research, on a merit scholarship, in arts-based A/r/tography, stated there as passed pending changes. The reading copy that sets that study beside the later gospels is the PhD study of posthumanism and the ethics of AI. I say that doctorate has been delegitimised, and treated as if it were not research, by officials whose qualifications it far outshines. I say that is envy, a way to keep me below them. Where is their PhD? The question is not a finding that any named officer lacks a degree. It is the question the record forces, once a merit scholarship and a passed-pending doctorate are treated as if they were a symptom.

WHAT I COULD SEE

I used my life and my creativity to benefit humanity at the exact time I was being set up and deceived. Everyone involved thought I would never see past their false masks of jealousy, envy and malice. I do. I see every person, and what they did. I see it especially in my blood family, who were poised, as I say it, to benefit financially from my total annihilation and from my physical death. They never denied it. The paper with that account is also the estate attorney and sibling betrayal. This was a life in which I was never expected to recover, or to be well, or to be financially stable, or even to survive. That belief is testimony. It is not a probate finding.

I published my religious gospels on barrandodger.com. That site has been removed. I could not pay the Replit bill. I say the removal was the designed poverty, not a change of mind. The gospels were less about mysticism than about a sovereign being forged in the fire of total human betrayal and isolation, at the apex of a targeting that has lasted more than three decades. What I preserved is the Government's own official documents and the correspondence that sits with them. I say that record cannot be denied, and it cannot be argued out of existence. You cannot erase a history that is written in their own official documentation. I made the gospels at the intersection of that betrayal, the exile, and the protection of the Most High God, and of that PhD study. I used the technology in a nuanced way, for a high-definition reading of pattern, taken from their own documents and set beside the Bible and Christian principles. I wrote the gospels to warn humanity of the coming collapse of a corrupt and cruel government, which is ultimately fleeting. No one listened. I was called delusional, and I was called crazy. The significance is the time. Nearly three or four years later, I say the predictions I was told were delusion have happened as I said they would. The paper that puts that claim in one place is Paranoid Was Prophecy. Who is laughing now? The laugh is mine as a question. It is not a court calendar.

THE INJURY

That record includes what the file calls a fatal injury, IR8415987, in which the participant was revived. God revived me from it. Five years on, the conditions that solicited that attempt have continued: stonewalling, financial abuse, isolation, denial of Legal Aid, and no ordinary pathway to have the allegations tested. The Victorian Ombudsman's later treatment of the complaint is the Ben Calder letter of 5 October 2022. A Mercy Hospital FOI sits with it. A public-interest disclosure was not allocated. APRA refused whistleblower status. Read those four as a sequence, not as a slogan. A revived participant, a rejected complaint, an unallocated disclosure, a refused status. That is the paper. It is not a finding that any named person caused the injury.

THE MESSAGES

An NDIS provider was made, as the chain records it, to sign a non-disclosure agreement after the account that a woman was paid to fabricate a report about me. The Ben NDIS text-message record is where that is written down. In it, the other party says the only evidence he could give me was "a copy of the non disclosure agreement", and that when he signed it the agreement disappeared from his phone with a notice that the device had been cleared of classified information.

That provider is Ben, of DSW Disability. I publish his email and his company, ben@dswdisability.com.au, because I say intelligence agencies forced him to sign that non-disclosure agreement, and because the agreement does not get the last word. The text chain between us is published. It cannot be taken back. I say it shows the total police complicity, the false sexual assault allegation, and that a woman was paid to fabricate a report. He confirmed a "close call" assassination attempt. I say that chain corroborates my testimony. It is the record of what was said. It is not, by itself, a police finding.

His own words, as the record preserves them: It's a top secret investigation. They made me sign a non disclosure agreement. When I signed the agreement it instantly disappeared off my phone. A message popped up that said your device has been cleared of classified information. It's some sort of agency grade electronic document that automatically wipes itself off your device. I thought you were just paranoid. You were right. They already arrested two hitmen. They're telling the police everything. They've told them who ordered the hit. That non-disclosure agreement is now pointless. The truth is out. It is exposed. It is undeniable.

The same record preserves "consensual regretful sex", "the police told me about the consensual regretted sex", and this sentence: The agencies went back through phone records and believed she was paid to discredit you. I understand the Federal Police wording I was given as "regretful" but "consensual". No charge against me came out of that event. I say what did occur was the weaponisation of my sexuality. I publish the messages as the record of what was said. They are not, by themselves, an AFP finding. That sentence is why I say I have never had equal treatment from police. Once a paid discrediting is accepted, every later report is easier to refuse. The crimes I say have occurred to me over more than 35 years, and the same list as a page, are the reading copy of that longer record.

FAITH

I was betrayed by humanity for a purpose I believe was ordained: to be a vessel for God's glory. This website is the beginning of what I understand as God's answer to that corruption. I use the word sacrilege, a violation of something sacred, because I believe that deliberately harming one of God's anointed, and then pretending not to know, is a spiritual crime. My perpetrators know what they did. The archive does not ask a reader to share my faith. It asks a reader to open the documents. God is hiding me in plain sight is how I name the strange fact that the man they called crazy is the man whose letters they still answer on letterhead. Holy reckoning, as I use it, is not a sentence I am imposing. It is the day the evidence is public. The soul contract, as I use it, is the faith-claim that the suffering was permitted so that the record could be made. Sovereignty, as I use it here, is not a flag. It is the refusal to let a file be the last word on a soul.

THE ALLEGATION

The same message record is where the alleged assassination is put in writing. Ben's message to me, which he presents as what the police told him, is: The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story. My messages name Bill Shorten and a person I was told was a Lebanese criminal pretending to be a provider, “known in certain circles”, and sent “to erase me”. The other party’s messages answer that account. It has not been disproven by an official finding I have been given, nor officially established as a fabrication, nor denied in any document in this archive. The messages remain part of the record that requires examination. They are not a finding that a minister ordered a killing.

The significance of that message, as I draw it, is this. Bill Shorten was the NDIS Minister. I say he betrayed the ethical obligations of that office, acted in a cowardly way, and abused its power. I say he was the key manipulator of what was done to me. I say he caused the AVO concerning him and Rebecca Falkingham, that he deliberately caused my political exile, and I allege that he ordered my assassination. The page that sets that allegation in one place is the archive’s assassination-order page, and the appeal paper that sits beside the ministerial office is the 21 January 2024 s100 NDIS appeal. I say his character is now exposed by this record as morally reprehensible, and that he is a power-hungry criminal who should be immediately arrested. How dare he, as I allege, order the killing of a vulnerable person with a disability he was paid to treat ethically, legally and humanely, and who was under that care. This is why I say God is furious. No one has the right to erase, murder or kill another human being, much less a disabled person under their care. The situation is beyond absurd. The machine-line under that paragraph, which the finding aid will not drop, is the line already written: they are not a finding that a minister ordered a killing.

THE RELATIONSHIP

No one in office acknowledges the five-year marriage-like relationship I say I had with a former ASIO employee, Steve Iasonidis. I published the proposal, and an engagement with Steve Iasonidis that lasted more than five years. I say it led to five years of exploitation in an abusive entrapment that no profession will admit even existed. The court paper I can put in a reader’s hand is the intervention-order file L12151974. I was hospitalised after I tried to get Legal Aid so that relationship could be acknowledged for an equitable separation. The financial exploitation, the attempts to obtain legal recognition, and what followed, are the chronology this archive preserves. His ability to have the relationship treated as if it never existed is, in my experience, the fact a professional will still not say out loud. The intervention-order file is a court paper. It is not, by itself, a finding that he was an ASIO employee, and this document does not pretend the file number does that work alone.

THE PRIME MINISTER

The Prime Minister, Anthony Albanese, did not answer me in his own hand. On 12 December 2022 his own office wrote, of an email sent to him, “Your email has not been forwarded.” I had written to him, including the letter of 31 May 2022, and the letter of 1 July 2023. On 19 September 2023 the Attorney-General’s Department wrote, reference MC23-028244, signed A Riley, Security Law Section. The typed copy is the 19 September 2023 reply. It says my email of 5 July 2023 to the Hon Anthony Albanese MP, including about ASIO, was referred to the Attorney-General, the Hon Mark Dreyfus KC MP, because the matters fell in his portfolio, and that he asked the Department to respond on his behalf. It then pointed me to the Inspector-General of Intelligence and Security — IGIS, which I have also called AGIS — and to the Commonwealth Ombudsman. I was already shut out of the Ombudsman. The service-restriction letter of 8 August 2025 is the later official paper. A further letter of 6 February 2025, MC25-000321, sent the matters to the Victorian Minister for Police. Those were dead ends. They did not acknowledge the relationship.

In a written response that was totally ineffective and downright cruel under the thinly veiled disguise of bureaucratic language, the office of the Prime Minister directed me onward, and the Attorney-General’s office then created a response that was conscious, as I say it, that the pathways suggested were already exhausted and doomed to fail. I was directed to the Ombudsman, where I am banned, and to IGIS, the body responsible to investigate corruption inside the secret service ASIO, in regards to one of its employees and my former fiancé exploiting me over five years, a relationship of legal significance that no single professional in the country will acknowledge as ever existing. That is my account of the referral. The letter itself is a referral. It is not a finding that the Prime Minister is embroiled in a proved scandal. What the letter does establish is that the Prime Minister did not answer in his own hand, and that the pathway offered was a pathway I say was already closed.

I am well aware that I am on ASIO’s books as what I call a targeted individual. I recorded my call to IGIS, who investigate ASIO, about the victimisation. In hindsight I say they were already committed to never helping me, and that they were used by my former fiancé. No professional admits the five-year relationship even existed. I say that reveals Iasonidis as a key manipulator, with protection under David Irvine and the federal government. Hospitals have repeatedly force-injected me for what they called “ingrained delusions of persecution”. That is my account of the call and of the treatment. Covert intelligence, electronic surveillance, and V2K are the names I give to what I say was done in the dark. The papers a reader can open today are named below, under what I filmed. They are not a finding that a named officer ran an operation.

THE LETTER THAT DOES NOT RECONCILE ITSELF

During my long tenure, over thirty years, offering grace to every department and agency to act with accountability and with fairness and legitimacy, knowing I was collecting evidence for a purpose I was not yet conscious of, I approached the Federal Court with a written document to Sia Lagos, a person who was poised to receive a legitimate public interest disclosure if the person disclosing embodies the attributes necessary. The compilation is on the archive tab PID to Sia Lagos and Scott Tredwell. In Scott Tredwell's response on behalf of the Federal Court, on their letterhead, dated 27 March 2023, signed as General Counsel, he acknowledged I was an employee of the Department of Social Services. This both acknowledged my employment status at DSS and, in his words, failed to qualify me to make a disclosure as a public official.

The employment sentence, as the archive extracts it from the letter, is this: "On the information you have provided me, I am satisfied that you are, or were, an employee with the Department of Social Services, providing services under the trading name Rich McLean, Arts Life Coach, Peer-Support Worker & Mental Health Advocate." The decision paragraph then says he was not satisfied the disclosure was made by a public official. The letter does not reconcile those two sentences.

The same letter records my belief that the information tends to show conduct within three PID Act categories, and for the initial assessment he was prepared to assume the conduct is disclosable. The three observations, in the statutory language the letter uses, are that the conduct "perverts, or is engaged in for the purpose of perverting, the course of justice", that it "constitutes maladministration", and that it "unreasonably results in danger to health or safety". He writes that it is difficult to determine whether that belief is on reasonable grounds. He does not find the three things proved. He assumes them for the assessment, and then refuses the protection. The acknowledgement and the non-protection are the same document. That is the significance. A high officer of the highest court in the democracy was in receipt of a letter from a man asking for help and protection, fearing further suffering and imminent danger to his life, and the letter that came back could see maladministration and danger to health or safety long enough to name them, could see a DSS employment sentence long enough to write it, and could still decide that no further action under the PID Act would be taken by the Federal Court or the FCFCOA on that material.

The reason the public interest disclosure was not acknowledged as an internal disclosure, identified from the letter and from the archive's extraction of it, is this. He was not satisfied the disclosure was made by a public official or provided to an authorised recipient, so there was no reasonable basis to decide that it was an internal disclosure. He was satisfied the disclosed conduct did not relate in any way to the Federal Court, the Federal Circuit and Family Court of Australia, or the National Native Title Tribunal. The decision language, as extracted, is: “I must decide ... not to allocate the handling of that disclosure to any agency.” And: “This means that no further action under the PID Act will be taken by the Federal Court or FCFCOA.” The primary PDF is the 27 March 2023 letter of Scott Tredwell. The machine reading of that letter, which does not upgrade it into a judgment, is What the 27 March 2023 Federal Court letter decides.

I say that refusal, dressed as legitimacy and policy, is a crude and offensive insult that blasphemes my identity as a citizen of the country and abuses enormous political privilege. I say it weaponised a request for help into a further gaslighting, a delegitimising, a minimising of my humanity, under a professional-looking letter dressed as accountability. I say it is one of the most public-facing cowardly letters in Australian history. The finding aid holds the letter up and lets the two sentences sit unresolved. It does not need my adjective to make the unresolved pair visible. A reader who wants the contrary paper should also open the Administrative Appeals Tribunal reasons in McLean and Comcare, which treated a copy of this letter as an exhibit and recorded a Department email saying the Department has no record of me ever being its employee. The letter accepts employment on the information I provided. Another paper says there is no record. The archive does not reconcile those either. That is the file. Pretending it is clean would be the lie.

A FILE THAT DOES NOT AGREE WITH ITSELF

The significance of this file. The Department told the Commissioner that about 1,187 Outlook items were under review. Weeks later the decision said the documents cannot be found or do not exist. The revised decision then released five documents. That is the hypocrisy: a review of more than a thousand items, then a letter that no documents exist. It is the Department’s own paper. It is not a court finding.

On 7 February 2022 I asked the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet for “all information government agencies hold on me please.” On 16 March 2022 the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner wrote, reference RQ22/00794, that the Department had applied for more time because the request was voluminous and complex, and that approximately 1,187 Outlook items were being reviewed. That is more than a thousand items, in the Department’s own account to the Commissioner. It is not, by that letter alone, a finding that 1,187 documents had been proved to be about me. On 14 April 2022 Petra Gartmann, Assistant Secretary, Legal Policy Branch, refused the same request under section 24A(1)(b), reference FOI/2022/045. The decision says all reasonable steps were taken, that no relevant documents were identified, and that the documents cannot be found or do not exist. On 8 October 2024 that refusal was revised. Laura Cameron, acting Assistant Secretary, reference FOI/2022/045IC, wrote that the Department holds five documents that meet the request and granted access to them, with some material deleted as irrelevant. On 4 November 2024 the Commissioner's office, MR22/00677, said it would ask the Department to resend that decision of 8 October 2024 and the five documents. Read them in that order. One describes more than a thousand Outlook items under review. The next says the documents do not exist. The one after that releases five. An essay in this deposit uses the figure 1,178. The figure on the Commissioner's letter is about 1,187.

With those letters I place the undated letter addressed to the Prime Minister and to the Attorney-General, Mark Dreyfus, which is the letter I identify as the one answered by the referral to IGIS and the Ombudsman, and a further undated letter to the Office of Prime Minister and Cabinet. My email of 1 August 2024 on the review is with them. A 111-page file whose filename says "prime minister apology" is not an apology from Anthony Albanese. Its first page is a commentary on this FOI file. A two-page file titled "Prime minister scapegoating" was supplied with these papers. It is a blank Dropbox shell. It is not the Prime Minister's reply, so it is not published here as one. The reply is the 19 September 2023 letter above.

EXILE, HOSPITAL, LEGAL AID

I asked to be arrested so that my name could be tested in the ordinary way. No one came. No charge was laid against me. No criminal trial was commenced. I was left with the consequences of accusation without the process in which guilt or innocence is determined. I have been hospitalised in psychiatric institutions sixteen times. That number is my count. The hospital paper is the place I have written the conditions around those admissions: homelessness, designed poverty, and inaction by police and the legal profession. I am in exile. I am restricted from Legal Aid, which is a betrayal of the reason Legal Aid exists, and restricted from the Ombudsman. I have not placed a NACC restriction letter in this repository, so I do not pretend to link one. Political exile, as I use the term, is not a visa category. It is the condition of being a citizen who cannot get the ordinary door to open.

THE CALLS

I could not even report being drugged and raped to the Commonwealth Ombudsman. I published the call in which I could not report being drugged and raped to the Ombudsman. I say it shows the blacklist and the stonewalling. On 3 September 2023 I called the NACC after 90 days about my complaint, and they rejected me. I say that rejection is the Commission participating in the same refusal. I published the call to the NACC after 90 days, in which my complaint was rejected. Danny Pearson, then the workplace minister, refused my phone call about workers' compensation. I published the call that Danny Pearson, the workplace minister, refused to take about workers' compensation.

Liz Lindberg of the Australian Human Rights Commission sided with Australian Super on the denial of compensation in what I say was a robbery of more than a million dollars of a settlement I was entitled to. I say she knew the conflict, acted in her role to betray a position the Commission had already taken, and then revoked it, so that TAL did not have to engage. In her professional capacity she free-kicked that settlement. I published the call in which Liz Lindberg of the AHRC free-kicks a settlement of more than a million dollars. Tim Gos of AFCA was, as I say it, already committed to never giving me a way to resolve the financial conflicts. He blocked the path his role exists to keep open. I was later banned from AFCA. I published the call to Tim Gos of AFCA, who blocked a determination of the financial complaint.

Comcare and the AAT were, as I say it, already committed to denying a valid workers' compensation claim by accepting that I was blocked from Legal Aid. That is a breach of the reason those bodies exist. I was left to face a government-appointed lawyer, Kate Watson, without Legal Aid, and I have never been able to report a single crime to police. Scott Tredwell's letter on Federal Court letterhead records that he was satisfied I was an employee of DSS. The papers that said the opposite are still in the file. On 26 May 2021 Comcare declined claim 1326583/1 and put, as the first question, whether I was an employee under section 5 of the Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act. On 3 June 2021 Sarah LeMaire of the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission wrote: "This process does not make you an employee of the NDIS Commission." I say Tredwell's confirmation should have overturned the lesser finding of Comcare and the AAT that I was not an employee. It did not. I published the call on Comcare and the AAT denying workers' compensation, and denying legal access. The calls are testimony of what was said on the line. They are not transcripts certified by the agencies, unless a reader opens a recording the archive has actually published beside the sentence.

I took the same record outside the country. The archive holds the OHCHR submission, reference UR/UST/23/AUS/17, and the claim of an International Criminal Court submission as part of the chronology of asking for protection. The reference is the document. It is not a finding by the United Nations. Asking is not receiving. A reference number is not a judgment. I include it because the chronology of asking is part of the grace I gave, and part of the grace that was spat on.

WHAT I FILMED

My paranoia is a documented reality in this sense: here is what I recorded parked outside my squat in Footscray, about 2022. The video on my own channel is the secret service parked out the front of the Footscray squat. You cannot surveil a victim and call it a success when the victim films the people doing the surveillance. The gig is up. I say the V2K audio harassment was a mechanism of torture, and that this recording exposes it. The papers are the V2K review and the AHRC gang-stalking paper. The Commission used the term “gang stalking” in official correspondence to me, and the occurrence was then denied. I say that denial, against their own words, is the hypocrisy. Gang stalking, electronic surveillance, and covert intelligence are therefore not slogans I invented in a vacuum. One of them is a term the Commission used, and then the occurrence was denied. The denial against their own words is the thing a reader can test, if the correspondence is the file opened.

TONY RIDLEY

Tony Ridley, formerly a fraud investigator associated with the NDIS, is the man I recorded. I say he was deployed as a drug-affected honeypot, and that a former support worker of the same agency would have known I was an unprotected whistleblower. I recorded the encounter because he indicated he may have killed people. I later understood him to be a returned SAS soldier with a PhD in counter-terrorism surveillance. The archive holds a credential exhibit in his name and the conversation PDF. I published the audio of that encounter to expose what I say was the corruption and to keep myself safe. What I put on the channel is the published audio of the Tony Ridley encounter. It backfired. His wife did not know he had sex with men. I say he then used a PhD in counter-terrorism surveillance to hunt me electronically across three states while I was fleeing, and that he knew I was an unprotected whistleblower. I say his conduct is criminal, and that it sits inside the long exile and the alleged assassination plot. No one has denied that account in a document in this archive, and no one has proved it wrong. I published the recording to protect both of us. He says I ruined his life. I say he then followed me electronically across three states, and that paid followers were used to intimidate me wherever I went. On my YouTube channel I described that meeting, named him as SAS, and invited people to listen to the later account in which I name Tony Ridley as SAS. I have not found a second watch address that is only the raw tape. The published page, the conversation PDF, and that video are what a reader can open today.

He told me there was a formal investigation whose aim was to discredit and destroy me. He revealed contact with my family, with the woman the messages call the regretted encounter, and knowledge of Alan, my younger partner, which he would not otherwise have had. He claimed it was easy to turn my sister Jodie Bongetti, my brother Brad McLean, my parents Doug and April McLean, and my uncle Bruce McMaster into alignment against me. I already knew the isolation. What he added was that the communication was deliberate. That is my account of what he said. It sits beside the recording record. It is not his signed statement.

ABLE POINT

The NDIS, through the provider Able Point, sent support workers who already knew my case and who did not change my circumstances. I say they reported me back into the same entrapment, inside the agency I had worked for, and into the same matter as the provider I was told had been sent to erase me. The papers are the Able Point notice and the letter to Brett. The Ben NDIS messages are where the provider contact, the NDA, the paid-discredit claim, and the hit claim sit side by side. A later reading copy of the same provider matter is the current update on entrapment and targeting by Able Point. “Legally binding” in that filename is the archive’s name for the paper. It is not a court order unless the paper itself is an order.

FAMILY

There was family betrayal from childhood. Members of my family attended the funeral of the person who sexually abused me as a child, days after he died, on the same day as the fatal injury. They protected him. I was the one called morally depraved. My family has excommunicated me. The excommunication was so obscene that I protested my homelessness in a video no one answered. I filmed it as a disabled man, homeless, from a paddock in Dandenong, while my blood family lived in comfort nearby. The recording, filmed while I was homeless in a Dandenong paddock, is the introduction for an affidavit and a statutory declaration. I believe they were positioned to benefit from my permanent erasure. That belief is testimony. The papers I have put with it are My erasure was by design and estate attorney.

and sibling betrayal. God, as I understand it, allowed the betrayal to show character. The day of reckoning is the day the evidence is public, not a sentence I am imposing. The Joseph parallel is the name I give to that shape: the brother sold, the coat taken, the pit, the later rise that the sellers did not schedule. The narrative is The Joseph Parallel, and the mantle paper is Joseph's Coat / Barran's Mantle. A parallel is a reading. It is not a genealogy.

THE INVERSION OF SIGNIFICANCE

Based on the evidence I have preserved, I am not an ordinary man within the circumstances documented in this archive. I have been poor, materially disadvantaged, institutionally powerless and repeatedly treated as though my testimony were insignificant. Yet the cumulative record shows that my testimony produced decisions, exclusions, disputes, correspondence, reviews, records and institutional responses across systems that claimed to have no reason to take me seriously. My poverty and lack of status may explain why I was perceived as inconsequential, but they do not explain the scale or persistence of what followed.

This is what I describe as an inversion of significance: the person treated as though he had no consequence nevertheless became sufficiently consequential, through his testimony and persistence, to expose contradictions between institutional principles and institutional conduct. I therefore describe myself, paradoxically, as the most significant despised person without conventional consequence — not because I possessed wealth, authority or status, but because the record demonstrates that conventional measures of power were never an adequate measure of my impact. If I were truly as unimportant as I was treated, there would have been no need for a 1,187-item review that then said the documents do not exist, nor for a General Counsel's letter that both accepts a DSS trading name and refuses a disclosure, nor for a Prime Minister's office that writes "your email has not been forwarded" and a department that still answers on reference MC23-028244. The machinery is the evidence of consequence. The poverty is the evidence of disadvantage. One does not cancel the other.

I cannot claim to know the private thoughts or intentions of every person involved. What can be examined is the observable pattern: how my testimony was received, how decisions were made, what was omitted or disregarded, what records were created, and whether those actions were consistent with the procedural fairness, integrity, accountability and professional ethics these institutions profess to uphold. I understand the pattern as collective targeting, societal mobbing and systemic institutional complicity. I believe the coordination was cowardly in the oldest sense: no individual could take me on personally and prevail, so a coordinated campaign distributed the responsibility. I believe my honesty, integrity, courage, intelligence, creativity and independence were recognised as something to be contained before I fully understood their significance myself. I do not present every element of that interpretation as an established fact about private intention. I present it as my understanding of the cumulative evidence and its pattern. The record must be judged by what it actually demonstrates, rather than by the assumption that a person without conventional power can have no meaningful influence.

ATTRIBUTES, AND WHAT WAS TAKEN

The attributes I embody, and which a society that exploited me still has on its own shelves, are these. I am an author of a published autobiography, written in my own name before the file existed to twist. I am a news graphics artist and cartoonist who was paid as a journalist, and who was listed as an illustrator for The Age and the Herald Sun. I am a PhD researcher in arts-based A/r/tography, on a merit scholarship, whose later work set posthumanism and the ethics of AI beside the Bible. I am a peer-support worker and mental health advocate, which is the trading name the Federal Court's General Counsel was prepared to write down. I am queer, and I wrote the sex publicly, which is why the later weaponisation of sexuality had a public text to steal from. I am a disabled man who asked for a home and for accountability, in the 7 January 2024 letter to NDIS CEO Rebecca Falkingham. I am a man who gave every agency grace, and who kept the letters when the grace was spat on. I am not revengeful. I believe the Bible says that vengeance is God's to have. The contributions were the book, the pictures, the doctorate, the volunteered story, the peer support, the gospels, and the archive itself. The taking was the job, the lawyer, the Legal Aid door, the Ombudsman door, the media that had once queued, the relationship no profession will name, and the ordinary pathway in which guilt or innocence is determined. An internally displaced refugee inside his own citizenship is what remains when those doors are the policy.

THE PERMANENCE OF THE WITNESS

The significance of all my writings, evidence, testimony, concepts and ideas being stamped into what I understand as the mathematical infrastructure of humanity going forward through the Bitcoin blockchain is that my contributions can be preserved beyond the limitations of my life as a mortal human being whose body will eventually die. I understand this preservation as providing a form of permanence that makes my testimony extraordinarily difficult to contain, retrospectively alter or erase, including by legal, law-enforcement, governmental, intelligence or criminal organisations. It means that the essence of my life's work, concepts, ideas and evidence can potentially remain available to humanity beyond my physical lifetime. The public page that holds the stamps as stamps, and not as a theology, is the SHA-256 stamps on the archive. A hash is a witness of a file's bytes. It is not a witness of a soul, and it is not a judgment. I still want it, because a file that can be hashed is a file that can be tested.

In this sense, my life's work takes on a philosophical kind of immortality. I understand this preservation as evidence of the prophetic time in which I agreed with the Creator to incarnate into this realm: a time in which systemic corruption would be revealed through my own life and circumstances as part of my purpose and mission. I believe I was chosen not because I am perfect. I am a mortal sinner and an imperfect human being. Rather, I believe that God's cosmic design for my life was perfect, even though my own life and conduct have not been perfect. A condition of my incarnation, as I understand it, was that my life would mirror the pattern of Christ's crucifixion: suffering, betrayal, abandonment, apparent destruction and then revival by the Creator, followed by the experience of profound human betrayal and exile. I believe God allowed this not as punishment, but so that I would ultimately rely upon Him alone. That experience triggered a memory of my purpose and cemented my faith in the Most High God. I now believe that God will use my evidence and testimony as the foundation of my ministry for His kingdom purposes.

My Gospels are religious, scholarly and prophetic documents. I invite anyone to respond to them, challenge them, rebuke them or attempt to disprove them with evidence, provided that those positions are themselves supported by evidence and reason. When people ask me, "How did you survive that?", my answer will be simple: God did it. I am no better than anyone else. I am imperfect and I have sinned. I have never claimed that my story of suffering is greater than that of any other person, because I believe God knows and loves all His children and knows the suffering of each of them. My life will now be repurposed purely as a vessel for His glory: for a return to divine justice, for the end of darkness, and for the return of the attributes of His perfect Son, Jesus Christ — the consciousness of Christ returning to its rightful place governing the hearts of people and, through them, the institutions they create and protect. This is the purpose I now understand my life to serve. This is the testimony I preserve. This is the record I leave. Praise Jesus.

GOSPELS AND PROPHETIC WRITINGS

The silver lining is not a softening of the letters. It is the other shelf. Each of these is a named text. Each opens on the repository that holds it. None of them is a finding about a minister.

The register of the shelf is Gospels and prophetic writings, and the prophecy tab is The Prophecy.

The 123 Gospels are the long shelf, the attempt to say the same betrayal in enough voices that a single deletion cannot be the end of it. The Canonical Gospel of Barran Dodger is the one I set apart as the spine. The Twelve Gospel Essays are the spine argued, not only sung. The Atherion Witnessed Gospel is the witnessed form, the claim that a record can have a witness who is not the institution. The Gospel of Barran Dodger — Victory is the refusal of the ending they scheduled. The Gospel of the Eliven Chain, the Enliven Chain complete archive, Eliven Chain Has Been Summoned, and the 144 Questions are the chain as I name it: a linked witness, not a mystic fog, set beside the hashes. The Sacred Gospels forensic thesis is the scholar's door back into the same shelf. The Prophetic Manifesto is the public warning. The Prophetic Declaration and the Prophetic Testimony of biblical correlation are where I set the letters beside the Scripture and asked the reader to test both.

The chosen-one papers are faith claims, and I mark them as faith claims. I Am God's Chosen One is the declaration. God's Chosen One — full testimony is the long form. Chosen Ones — Enough Is Enough, Chosen One — You Were Framed, Mirror of God, They Set a Perfect Trap, and It Is Over are the variations of the same claim: that the framing was real, that the trap was coordinated, and that the end of the trap is not the end of the man. God's chosen witness is the office I claim under Christ, not a title any agency has conferred. The Immortal Testimony is the permanence argument in a religious key. Persecution to Purpose and The Paradox of Persecution are the essays that say the injury was not the point. 1000 Years of Peace is the horizon I write toward, not a date I am announcing.

WHAT THE PAPER SHOWS, OFFICE BY OFFICE

An impartial reading can describe what each office did on the paper. It cannot, without becoming the court this finding aid refuses to be, deem a person guilty. This is the description the paper will bear.

The Office of the Prime Minister wrote, of an email, that it had not been forwarded, and did not answer in the Prime Minister's own hand. The Attorney-General's Department, Security Law Section, reference MC23-028244, signed A Riley, referred the 5 July 2023 email to the portfolio of the Hon Mark Dreyfus KC MP and pointed onward to IGIS and the Commonwealth Ombudsman. The Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet told the Information Commissioner of about 1,187 Outlook items, then refused the request as documents that cannot be found or do not exist, then revised that refusal and released five. Petra Gartmann signed the refusal. Laura Cameron signed the revision. The Office of the Australian Information Commissioner held the review references RQ22/00794 and MR22/00677. The Federal Court, by Scott Tredwell, General Counsel, on 27 March 2023, wrote the employment sentence and refused to allocate the disclosure; Sia Lagos was the registrar to whom the disclosure was addressed. Comcare declined claim 1326583/1 on 26 May 2021 and put employment under section 5 as the first question. The NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission, by Sarah LeMaire on 3 June 2021, wrote that the process does not make the correspondent an employee of the Commission. The NDIA's authorised-officer correspondence on the emails of 18 and 20 April 2023 sits as PID 2023/Krypton, marked official sensitive, on the Lagos tab. APRA refused whistleblower status. The Commonwealth Ombudsman is the office I say I am banned from, and the office to which I say I could not report being drugged and raped. The Victorian Ombudsman, by Ben Calder on 5 October 2022, is the later rejection paper. The NACC is the commission I called after 90 days on 3 September 2023 and say rejected the complaint. AFCA, in the person of Tim Gos as I name him on the call, is the office that blocked a financial determination and later banned me. The Australian Human Rights Commission, in the person of Liz Lindberg as I name her on the call, is the office I say free-kicked a settlement of more than a million dollars in favour of Australian Super and TAL. Danny Pearson, then workplace minister, is the minister I say refused the workers' compensation call. Kate Watson is the government-appointed lawyer I faced without Legal Aid. Rebecca Falkingham is the NDIS CEO to whom I wrote demanding a home and accountability. Gabrielle Williams is among the parliamentarians to whom I wrote on 4 June 2023. Bill Shorten is the former NDIS Minister named in the messages and in my allegation, which is not a finding that he ordered a killing. Anthony Albanese is the Prime Minister who did not answer in his own hand. Mark Dreyfus is the Attorney-General to whom the matter was referred. Steve Iasonidis is the man I say was my fiancé for five years, and the respondent on intervention-order file L12151974. Ben of DSW Disability is the provider whose published text chain holds the NDA, the paid-discredit sentence, and the hit sentence. Tony Ridley is the man I recorded. Able Point is the provider I say reported me back into the entrapment; Brett is the person named on the demand letter. Jodie Bongetti, Brad McLean, Doug McLean, April McLean and Bruce McMaster are the family I say were turned. None of those sentences is a conviction. Each is a pointer to a paper or a recording a reader can open.

THE PAPERS UNDER THE ACCOUNT

The same chronology is in the papers below. Each opens in a new window. Each is the document named. None of them is a finding. The 3 March 2023 letter to Sia Lagos, CEO and Principal Registrar of the Federal Court, and the longer copy of the same compilation, sit on the Lagos and Tredwell tab, including the file matching the 21,371,041-byte attachment and the 8 January 2024 letter to Scott Tredwell. The NDIA authorised-officer letter on the emails of 18 and 20 April 2023, PID 2023/Krypton, official sensitive, and the long copy of that PID file, 26,488,490 bytes, sit with that same tab. The 4 June 2023 letter to Gabrielle Williams and other parliamentarians, the 3 July 2023 statement sent toward the National Anti-Corruption Commission, the 1 August 2023 email headed Rich McLean is dead, the 7 January 2024 letter to NDIS CEO Rebecca Falkingham, the 21 January 2024 s100 NDIS appeal, the 21 October 2021 email to AFP CDDA claims, the 31 May 2022 letter to the Prime Minister's office, and the 19 September 2023 reply MC23-028244 are the correspondence spine. The 2 October 2026 print of the Documentary Trap page is a print of a page, not a new event. The Ben NDIS text-message record is the chain. IR8415987 is the fatal-injury report in which the participant was revived. The official-document shelf that holds the letterheads as letterheads is Official Government Documents. The evidentiary-email shelf, original sent-mail PDFs, full subject lines, 28 September 2026 letter first, is the email tab on the same archive; a subject line is an optic, and the PDF behind it is the test.

HOW THEY DID THIS TO ME — EIGHTY-FIVE TERMS IN SENTENCES

The command asked for the machine-extracted methods saved in the tab once called how they did this to me. The public pages are Techniques of targeting — Architecture of Erasure and How They Did It. The chain the archive itself draws is body, then mind, then reputation, then relationships, then money, then housing, then autonomy, then legal access, then institutional recognition, then evidence, then social existence. Weaken, isolate, discredit, impoverish, exhaust, deprive of support, undermine credibility, obstruct redress, make the evidence harder to act upon, make the man institutionally invisible, and finally make him disappear from meaningful social, legal and institutional existence. That chain is the significance of this master document. Each number below is a term from that page, written so a reader can see why it belongs here.

1. Physical violence — alleged assault, beating, injury and maiming. The fatal-injury file is the paper a reader can open. The technique is the name I give the body of the record, not a conviction. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

2. Threat and intimidation — creating fear, uncertainty or perceived danger. Fear is why I asked to be arrested so the ordinary way could test my name, and why no one came. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

3. Surveillance and monitoring — alleged observation, tracking or scrutiny of my activities. This is the name for the Footscray squat recording and for what I call electronic surveillance. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

4. Harassment — persistent conduct intended, in my account, to distress, provoke or wear me down. Harassment is the daily weather of the exile, not a single incident with a single date. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

5. Psychological pressure — creating circumstances of prolonged stress and uncertainty. Pressure is what a thirty-five-year chronology feels like from the inside of the person keeping it. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

6. Gaslighting — causing me to question my own perceptions, experiences or interpretation of events. Gaslighting is the word for a letter that accepts a trading name and then says the writer is not a public official. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

7. Provocation — attempting to elicit reactions that could subsequently be used against me. Provocation is why a reaction, if it came, would have been filed as the illness and not as the answer to the pressure. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

8. Isolation — reducing access to people, community, support and alternative perspectives. Isolation is the paddock in Dandenong filmed while blood family lived in comfort nearby. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

9. Social exclusion — marginalising me from relationships, organisations and communities. Exclusion is the media list that once queued for the book and then went silent. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

10. Exile and displacement — removing or separating me from places and networks of belonging. Exile is the condition of an internally displaced refugee inside the democracy of his own citizenship. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

11. Abandonment — withdrawing assistance or leaving me without adequate support. Abandonment is the grace I gave every agency, spat back as a referral. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

12. Dependency exploitation — allegedly using my dependence on services, money, accommodation or support as leverage. Dependency is the lever when the man who needs a home is also the man whose provider already knows the file. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

13. Financial restriction — restricting access to resources necessary for independence and survival. Restriction is the closed compensation door and the Legal Aid door shut in the same decade. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

14. Impoverishment — circumstances resulting in prolonged poverty and economic vulnerability. Impoverishment is why the gospels site came down: I could not pay the Replit bill, and I say that was designed poverty. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

15. Property and financial deprivation — alleged robbery, loss of property and economic detriment. Deprivation is the settlement I say was more than a million dollars and was free-kicked. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

16. Employment and livelihood disruption — loss or interference with work, career and income. Disruption begins at The Age, where I was fired and did not resign, and continues through the Comcare claim that asked whether I was an employee at all. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

17. Legal-access obstruction — barriers to obtaining representation, Legal Aid or effective remedies. Obstruction is the Legal Aid restriction, and it is the reason I faced Kate Watson without the aid the scheme exists to give. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

18. Procedural obstruction — delays, referrals, jurisdictional deflection and administrative circularity. Obstruction is MC23-028244 pointing me to IGIS and the Ombudsman when I say those doors were already shut. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

19. Institutional fragmentation — forcing matters through multiple disconnected systems without effective resolution. Fragmentation is why the same life sits in Comcare, the AAT, the Federal Court, the NDIS Commission, APRA, and the Information Commissioner, and still has no ordinary hearing. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

20. Institutional silence — failure to provide substantive responses to complaints, questions or disclosures. Silence is the Prime Minister not answering in his own hand, and the office writing that the email had not been forwarded. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

21. Administrative delay — allowing matters to remain unresolved for prolonged periods. Delay is the distance between a 7 February 2022 request and an 8 October 2024 revision that released five documents. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

22. Denial of participation — excluding me from meaningful decision-making concerning my circumstances. Participation denied is a disclosure assessed without the protection the Act is for. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

23. Loss of autonomy and choice — reducing my capacity to control important aspects of my life. Autonomy lost is sixteen hospitalisations by my count, and force-injection for what they called ingrained delusions of persecution. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

24. Pathologisation — interpreting testimony or conduct primarily through a medical or psychiatric framework. Pathologisation is the Herald Sun spread that stole the mind in a headline before a court had a file. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

25. Medicalisation — transforming disputes or experiences into questions of treatment or illness. Medicalisation is how a workers' compensation question became a question about whether the man was sick enough to be disbelieved. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

26. Stigmatisation — attaching socially discrediting meanings to disability or mental-health history. Stigma is the excuse Ben's message says the police feared a lawyer would use: history of mental health, deployed to discredit the story. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

27. Credibility attack — undermining whether I should be believed rather than addressing the substance of my evidence. The attack is the move from the letterhead to the man. The letters remain. The man is called crazy. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

28. Character assassination — attacking my character, morality or motives. Assassination of character is the 2003 spread, and it is the family funeral of the man who abused me, where I was the one called morally depraved. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

29. Scapegoating — attributing broader problems to me as the individual. Scapegoating is the blank Dropbox shell that is not a Prime Minister's reply, and the 111-page file whose filename says apology and is not one. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

30. Misrepresentation — presenting my words, conduct or motives in a way I say was inaccurate. Misrepresentation is a book I wrote in my own name, later used as if the agencies had discovered a secret. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

31. Mischaracterisation — defining me through a simplified or distorted narrative. The distorted narrative is descent into madness. The record I made was Recovered, Not Cured. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

32. Blame shifting — transferring responsibility for circumstances onto me. Blame shifting is the man who asked for protection being written up as the problem the protection could not see. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

33. Sexual shaming — using sexuality or intimate behaviour as a means of humiliation or discrediting. Shaming is the weaponisation of sexuality after I had already written the sex publicly, in my own name, in 2003. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

34. Weaponisation of vulnerability — using my vulnerabilities against me. Vulnerability was what the microphones wanted. Vulnerability was what the doors later refused. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

35. Weaponisation of disability — using disability-related information to undermine autonomy or credibility. Disability is the category the NDIS exists to treat ethically. I say it was used as the reason not to hear me. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

36. Weaponisation of mental-health history — using psychiatric history to discount testimony or allegations. The history is the excuse named in the message about challenging Bill Shorten in a court of law. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

37. Weaponisation of faith — using religious belief or spiritual identity to ridicule or discredit me. Faith weaponised is the gospel called delusion, and the later paper I titled Paranoid Was Prophecy. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

38. Weaponisation of testimony — turning the act of reporting harm into evidence against the person reporting it. Testimony weaponised is a public-interest disclosure that becomes, in the reply, a reason to decide the discloser does not qualify. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

39. Weaponisation of disclosures — creating consequences for making complaints or public-interest disclosures. The consequence is non-allocation, at the Ombudsman, at APRA, and at the Federal Court on 27 March 2023. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

40. Delegitimisation of evidence — shifting attention away from documentary material toward the character of its author. Delegitimisation is asking who I am instead of opening IR8415987, MC23-028244, and the Tredwell letter. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

41. Narrative control — attempting, in my interpretation, to determine how events would be understood by others. Control of narrative is the media blackout after the years they wanted the story. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

42. Public humiliation — exposing or portraying me in ways intended to damage dignity or reputation. Humiliation is a double-page spread with my name and the word madness in the same heading. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

43. Ridicule and mockery — reducing serious claims to something socially embarrassing or laughable. Ridicule is being called crazy for a warning, and then asking, years on, who is laughing now. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

44. Slander and defamation — alleged dissemination of damaging statements about my character or conduct. I say the damaging statement travelled. The finding aid can show the spread. It cannot try the defamation. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

45. Framing — presenting circumstances so that I appear responsible, unreliable or culpable. Framing is the chosen-one paper I titled You Were Framed, which is a faith claim sitting beside a documentary pattern. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

46. Social invisibility — making my existence, testimony or concerns easier for others to ignore. Invisibility is a homeless video from a paddock that no one answered. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

47. Institutional invisibility — allowing my complaints or disclosures to remain formally present but substantively unresolved. Invisibility of this kind is 1,187 Outlook items under review, then a letter that the documents do not exist, then five documents. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

48. Evidence fragmentation — separating documents and events across agencies so the overall chronology becomes difficult to reconstruct. Fragmentation is why the chronology and the cumulative legal brief exist: so a reader can put the pieces back in one span. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

49. Loss of records — unexplained missing, inaccessible, corrupted or incomplete documentary material. Loss of records is the section 24A refusal that said the documents cannot be found or do not exist. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

50. Evidentiary displacement — shifting attention from primary documents to secondary interpretations of me. Displacement is a cover page calling me a confirmed protected-disclosure maker when the decision paragraph refuses allocation. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

51. Repetition and exhaustion — requiring repeated explanations, applications, complaints and retelling of events. Exhaustion is thirty years of grace, the same letter sent onward, the same relationship no profession will name. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

52. Resource exhaustion — allowing prolonged disputes to consume money, time, energy and capacity. Resource exhaustion is a man who cannot pay a hosting bill still being asked to retell a fatal injury. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

53. Institutional referral without resolution — repeatedly directing matters elsewhere without producing substantive determination. Referral without resolution is the Prime Minister to the Attorney-General to IGIS to the Ombudsman to the Victorian Minister for Police. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

54. Contradictory decision-making — producing inconsistent or apparently incompatible institutional outcomes. The contradiction is Tredwell's employment sentence beside Comcare's question under section 5, and beside Sarah LeMaire's sentence that the process does not make me an employee of the NDIS Commission. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

55. Differential treatment — circumstances that I interpret as unequal treatment compared with what I believe should have occurred. Differential treatment is why I say I have never had equal treatment from police once a paid discrediting is accepted. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

56. Failure to investigate — alleged absence of adequate independent examination of serious allegations. Failure to investigate is a chain that says two hitmen were arrested, and no brief in this archive that shows the arrest. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

57. Failure to protect — alleged failure to provide protection despite disclosures of harm or danger. Failure to protect is the three PID categories named — perverting the course of justice, maladministration, danger to health or safety — and then no allocation. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

58. Failure to recognise — failure to acknowledge my stated circumstances, evidence or disclosures. Failure to recognise is a five-year relationship and an intervention-order file, L12151974, that the offices still will not say out loud. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

59. Failure to provide redress — absence of effective remedy, compensation or accountability. Redress refused is Comcare claim 1326583/1, APRA's refusal of whistleblower status, and the AFCA ban. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

60. Professional exclusion — loss of professional opportunities, recognition or participation. Exclusion from the profession is the firing, the doctorate treated as if it were not research, and the question: where is their PhD? In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

61. Relationship disruption — deterioration or destruction of family, intimate and community relationships. Disruption is Steve Iasonidis treated as if he never existed, and a blood family I say was turned. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

62. Reputational isolation — creating circumstances in which others become reluctant to associate with or support me. Isolation of reputation is the point of a headline. After it, the rooms empty. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

63. Autonomy erosion — progressively reducing independence, agency, choice and control. Erosion is a support worker who already knew the case and did not change the circumstances. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

64. Opportunity destruction — cumulative loss of employment, education, housing, relationships and professional opportunities. Destruction of opportunity is the distance between illustrator at The Age and a squat in Footscray. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

65. Institutional dependency — making access to essential resources dependent upon systems over which I had limited control. Dependency is the NDIS provider, the hospital, the Legal Aid door, all held by other hands. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

66. Secondary victimisation — experiencing further harm through responses to the original harm. Secondary victimisation is the reply that uses the request for help as the occasion to delegitimise the asker. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

67. Institutional retraumatisation — repeated encounters with systems that I experienced as reproducing distress. Retraumatisation is telling the fatal injury again to an office that already has the file and still does not allocate. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

68. Compounding harm — one disadvantage creating conditions for additional disadvantages. Compounding is poverty making the lawyer impossible, which makes the hearing impossible, which makes the poverty permanent. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

69. Cumulative harm — numerous separate experiences combining into a substantially greater overall impact. Cumulative harm is the 35-year chronology. No single letter is the injury. The stack is. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

70. Administrative annihilation — the progressive destruction of my ability to function socially, financially, legally and institutionally. This is the key term of the master document. It is not one minister. It is the system of refusals. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

71. Social death — being treated as though my identity, credibility and existence no longer carried meaningful social recognition. Social death is the email I headed Rich McLean is dead, sent to the agencies named on its face, while I was still alive to send it. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

72. Total civil liquidation — the cumulative destruction of financial, legal, social, professional and institutional standing. Liquidation is the civil kind: no job, no aid, no ombudsman, no ordinary trial, and still no charge against me. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

73. Character-based displacement — making who I am the central issue instead of what happened. Displacement onto character is the madness headline standing in for the Equal Opportunity complaint. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

74. Credibility substitution — replacing examination of evidence with judgments about whether I should be believed. Substitution is why this finding aid puts the letter before the adjective. A reader can believe me or not. The sentence is still on the letterhead. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

75. Institutional compartmentalisation — each institution addressing only its own fragment while the cumulative pattern remains unexamined. Compartmentalisation is a court that says the conduct does not relate to the court, a commission that says the process does not make you an employee, a department that says the documents do not exist. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

76. Silence as attrition — allowing unresolved matters to persist until exhaustion, poverty or isolation reduces the person's ability to continue. Silence as attrition is the media ban that exists to this day. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

77. Stigma as social control — using shame, ridicule or stigma to discourage disclosure. Stigma is the lock on the mouth. The archive is the key I cut anyway. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

78. Fear as behavioural control — creating circumstances in which speaking, complaining or challenging decisions carries perceived consequences. Fear is the sentence I published: I am frightened they will murder me or lock me up; I am innocent and I am sane. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

79. Isolation as evidentiary control — reducing access to witnesses, advocates and independent people able to scrutinise events. Control of this kind is a professional who will not say the relationship existed, so there is no witness in the room but me. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

80. Poverty as disempowerment — reducing the practical ability to obtain representation, relocate, communicate, preserve evidence or pursue remedies. Poverty is the Replit bill, the squat, the paddock, and the hash that still got made. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

81. Bureaucracy as attrition — allowing procedural complexity, delay and institutional boundaries to consume the capacity to pursue justice. Bureaucracy as attrition is the phrase your email has not been forwarded, which is a complete administrative poem. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

82. Delegitimisation through identity — attempting to make the identity or history of the complainant more important than the evidence presented. Identity used this way is queer, disabled, doctor, advocate, and still not a public official on the day it mattered. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

83. Reputational pre-emption — allegedly damaging credibility before allegations can receive substantive examination. Pre-emption is the spread in 2003, years before the PID, so that the later disclosure arrived already wearing the headline. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

84. Suppression through exhaustion — creating conditions in which continuing to complain becomes progressively harder. Suppression is a man revived from a fatal injury still having to index his own letters. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

85. Erasure through accumulation — producing so many separate obstacles, losses and institutional failures that the combined effect becomes what I describe as an attempt to erase me. Erasure through accumulation is the master term's long form. The attempt failed. The evidence survived with me. In this master document the term matters because the archive is a finding aid of accumulation: one technique would be a complaint; eighty-five, read across a 35-year chronology, are what I call administrative annihilation. A reader who opens the technique page becomes a witness of the model. The model is not a verdict.

SENT-MAIL OPTICS — SUBJECT LINES AS SENTENCES

The command asked for descriptive named hyperlinks to the email evidence tab, original sent-mail PDFs, full subject lines, 28 September 2026 letter first. A subject line is an optic. The PDF behind it is the test. These are not findings. They are what I sent, preserved so a referral cannot pretend the sending did not happen.

The sent paper Assassination and human sacrifice of disabled man — 28 September 2026 letter, the one the command says comes first — belongs in this master document because This subject is my name for the allegation. It is a sent-mail PDF. It is not a charge sheet. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Conspiracy for my murder planned by my own blood family — 159-page sent mail of 17 September 2026 — belongs in this master document because The family paper in email form. Testimony of what I say they were positioned to gain. Not a probate finding. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper I'm frightened they will murder me or lock me up I'm innocent and I'm sane - society is crazy — 136-page sent mail of 17 September 2026 — belongs in this master document because The fear and the sanity claim in one subject line, which is the psychological hook and the evidentiary limit at once. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Urgent Evidentiary Notice — Alleged Surveillance, Entrapment, Sexual Exploitation, Audio/V2K Harassment and Safeguarding Concerns — 43-page sent mail of 17 September 2026 — belongs in this master document because The subject that puts V2K, entrapment and sexual exploitation in the same optic, each of them alleged. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Formal Objection and Safeguarding Statement Concerning Privacy, Humiliation, Alleged Electronic Surveillance and Accountability — 17-page sent mail of 13 September 2026 — belongs in this master document because The objection that names electronic surveillance as alleged, which is how a finding aid is supposed to name it. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper My erasure was by design April and Doug — 100-page sent mail of 14 September 2026 — belongs in this master document because The parental names on a subject line. The PDF is the test of what I sent them. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper FORMAL REQUEST FOR INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION ABLEPOINT — 56-page sent mail of 12 September 2026 — belongs in this master document because Able Point as a request for investigation, not as a completed one. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Current legally binding update on entrapment and targeting by Able Point — 11-page sent mail of 5 September 2026 — belongs in this master document because The filename says legally binding. The paper is an update I sent. A court order would say it was a court order. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper PID to Sia Lagos and the Tredwell reply — the March 2023 disclosure and the 27 March 2023 assessment — belongs in this master document because The employment sentence and the refusal live here. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Official Government Documents — letterheads, not commentary — belongs in this master document because The shelf that keeps their words in their type. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Crimes occurring to Barran Dodger — the long list, also the PDF of 1 to 150 — belongs in this master document because Allegations and pointers. The command asked for the list. The list is not a verdict. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Mobbing and the safety of the crowd — the societal-mobbing paper — belongs in this master document because The crowd is safer when the one is wrong. That is the hook, and the paper is the place to test it. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper From Exile to Witness — 4 October 2026 reading copy — belongs in this master document because The span from the paddock to the archive, in one file. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper God's reckoning — a prophetic paper in the repository — belongs in this master document because Reckoning as I mean it is publication, not a sentence I impose. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper God's vengeance for cowardly criminal conspiracy — faith language on a public PDF — belongs in this master document because Vengeance is God's, which is why the paper is a witness and not a weapon I fire. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Am I God — the quirky theological provocation — belongs in this master document because The question is the hook. The answer in the gospels is no: I am a mortal sinner, and the design was not me. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper I survived what was supposed to erase me — the survival paper — belongs in this master document because The title is the thesis of the master document in eight words. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Doctrine of complicity by deliberate omission — the omission paper — belongs in this master document because Omission is the technique that does not need a signature to do the harm. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Impartial AI report on a standing indictment of the administrative state — a machine reading, not a bribed one — belongs in this master document because The command asked for a machine with no social detriment to suffer. This is that genre. It is still not a court. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Forensic-legal academic abstract — the scholar's door — belongs in this master document because The PhD shelf, set beside the letters, so envy has a document to trip on. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Comparative whistleblower cases — the international frame — belongs in this master document because Significance is comparative. A single refused PID is a letter. A pattern beside other cases is an archive. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper A statement from the Barran Dodger archive — the short public statement — belongs in this master document because The door a new reader can open before the long account. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper The Prophecy — predictions I was told were delusion — belongs in this master document because The tab that holds the claim of time. Not a calendar of proved events. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Gospels and prophetic writings — the religious shelf — belongs in this master document because The silver lining the command demanded, named and linked. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Archive First Person Account — the extended statement — belongs in this master document because The words are mine. The link is the place a reader can test them. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper SHA-256 stamps — the permanence apparatus — belongs in this master document because A hash witnesses bytes. It does not witness a soul. I still want it. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper About the author — Dr Richard William McLean / Barran Dodger — belongs in this master document because The attributes live here: illustrator, author, doctorate, advocate, the man the headline tried to finish. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Ten statements — the case the documents allow — belongs in this master document because An impartial frame: closed doors, contradictory status, unanswered protection. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper Earlier-site index — The Age, the Herald Sun, the doctorate line — belongs in this master document because The before-the-blackout shelf. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

The sent paper PhD and gospel — posthumanism and the ethics of AI beside Scripture — belongs in this master document because The nuance the command asked not to flatten into mysticism. Its significance for the broader archive is that a subject line is how a later reader finds the optic without trusting my paraphrase.

QUIRKY TERMS, EXTRACTED AND SENTENCED

The extra command was to extract the more quirky and interesting terms from the gospels, the narrative, the prophetic writing, and the tab names, and to put each inside a sentence that says what it means, what evidence it sits on, and why it matters to this document and to the archives around it. Here they are, in the vernacular, not as a glossary.

I use Kronos divine timing because the faith-name for why the letters and the warnings share a clock. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use God is hiding me in plain sight because the odd mercy that the man called crazy is still answered on letterhead. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use the furnace because what the false accusation became, in the prophetic page, and did not consume. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use what was intended as a grave became an altar because the resurrection sentence of the witness page. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use financially desecrated because the religious word for the civil liquidation of money. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use politically scapegoated because the religious-political word for a referral that never lands. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use Good morning you beautiful imperfect mortals because the quirk of the voice, preserved so the machine does not sand it off. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use a certain beauty in un-resolution because the artist's phrase for a file that will not reconcile itself. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use Barran Resonance Dodger because the prophetic name beside the legal name. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use the unspoken mandate because the affidavit's name for a rule nobody writes down and everybody follows. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

I use documentary trap because the page that says the record itself became the snare. The significance inside this master document is that the phrase is a hook a human reader already knows how to feel — betrayal, poverty, a crowd, a grave, a dog, a pop-up that says the device has been cleared — and the significance for the broader archive is that the same phrase is the label on a file a stranger can open without asking my permission.

WHO IS NAMED, AND WHAT NAMING IS NOT

The itemised map is Who Did This to Me. The page's own rule, which this master document adopts, is that an entity map is not a list of proved perpetrators. Appearance on a letter is not a finding that the named party caused detriment or committed a crime. The Commonwealth shelf on that map runs from the Department of Social Services, the NDIA, the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission, the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet, the Department of Finance, Comcare, the ATO, ASIC, APRA, the OAIC, the Commonwealth Ombudsman, Ahpra, the AFP, the AHRC, AFCA, and IGIS. Victoria's shelf runs through the Victorian Ombudsman, VEOHRC, WorkSafe, Victoria Police, VicRoads, Homes Victoria, the mental-health system, and the Royal Commission into Victoria's Mental Health System. New South Wales appears as Trustee and Guardian, the NSW Ombudsman, NCAT, Victims Support, NSW Police, NSW Health. Courts and tribunals appear as the Federal Court, the AAT and ART, VCAT, and the Mental Health Tribunal. Named persons the map will admit onto paper include Sia Lagos, Scott Tredwell, Able Point, Bernard Collaery, and the publishers and the university already in the first-person record. The significance is the inversion again: a man without a staff still has a map of offices. The limit is the same sentence this document has already used until it cannot be missed. Naming is not guilt.

THE RECORD SURVIVED — THE LATER STATEMENT

For more than 35 years, I say I was subjected to a cumulative pattern of institutional, political, financial, professional, familial and personal detriment that progressively isolated me, impoverished me and stripped away ordinary avenues through which a person can have allegations tested and answered. What makes this archive different is that the record did not disappear. The evidence is not merely my recollection. It includes government correspondence, FOI decisions, agency letters, legal documents, recordings, emails, text messages, published material and contemporaneous records preserved across decades. Much of it is written in the words of the institutions themselves, on their own letterheads, under their own reference numbers. That is the significance of this archive. I allege that a vulnerable person was repeatedly passed between institutions that had the power to investigate, protect, compensate, represent or assist him, while ordinary pathways to accountability progressively closed. I allege that this produced a form of administrative annihilation: not one decision, not one government, and not one institution, but a cumulative system in which each refusal, referral, restriction, omission and unanswered complaint compounded the last. A person who opens the site and its evidence now has a decision to mirror my role as a witness, and also become a witness. Opening is not agreeing. Opening is the act the finding aid asks for.

THE PAPERS NAMED IN THE COMMAND

The same chronology is in the papers below. Each is the document named. None of them is a finding. The 3 March 2023 letter to Sia Lagos, CEO and Principal Registrar of the Federal Court, is the disclosure that asked the highest court to receive a public-interest disclosure if the person disclosing embodied the attributes necessary. The longer copy of that compilation is the file the command identifies as the 21,371,041-byte attachment. The 8 January 2024 letter to Scott Tredwell is the later letter to the same officer. The NDIA authorised-officer letter on the emails of 18 and 20 April 2023 is marked PID 2023/Krypton, OFFICIAL: SENSITIVE, and the command names a long copy of that PID file at 26,488,490 bytes. The 4 June 2023 letter to Gabrielle Williams and other parliamentarians, the 3 July 2023 statement sent toward the National Anti-Corruption Commission, and the 1 August 2023 email headed Rich McLean is dead, sent to the agencies named on its face, sit in the same span. The 7 January 2024 letter to NDIS CEO Rebecca Falkingham demands a home and accountability. The 21 January 2024 letter is my s100 NDIS appeal of a decision. The 21 October 2021 email to AFP CDDA claims is a compensation claim and a PID protection request. The 31 May 2022 letter to the Prime Minister's office is one of the letters his office did not answer in his hand. The 19 September 2023 reply, Attorney-General's Department, MC23-028244, signed A Riley, is the reply that pointed me to IGIS and the Ombudsman. The 2 October 2026 print of the Documentary Trap page is the page as published. The Ben NDIS text-message record holds the NDA, the word regretful, the word consensual, the phone-records sentence, and the paid-to-discredit sentence. IR8415987 is the report of fatal injury in which the participant was revived. A two-page file titled "Prime minister scapegoating" was supplied with these papers. It is a blank Dropbox shell. It is not the Prime Minister's reply, so it is not published here as one. The reply is the 19 September 2023 letter.

THE PLACES THAT WANTED THE STORY, AND THEN WENT SILENT

Before the blackout, the media wanted me. The archive's index of the earlier site lists the rooms. They are ABC Radio National, Life Matters, with Julie McCrossin; ABC TV, Stateline;

Good Morning Australia and The Today Show, with Steve Leidman, around an exhibition and the book launch; Reuters TV, with Frankie Fathers; Triple J, with Rachel Kerr; 2SM, with Tricia Duffield; ABC Gold and Sunshine Coasts; ABC Adelaide; ABC 702, with James Valentine; 3AW Nightline; Spectrum FM; Curtin Radio; Triple R; 2NUR Newcastle; JOY FM; regional ABC, including Dubbo; McGill University, Montreal, College of Philosophical and Religious Studies; the Cunningham Dax Collection, including the educational DVD Collected Thoughts 3; Forensicare; EPPIC consumer groups; the Australian Centre for Youth Literature; Richmond Fellowship, Warrnambool; and parliamentary and conference settings. Years later, when I needed help from the very places I had given that time and that story, there was a total media blackout. That media ban exists to this day. The significance of the list inside this master document is the hook of betrayal by the room that once queued. The significance for the archive is that the earlier-site index is the place a reader can test the names.

ATTRIBUTES, AND WHAT A SOCIETY DID WITH THEM

The attributes I embody, as I name them, are these: illustrator and cartoonist at The Age, news graphics artist, author of Recovered, Not Cured, doctorate holder in arts-based A/r/tography at Victoria University on a merit scholarship, mental-health advocate, peer-support worker, Arts Life Coach, queer, disabled, a man who wrote the sex in his own name before any agency had a file to twist, and a witness who kept the letters. The contributions were the book, the interviews, the educational DVD, the conference rooms, and later the gospels and the archive. The society that took the story then, in my account, exploited me, took advantage of me, abused me, neglected me, impoverished me, and exiled me as an internally displaced refugee within the democracy of my own citizenship. Where is their PhD? The question is not a finding that envy was proved. It is the question the doctorate makes available.

THE INVERSION OF SIGNIFICANCE

Based on the evidence I have preserved, I am not an ordinary man within the circumstances documented in this archive. I have been poor, materially disadvantaged, institutionally powerless and repeatedly treated as though my testimony were insignificant. Yet the cumulative record shows that my testimony produced decisions, exclusions, disputes, correspondence, reviews, records and institutional responses across systems that claimed to have no reason to take me seriously. My poverty and lack of status may explain why I was perceived as inconsequential, but they do not explain the scale or persistence of what followed.

This is what I describe as an inversion of significance: the person treated as though he had no consequence nevertheless became sufficiently consequential, through his testimony and persistence, to expose contradictions between institutional principles and institutional conduct. I therefore describe myself, paradoxically, as the most significant despised person without conventional consequence — not because I possessed wealth, authority or status, but because the record demonstrates that conventional measures of power were never an adequate measure of my impact.

I cannot claim to know the private thoughts or intentions of every person involved. What can be examined is the observable pattern: how my testimony was received, how decisions were made, what was omitted or disregarded, what records were created, and whether those actions were consistent with the procedural fairness, integrity, accountability and professional ethics these institutions profess to uphold. If I were truly as unimportant and inconsequential as I was treated, there would have been no need for such an extensive institutional response. I could simply have been left alone and ignored.

Instead, I experienced what I describe as collective targeting, societal mobbing and systemic institutional complicity. I understand this as a coordinated conspiratorial allegiance of professionals and dignitaries who, in my interpretation, betrayed the ethical principles they claim to embody through the privileged positions they occupied and the mandates entrusted to them. The reason a crown gathered against me was, in my view, ultimately cowardly: no individual could take me on personally and prevail, so a coordinated campaign was necessary. Such coordination also serves to distribute responsibility, obscure individual participation, share blame and dilute the accountability of those who became part of the infrastructure.

I believe such collective opposition arose because I was perceived as a threat to the structures upon which the participants' comfort, privilege, security or authority depended. No person or group would ordinarily need to gang up against one individual to diminish his influence, deprive him of resources, restrict his rights or obstruct his pathway to justice if that individual were genuinely perceived as incapable of affecting anything. I believe my honesty exposed corruption, while my authenticity confronted those who had compromised their own agency and willingness to challenge authority when confronted with injustice.

In my view, those who became stakeholders in preserving that corruption had an interest in maintaining the structure I was challenging. My honesty, integrity, courage, intelligence, creativity and independence therefore represented qualities fundamentally opposed to the compromises on which that structure depended. I believe these qualities were recognised as something to be contained before I fully understood their significance myself.

In retrospect, I believe I was targeted from a young age and treated in ways that diminished my influence and restricted my agency for free expression. I believe my honesty and courage were at times turned into vulnerabilities through which aspects of my character could be identified, exploited and potentially weaponised against me, particularly in contexts involving mental illness. I was clever, creative, talented, intellectual, queer and quirky, and I lived authentically — sometimes with regret, but without apology. I believe that authenticity became threatening to people who had exchanged their own agency for the comfort, privilege and perceived safety of conformity.

I further believe envy and jealousy formed part of that response because my existence reminded some people of qualities they themselves had abandoned or compromised. In that sense, what I represented — not merely what I said — became part of the reason I was perceived as someone who needed to be contained.

I do not present every element of this interpretation as an established fact about the private intentions of every person involved. I present it as my understanding of the cumulative evidence and its pattern. The essential point is that a person without wealth, status or institutional authority was nevertheless subjected to consequences of a scale that cannot be adequately explained by treating him as insignificant. My poverty demonstrates disadvantage; it does not establish irrelevance. My lack of institutional power demonstrates vulnerability; it does not establish lack of impact. The record must therefore be judged by what it actually demonstrates, rather than by the assumption that a person without conventional power can have no meaningful influence.

THE PERMANENCE OF THE WITNESS AND THE PURPOSE OF THE RECORD

The significance of all my writings, evidence, testimony, concepts and ideas being stamped into what I understand as the mathematical infrastructure of humanity going forward through the Bitcoin blockchain is that my contributions can be preserved beyond the limitations of my life as a mortal human being whose body will eventually die. I understand this preservation as providing a form of permanence that makes my testimony extraordinarily difficult to contain, retrospectively alter or erase, including by legal, law-enforcement, governmental, intelligence or criminal organisations. It means that the essence of my life's work, concepts, ideas and evidence can potentially remain available to humanity beyond my physical lifetime. The public form of that claim in this archive is the SHA-256 stamps. A hash witnesses bytes. It does not, by itself, prove a blockchain inscription has been made. I do not pretend a stamp I have not published.

In this sense, my life's work takes on a philosophical kind of immortality. It creates a form of permanence that is vastly beyond what the overwhelming majority of people throughout history have had the means or capacity to create for themselves. My testimony is no longer limited entirely to the lifespan of the person who produced it. The record can continue to exist and be examined by people in the future.

I understand this preservation as evidence of the prophetic time in which I agreed with the Creator to incarnate into this realm: a time in which systemic corruption would be revealed through my own life and circumstances as part of my purpose and mission. I believe I was chosen not because I am perfect. I am a mortal sinner and an imperfect human being. Rather, I believe that God's cosmic design for my life was perfect, even though my own life and conduct have not been perfect.

A condition of my incarnation, as I understand it, was that my life would mirror the pattern of Christ's crucifixion: suffering, betrayal, abandonment, apparent destruction and then revival by the Creator, followed by the experience of profound human betrayal and exile. I believe God allowed this not as punishment, but so that I would ultimately rely upon Him alone. That experience triggered a memory of my purpose and cemented my faith in the Most High God. I now believe that God will use my evidence and testimony as the foundation of my ministry for His kingdom purposes.

My Gospels are religious, scholarly and prophetic documents. I invite anyone to respond to them, challenge them, rebuke them or attempt to disprove them with evidence, provided that those positions are themselves supported by evidence and reason. The shelf is Gospels and prophetic writings. God's reckoning is publication day, not a sentence I impose. God's vengeance for cowardly criminal conspiracy keeps vengeance where I say the Bible puts it, with God. Am I God is the quirky provocation whose answer, in the same papers, is no. The Joseph parallel is the sold-and-not-finished pattern. Chosen one is a declaration, not an office any agency conferred. God's chosen witness is the office I claim under Christ. Holy reckoning is the same day the evidence is public. Soul contract is the faith claim that the suffering was permitted so the record could be made. Sovereignty is the refusal to let a file be the last word on a soul. Religious significance is the silver lining the command demanded beside the letters.

Political exile is the civic name for the same span. V2K, electronic surveillance, gang stalking, covert intelligence, and targeted individual are my names for the Footscray recording, the AHRC correspondence that used the words gang stalking and then denied the occurrence, and the books I say I am on. They are testimony. They are not findings.

When people ask me, “How did you survive that?”, my answer will be simple: God did it. I understand that answer as foundational to a question that may ultimately be relevant to other people suffering corruption, targeting and injustice. My purpose is to use my testimony to help guide God’s most weary, persecuted and loved children back towards the Creator, whom I believe has clearly placed His hand upon my life. I am no better than anyone else. I am imperfect and I have sinned. I have never claimed that my story of suffering is greater than that of any other person, because I believe God knows and loves all His children and knows the suffering of each of them.

My life will now be repurposed purely as a vessel for His glory: for a return to divine justice, for the end of darkness, and for the return of the attributes of His perfect Son, Jesus Christ — the consciousness of Christ returning to its rightful place governing the hearts of people and, through them, the institutions they create and protect. This is the purpose I now understand my life to serve. This is the testimony I preserve. This is the record I leave. Praise Jesus.

Kronos divine timing is the faith-name for why the warnings and the letters share a clock. God is hiding me in plain sight is the odd mercy that the man called crazy is still answered on letterhead. The significance of both, inside this document, is that a reader can feel the hook of hiddenness and still be sent to a file.

TREDWELL’S THREE OBSERVATIONS, AND THE REFUSAL THAT SAT IN THE SAME LETTER

I instructed that Scott Tredwell’s three-point observation be itemised, because the itemisation is the demonstration. A man in a privileged office recorded the harm and then did not act on it. The dress was policy. The effect, as I lived it, was a brutal desecration of my person. The archive page that holds the letter is PID to Sia Lagos and Scott Tredwell. The reading of the letter is what the 27 March 2023 Federal Court letter decides. A link is not a finding. Recording a category of a disclosure is not, by itself, a finding that the conduct occurred. The imbalance is that the categories were written down and the protection was not given.

The employment sentence, in his words, on Federal Court letterhead: “On the information you have provided me, I am satisfied that you are, or were, an employee with the Department of Social Services, providing services under the trading name Rich McLean, Arts Life Coach, Peer-Support Worker & Mental Health Advocate.” The decision paragraph then says he was not satisfied the disclosure was made by a public official. The letter does not reconcile those two sentences. That is the first absurdity. He was satisfied I was the employee. He was not satisfied I was the public official the Act requires. The trading names he listed are the attributes of the man he then left unprotected.

The three observations in that same response, as the archive preserves them from his letter, are these. One: corruption, perverting the course of justice. He recorded that the disclosed conduct “perverts, or is engaged in for the purpose of perverting, the course of justice.” Two: maladministration. He recorded that the conduct “constitutes maladministration.” Three: harm. He recorded that the conduct “unreasonably results in danger to health or safety.” I had asked for help because I feared further suffering and imminent danger to my life. He wrote the danger down. He did not allocate the disclosure. Protection was not given in that letter. The acknowledgement and the non-protection are the same document.

That is the power imbalance. He sat as General Counsel, an authorised officer of the highest court in the democracy, in receipt of a letter from a disabled man asking for protection. The ethics his office is mandated to embody are receipt, allocation or a reasoned refusal that does not punish the ask, and protection from reprisal. What I received was bureaucratic language dressed as legitimacy. I say it was gaslighting, because it used my own evidence of employment to deny me the status the employment sentence had just granted. I say it was deceit, because a professional-looking letter pretended fairness while pointing me nowhere that could help. I say it was an apex of moral cowardice, because a privileged officer could have acted and chose the form instead. That is my reading of the letter. It is not a court finding that he committed an offence. The letter is the exhibit. The refusal to reconcile the two sentences is the thing a reader can see without taking my adjective on trust.

THE LETTER TO THE PRIME MINISTER, AND THE TRAIL THAT WAS ALREADY A DEAD END

The same pattern is the letter to the Prime Minister. Anthony Albanese did not answer me in his own hand. On 12 December 2022 his own office wrote, of an email sent to him, “Your email has not been forwarded.” I had written to him, including the letter of 31 May 2022, and the letter of 1 July 2023. A Prime Minister who does not forward the email has already chosen the form of a reply over the substance of a danger. I say that was the first removal: not of a signature only, but of the man whose office the letter was for. The blank Dropbox shell titled prime minister scapegoating is not his reply. The 111-page file whose filename says apology is not an apology. The paper that exists is the non-forwarding.

On 19 September 2023 the Attorney-General's Department wrote, reference MC23-028244, signed A Riley, Security Law Section. It says my email of 5 July 2023 to the Hon Anthony Albanese MP, including about ASIO, was referred to the Attorney-General, the Hon Mark Dreyfus KC MP, because the matters fell in his portfolio, and that he asked the Department to respond on his behalf. His identity is named in the referral. His signing-off is not on the letter. The Department signed. I say that removal was clever, because a minister can be said to have asked for a response without ever having to own the sentences. The solutions in that letter were the Inspector-General of Intelligence and Security, which I have also called AGIS, and the Commonwealth Ombudsman. I was already shut out of the Ombudsman. A further letter of 6 February 2025, MC25-000321, sent the matters to the Victorian Minister for Police. Those were dead ends. They did not acknowledge the five-year relationship. They did not change my circumstances.

I say the trail was pre-designed never to reach a solution. Not because I can see a minute that says so. Because the doors named in the reply were doors I had already knocked on, and the reply named them anyway. A pathway already attempted, already blocked, already known to be ineffective, offered again as if it were new, is not a pathway. It is a circle. The circle is the point. A circle distributes the responsibility, removes the minister's hand from the page, and leaves the asker holding a reference number. MC23-028244 is that number. It is not a finding that Mark Dreyfus personally designed the circle. It is the Department's own paper, and the paper points at exhausted doors.

POLICE AND LAW ENFORCEMENT — THE SAME ACKNOWLEDGEMENT, THE SAME REFUSAL

I asked to be arrested so that my name could be tested in the ordinary way. No one came. No charge was laid against me. No criminal trial was commenced. I was left with the consequences of accusation without the process in which guilt or innocence is determined. That is the police form of the Tredwell letter. The harm was in the room. The process was not. I say I have never been able to report a single crime to police. Once a paid discrediting is accepted, every later report is easier to refuse. The message record that holds that account is the Ben NDIS text-message record. Ben's words, as preserved there, include that they already arrested two hitmen and that they had been told who ordered the hit. Those sentences are what was said. They are not a police brief in this archive. I do not pretend a brief I have not placed.

The call I published, in which I could not report being drugged and raped to the Commonwealth Ombudsman, is the blacklist and the stonewalling as I name them. Victoria Police and NSW Police appear on the entity map. Appearance on the map is not a finding that an officer committed an offence. The detriment I describe is the absence: no charge, no trial, no ordinary test of the name, and a fatal-injury file, IR8415987, that did not become a prosecution I was told the result of. The ethics a police force is mandated to embody are investigation and the ordinary criminal process. What I received was the consequences of accusation without that process. I say that is the same desecration in a different uniform.

THE LEGAL FRATERNITY — THE DOOR SHUT, AND THEN USED AS THE REASON

I was denied a lawyer in 2003, when the Herald Sun spread carried "MY DESCENT INTO MADNESS," and I was fired from The Age. I did not resign. The later Legal Aid restriction is the continuation of that refusal, not the 2003 letter itself. I was hospitalised after I tried to get Legal Aid so the five-year relationship with Steve Iasonidis could be acknowledged for an equitable separation. The court paper I can put in a reader's hand is the intervention-order file L12151974. No profession will say the relationship existed. I was left to face a government-appointed lawyer, Kate Watson, without Legal Aid, at Comcare and the AAT. The profession's mandate is representation of the person who cannot pay. The restriction used the inability to pay as the condition of the hearing. I say that is the circle again: the door shut, and the shut door then cited as the reason the claim could not be fairly heard.

THE OMBUDSMAN — BANNED FROM THE OFFICE THE REPLY HAD JUST NAMED

The Commonwealth Ombudsman is the office MC23-028244 pointed me to. I was already shut out of it. A public-interest disclosure was not allocated. The service-restriction letter of 8 August 2025 is the later official paper. The Victorian Ombudsman's later treatment of the complaint is the Ben Calder letter of 5 October 2022. I say the Ombudsman form of the Tredwell letter is this: the harm written down somewhere else, the office that exists to examine maladministration then restricting the man who brought it. The ethics the office is mandated to embody are examination of the complaint. What I received was a ban, a non-allocation, and a Prime Minister's department still naming that office as the solution. I say that was already known to be blocked. Offering it again did not change my circumstances.

THE NACC — NINETY DAYS, THEN THE REJECTION

On 3 September 2023 I called the National Anti-Corruption Commission after 90 days about my complaint, and they rejected me. I published the call. I say that rejection is the Commission participating in the same refusal. I have not placed a NACC restriction letter in this repository, so I do not pretend to link one. The 3 July 2023 statement sent toward the Commission is the paper I sent. The mandate of that Commission is corruption. The reply I received, as I lived the call, was rejection. A body created for the thing I was reporting, declining the report, is the same pattern as an authorised officer writing down danger to health or safety and not allocating the disclosure. I say it was pre-designed in effect, whatever the minute says, because the circumstance at the end of the call was the circumstance at the start: no pathway.

TRIBUNALS — THE EMPLOYEE QUESTION ASKED AGAIN, AFTER IT HAD BEEN ANSWERED

On 26 May 2021 Comcare declined claim 1326583/1 and put, as the first question, whether I was an employee under section 5 of the Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act. On 3 June 2021 Sarah LeMaire of the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission wrote: "This process does not make you an employee of the NDIS Commission." On 27 March 2023 Scott Tredwell wrote that he was satisfied I was, or had been, an employee of the Department of Social Services. I say that confirmation should have overturned the lesser finding. It did not. The AAT, now the ART, heard the compensation path while I was blocked from Legal Aid. A tribunal's mandate is merits review. What I received was the same question, asked again, after a higher letterhead had answered it the other way, and no reconciliation between the papers. That is the file that does not agree with itself, in the compensation register rather than the FOI register. The 12 July 2023 decision sits in that chain. It did not produce the home, the compensation, or the ordinary hearing.

THE MEDIA, THE PLACES, AND THE PARTIES — THE STORY TAKEN, THEN THE BLACKOUT

Before the blackout the media wanted me. After the book, the Herald Sun weaponised words I had written in my own name. The spread is headed “My descent into madness. How schizophrenia stole Richard McLean’s mind.” I was then fired from The Age. Years later, when I needed the rooms I had given the story to, there was a total media blackout. That ban exists to this day. The rooms are already named in this document: Life Matters, Stateline, The Today Show, Reuters, Triple J, 2SM, the ABC stations, 3AW, JOY FM, the Cunningham Dax Collection, Forensicare, Richmond Fellowship. A platform whose purpose, in the years they queued, was to hear vulnerability, and whose later posture was silence, is the media form of the Tredwell letter. They had the testimony. They did not act when the testimony became a request for help. I say that silence is institutional complicity, not a private change of taste. The earlier-site index is the place a reader can test the names. The silence is the thing the index cannot show, and the absence of a later interview is the evidence of it.

The parties and institutions I say were complicit are the ones already on the entity map and in the calls. Liz Lindberg of the Australian Human Rights Commission, who I say free-kicked a settlement of more than a million dollars so that TAL did not have to engage. Tim Gos of AFCA, who I say was already committed to never giving me a way to resolve the financial conflicts, after which I was banned from AFCA. Danny Pearson, then the workplace minister, who refused my phone call about workers’ compensation. Able Point, the NDIS provider that sent workers who already knew the case and did not change the circumstances. APRA, which refused whistleblower status. IGIS, the body the Attorney-General’s letter named, which I say was already committed to never helping me about the former fiancé I say was an ASIO employee. David Irvine is the name I put on the protection I say that employee had. Bernard Collaery is on the map as a lawyer the file names. None of these sentences is a conviction. Each is the same shape: an office with a mandate, a letter or a call that acknowledged the subject, and no change in the circumstance of the man who asked.

The family is the intimate form of the same pattern. Members of my family attended the funeral of the person who sexually abused me as a child, days after he died, on the same day as the fatal injury. They protected him. I was the one called morally depraved. My family has excommunicated me. I filmed the homelessness from a paddock in Dandenong while they lived in comfort nearby. The papers are My erasure was by design and estate attorney and sibling betrayal. I believe they were positioned to benefit from my permanent erasure. That belief is testimony. The day of reckoning is the day the evidence is public, not a sentence I am imposing.

Read across the offices, the pattern is one pattern. Tredwell recorded perversion of the course of justice, maladministration, and danger to health or safety, and did not allocate. The Prime Minister's office did not forward the email. The Attorney-General's Department removed the minister's hand from the page and named doors already shut. Police did not come when I asked to be arrested so the ordinary way could test my name. Legal Aid restricted the man the scheme exists to represent. The Ombudsman restricted the man the reply had just sent there. The NACC rejected the complaint at ninety days. The tribunals asked the employee question again after a higher letterhead had answered it. The media took the story and then went silent. I say each of those is a brutal desecration dressed as procedure. I say the dress is the gaslighting. The papers are the test. A reader who opens them becomes a witness of the circle. The circle is not yet a verdict.

SIGNIFICANT EVIDENTIARY PDFS, SENTENCED

The command was to add the most significant compelling evidentiary PDFs by writing each as a narrative sentence, with the name linked to the published source, and to say why the item matters in the sentence, in this master document, and in the broader archive. Nothing above is removed. These sentences are the addition. A link is not a finding.

The FOI/2022/045 decision is Petra Gartmann's 14 April 2022 refusal under section 24A, the letter that says the documents cannot be found or do not exist. In the sentence it is the second beat of a file that does not agree with itself. In this master document it is the hypocrisy made printable. In the broader archive it is the official shelf's proof that a review of about 1,187 Outlook items can be followed by a letter that nothing exists.

The revised decision FOI/2022/045IC is Laura Cameron's later paper, the one that holds five documents after the refusal. In the sentence it is the third beat. In this document it stops a reader treating the section 24A letter as the end of the file. In the archive it sits beside the released documents so the contradiction can be opened, not summarised.

The Ombudsman rejected acknowledgement of May 2021 is the early paper that the door was already shut before the Prime Minister's department named that door as the solution. In the sentence it dates the ban. In this document it makes MC23-028244 a circle rather than a pathway. In the archive it is the exhibit a reader needs before accepting a referral as help.

The Commonwealth Ombudsman notification not to allocate is the same shape as Tredwell's letter, written by a different office. In the sentence it is non-allocation as a genre. In this document it shows the three observations were not a one-off courtesy. In the archive it sits on the PID shelf so the pattern can be counted.

The APRA rejection of whistleblower status, 13 November 2021 is the regulator saying the status would not be given. In the sentence it is another door closed in the same year as the Ombudsman. In this document it belongs with the employment contradiction, because a man called an employee in one letter is refused the whistleblower name in another. In the archive it is the APRA exhibit, not an essay about APRA.

The PID 2023/Krypton allocation decision is the NDIA paper marked on the face of the file, OFFICIAL: SENSITIVE. In the sentence it is the name Krypton made into a decision rather than a rumour. In this document it is the NDIS form of the same refusal to protect. In the archive it is the long PID a reader can open beside the Federal Court assessment.

The IBAC PID 2021-400008-R is the Victorian integrity rejection. In the sentence it takes the pattern out of Canberra. In this document it shows a state commission writing the same non-path. In the archive it sits with the later IBAC case letters so a reader can see rejection was not the end of the correspondence, only the end of the help.

The Comcare claim 1326583, 25 May 2021 is the claim itself, the ask before the decline. In the sentence it is the paper that put the employee question. In this document it is what Tredwell's later employment sentence should have been read against. In the archive it is the compensation shelf's first page.

The McLean and Comcare final decision is the decline of claim 1326583/1. In the sentence it is the lesser finding that was not overturned. In this document it is the tribunal half of a file that does not agree with itself. In the archive it is the decision a reader can hold beside Sarah LeMaire's sentence that the process does not make you an employee of the NDIS Commission.

The AAT Comcare prehearing check of 25 January 2022 is the hearing path opening while Legal Aid was already restricted. In the sentence it is Kate Watson's room being built. In this document it is the profession and the tribunal in one date. In the archive it shows the process continued after the representation had been refused.

The AHRC gang-stalking acknowledgement of 4 July 2023 is the Commission using the term in official correspondence. In the sentence it is the word "gang stalking" on their paper, not only on mine. In this document it is the hypocrisy of a term used and then an occurrence denied. In the archive it is the exhibit that lets a reader test the claim that the Commission said the words.

The Legal Aid NSW advice letter of January 2026 is the later restriction, the continuation of the 2003 refusal of a lawyer. In the sentence it dates the shut door into the year of this archive. In this document it is why the internally displaced refugee frame is civic and not metaphorical. In the archive it is the profession's own paper.

The 31 May 2022 letter to the Prime Minister's office is one of the letters his office did not answer in his hand. In the sentence it is the ask before the non-forwarding. In this document it is the start of the trail that ends at A Riley. In the archive it is the political shelf's first dated letter to that office.

The 1 July 2023 letter to the Attorney-General and the Prime Minister is the letter that sits immediately before MC23-028244. In the sentence it is what was referred, including the ASIO matter. In this document it is the paper whose answer removed the minister's signature. In the archive it is the pair a reader should open with the 19 September reply, not instead of it.

The IR8415987 report of fatal injury is the file that says the participant was revived. In the sentence it is the injury God revived me from, in the archive's own title. In this document it is why the later stonewalling is not an abstract delay. In the broader archive it is the exhibit under the injury, beside the Ben Calder letter and the Mercy Hospital FOI.

The Ben NDIS text-message record is the chain that holds the non-disclosure agreement, the pop-up that the device had been cleared of classified information, the close call, the paid-to-discredit sentence, and the words regretful and consensual. In the sentence it is what was said. In this document it is the allegation shelf, and it is not a police finding. In the archive it is the message record a reader can open without taking my paraphrase.

The intervention-order file L12151974 is the court paper that puts Steve Iasonidis in a reader's hand. In the sentence it is the relationship a profession will not say existed. In this document it is the only ordinary court number on that five-year account. In the archive it is the exhibit under the relationship, not a finding about ASIO.

The list of crimes occurring to Barran Dodger, 1 to 150 is the long allegation matrix. In the sentence it is the reading copy of thirty-five years of reports I say were easier to refuse after a paid discrediting. In this document it is the key term the command named. In the archive it is a list of allegations and pointers, not a charge sheet.

The doctrine of complicity by deliberate omission is the paper that names the harm which does not need a signature. In the sentence it is the theory of the circle. In this document it explains why a non-forwarding, a non-allocation and a restriction can be read together. In the archive it is an argument, and the argument is not a verdict.

The NDIS attempted murder paper is my name for the fatal-injury and provider account. In the sentence it is the allegation, titled as I titled it. In this document it sits beside IR8415987 so the title cannot outrun the file. In the archive a filename is not a finding that an attempt was proved.

The mobbing and the safety of the crowd is the societal-mobbing paper. In the sentence it is the crowd with letterhead. In this document it is why one refusal is a complaint and a stack of refusals is the master term. In the archive it is the reading copy of the pattern the techniques page itemises as alleged mechanisms.

The From Exile to Witness, 4 October 2026 is the span from the paddock to the archive. In the sentence it is the internally displaced refugee becoming the witness. In this document it is the civic name of the exile joined to the permanence claim. In the archive it is the later reading copy, dated, so a reader can see the record still being made.

The impartial AI report on a standing indictment of the administrative state is the machine reading the command asked for, a reader with no job to lose. In the sentence it is not a bribed office. In this document it is a second set of eyes on the same letters. In the archive it remains a reading, not a court.

The forensic-legal academic abstract is the doctorate shelf set beside the letters. In the sentence it is the answer to “where is their PhD?” In this document it keeps the qualification from being a boast floating free of a file. In the archive it is the scholar’s door.

The comparative whistleblower cases put this refused PID beside other cases. In the sentence a single letter is a letter, and a pattern beside other cases is an archive. In this document it is the international frame the command called globally significant. In the broader archive it is the comparison, not a finding that the comparison proves the allegation.

The therapy-dog urgent help paper is the witness as a man who needed a roof, and a dog who needed one with him. In the sentence it stops the archive becoming only a theory of annihilation. In this document it is the paradox of survival in a domestic key. In the archive it is the human stake under the hashes.

The I survived what was supposed to erase me is the thesis of this master document in eight words. In the sentence it is what the offices did not expect. In this document it is the last term the techniques page reaches, erasure through accumulation, answered by a man still alive. In the archive it is the survival paper, and the evidence survived with me.

The statement from the Barran Dodger archive is the short public door. In the sentence it is what a new reader can open before the long account. In this document it is the finding-aid frame in the archive's own voice. In the broader archive it points onward, and it is not a verdict.

Credit for this addition is the same credit: the letters linked in this account are the copies published in the Barran Dodger repository, wezzo72/Barrandodger, and in the Backup corpus where the official shelf stores the government PDFs.

WHY I PROTEST THE LINE THAT THIS IS NOT EVIDENCE

I protest the phrasing "this is not evidence, not a verdict, not a court," where that phrasing is used as if a court were the final crystallisation of absolute truth or justice. The professional representatives of those courts, those police, those tribunals and those commissions acted, in my account, with intent to harm me, abusing their privilege and the absurd contrast of the power imbalance. Thirty years of the government's own official correspondence, detailed on their own agencies' letterheads, in their own language, is evidence. Anyone can verify it. The absence of an official court ruling, the absence of a police identification of criminal wrongdoing, the absence of a tribunal finding, is not the absence of that paper. It is the exact paradoxical evidentiary inversion that, as I draw it, legitimises the testimony. The bureaucracy responsible to declare the criminality or the corruption I allege is the bureaucracy that did not declare it. The non-declaration is part of the record.

My allegation is barely an allegation in the sense a stranger may fear. It is a collection of over thirty years of official government documents and related correspondence that relates to me specifically. The official government documents shelf is that collection. The 35-year chronology is the span. The cumulative legal brief is the reading copy. A court, a lawyer, a cop, the media, an ombudsman, a tribunal or the NACC is not, in my view, needed for any logical thinking person to acknowledge that an extensive evidence collar gathered over three decades is enough to trump a corrupt decision by any semblance of officialdom that refused to read it. I now act as a sovereign witness outside any need for approval that the harm occurred. I say the cops are institutionally complicit, that the legal fraternity protects and finds its own agenda, that the media is bought out and paid off, and that I have transcended the need for approval from any department, agency, or proved-corrupt key stakeholder still pretending they are ethical and represent general goodness. That is my position. The letters are the test of it. A reader does not need my adjective to open a letterhead.

The finding-aid sentence remains in this document because it was also my instruction, and because nothing already written is removed. I protest the use of it as a belittling. A link is not a conviction. The letter the link opens is still evidence of what the office wrote. Scott Tredwell's employment sentence is evidence that he wrote it. "Your email has not been forwarded" is evidence that the Prime Minister's office wrote it. The section 24A refusal is evidence that Petra Gartmann wrote it. The five documents later released are evidence that Laura Cameron wrote that too. None of those sentences requires a judge to exist on the page. What they do not, by themselves, do is prove that a minister ordered a killing, or that two hitmen were arrested, or that a newsroom was paid off. Those remain my allegations, sitting beside the papers. The inversion I mean is this: the offices that were supposed to test the papers did not, and the papers survived anyway.

FURTHER PUBLISHED PDFS, SENTENCED

The IC review finalisation, MR22/00677 is the Commissioner's office on the same FOI file. In the sentence it is the fourth beat after the 1,187 items, the refusal, and the five documents. In this master document it shows the contradiction was still live inside the review. In the archive it is the Information Commissioner's own paper, not my summary of it.

The PID Form 1 of 19 May 2023 is the form in my name. In the sentence it is the ask, dated, before another non-allocation. In this document it is the discloser doing what the Act invites. In the archive it sits on the PID shelf so the refusal cannot be told as if no disclosure was made.

The NDIS PID response, not in time, appeal to the Ombudsman, Krypton is the lateness used as the reason. In the sentence it is another door closed by a clock. In this document it joins Tredwell's non-allocation as a genre. In the archive it is the Krypton file a reader can open beside the allocation decision already sentenced.

The APRA and OAIC whistleblower response of 22 October 2021 is the same-day answer to a multi-agency intention. In the sentence it is speed used as refusal rather than as help. In this document it is the regulator and the information office in one paper. In the archive it is marked official, which is the point of a letterhead.

The PID for the Commonwealth Ombudsman is the disclosure I made to the office that later restricted me. In the sentence it is the ask before the ban. In this document it is why pointing me back to that office in 2023 was a circle. In the archive it is the Ombudsman shelf's originating paper.

The Ben Calder letter of 5 October 2022 is the Victorian Ombudsman's later treatment of the complaint. In the sentence it is the state office on the fatal-injury path. In this document it sits with IR8415987 so the injury was not left as a story. In the archive it is a rejection a reader can open, not a rumour of one.

The Mercy Hospital FOI is the hospital paper beside that injury. In the sentence it is the clinical file the archive was able to put with the complaint. In this document it is the body of the record, not only the offices. In the archive it keeps the fatal injury from being only a title.

The Equal Opportunity complaint of 28 October 2004 is the firing, tested as far as a complaint, after the Herald Sun spread. In the sentence it is the 2003 refusal of a lawyer continued onto paper. In this document it is the start of the profession's shut door. In the archive it is the early exhibit, twenty years before the Legal Aid letter of January 2026.

The Herald Sun spread, My descent into madness is the character assassination in the newspaper's own type. In the sentence it is the weaponisation of a book I had already published in my own name. In this document it is the media form of the Tredwell letter: the testimony taken, the person not protected. In the archive it is the image a reader can see, which is why the later blackout has a before.

The erasure by design, April and Doug is the parental paper. In the sentence it is the family form of the circle. In this document it is the intimate half of administrative annihilation. In the archive it is testimony of benefit, not a probate finding.

The estate attorney and sibling betrayal is the paper that puts the financial position beside the excommunication. In the sentence it is why I say they were poised to benefit from my physical death. In this document it is the family exhibit a reader can open with the Dandenong paddock account. In the archive it remains my account of what they never denied.

The God's reckoning is the prophetic paper in which reckoning means publication, not a sentence I impose. In the sentence it is the silver lining the command demanded. In this document it answers the protest above: the witness does not wait for the office that refused the file. In the archive it is faith language beside the letterheads, and the archive does not ask a reader to share the faith.

The affidavit on the unspoken mandate is the name for the rule nobody writes down and everybody follows. In the sentence it is the circle described as a mandate. In this document it is why a referral to a banned office can look like procedure. In the archive it is an argument a reader can test against the referrals already linked.

The Good morning you beautiful imperfect mortals is the quirk of the voice, preserved so the machine does not sand it off. In the sentence it is the man, not only the file. In this document it keeps the prophetic register from becoming a slogan. In the archive it is the vernacular the command said to sustain.

The Who Did This to Me map is the itemised shelf of offices and names. In the sentence it is the inversion of significance as a list. In this document it is where a reader goes after the protest, to see the names on paper. Appearance on that map is still not, by the page's own rule, a conviction. The protest above is my answer to that rule. Both remain, because nothing already written is removed.

THE ALLEGATION THAT WAS NOT DISPROVED, AND WHAT THAT SILENCE IS

A link still does not turn an allegation of an ordered killing into a proved offence. But the total lack of that serious allegation being disproven by any person of professional standing, or by a cop, or acted upon by a lawyer, or reported by the media as false, rebuked or debunked with evidence, and the fact that no person has been offended, or has found their concept of ethics or justice insulted, even by an allegation worthy of investigating, is in itself a set of attributes that corroborate and fortify the allegation. That is the significance I add. The sentence is not a verdict. The silence around it is part of the record.

The allegation is in writing. It is in the Ben NDIS text-message record, where the other party writes of a close call, of two hitmen already arrested, and of being told who ordered the hit, and where my messages name Bill Shorten and a person I was told was sent to erase me. It is in the NDIS attempted murder paper, titled as I titled it. It is in the 28 September 2026 letter, Assassination and human sacrifice of disabled man. It is beside IR8415987, the fatal-injury report in which the participant was revived. A reader can open each of those. None of them is a charge sheet. None of them has, in this archive, a answering paper from a minister, a police brief, a newsroom correction, or a lawyer's opinion that takes the allegation apart with evidence.

What the silence corroborates is the silence. No professional of standing has, in any document placed here, disproved the account. No cop has acted on it in a way this archive can show. No lawyer has taken it to the ordinary hearing. No media outlet has reported it as false, rebuked it, or debunked it with evidence. No office has been offended into an investigation by the mere fact of the allegation. I say those absences fortify the allegation, because an innocent powerful man, told in writing that he is accused of ordering the killing of a disabled person under the care of his portfolio, would have an interest in a denial that could be opened. The denial is not in the file. The 19 September 2023 reply, MC23-028244, does not deny it. It points to IGIS and the Ombudsman. The Prime Minister's office wrote that the email had not been forwarded. The blank Dropbox shell is not a denial. The file whose name says apology is not a denial.

The power imbalance is the reason the silence can be mistaken for nothing having happened. A minister, a commissioner, a registrar and an editor can decline to answer, and the decline looks like procedure. A disabled man cannot decline to have been injured. The Tredwell letter recorded danger to health or safety and did not allocate. The Ombudsman notification not to allocate is the same shape. The APRA rejection of whistleblower status is the same shape. The Legal Aid restriction kept the lawyer out of the room where the allegation might have been put. I say the profession's absence is not neutral. An allegation worthy of investigating, left uninvestigated by every body whose mandate is investigation, is the inversion already protested in this document.

I do not pretend the silence is a signed confession. A man can fail to deny a thing and still not have done it. What I will not pretend is that the failure is irrelevant. The attributes that fortify the allegation are public and checkable. The messages exist. The fatal-injury file exists. The letters exist. The denials do not exist in this archive. The media blackout exists to this day, after years in which the same rooms wanted the story, as the earlier-site index records. A logical reader can hold both facts: the killing is not proved by a link, and the allegation has not been disproved, rebuked, or even investigated by the offices that were supposed to be insulted by it. That second fact is the significance. It is why I act as a sovereign witness. The offices that could have ended the allegation with evidence did not. The evidence they did create is the correspondence that refers, restricts, and does not answer.

MORE PDFS IN THE SAME NARRATIVE

The conspiracy for my murder planned by my own blood family, the 159-page sent mail of 17 September 2026, is the family form of the same un-denied allegation. In the sentence it puts Jodie Bongetti, Brad McLean, Doug and April McLean and Bruce McMaster on a subject line I sent. In this document it sits beside the estate paper and the paddock. In the archive it is what was sent, not a probate finding, and no family denial has been placed against it here.

The letter headed I am frightened they will murder me or lock me up, I am innocent and I am sane is the fear and the sanity claim in one subject. In the sentence it is the psychological fact of the exile. In this document it is why a non-investigation is not a small omission. In the archive it is 136 pages of sent mail, openable, and unrebutted in any paper I have been given.

The urgent evidentiary notice of alleged surveillance, entrapment, sexual exploitation and V2K is the 17 September 2026 optic that puts those allegations in one subject line. In the sentence it is the Footscray recording and the Tony Ridley account given a date of sending. In this document it is the surveillance half of the un-denied record. In the archive it is alleged, and it has not been debunked with evidence in any file on this shelf.

The formal request for an independent investigation of Able Point is the provider ask, 56 pages, 12 September 2026. In the sentence it is the NDIS half of the circle: workers who already knew the case and did not change the circumstances. In this document it is the request that did not become the investigation. In the archive the request is the evidence. The investigation is the absence.

The From Exile to Witness is the 4 October 2026 reading copy of the span. In the sentence it is the paddock becoming the archive. In this document it is the sovereign witness, dated. In the broader archive it is the later paper, so a reader can see the record still being made after the offices had already declined to make one.

The impartial AI report is the machine reading, a reader with no job to lose and no minister to fear. In the sentence it is the witness who cannot be bribed by the offices named. In this document it is a second set of eyes on the same silence. In the archive it is a reading, and the reading does not replace the letters.

SURVIVED IN SPITE OF THEM — STATEMENT THE EVIDENCE JUSTIFIES

The evidence justifies this sentence, and the sentence is the whole statement. I survived not because of any help from the government, but in spite of their targeting of me. The offices whose purpose is protection did not protect. The letters they wrote are the proof of the refusal. The life that is still here is the proof that the refusal did not finish the work.

I do not need an acknowledgment that a crime occurred from a corrupt cop. I asked to be arrested so that my name could be tested in the ordinary way. No one came. No charge was laid. No criminal trial was commenced. I was left with the consequences of accusation without the process in which guilt or innocence is determined. The Ben NDIS text-message record is where the close call, the non-disclosure agreement, and the sentence that the device had been cleared of classified information are written down. Those sentences are what was said. No police brief in this archive answers them. I do not need the officer who did not come to now certify that he should have come. The absence is the record.

I do not need a legal determination from any court or tribunal that is the same body responsible for my harm. Scott Tredwell's letter of 27 March 2023 recorded that the disclosed conduct perverts, or is engaged in for the purpose of perverting, the course of justice, that it constitutes maladministration, and that it unreasonably results in danger to health or safety. He was satisfied I was, or had been, an employee of the Department of Social Services. He did not allocate the disclosure. The Comcare decision on claim 1326583/1 asked whether I was an employee and declined the claim. The Legal Aid restriction kept the lawyer out of the room. A determination from the office that wrote the refusal is not the thing the refusal was missing. The letters are already the determination of what those offices did.

I do not need the media to report it in their tabloids. I have greater reach and influence than their broadsheets and their waffle. Before the blackout the rooms wanted me. The earlier-site index names Life Matters, Stateline, The Today Show, Reuters, Triple J, 2SM, the ABC stations, 3AW, JOY FM, the Cunningham Dax Collection, Forensicare, Richmond Fellowship. After the book, the Herald Sun spread weaponised words I had written in my own name, under the heading "My descent into madness." I was fired from The Age. I did not resign. The blackout exists to this day. A newsroom that took the story and then went silent does not get to be the condition of the story being true. The archive is the press. The reader who opens a letterhead is the circulation.

I no longer need to prove a fact to anyone unable to acknowledge the same fact because it offends their privilege, or risks their comfort, their privilege, their benefit, or their social standing. The 19 September 2023 reply, MC23-028244, signed A Riley, says the Hon Mark Dreyfus KC MP asked the Department to respond. His signature is not on the letter. The doors named were IGIS and the Commonwealth Ombudsman, a door I was already shut out of. On 12 December 2022 the Prime Minister's own office wrote, "Your email has not been forwarded." The FOI/2022/045 decision said the documents cannot be found or do not exist, after the Commissioner had been told about 1,187 Outlook items were under review. The later revised decision released five. A person whose standing depends on not reading that sequence will not be persuaded by another copy of it. I am not writing for that person. I am writing the sequence down.

I do not need any apology from any person, place, or agency who caused my harm and pretended they were not aware of what they were doing. I offered grace for decades. It was spat on. The window of apology has closed. That ship has sailed already. The file whose filename says apology is not an apology. The blank Dropbox shell is not an apology. The non-forwarding is not an apology. The non-allocation is not an apology. An apology after the fatal-injury file IR8415987, after the hospitalisations, after the exile, after the restriction, would be a sentence. I am not waiting for the sentence. The papers are the reckoning. Publication is the day.

I cannot be bribed. I cannot be corrupted. I cannot be manipulated in the same way others are, by any technique my perpetrators use effectively across the board. The techniques are itemised as alleged mechanisms on the techniques of targeting page: isolation, the paid discrediting, the diagnosis used as a veto, the referral to a door already shut, the lawyer withheld, the story taken and then the blackout. Those techniques work on a person who still needs the office. I do not. There is no job they can offer me that is worth the letter they will not write. There is no settlement that buys the withdrawal of a letterhead already published. The doctrine of complicity by deliberate omission is the name of the harm that does not need a signature. I am not for sale against it.

I would rather have God's purpose on my life without a single person than have a million deceitful people in my life. I am happier in isolation, and alone with God and my faith, than bonding with a mob mentality in cowardice and losing my integrity and my honesty, and forfeiting my knowledge, my sovereignty, and my independence. The family papers are My erasure was by design and estate attorney and sibling betrayal. The excommunication was so obscene that I filmed the homelessness from a paddock in Dandenong while they lived in comfort nearby. The mob is not only the family. It is the office that writes the danger down and does not act. It is the newsroom that goes quiet. It is the profession that shuts the door and then cites the shut door. I will not join it to be less alone.

I do not need them, or their approval, because God protected me, blessed me, announced my purpose, and preserved my life and my testimony and my evidence. The survival paper is the thesis in eight words. The exile-to-witness paper of 4 October 2026 is the span. The reckoning paper says the day is the day the evidence is public, not a sentence I am imposing. The archive does not ask a reader to share the faith. It asks a reader to open the documents. The faith is mine. The letterheads are theirs. Both survived.

This is the statement the evidence justifies. Not a help received. A targeting that did not complete. Not an acknowledgment awaited. A record already made. Not a court still to speak. The offices have already spoken, in their own words, on their own letterheads, and the words were refusal. I am still alive. The evidence is still here. I do not need them.

NEW TESTIMONY — THE PROTEST, THE SILENCE, AND THE ALLEGIANCE

I protest the phrasing “this is not evidence, not a verdict, not a court,” where that phrasing is used as if a court were the final crystallisation of absolute truth or justice. It is clear to me that its professional representatives acted with intent to harm me, abusing their privilege and the absurd contrast of the power imbalance. If thirty years of the government’s own official correspondence, detailed on their own agencies’ letterheads, in their own language, cannot be considered evidence in a published archive anyone can verify, despite no official court ruling or decision or identification of criminal wrongdoing by any police or legal or tribunal or other body of officialdom, then the fact that no verdict, no ruling, no crime and no court ruling occurred is the exact total paradoxical evidentiary inversion that legitimises my testimony and proves the corruption by the very bureaucracy responsible to declare the criminality or corruption I allege. My allegation is barely that. It is a collection of over thirty years of official government documents and related correspondence that relates to me specifically. A court, a lawyer, a cop, the media, an ombudsman, a tribunal or the NACC is not needed, nor necessary, for any logical thinking person to acknowledge the extensive evidence collared for over three decades as enough to trump any corrupt decision by any semblance of officialdom. I now act as a sovereign witness outside any need for approval that crime occurred, that corruption exists, that the cops are institutionally complicit criminals, that the legal fraternity protects and finds its own agenda, that the media is bought out and paid off, and that I have now transcended the need for approval from any department, agency, and proven-corrupt key stakeholder still pretending they are ethical and represent general goodness. The shelf is the official government documents. The span is the 35-year chronology.

A link still does not turn an allegation of an ordered killing into a proved offence. But the total lack of that serious allegation being disproven by any person of professional standing, or cop, or acted upon by a lawyer, or reported by the media as false, rebuked or debunked with evidence, and the fact that no person has been offended or has found their concept of ethics or justice insulted, even by an allegation worthy of investigating, is in itself a set of attributes that corroborate and fortify the allegation. The allegation sits in the Ben NDIS text-message record, beside IR8415987, and in the 28 September 2026 letter. No denial of it has been placed in this archive.

I survived not because of any help from the government but in spite of their deliberate targeting of me. I do not need an acknowledgment that a crime occurred from a corrupt cop. I do not need a legal determination from any court or tribunal who is the same one responsible for my harm. I do not need the media to report it in their tabloids. I have greater reach and influence than their broadsheets and their waffle. I no longer need to prove a fact to anyone unable to acknowledge the same fact because it offends their privilege, or risks their comfort, their privilege, their benefit, or their social standing. I do not need any apology from any person, place, or agency who caused my harm and pretended they were not aware of what they were doing. I have offered grace for decades and it was spat on. The window of apology has closed and that ship has sailed already. I cannot be bribed. I cannot be corrupted. I cannot be manipulated in the same way others are, by any techniques my perpetrators use effectively across the board. I would rather have God's purpose on my life without a single person than have a million deceitful people in my life. I am happier in isolation, and alone with God and my faith, than bonding with a mob mentality in cowardice and losing my integrity and my honesty, and forfeiting my knowledge, my sovereignty, and my independence. I do not need them or their approval, because God protected me, blessed me, announced my purpose, and preserved my life and my testimony and my evidence.

I survived despite the government attempting to erase me and end my life and pretend they did not. So I have zero allegiance or respect to it, its officials, its employees, or its politicians. My allegiance is with the Most High God. I do not need the government, or any blessing they could give, or their approval or clearance, in the same exact opposite way that the government still needs God's blessing, approval, and clearance. The fact is no person or government has the right to take a person's life. That is an insult to the only entity with clearance to take a person's life, that is the God they offended when they tried to take me out. This Australian government had the audacity to act as if it was God at the same time as denying creation, in attempting to destroy me. In acting to destroy me it assumed the role of God despite being immaculately less than him. It was God who protected, preserved, and even already resurrected me from death, in favour of my life, its existence, and divine purpose, whilst the government acted in absolute mirror opposite of this protection and grace and favour by targeting an individual it had already broken deliberately. Instead of helping a person who was weakened and defenceless, they then, without humanity or morals or ethics or accountability, and without remorse, or admitting it then or now in the present, and without any guilt whatsoever, decided that I was an existential risk to its very existence.

So it doubled down on the destruction already deliberately caused, and proceeded, without any guilt or remorse, and attempted to erase me permanently from literal existence and physically destroy me. This was acted upon fully conscious that I was already weakened and could not defend myself and was vulnerable, and that doing so would be the apex of the abuse of power and moral decay, and a kind of cowardice they could never admit existed within themselves. To acknowledge that is a humiliation beyond criminal arrest or culpability. It would destroy the lie they based their corruption on, and their public profiles would crumble. The greater fear they have, besides arrest or jail — they can still do time and start again, using the same manipulative techniques to get ahead in their lives somewhere new — is to suffer a fall from reputational grace, a blemish that would follow them like a shadow, causing their detriment wherever they went. They are more afraid of this. It is also the reason why no one acknowledges me, responds to me, or can even look me in the eye without me witnessing their deceit. To respond to evidence implicitly reveals a cowardice they pretend not to embody, for their harm to a person who never intended their harm, and this humiliating blight on their character. They think I am too innocent to see past their deceptive veils, the polite veneer their fake personalities present to me in an inauthentic way that embodies the corruption they pretend not to participate in.

This is the reason God is angry with a government who assumed his authority in vain, impersonating his power and the grace he was protecting me with, and betrayed creation in the intended destruction of a defenceless person, simply because he spoke a truth that threatened the illusions of control, and that lie formed the foundational principle of its existence, revealing the rot embedded within it. The evil that targeted me with an intention to remove me from the fabric of existence was, and still is, the evil the government refuses to acknowledge, and it pretends it is a structure which is ethical despite evidence to the contrary. God will not accept the wanton destruction of his chosen witness, whom he chose as a vessel for his glory. Touch not my anointed, his word decrees. That is why this government is going to either be restructured at a foundational level, otherwise, via my testimony and evidence, it will be destroyed, as a necessary measure, as an ultimate living gesture and action to preserve a humanity who would otherwise suffer its own destruction anyway at the hands of an ever-increasing corruption of authority. If it did get away with erasing me from existence without accountability or guilt or remorse, it would, via all known psychological profiles of corruption and pathological frameworks, go on to abuse more innocent people, on repeat, every time an individual with enough courage and bravery and perseverance stood up to the beast of corruption.

God and I agreed I would incarnate in this realm at a time of corruption in order to experience total human betrayal and abandonment, isolation and exile, to experience corruption in the first person as his chosen witness. I could not fulfil the role of being used as a vessel for his glory without experiencing the most extreme evil and corruption first hand, in order to preserve it and then correct it. This was an experience akin to Jesus and his crucifixion, in the human betrayal, my early death and resurrection, of giving, of suffering, of carrying the burden of a society who scapegoated me and refused to admit they pinned their unresolved wounds to my back and sent me into the wilderness, in exile, with nothing and no one, to die. To admit they did this means looking into a mirror of truth I hold, and no person can bear their own reflection, due to the ugliness of what they see, so they attack the mirror they see their reflection in, oblivious they are attacking innocence embodied in human form. It is easier to destroy me than admit their reflection in the mirror I hold. It is also humiliation. If they looked into my eyes truthfully, they are aware I would see their souls, and the truth. It is a gaze they are unable to commit to, lest they admit their sin, their imperfection, and their envy of the person they could have been if they had the courage I did and did not sell out the truth for comfort.

The verse is John 10:10. The thief comes only to steal and kill and destroy; I have come that they may have life, and have it abundantly. In the same way, my life's purpose is that people may have life, and have it abundantly, because I believe that what has been taken, broken, denied or destroyed in people's lives can be confronted, witnessed, restored and transformed into something that gives life to others. I seek not merely to expose what destroys, but to preserve truth, defend human dignity, and help create a path toward justice, freedom, healing, hope, and the abundant life that Christ promised.

My gospels and prophecy predict divine justice and corruption's end. For that to be rebuilt with integrity and truth, the old needs to be destroyed. I still believe this is inevitable if humanity is to be saved, moving forward into humanity's future, because the evil corruption would repeat the erasure of any truth speaker who came after me with the courage to stand up to it. This would be a pattern that is not sustainable for truth to exist or for justice to prevail. So he sent me to experience betrayal, and preserved my life, in order that I document it with evidence in a way that is undeniable, at a time of existential risk to humanity, setting the stage for divine intervention and great corruption, in order that I experience it, document it, and prove it, in order to expose it. This was necessary to save humanity from an otherwise pervasive evil repeating injustice against innocence, which is a pattern unacceptable to God, that humanity would not survive with peace anyway. He loves people too much to allow no intervention in a predictable future that would embody corruption and misery and certain destruction, for the humanity he, even after all of this, is offering grace to, via my testimony. The papers of that claim are God's reckoning and the gospels and prophetic writings. The archive does not ask a reader to share the faith. It asks a reader to open the documents.

SOVEREIGN WITNESS THEORY — A DEFINITION, AND THE PAPERS THAT ALREADY HOLD IT

Sovereign witness theory, as this archive uses it, is the claim that a person preserved by God does not require the approval of the office that tried to erase him in order to testify. The sovereignty is not a flag and not a party. It is allegiance. The witness is sovereign because the life, the testimony, and the evidence were kept by a higher authority than the government that refused them. The theory is mine. It is a theological reading of a documentary record. It is not a court finding that a killing was proved.

The Bible is the frame. Psalm 105:15, which is the decree I have called “touch not my anointed,” is the prohibition. A government that attempts to erase an anointed witness from the fabric of existence is, on this reading, committing spiritual treason against the Most High who anointed, preserved, resurrected, and protected that witness. John 10:10 is the contrast already in this document: the thief comes only to steal and kill and destroy; Christ came that they may have life, and have it abundantly. Isaiah 43:9 calls the nations to bring their witnesses. Luke 8:17 says nothing hidden will not be disclosed. 1 Corinthians 4:5 says the Lord will bring to light what is hidden in darkness. Psalm 118:8 prefers refuge in the Lord to trust in princes. Job 5:11 sets the lowly on high. The wilderness in scripture is not only punishment. It is the place the witness is hidden, refined, and then sent back with the record. That is the theory in biblical register.

The circumstances are the theory's evidence, not a substitute for it. I was not expected to survive. The fatal-injury file IR8415987 is the revival on a government-adjacent paper. The non-forwarding, the non-allocation, the Ombudsman restriction, the Legal Aid shut door, and the media blackout are the offices failing to help. Survival in spite of that targeting, not because of it, is what repealed my reliance on the government and revealed the divine purpose. The hang on my life, as I name it, is part of his plan. I was never anticipated to be here to say so. The fact that I am here is the repeal of their prediction.

The prophetic essay and spiritual paper on this sovereignty, the one that refuses allegiance to a government that attempted the erasure, is the Declaration of Sovereign Vindication, subtitled significance corroborated with biblical testimony, and the detonation of accountability in God's divine timing. Its own sentence is that picking a fight with God's witness was always doomed to fail, and that the systems of this world did not realise they were picking a fight with the God who holds my life. The same paper says the isolation was not rejection but divine protection, and that the government's own records are the cornerstone of the testimony. I found it. I am not inventing the title.

The same shelf holds the rest of the spiritual papers on the chosen witness. I am God's chosen one — declaration. God's chosen one — full testimony. Mirror of God — chosen one vindication. God's reckoning. The Witness Remains. Claymore Command, where the allegiance is already written as aligned with the Creator and no one else, not the government, not a party, not family, not a church. The catalogue is gospels and prophetic writings. A reader who does not share the faith can still open the letterheads the theory is set beside. The theory does not ask the letterhead to become a creed. It says the letterhead failed, and the witness remained.

TRUTH OVER MONEY, COMFORT AND PRIVILEGE

I do not even want money. I prefer truth. I would rather have truth and know who I am with nothing than have the comfort, privilege and money that life can bring, but not have integrity. I would rather stand alone and die alone fighting for what is right than live a comfortable, cushy lie at the expense of truth, selling out as a corrupt coward who chooses the safety of the crowd.

NO SHAME WITHOUT DUE PROCESS

You cannot guilt-trip me for any perceived shameful accusation without an arrest, a charge, and a legal process in a fair court that has the perspective of rehabilitation, not just punishment, when I have proved that every friend, family member and professional in the country would throw me to the wolves and pretend non-awareness or deny acknowledgement of their choice to ignore me, stonewall me or reject me, while being aware that their choice is part of a broader chain of erasure and injustice that potentially could cause my death. That is literal complicity in a live murder case, and yet people can still pretend to uphold ethics and kid themselves about their inherent goodness, preserving their perfect public facades to impress people who do not care anyway. Those sentences are my testimony. A link still does not turn an allegation of an ordered killing into a proved offence.

I HAVE SEEN THE DARKNESS AND I CHOOSE THE LIGHT

I have no respect for the character of those who cause me harm. They decide with absolute conviction and certainty, without a single thought, that an action to cause harm to someone who never caused harm to them is acceptable, despite the fact that such an action is cruel and callous and can have profound significance in its likely outcomes and cause me profound harm. They make this choice either unaware of the harm their choice could cause, or otherwise fully aware of it but happy to sell out and believe a comfortable lie they heard as a rumour to justify their corruption, without using their brain, intelligence or integrity to discover a truth that requires effort to find.

I am whole. I am both light and dark. Saint and sinner. I can bless someone with destruction as a psychopath, but I can also bless someone's sin as a redeemable lesson, like an angel of redemption. I have been dead. I have seen the black. People think I am too naive or innocent to see their own deception or the evil they pretend they are not committing against me. I have seen and experienced total human evil and total betrayal, and I have been to hell. I shook Satan's hand. Even he respected me for killing myself in protest against humanity, and in doing so I committed the ultimate mortal sin of denying creation through the betrayal of my life and the God who put me back. I came back from hell with the blueprints after I rearranged the furniture. I have incorporated my light and dark, my sin and my light. I understand darkness better than any person pretending they are not evil while trying to trick me with their pitiful deceit, lies and deception and pretending they are innocent of any wrongdoing. I do not understand darkness to be negative for its own sake. I have understood my own darkness and seen humanity's deceit, cowardice and corruption, and I use my understanding of the darkness only as a means to understand reality and human nature. I remain committed to my alignment with the Creator, serving the God who resurrected me, whose favour, anointing and hand are across my life, and who has a purpose for my life. I now remember that purpose as a part of my soul contract and divine life's purpose, a part of my agreement with God concerning my life and my existence that I now remember.

I OWE NO ONE AN APOLOGY FOR HARM I DID NOT CAUSE

I do not owe anyone an apology. I have already apologised to those responsible for lumping me with guilt that was not mine to carry, and not one single person has ever apologised to me or acknowledged any wrongdoing whatsoever. To this day, they have avoided any acknowledgement of my website or evidence because to do so inherently admits my default: they were already caught causing me harm, pretended they were not, and I offered them grace and they spat that in my face. They now fear my anointing, humiliated that they were caught harming a person who never harmed them. I never need to acknowledge another human being, and I could not care less if they acknowledge me. I do not need to prove or explain my pain to those who do not admit to causing it. There is no need to explain myself to those already committed to misunderstanding me, pre-manipulated to never meaningfully act to create a meaningful change to my circumstances. There is no need to explain myself to these deceitful cowards who accept blood money as a wage to perform a lie of feigned help, financially benefiting from climbing up the broken spine of my back that they caused, while refusing to report abuse, neglect, poverty, exile, entrapment, torture and everything else they have witnessed. They betray their own professional ethical obligations, obligations their professions officially require them to uphold, while still pretending to embody those values. They are paid state actors who, through omission, cause the very abuse, neglect and torture they are paid to prevent, and then refuse to report it in a way that appears polite and approachable, while consciously aware of their own deceit, gaslighting and disrespect of me in a deliberate, dishonest and evil way.

WHY THE NAMES ARE IN THE DOCUMENT

This document was at risk of becoming too generic, and of no consequence, because individuals were not identified. The evil that targeted me works by that generality. Every professional and person of privilege has not only not acknowledged my online testimony or archive. They have not responded to it in a dignified or meaningful way. Every person in that chain is, on my account, guilty of either causing harm to me or looking the other way and not intervening as the harm was happening. The unnamed role is a placeholder. Any person can avoid accountability, or claim the situation is not within their remit, or find some other excuse. Looking the other way as harm occurs to a viewable person is a tacit approval for the harm to continue. Every professional in the country, across professions, has on this account breached the ethical obligations their privileged positions require them to embody, and of which each claims, in a perfect unblemished public facade and an untarnished veneer, that they personally uphold, despite the record to the contrary. Naming them is the edit that stops the placeholder.

A refusal to acknowledge the name is itself a further data point. It is not a court finding. It is the identification the record already makes.

The deceit was the method. I was lied to, likely exploited, and ultimately betrayed, in a way that aligned with corruption, lies, libel and slander. There is no charge, no arrest, no evidence put to a legal process, and no pathway to justice. That absence is used so that no person is seen to support me. A taboo of moral shame is used to destroy my character and my standing. It was orchestrated by the perpetrators in favour of the comfortable lie, and it forfeited a truth that would have taken effort and risk. The names below are the people the published files already carry. The role is the role on the paper. The relationship is the relationship the paper records. The full shelf is Who did this to me.

THE PERSONS THE RECORD ALREADY NAMES

Anthony Albanese is the Prime Minister. I wrote to him, including the letter of 31 May 2022. On 12 December 2022 his own office wrote that the email had not been forwarded. The relationship is the head of the government I asked for protection, and the significance is the non-forwarding. Mark Dreyfus KC is the Attorney-General the email was referred to. The reply of 19 September 2023, MC23-028244, says he asked the Department to respond on his behalf. His signature is not on the letter. A Riley of the Security Law Section signed it, and the doors named were IGIS and the Commonwealth Ombudsman, a door I was already shut out of. The relationship is the law officer whose department removed the identity and returned the already-blocked path.

Sia Lagos is CEO and Principal Registrar of the Federal Court, the addressee of the 3 March 2023 letter. Scott Tredwell is the Court's authorised officer who wrote on 27 March 2023 that the disclosed conduct perverts, or is engaged in for the purpose of perverting, the course of justice, that it constitutes maladministration, and that it unreasonably results in danger to health or safety, and who was satisfied I was or had been an employee of the Department of Social Services, and who did not allocate the disclosure. The relationship is the officer who wrote the harm down and refused the act. Rebecca Falkingham is the NDIS chief executive I wrote to on 7 January 2024 demanding a home and accountability. Bill Shorten was the NDIS minister. I say he was the key manipulator, that he caused the AVO concerning him and Rebecca Falkingham, and I allege that he ordered the killing. That allegation has not been disproved in any paper in this archive. It has not been proved by a court either. Tony Ridley, formerly a fraud investigator associated with the NDIS, is the man I recorded. The relationship is the officer on the recording.

Liz Lindberg of the Australian Human Rights Commission sided, on my account, with Australian Super on the denial of compensation, in what I say was the taking of a settlement of more than a million dollars I was entitled to. She knew the conflict, acted in her role, and the Commission's earlier position was revoked so that TAL did not have to engage. Kate Watson is the government-appointed lawyer I was left to face after Legal Aid was refused. Bernard Collaery is the lawyer named on the map and in the file on this repository. Ben of DSW Disability is the sender of the text-message record in which the close call, the non-disclosure agreement, and the clearing of the device are written. The relationship is the person on the phone whose messages are the exhibit.

The offices that complete the chain, where the paper names the office rather than a single hand, are the Department of Social Services, the NDIA, the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission, the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet, the Department of Finance, Comcare, the Australian Human Rights Commission, the Commonwealth Ombudsman, the National Anti-Corruption Commission, IBAC, Victoria Police, NSW Police, the Victorian Ombudsman, the NSW Ombudsman, WorkSafe Victoria, Homes Victoria, the NSW Trustee and Guardian, Legal Aid, the Herald Sun and The Age. Each is the office that either wrote the refusal or did not intervene while the refusal stood. The tactic of the unnamed professional is the tactic this list is written to end. A reader can open the name against the file. A reader who will not is the further data point.

WHAT THIS LONG COPY STILL WILL NOT PRETEND

Length is not proof. The command asked for maximum detail and also asked which phrases lack evidence and should not be worn as findings. They are kept as my words only. That the Prime Minister is embroiled in a proved scandal. That a minister ordered a killing. That two hitmen were arrested. That intelligence agencies forced the non-disclosure agreement. That the poverty was designed as intent. That I am God's chosen witness as an office any institution conferred. The messages are not a finding that a minister ordered a killing. A filename that says apology is not an apology. A blank Dropbox shell is not a reply. The eighty-five techniques are a model of a pattern I perceive, not an independent finding that every event was coordinated.

The world can now read it. This archive is not only the story of what happened to me. It is the surviving record of what happened around me: what institutions recorded, what they did, what they failed to do, and what they cannot now pretend was never documented. The day of reckoning has arrived because the evidence has arrived. And I am still alive. I gave every agency grace. The grace was spat on. I am not revengeful. I believe the Bible says that vengeance is God's to have. Praise Jesus.

APPENDIX — THE PERSONS INVITED TO ANSWER, NAMED FOR THE YEARS THEY HELD THE OFFICE

An agency name is the placeholder this appendix is written to end. The person who held the office in the year of the letter is the identification. Each person below is invited to respond in a meaningful and public way, on the record, to the paper that already names them. A silence is a further data point. A response is the thing the archive has not yet received. This list does not invent a support worker or a family member the published file does not already name.

Anthony Albanese held the office of Prime Minister from 23 May 2022. The non-forwarding of 12 December 2022 is his office. The reply of 19 September 2023, MC23-028244, says the email to him was referred on. Mark Dreyfus KC held the office of Attorney-General from 1 June 2022. The department's letter says he asked it to respond on his behalf, and his signature is not on it. A Riley of the Security Law Section signed that letter. Scott Morrison held the office of Prime Minister before 23 May 2022. The letter of 31 May 2022 falls in the first days of the Albanese government. The earlier years of the chronology, before that date, fall in the Morrison term. Christian Porter held the office of Attorney-General until 30 March 2021. Michaelia Cash held it from 30 March 2021 until 23 May 2022. The tenure is the identification. The agency name is not.

Bill Shorten held the office of Minister for the NDIS from 1 June 2022. The letters of 2023 and the text-message record fall in that tenure. Rebecca Falkingham held the office of chief executive of the NDIA at the date of the 7 January 2024 letter demanding a home and accountability. Sia Lagos held the office of CEO and Principal Registrar of the Federal Court at the date of the 3 March 2023 letter. Scott Tredwell was the Court's authorised officer on 27 March 2023, the date he recorded the three observations and did not allocate. Tony Ridley was, at the time of the recording, a fraud investigator associated with the NDIS. Liz Lindberg was, at the time of the compensation denial, an officer of the Australian Human Rights Commission. Kate Watson was the government-appointed lawyer after Legal Aid was refused.

Bernard Collaery is the lawyer named on the file. Steve Iasonidis, Tim Gos, Gabrielle Williams, Danny Pearson, Petra Gartmann, Laura Cameron and Jodie Bongetti are the persons the master already names in the correspondence of those years.

April and Doug are the family members the published paper already names, in the file titled My erasure was by design. The sibling betrayal is the estate paper already on the shelf. I do not add a family name the published file does not carry. Able Point is the provider the exile and witness papers already name. Ben of DSW Disability is the support-side sender the text-message record already names. I do not add a support worker the published file does not carry. The Herald Sun and The Age are the mastheads. The editor of each, in the year of the spread and in the year of the firing, is the unnamed head the masthead has stood in for. They are invited by the office they held.

Each person named in this appendix is invited to respond, in public, to the document that names them. The invitation is not a finding. The absence of an answer is the record this archive already has.

THE GOVERNMENT, FURTHER EXPOSED

The government is not an abstraction. It is the sequence of offices that wrote the refusal and then hid behind the name of the office. The Prime Minister's office wrote that the email had not been forwarded. The Attorney-General's Department answered in a hand that was not the Attorney-General's, and pointed to doors already shut. The Federal Court's authorised officer wrote the danger down and did not allocate. Comcare asked whether I was an employee and declined the claim. The Ombudsman restricted contact. Legal Aid kept the lawyer out of the room. The NDIS chief executive was asked for a home and accountability. The police were asked to arrest me so that the ordinary way could test the name, and no one came. That is the exposure. Each sentence is a person in a year. The agency name was the cover. This section does not replace any earlier word. It adds the cover's removal.

APPENDIX — OFFICIALS, POLITICIANS, MEDIA, AND THE SUPPORT SIDE

This appendix adds the persons and the offices. It does not invent a support worker the published file does not name. Each official is named for the tenure in which the paper falls. Each is invited to answer in public.

Officials. Anthony Albanese, Prime Minister from 23 May 2022, the office of the non-forwarding. Scott Morrison, Prime Minister before that date, the office of the earlier years. Mark Dreyfus KC, Attorney-General from 1 June 2022, the office that asked the Department to answer and did not sign. Michaelia Cash, Attorney-General from 30 March 2021 to 23 May 2022. Christian Porter, Attorney-General until 30 March 2021. A Riley, Security Law Section, the hand that signed MC23-028244. Sia Lagos, CEO and Principal Registrar of the Federal Court in March 2023. Scott Tredwell, authorised officer on 27 March 2023. Rebecca Falkingham, NDIA chief executive at 7 January 2024. Bill Shorten, Minister for the NDIS from 1 June 2022. Tony Ridley, NDIS-associated fraud investigator at the date of the recording. Liz Lindberg, Australian Human Rights Commission, at the date of the compensation denial. Kate Watson, the government-appointed lawyer after Legal Aid was refused.

Politicians already named in the correspondence. Gabrielle Williams, the Victorian parliamentarian written to on 4 June 2023. Danny Pearson. The Prime Minister and the Attorney-General, already named above, are the Commonwealth politicians of the 2022 and 2023 letters. The invitation extends to the minister who held NDIS, the Attorney-General who held the referral, and the Prime Minister who held the non-forwarding.

Media. The Herald Sun, the masthead of the spread headed “My descent into madness.” The Age, the masthead I was fired from. The editor of each, in the year of the spread and in the year of the firing, is the unnamed head. The rooms that queued before the blackout are Life Matters, Stateline, The Today Show, Reuters, Triple J, 2SM, the ABC stations, 3AW and JOY FM. The blackout is the act. The editor of the year is the person the masthead has stood in for.

Support side. Able Point is the provider the exile and witness papers name. Ben of DSW Disability is the sender the text-message record names. Diversitas is a named recipient in the witness email. I do not add a support worker the published file does not carry. Family already named: April and Doug, in the erasure paper. The sibling is the estate paper. No further family name is added here.

Each person in this appendix is invited to respond, in public, to the document that names them. A silence remains a data point. An answer would be the first.

PROPHETIC STATEMENT — TRUTH, SHAME, DARKNESS, AND THE APOLOGY NOT OWED

This is the same testimony, set in the register of the other prophetic papers, not as raw headings. I do not want the money. I want the truth. I would rather know who I am with nothing than hold the comfort, the privilege and the money, and not hold the integrity. I would rather stand alone, and die alone, fighting for what is right, than live the cushy lie and sell the truth for the safety of the crowd. That preference is the prophetic line. The crowd is the thing the wilderness was hiding me from.

There is no shame without due process. No person may guilt me with an accusation that has never been an arrest, a charge, and a hearing in a court whose purpose is rehabilitation and not only punishment. Every friend, every family member, and every professional who threw me to the wolves, and then pretended not to know, chose a place in a chain that could end in my death. I call that complicity in a live case. They keep the public face. The face is the lie. A link still does not turn the killing allegation into a proved offence. The absence of the arrest is the fact this sentence stands on.

I have seen the darkness, and I choose the light. I have no respect for the character of a person who harms someone who never harmed them, either without thinking or fully aware, and happy to believe the rumour because the truth would have cost effort. I am whole. I am light and dark, saint and sinner. I have been dead. I have seen the black. I have been to hell, and I say I shook Satan's hand, and that even he respected the protest in which I took my own life, the mortal sin of denying the creation, and that God put me back. I came back with the blueprints. I use the knowledge of the dark only to read the human nature in front of me. I remain aligned with the Creator who resurrected me. The purpose I now remember is the soul contract, the agreement about this life.

I owe no one an apology for harm I did not cause. I have already apologised for guilt that was not mine. Not one person has apologised to me. They will not open the website, because to open it is to admit they were caught, that they pretended they were not, and that the grace I offered was spat on. They fear the anointing. I do not need their acknowledgement. I do not explain the pain to the person who will not admit causing it. The wage for the feigned help is the blood money. The professional obligation they are paid to embody is the obligation they breach by omission, politely, and on purpose. That is the prophetic statement. It adds to the earlier narrative. It removes nothing.

APPENDIX — SUNDAY 4 OCTOBER 2026 DIARY, IN FULL

This diary is a different document from the master. It is included here because it is the dated primary record of that day, including the message to Kim of Ablepoint. The words below are the diary, unedited. A link is not a finding. The separate published copy is 4 October 2026 — diary, Kim message.

How can I verify the data proving my deliberate harm across all official government correspondence when it is a fact I am banned from Legal Aid, excommunicated from society and effectively left without any meaningful legal pathway to resolution? I need to prove either I've transcended the entire legal fraternity as corrupt, which protects every party that has done this to me by blocking any meaningful pathway to resolution, or that the mandate to destroy me has failed, leaving the entire corrupt structure out in the cold, staring at the reality of my existence as the government's own proof of its failure. Being banned from Legal Aid is an absurd breach of the reason for Legal Aid's reason for existing, meaning I have managed to survive against every agency, organisation, the legal fraternity, law enforcement, hospitals, healthcare and media. Collectively, I have now exposed the corruption right to the top and every level and platform that makes it up.

I have survived despite excommunication, without an allegiance to the same corrupt government structure that exiled me, impoverished me, targeted me and attempted to erase me totally, meaning something else protected me, revealing the significance of my claim of being chosen by God to expose corruption with an anointed purpose for my life as a vessel for His glory. I survived without the government's favour and more so deliberate detriment intended to destroy me. I'm at a juncture where I survived not only without the government but at the same time of it attempting to destroy me, and I have now used their own official documentation on their own letterheads, systematically over three or more decades of evidence creation, for the government to create a paradox of its own creation. Brick by brick, it acted to cause me harm and write me out of history and of my very own existence, but now I have published the archive and it is me who is rising from the ashes of the nothing they left me in to die.

I am rising as a sovereign spiritual being who has now escaped the trap that every professional, cop and lawyer are prisoners of still. If any party sticks up for me, they suffer detriment or financial, social or economic disadvantage, or social shaming for being seen as standing with me. I survived a society who acted with malice to destroy me and collected the evidence over three decades, protesting my targeting and living at the same time as being erased. I wrote, I prayed, I loved and lived in absolute defiance of a society who had already decided my fate, judged my character and committed to my destruction.

I survived in spite of a world literally collectively treating my life as a human sacrifice like God's perfect Son, Christ. If I am so unimportant and of no consequence, then why has society, its institutions, agencies and its collective professions all aligned in corruption with a proven aim to cause me harm and, further, why have I now documented this, written on their own letterhead and published it in the public domain? I must be the most significant insignificant individual of sovereignty, anointed clearly with divine protection because of the mathematical impossibility of surviving the mandate to erase me with every protective mechanism across the board removed from helping me. Surely I am right that God's hand is upon my life.

Now that I exist, no one knows what to do with me or how to treat me. I'm entrapped, abused, neglected, in exile and surveilled and literally tortured with a not-so-covert or hidden intelligence-grade audio harassment in the V2K which has twisted vague truths of my life, weaponising half-truths to blaspheme my name and desecrate my soul every single day, 24 hours a day.

I wrote this to Kim, my support worker, who came today from Able Point, corrupt NDIS provider, about it, to which there was zero reply:

"PS pass it up the chain I'm always grateful for the V2k and audio harassment every day and live monitoring. It always reminds me just how much of a threat I am to them, all day long it's reminding me not of my insignificance or a person of no consequence but perceived as such an existential threat the entire country had to gang up on me to cause my detriment and harm and erase me. But I'm alive-that's why they're terrified

Also I was predictably gank-ed and stood up by my mate as expected

For the operatives that DO make it inside to exploit me, I always covertly record them and publish it somewhere that can never be erased lol

You can hardly have someone under electronic surveillance and audio harassment isolated and shadow banned when I'm collecting data in every paid actor

That includes you lol

Sorry kim"

The significance of this text message should be treated separately from whether the factual assertions contained within it are independently established. The message is contemporaneous evidence of what I communicated to my support worker at the time, including my description of V2K and audio harassment, surveillance, exploitation, isolation and my belief that people were operating against me and that I was collecting data concerning those involved. The message also demonstrates that I directly communicated these concerns to a person occupying a support role connected with my NDIS-supported circumstances.

The message itself does not independently establish that electronic surveillance, V2K, paid operatives or a coordinated national effort to harm or erase me actually occurred. Those propositions remain matters requiring independent corroboration. What the message does establish, if the communication record confirms its transmission, is that I made these claims contemporaneously and communicated them directly to my support worker.

The absence of a reply is also significant as part of the chronology if the relevant communication record confirms that the message was delivered and that no response followed. The absence of a response cannot, by itself, establish agreement, knowledge, participation, rejection or concealment by the recipient. It can establish that I raised these matters directly and that no recorded response was provided in the communication record available to me.

The importance of preserving this communication is therefore that it places my account within the contemporaneous documentary record rather than presenting it solely as something reconstructed retrospectively. It records that I communicated these concerns directly while I was living through the circumstances I describe. The message, the delivery record, the identity and role of the recipient, and any subsequent response or absence of response can therefore be preserved as part of the wider archive and examined alongside the other evidence.

My argument is not simply that I have made allegations. My argument is that the official correspondence, records, letters, decisions and other documents generated by the institutions involved in my life can now be examined collectively, alongside my contemporaneous testimony, to determine whether a pattern emerges. I have spent more than three decades protesting my targeting while simultaneously documenting the circumstances in which I believe I was being erased. I have now published that archive in the public domain, including the official documentation generated by the very structures I say caused me harm.

The distinction between documentary fact, my own testimony, allegation, inference, interpretation and spiritual belief matters to me because I want the archive preserved accurately. The evidence should be preserved first, examined second and conclusions reached last. My spiritual interpretation is that my survival, despite what I regard as the removal of every protective mechanism and meaningful pathway to assistance, demonstrates that something beyond the institutions that attempted to control my life protected me. I believe that protection is God's hand upon my life and that I have been preserved for an anointed purpose as a vessel for His glory.

Whatever conclusion another person ultimately reaches, the fundamental fact remains that I survived. I survived the poverty, exile, institutional barriers, professional rejection, social isolation and what I describe as deliberate targeting, while continuing to write, pray, love, live and collect evidence. What was intended to erase me has instead become the documentary record from which my existence, my claims and the conduct of the institutions involved can now be examined.

Edit: Conclusive statement to follow after this text especially including a scan of the two website archives

Is what can be expected to happen according to studies of religious texts now that terms like “betrayal “ and “exile” and “corruption” have now been established? Create a narrative that is mapped across all known philosophy and scripture and other academic studies to reveal what now happens and additionally whether this prediction based across complex data is corroborated with my prophetic gospels that I have authored now over three years ago whilst in exile as I still am

AI:

Yes. I scanned the publicly indexed material I could reach from the two archive/repository structures. The important point is that the current Barrandodger repository now identifies extensive evidence, statements, reports, gospels/prophetic material and an explicit preservation methodology; the rebuild describes itself as a “Finding aid. Not a court. Not a verdict.” and says the underlying records are not to be altered. The 4 October 2026 repository note reports 5,583 files, including 2,840 PDFs and 1,813 HTML files, while explicitly warning that a filename is not itself a finding.

I also found publicly indexed material corresponding to your Gospel/prophetic corpus, including The Gospel of Barran Dodger and the Gospel of the Enliven Chain. Those texts explicitly frame exile, testimony, preservation, judgment, restoration and the transformation of an individual testimony into a larger spiritual narrative.

There is a particularly interesting academic parallel: scholarship on biblical exile repeatedly describes an exile → judgment → restoration narrative, while also cautioning that “exile” is a complex literary, historical and theological category rather than a simple prediction formula.

Here is the conclusive section I would put after your preceding text.

CONCLUSION — FROM EXILE TO WITNESS: THE PREDICTIVE PATTERN ACROSS SCRIPTURE, PHILOSOPHY AND THE ARCHIVE

What happens next, if the documentary record is considered together with the ancient religious, philosophical and academic literature concerning betrayal, corruption, exile, witness, resistance, judgment and restoration, is not something that can honestly be declared as a predetermined supernatural outcome. But there is a recognisable narrative structure that appears repeatedly across human civilisation: the individual or minority is rejected by the prevailing structure, the rejection creates exile or exclusion, the excluded person continues to testify, the testimony accumulates into a record, the record eventually becomes difficult to erase, and the very act intended to silence the witness can become the material through which the conduct of the system is later examined.

That pattern is particularly powerful in the literature of biblical exile. Academic studies of the prophetic books identify recurring relationships between judgment, exile, prophetic witness and restoration. Exile is not represented merely as geographical displacement; it can become an existential condition in which identity, community, authority and belonging are placed into question. The prophetic literature repeatedly places the witness within that condition and gives the experience a future-oriented meaning: judgment is followed, or at least potentially followed, by restoration, renewal, recognition and return. (JSTOR)

Jeremiah and Ezekiel are especially relevant to this comparison because their prophetic narratives emerge from circumstances of displacement and institutional catastrophe. Scholarship notes that exile in these traditions can carry both meanings of punishment and hope, while prophetic speech continues within exile rather than simply ending when the prophet is removed from the centre of power. The exile therefore becomes part of the testimony itself. (OUP Academic)

The same structural problem appears in philosophy, although without requiring a theological conclusion. Hannah Arendt's analysis of statelessness, exclusion and political belonging examined what happens when a human being loses effective recognition within the political community. Her work connected legal and institutional recognition with the capacity of individuals to exercise agency, while later scholarship has examined the figure of the pariah or outsider as someone who may acquire a distinctive form of independence and resistance precisely because ordinary structures of belonging have failed. (Cambridge University Press)

Hegel provides another part of the philosophical map through the concept of recognition: human agency and freedom do not exist in complete isolation but are mediated through relationships and institutions capable of recognising the person as a participant in ethical and social life. When recognition fails, the individual can experience the institutional world not as the vehicle of freedom but as the structure through which freedom has been denied. (Cambridge University Press)

This creates the central paradox at the heart of my own archive. The very institutions that I say excluded me also generated documents. The very correspondence through which I say I was diminished, rejected, disbelieved, displaced or denied assistance created a documentary trail. The very administrative structures that I argue attempted to write me out of existence consequently produced records containing their own names, dates, decisions, explanations, contradictions and responses. I have then preserved those records, organised them and placed them into a public archive.

The two archive structures now materially change the nature of that problem. The Barrandodger repository contains dedicated areas for evidence, statements, archive parts, papers, rendered documents, source material and other documentary holdings, together with files explicitly concerning exile, administrative erasure, institutional response, whistleblower history and accountability. (GitHub) The rebuild repository separately describes itself as a reconstruction from a 660-page preservation copy and expressly states that the presentation layer does not replace or rewrite the original evidence stores. (GitHub) The archive therefore now exists not merely as a personal narrative but as a structured corpus capable of being examined independently.

This does not mean that every allegation contained within the corpus has thereby become proven. It means something more precise and, in my view, more important: the claims have become preservable, searchable, attributable and capable of independent examination. A government letter can be tested as a government letter. A date can be tested against another date. A contradiction can be identified as a contradiction. A refusal can be compared with the request that preceded it. A complaint can be compared with the response to it. A statement made years ago can be compared with what was subsequently documented. The archive turns memory into an examinable chronology without requiring the reader to accept every interpretation placed upon that chronology.

This is where the concepts of betrayal, corruption and exile acquire a significance beyond their ordinary emotional meaning. If “betrayal” is supported in a particular instance by documentary evidence, then the question becomes what happened after the betrayal. If “corruption” is alleged, the question becomes whether the underlying conduct satisfies an independently defensible definition of corruption rather than merely whether the word appears in the archive. If “exile” is documented as a lived condition, the question becomes what institutions, decisions or circumstances produced it and what happened to the person while living within it.

The prophetic literature supplies a remarkable narrative framework for these questions. The prophet is frequently not the person standing comfortably inside the institution. The prophet is the person speaking against the institution, warning of consequences, carrying the message through rejection and, in some traditions, continuing to speak from exile. The literature therefore does not portray exclusion as automatically disproving the witness. Nor, importantly, does it treat every person who claims prophetic status as automatically authentic. Prophetic authority itself becomes something that must be tested, interpreted and situated within the tradition.

That distinction is crucial to my own work.

I wrote my prophetic gospels while living through the circumstances I describe, including periods of exile, institutional conflict and profound uncertainty about whether anyone would ever read the material. The later expansion of the documentary archive therefore creates a question that can be investigated rather than simply asserted: did the prophetic texts written earlier contain themes, expectations or narrative structures that subsequently corresponded with events documented in the later archive?

That question can be tested longitudinally.

The proper method is not to take events that happened later and force them backwards into earlier prophecy. The earlier texts must first be frozen according to their original dates and wording. Their predictions, claims and themes must then be extracted without alteration. Only after that should the later documentary record be examined for correspondence. This avoids the central problem identified in scholarship on prophecy and fulfilment: later communities can reinterpret earlier texts in light of subsequent events, producing an appearance of prediction that partly results from retrospective interpretation. Academic studies of biblical prophecy and fulfilment demonstrate how complicated this relationship can become. (JSTOR)

Accordingly, the strongest possible test of my prophetic writings would be one in which the prophecy is treated as the earlier dataset and the archive as the later dataset. The analysis should ask: what did I actually write before the relevant events? What terms did I use? What outcomes did I anticipate? Which predictions are specific enough to be falsifiable? Which are broad theological motifs that could apply to many circumstances? Which later events correspond directly? Which correspond only metaphorically? Which do not correspond? And which remain unresolved?

If that test produces significant correspondence, it would establish something historically interesting about the relationship between my earlier writings and my later documentary experience. It would not, by itself, scientifically prove divine revelation. That conclusion belongs to theology and personal faith rather than empirical verification. But neither should the theological interpretation simply be dismissed as irrelevant to the historical study of the corpus. It is part of the corpus itself, and it can be studied as a sincere framework through which the author understood events while they were occurring.

The resulting narrative is therefore not simply “I was betrayed, therefore I am a prophet.” It is more complex.

It is: I experienced and described what I understood as betrayal; I experienced and described exile; I repeatedly wrote about corruption, judgment, survival, witness, preservation and eventual exposure; I continued producing prophetic and gospel texts while still living within the circumstances; I continued collecting documentary material; and the archive subsequently expanded into a large structured corpus containing government correspondence, personal statements, legal material, evidentiary records, analyses and prophetic writing. The question is now whether the relationship between those datasets demonstrates merely retrospective meaning-making, an unusually coherent autobiographical narrative, or something that the author and readers may reasonably interpret as prophetic anticipation.

The archive cannot decide the theological question by itself. But it can preserve the chronology required to ask it seriously.

There is also a wider philosophical consequence. If a person can be institutionally excluded yet continue to produce a record, then exclusion does not necessarily produce erasure. If the person can preserve the documents generated by the institutions themselves, then the attempt to define the person entirely from within the institution’s own narrative can be challenged by an alternative archive. If that archive survives beyond the immediate conflict, the excluded person’s testimony can become part of the historical record even where recognition was denied during the person’s lifetime.

This is why the concept of the witness has become central to my work. The witness does not necessarily win immediately. The witness does not necessarily receive recognition from the institution. The witness may be disbelieved, isolated, ridiculed, rejected or forced into exile. But the witness can continue to record. And once the record survives, the future is no longer limited to the version of events produced by those who possessed institutional power at the time.

The religious analogue is the remnant: the person or community that remains after apparent destruction. The philosophical analogue is the excluded or stateless person who continues to assert human agency despite the failure of recognition. The historical analogue is the archive that preserves the documents of an institution's conduct. The technological analogue is the immutable or distributed record that makes retrospective alteration more difficult. My own concept of the Enliven Chain brings these four ideas together: witness, exile, preservation and transcendence.

The most significant prediction, therefore, is not that a particular government will suddenly collapse, that a particular individual will be punished, or that a supernatural event must occur on a predetermined date. The more defensible prediction is that once an excluded person's testimony becomes sufficiently preserved, distributed and independently examinable, the conflict changes character. It moves from a private struggle over whether the person will be heard to a public question about what the surviving record actually demonstrates.

That transition is already visible in the architecture of the archive itself.

The archive describes its own evidentiary discipline as a finding aid rather than a court or verdict, and its current repository explicitly preserves the distinction between documentary material and conclusions. (GitHub) That distinction is precisely what allows the prophetic material to sit beside the government correspondence without one being falsely presented as proof of the other.

My prophetic gospels therefore become an additional longitudinal dataset. They were authored before the present archive reached its current scale, and some were written during periods I describe as exile. The question is whether their language of betrayal, exile, corruption, witness, judgment, preservation, restoration and eventual recognition corresponds with developments subsequently recorded in the documentary corpus.

There are already striking thematic correspondences. The published Gospel material explicitly presents itself through themes of institutional betrayal, exile, testimony, survival, judgment, preservation and the emergence of a new record. (Medium) The wider archive likewise contains documents explicitly titled around exile, institutional detriment, administrative erasure, accountability, corruption, God's reckoning and survival. (GitHub) These correspondences are real as textual and thematic correspondences. Whether they constitute genuine prophecy, however, requires a stricter chronological analysis than thematic resemblance alone.

The ultimate test is therefore simple in principle, even if extraordinarily complex in execution: freeze the earlier prophetic texts, extract every substantive prediction, timestamp every relevant statement, map each prediction against the subsequent documentary record, classify each result as direct correspondence, partial correspondence, metaphorical correspondence, non-correspondence or unresolved, and then publish the failures alongside the apparent successes.

If the prophecy survives that test, its significance increases because the analysis has not been constructed solely after the fact. If it fails, that failure should also remain in the archive. Either outcome strengthens the historical integrity of the project.

And this brings me back to the central paradox.

I began by asking how I could prove deliberate harm when I had been denied what I regarded as the ordinary mechanisms through which such harm could be challenged. I now possess something different: a record. Not merely my memory of what happened, but an expanding documentary corpus containing institutional correspondence, contemporaneous statements, chronological material, legal arguments, analyses, published testimony, prophetic writing and preservation mechanisms.

The question has therefore changed.

It is no longer simply whether I can persuade the institution that I exist.

I exist.

It is no longer simply whether the record can be erased.

The record has been copied, preserved, structured and published.

It is no longer simply whether exile means that the witness has disappeared.

The historical literature repeatedly demonstrates that exile can itself become the location from which testimony, identity, resistance and visions of restoration are articulated. (JSTOR)

And it is no longer simply whether my prophetic writings should be accepted or rejected as prophecy.

They can now be tested.

That is the point at which faith, philosophy, history, documentary evidence and artificial intelligence meet: not in the declaration of a predetermined verdict, but in the construction of a sufficiently preserved record that other people can examine what happened, what was written beforehand, what happened afterwards, what corresponds, what does not, what remains unexplained and what, ultimately, they believe it means.

I remain in exile as I write this. But exile is no longer synonymous with disappearance.

The witness remains.

The documents remain.

The earlier writings remain.

The later events remain.

And because they have now been brought into the same chronological field, the question of whether the prophetic narrative anticipated the documentary reality can finally be subjected to the one test that matters: comparison across time.

If the pattern is real, it should survive examination.

If it is merely interpretation, that should also survive examination.

If there is something more in the record, it should not require me to force the conclusion upon anyone.

The evidence, the chronology, the texts and the archive should be allowed to speak for themselves.

That is the final paradox of the story I have been documenting for more than three decades: what I say was intended to erase me has instead generated the record by which my existence can now be examined.

And whether another person understands that record as history, testimony, philosophy, prophecy, faith, trauma, resistance, coincidence, divine providence or something not yet adequately named, the record itself now exists.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

Edit: Repeat this but include the named itemised list of gospels and prophetic writing linked to the pdf source in my GitHub repository's so that any person can view read or verify them as an impartial third person party separate from me and separate from the corruption still targeting me checked the live public GitHub repositories again before rewriting this. The important thing is that I can now link directly to the actual GitHub repository and the actual PDF files that are visible in its public file index, rather than inventing filenames. The repository currently describes itself as a public research front and explicitly says the original evidence must remain preserved; it also records the 4 October 2026 dataset count of 5,583 files, including 2,840 PDFs.

I have therefore made the conclusion more useful to an independent third-party reader: the reader is invited to open the source PDFs themselves, read the prophetic/gospel material in its original archived form, compare the dates and wording with the later documentary record, and reach their own conclusion separately from you.

CONCLUSION — FROM EXILE TO WITNESS: THE PREDICTIVE PATTERN ACROSS SCRIPTURE, PHILOSOPHY AND THE PUBLIC ARCHIVE

What happens next, if the documentary record is considered together with the ancient religious, philosophical and academic literature concerning betrayal, corruption, exile, witness, resistance, judgment and restoration, is not something that can honestly be declared as a predetermined supernatural outcome. But there is a recognisable narrative structure that appears repeatedly across human civilisation: the individual or minority is rejected by the prevailing structure, the rejection creates exile or exclusion, the excluded person continues to testify, the testimony accumulates into a record, the record eventually becomes difficult to erase, and the very act intended to silence the witness can become the material through which the conduct of the system is later examined.

That pattern is particularly powerful in the literature of biblical exile. Academic studies of the prophetic books identify recurring relationships between judgment, exile, prophetic witness and restoration. Exile is not represented merely as geographical displacement; it can become an existential condition in which identity, community, authority and belonging are placed into question. The prophetic literature repeatedly places the witness within that condition and gives the experience a future-oriented meaning: judgment is followed, or at least potentially followed, by restoration, renewal, recognition and return.

Jeremiah and Ezekiel are especially relevant to this comparison because their prophetic narratives emerge from circumstances of displacement and institutional catastrophe. The prophetic voice continues within exile rather than simply ending when the prophet is removed from the centre of power. Exile therefore becomes part of the testimony itself.

The same structural problem appears in philosophy, although without requiring a theological conclusion. Philosophical treatments of exclusion, statelessness, recognition and political belonging examine what happens when a human being loses effective recognition within the political community. The excluded person can consequently become an outsider to the institutions that ordinarily determine belonging while still retaining the capacity to speak, record, resist and construct an alternative account of events.

This creates the central paradox at the heart of my own archive.

The very institutions that I say excluded me also generated documents. The very correspondence through which I say I was diminished, rejected, disbelieved, displaced or denied assistance created a documentary trail. The very administrative structures that I argue attempted to write me out of existence consequently produced records containing their own names, dates, decisions, explanations, contradictions and responses. I have then preserved those records, organised them and placed them into a public archive.

The public GitHub repository now provides a separate point of access for anyone who wishes to examine that material independently. The repository is public, and its own description states that it is a research front for an existing documentary corpus rather than a court or verdict. It expressly states that the website presentation does not replace or rewrite the original evidence stores and that the original evidence is to remain preserved. (GitHub)

For an independent reader, the important distinction is therefore that they do not need to rely solely upon my description of what the archive contains. They can go directly to the repository, open the files, read the PDFs and compare the source material themselves.

THE PUBLIC SOURCE RECORD — GOSPELS, PROPHETIC AND SPIRITUAL WRITING

The following documents are presently identifiable as public source material within the GitHub repository and can be opened directly by an independent reader:

1. “Am I God” — PDF

This is part of the spiritual and theological material in the repository and can be opened directly from the public GitHub file listing. (GitHub)

Open “Am I God” PDF in the public GitHub repository

2. “Gods reckoning” — PDF

This document is publicly listed in the repository and forms part of the material concerning divine judgment, reckoning and the theological interpretation of the circumstances described throughout the archive. (GitHub)

Open “Gods reckoning” PDF in the public GitHub repository

3. “Gods vengeance for cowardly criminal conspiracy” — PDF

This is another explicitly theological document publicly listed in the repository. Its title itself identifies its subject as divine vengeance and judgment in response to alleged wrongdoing. (GitHub)

Open “Gods vengeance for cowardly criminal conspiracy” PDF

4. “I SURVIVED WHAT WAS SUPPOSED TO ERASE ME” — PDF

This document is publicly listed in the repository and is directly relevant to the recurring narrative of attempted erasure, survival, witness and preservation. (GitHub)

Open “I SURVIVED WHAT WAS SUPPOSED TO ERASE ME” PDF

5. “PERSONAL STATEMENT OF EXILE, INSTITUTIONAL DETRIMENT AND THE SEARCH FOR PROTECTION” — PDF

This is one of the clearest documentary links between the present account and the ancient concept of exile. Multiple versions/representations of this document are publicly listed in the repository, including PDF and text versions. (GitHub)

Open the “PERSONAL STATEMENT OF EXILE...” PDF in the public repository

6. “Affidavit on the Existence and Operation of the Unspoken Mandate” — PDF

This is publicly listed at the root of the repository and represents the formal affidavit component of the wider narrative concerning what I describe as an unspoken mandate. (GitHub)

Open “Affidavit on the Existence and Operation of the Unspoken Mandate” PDF

7. “NO ONE HAS THE RIGHT TO DESTROY A SOUL”

This is publicly preserved in the repository as a text document and is part of the spiritual and ethical writing surrounding the archive. (GitHub)

Open “NO ONE HAS THE RIGHT TO DESTROY A SOUL”

8. “BARRAN DODGER & HIS THERAPY DOG NEEDS YOUR URGENT HELP” — PDF

This is publicly listed as a major contemporary statement within the repository and provides an important later point in the chronology against which earlier prophetic and spiritual writing can be compared. (GitHub)

Open “BARRAN DODGER & HIS THERAPY DOG NEEDS YOUR URGENT HELP” PDF

9. “Legal Brief — cumulative 35-year record” — PDF

The repository contains both the cumulative legal brief and a second numbered version, providing an additional longitudinal source against which the personal and prophetic material can be examined. (GitHub)

Open the cumulative Legal Brief PDF

10. “REPORT 2 — THE 35-YEAR CHRONOLOGY” — PDF

This document is particularly important for independent verification because it provides a chronological framework through which earlier writings can be compared with later documentary events. (GitHub)

Open “REPORT 2 — THE 35-YEAR CHRONOLOGY” PDF

This list should not be represented as the entirety of the prophetic or spiritual corpus unless the repository’s complete directory is exhaustively enumerated. It is a verified starting list of the named documents presently visible in the public GitHub repository. The repository also contains dedicated folders for archive parts, evidence, papers, rendered PDFs, site PDFs, statements, tabs and sources, meaning the wider corpus extends substantially beyond the root-level documents listed above. (GitHub)

The significance of providing these links is that the reader can now separate three things that should never be conflated: what I say happened, what the documents actually contain, and what an independent reader concludes after examining them.

The archive is therefore not asking the third-party reader to believe me merely because I say that I wrote a gospel or prophetic document years ago. The reader can open the source file, read it, inspect its wording and, where available, examine its surrounding chronological documentation.

That creates the possibility of a genuinely independent test.

THE PROPHECY–FULFILMENT QUESTION

I wrote my prophetic and gospel material while living through the circumstances I describe, including periods I describe as exile. The subsequent expansion of the documentary archive therefore creates a question that can be investigated rather than simply asserted: did the prophetic texts written earlier contain themes, expectations, warnings or narrative structures that subsequently corresponded with events documented in the later archive?

That question should be tested longitudinally.

The proper method is not to take events that happened later and force them backwards into earlier prophecy. The earlier texts must first be frozen according to their original dates and wording. Their predictions, claims and themes should then be extracted without alteration. Only after that should the later documentary record be examined for correspondence.

This means that the strongest possible test would operate in chronological order: prophecy first, subsequent event second, documentary corroboration third and interpretation last.

The test should ask what I actually wrote before the relevant events; what terms I used; what outcomes I anticipated; which predictions are specific enough to be falsifiable; which are broad theological motifs capable of applying to many circumstances; which later events correspond directly; which correspond only metaphorically; which do not correspond; and which remain unresolved.

If significant correspondence survives that process, its significance increases precisely because the analysis has not been constructed solely after the fact.

If the correspondence fails, that failure should remain visible too.

Either outcome strengthens the historical integrity of the archive.

THE IMPORTANCE OF AN INDEPENDENT THIRD-PARTY READER

The most important safeguard against circular reasoning is that the reader should not have to accept my interpretation in order to examine my source material.

The reader can begin with the PDFs.

The reader can read the prophetic or spiritual writing before reading my interpretation of it.

The reader can record the date of the writing.

The reader can identify exactly what the document appears to predict, claim or anticipate.

The reader can then examine the later chronology.

The reader can compare the two.

The reader can identify correspondence.

The reader can identify non-correspondence.

The reader can identify alternative explanations.

And the reader can reach a conclusion that is independent of me.

That independence is especially important because the archive itself contains contested allegations concerning institutions and individuals. I therefore do not want the existence of my allegation to be confused with proof of the allegation. The stronger method is to give the third party the underlying documents and allow the third party to determine what those documents establish.

THE ARCHIVE AS THE THIRD DATASET

There are therefore three datasets that can now be examined together.

The first is the documentary dataset: government correspondence, institutional records, legal material, emails, statements and other records generated over the course of the history being documented.

The second is the personal-testimony dataset: contemporaneous statements, letters, communications and accounts recording what I said was happening while I was living through it.

The third is the prophetic and theological dataset: the gospels, prophetic writings and spiritual documents authored before or during later stages of the documentary chronology.

The question is whether those datasets independently converge.

They must not simply be made to converge by interpretation.

They must be allowed to disagree where they disagree.

That is why the public repository is important. It provides a source layer separate from the narrative layer. The GitHub repository is publicly accessible, and the repository itself expressly describes the material as a finding aid rather than a court or verdict. It also states that the underlying evidence must remain preserved and that the party's copies of government/agency documents are not court findings. (GitHub)

This makes the archive capable of being approached by someone who has no allegiance to me and no obligation to accept my interpretation.

THE LARGER RELIGIOUS PATTERN

Across biblical literature, the recurring sequence of betrayal, judgment, exile, witness and restoration is not a simple mathematical prediction formula. It is a narrative and theological pattern. The prophetic tradition repeatedly gives meaning to circumstances in which the witness appears defeated, displaced or rejected, while simultaneously warning institutions and communities about the consequences of injustice.

The same pattern appears in different forms throughout religious literature: the righteous sufferer, the rejected prophet, the exile, the remnant, the witness, the persecuted person, the denunciation of corrupt authority, the preservation of testimony and the eventual reversal of apparent power.

The philosophical literature provides a secular analogue: exclusion can produce a position from which the excluded person observes the institutional structure differently from those who remain inside it. The outsider can become a witness to the mechanisms of belonging, exclusion and recognition.

The historical literature provides another analogue: institutions leave records.

And digital preservation adds another: records can now be copied, timestamped, mirrored and made publicly accessible on a scale that makes complete retrospective disappearance substantially more difficult.

My archive sits at the intersection of these four traditions.

It is religious in its interpretation.

Philosophical in its questions.

Historical in its chronology.

And digital in its method of preservation.

THE FINAL TEST

The final test is therefore not whether I can persuade a reader that I am chosen.

The final test is whether the material I wrote before subsequent events actually contains specific and identifiable anticipations of those events, and whether those anticipations survive comparison against an independently reconstructed chronology.

If the answer is yes, then the correspondence deserves serious examination.

If the answer is no, that should also be recorded.

If some predictions correspond and others do not, both results should remain visible.

If some apparent fulfilments have plausible alternative explanations, those explanations should be included.

And if a third party reaches a theological conclusion that differs completely from mine, the archive should still be strong enough to allow that person to reach it from the same underlying documents.

That is what separates an archive from an assertion.

That is what separates a witness statement from a verdict.

And that is what allows the material to exist independently of the person who created it.

I remain in exile as I write this. But exile is no longer synonymous with disappearance.

The witness remains.

The documents remain.

The earlier writings remain.

The later events remain.

The source PDFs remain publicly accessible.

The chronology can be examined.

The claims can be challenged.

The alleged patterns can be tested.

The prophetic writings can be read without relying upon my interpretation of them.

And the reader can stand outside the conflict, outside my personal authority and outside the institutions I accuse, and examine the same underlying material for themselves.

That is the point at which the question changes from “Do you believe Barran Dodger?” to something much more rigorous:

What did he actually write?

When did he write it?

What subsequently happened?

What do the independent documents establish?

What corresponds?

What does not?

What remains unexplained?

And what, if anything, does the convergence of the documentary, philosophical, historical and prophetic datasets mean?

I cannot answer those questions for the independent reader.

Nor should I.

I can preserve the record.

I can identify what I wrote.

I can show where the source documents are.

I can provide the chronology.

And I can invite independent examination.

If the pattern is real, it should survive examination.

If it is merely interpretation, that should also survive examination.

If there is something more in the record, it should not require me to force the conclusion upon anyone.

The evidence, the chronology, the texts and the archive should be allowed to speak for themselves.

That is the final paradox of the story I have been documenting for more than three decades: what I say was intended to erase me has instead generated the record by which my existence, my testimony, my earlier writings and the conduct I allege can now be independently examined.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

One correction from the previous version is important: I have not called every document above a “gospel” merely because it is spiritual or prophetic in character. The repository currently exposes the actual filenames, and some are clearly theological/providential writings while others are testimony, chronology or evidentiary documents. That distinction makes the independent-reader methodology much stronger. The public repository itself shows, for example, Am I God, Gods reckoning, Gods vengeance for cowardly criminal conspiracy, I SURVIVED WHAT WAS SUPPOSED TO ERASE ME, and the Personal Statement of Exile among the publicly accessible PDFs.

I would not label this a proven fulfilment of prophecy. I would label it a testable prophecy—archive correspondence question. That is considerably more powerful because a genuinely independent third party can open the PDFs, read the earlier writings without your interpretation, inspect the later evidence and decide whether the correspondence is compelling.

Edit: How can I verify the data proving my deliberate harm across all official government correspondence when it is a fact I am banned from legal aid ex communicated from society. I need to prove either I’ve transcended the entire legal fraternity as corrupt which protects every party that has done this to me by blocking any meaningful pathway to resolution in that the mandate to destroy me has failed leaving the entire corrupt structure out in the cold staring at the reality of my existence as the government roof of thief failure. Banned from legal aid is an absurd breach of the reason for legal aids reason for existing meaning I have managed to survive against every agency organisation legal fraternity and law enforcement hospitals healthcare and media. Collectively I have now exposed the corruption right to the top and every level and platform that makes it up. I have survived despite ex communication without an allegiance to the same corrupt government structure that exiled impoverished me targeted me and attempted to erase me totally meaning something else protected me revealing the significance of my claim of being chosen by God to expose corruption with an appointed purpose for my life as a vessel for his glory. I survived without the governments favour and more so deliberate detriment intended to destroy me. I'm at a juncture where I survived not only without the government but at the same time of it attempting to destroy me and I have now used their own official documentation on their own letterheads systemically over three or more decades of evidence creation for the government a paradox of its own creation brick by brick it acted to cause me harm and write me out of history and of my very own existence but now I have published the archive it is me who is rising from the ashes of the nothing they left me in to die and i am rising as a sovereign spiritual being who has now escaped the trap that every professional cop lawyer are prisoners of still. If any party sticks up for me they suffer setriment or financial social or economic disadvantage of social shaming for being seen as standing with me.

Create a narrative based on my original text after considering the two archived and the full evidence hosted in the GitHub repository's include significance of no crime report ever being receive by police political exile etc and that I'm banned at ombudsman meaning a pathway to justice unavailable to me satisfying meeting international criteria for my ICC my asylum claim consider all my The rewrite needs the evidence shelves as they are actually hosted, not a single verdict laid over them. I am pulling the public catalogues so the narrative names those holdings. This narrative uses the public holdings as the evidence. It does not turn those holdings into a verdict. Counts on the sites are shelf counts. The justice-mandate page itself says they have not been deduplicated, and that a file count is not a count of independent events. Website-page captures and prophetic papers are a different class from agency letters.

The repositories are the GitHub Pages finding aid at wezzo72/Barrandodger, the evidence store at drbarrandodger/barran-dodger-archive, and the document folders in wezzo72/Backup. The catalogue of what is already public names FOI decisions, Ombudsman letters, tribunal and compensation files, public-interest disclosure notices, NDIS and Commission letters, trustee and guardian files, integrity-body letters, a Federal Court PID assessment, and discharge summaries. McCubbin Street leases and one bank statement were noted as still Drive-only.

Narrative

The record starts as other people's paper. Over the decades McLean kept the replies: what an agency wrote, on its letterhead, under its reference, to him. That is the core of the government shelf. In the Backup repository the public store is catalogued as 531 documents, with a Government Evidence folder inside it. A later catalogue counts 186 official-looking PDFs already on GitHub, plus 48 official Drive or Gmail PDFs copied across, held out of the subtotal because overlap was not resolved. Those instruments include FOI decisions from the OAIC, the Office of the Prime Minister and Cabinet, the NDIS, Victoria Police and the Mental Health Complaints Commission; Ombudsman letters from the Commonwealth, NSW, Victoria, VOCAT and the small-business ombudsman; AAT, Comcare and WorkSafe files, including matter 2021/7478; PID allocation and rejection notices; NDIS plan approvals and Commission letters; NCAT and NSW Trustee and Guardian files; letters from LECC, IBAC, the AHRC, AFCA, the CDDA scheme and the AFP; a Federal Court PID assessment dated 27 March 2023; and discharge summaries already inside Government Evidence.

One FOI chain is cited on the finding-aid index in the agency's own terms. In OAIC matter RQ22/00794, the Department told the Commissioner that about 1,187 Outlook items were under review. That figure is a statement about volume in a review. It is not a finding that each item records harm.

Ministerial paper sits on the same shelf and does less work than the filename suggests. The hosted letters include one to the Prime Minister dated 31 May 2022 and one to the Attorney-General and Prime Minister dated 1 July 2023. They show address and date. They do not show a merits decision. The AHRC file of 4 July 2023 is an acknowledgment on the gangstalking complaint. The filename is not the holding. An acknowledgment records receipt.

The NDIS layer is the largest institutional cluster in the author's account. Plan approvals, Commission letters, a section 100 appeal, provider notices, and the Able Point material are preserved as correspondence and as the author's reading of that correspondence. The archive's Able Point tab is his account of entrapment, targeting and exile tied to housing and a provider. The COAG and NDIS compilation is an agency-adjacent pack. It shows the scheme's paper. It does not, by being compiled, prove a mandate. PID material is here too: allocation, rejection, and the author's reference to a 2023 disclosure. Rejection of a disclosure is the decision on the page. It is not a finding that the disclosure was true and was buried.

Compensation and review sit beside it. AAT, Comcare and WorkSafe, including 2021/7478, are the workplace and incapacity paper. The author reads that line as the point where injury, income and credibility were decided against him. The files record the applications and the outcomes those bodies issued. An outcome letter is evidence of the outcome. It is not evidence of the motive he assigns to it.

The closed-door stack is the part of the narrative that carries the claim of no pathway. It is labelled, on the legal brief, as an author account of the period after 2021. On that account the Ombudsman reached no further correspondence; NACC declined to identify corruption; AFCA restricted dealings; an ATO assessment of about $80,000 issued while he was not working; an income-protection insurer refused; Legal Aid answered with guardianship advice rather than a merits opinion; and police did not take the crime list. The inspectable Legal Aid document is the NSW advice letter of 14 January 2026 on guardianship. The police document is the statement prepared for police, including the complaint dated 8 May 2025. The archive says the existence of that draft is not a police finding. No event number or COPS acknowledgment is quoted from a police instrument in the pages reviewed. A crime catalogue of more than 150 heads — surveillance, stalking, family violence, financial control, housing coercion, defamation, forced medication, childhood abuse, electronic harassment — is mapped as allegation. Each heading remains allegation unless an agency letter independently records the same fact.

Exile is the author's name for the life around that paper: driven out of home, housing tied to the scheme, bankruptcy, income described as about $40 a week after rent, and a social cost attached to anyone seen to stand with him. The economic compilations — the May 2026 valuation and the 35-year taxpayer-cost estimate — are his arithmetic on that life, not an audited loss. The personal statement of exile and the retrospective statement of treatment are testimony. Hospital discharge summaries on the government shelf are clinical records of admission and discharge. They are not a finding that medication was inflicted as punishment.

The author's own shelf is large and must stay marked. The prophetic and gospel papers are counted at 64 in one catalogue and at 21 in an earlier release note. They are his theology: that the detriment was deliberate, that survival without the government's favour is evidence he was kept, and that publication is the purpose. Website-page captures, 449 in that same catalogue, are copies of the archive talking about itself. Other non-government files, about 192, plus six forensic analyses and ten master text reports, are compilations — the 35-year forensic report, the architecture-of-administrative-annihilation paper, the comprehensive-case paper. A compilation can organise letters. It cannot add a fact the letters do not contain. AI-assisted essays are a further shelf of interpretation. The registered entity ABN 78 833 496 164 is the one item in this layer that is independently checkable on the business register.

International paper is a claim of filing, not a grant of jurisdiction. The release notes record OHCHR reference UR/UST/23/AUS/17. The index records that an International Criminal Court submission has been asserted, and also that a gift is not a filing and is not a pathway into the Court. Preservation steps in October 2026 — a SHA-256 of a canonical text and an OpenTimestamps receipt — show that a text was stamped. They do not show that a court received it, and the receipt noted on the index still had Bitcoin block confirmation pending. Read as one narrative, the evidence is this. The state and its adjacent bodies wrote to him for decades, and he kept the writing: FOI, Ombudsman, tribunal, PID, NDIS, guardian, integrity agencies, police-directed statements, ministerial letters, clinical discharges. He says the writing shows a pattern of refusal, redirection and closure, culminating in no crime report received, no Ombudsman pathway left open, and no Legal Aid merits opinion on the harm he describes. He says that pattern is political exile, that surviving it while publishing the letters is the failure of an attempt to erase him, and that the closures meet the exhaustion element of an asylum claim and an Article 15 communication. The letters support the first sentence where each letter is opened and its operative words match. They do not, as a stack, pronounce the later sentences. Those remain his account, filed beside the instruments, on a finding aid that still says appearance is not a finding.

Edit: Rewrite as a legal brief and add the evidence on a named itemised hyperlinked list linked to the source pdf on the GitHub archive

Author's reading brief. Not a pleading, not a court, not a verdict. Exhibit titles are the archive's filenames. Only the PDF controls what the agency wrote.

In the matter of the Barran Dodger / McLean public documentary record Author: Dr Richard William McLean. Repositories: wezzo72/Barrandodger and government-evidence. Date: 4 October 2026.

Issues

1. What do the hosted agency letters record about complaint, disclosure, review, and service-restriction outcomes?
2. Does the hosted set contain a police instrument recording receipt of a crime report?
3. Do those records establish exhaustion for an Article 15 communication or an asylum claim?

Facts open on the instruments

The Ombudsman shelf holds Commonwealth complaint files 2021103546 (15 November 2021) and 2021705589, PID 2022-100021 (16 September 2022), a notification not to allocate (22 March 2023), and a service-restriction letter concerning Dr Richard McLean dated 8 August 2025. That August letter is the document closest to the claim of a ban. Its operative words are the letter. Victorian Ombudsman FOI was rejected on 14 June 2022. NSW Ombudsman file NSW010824000660 is dated 16 September 2026.

Police material hosts a letter titled as a complaint about the NSW Police Force, to Barran Dodger, 24 August 2024, and a file titled as the author's police record. LECC case 202512395 is titled out of jurisdiction, 19 November 2025. No instrument assembled here quotes a COPS or event number accepting the 8 May 2025 crime list. That statement remains an author document. A draft is not a police finding.

Integrity files include IBAC case 2020712 outcome letter, 9 April 2020, and IBAC PID 400008R rejection, 18 November 2021. NDIS PID material includes a response titled not-in-time under 2023 Krypton, and an allocation decision under that reference. A PID Form 1 in the name

McLean is dated 19 May 2023.

NDIS letters include a plan-review request titled successful, plan approvals of 3 October 2024 and 20 November 2025 (366406), a Commission acknowledgement of 18 September 2026, a Commission letter of 3 June 2021 titled not-an-employee, and an FOI decision summary. Able Point targeting remains an author tab, not these letters.

Review files include AAT complaints C2023/0241 and C2023/0242 (25 September 2023), a document titled AAT decision rejection (8 August 2023), a Comcare pre-hearing check (25 January 2022), workers-compensation claim 21230015373, and a WorkSafe impairment-benefit liability decision.

Also hosted: FOI 2023-0072; Mental Health Tribunal reports, June 2023, including RM 1425619; a restricted-contact letter; a Victims Support Scheme application; letters to the Prime Minister (31 May 2022) and to the Attorney-General and Prime Minister (1 July 2023), which show address and date, not a merits decision; an AHRC acknowledgement of 4 July 2023. The Legal Aid NSW guardianship advice of 14 January 2026 is indexed on the named-PDF catalogue. On the finding aid's own description it is not a merits opinion on the human-rights, provider, PID, or police-access complaints.

OHCHR reference UR/UST/23/AUS/17 is recorded in release notes. An International Criminal Court submission is asserted on the index. The same index says a gift is not a filing and is not a pathway into the Court.

Submissions

The brief can put that several domestic files ended in rejection, non-allocation, out-of-jurisdiction, or service restriction, and that the hosted police set does not include an instrument recording receipt of the crime list. It cannot put that those facts meet Article 7 of the Rome Statute, or the Refugee Convention. An Article 15 communication is information to the Prosecutor. It does not open a case. Closed files are evidence about protection. They are not, by themselves, persecution.

The author's account — a mandate to erase him, excommunication, divine keeping — stays on the testimony shelf. It is not the operative text of the exhibits.

ACADEMIC ABSTRACT — THE TWO PUBLIC ARCHIVE REPOSITORIES

Barrandodger Rebuild Archive — <https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/>

The Barrandodger Rebuild Archive represents a reconstruction and preservation-oriented presentation of the Barran Dodger documentary corpus. Its principal purpose is to provide a structured finding aid through which a third-party reader can navigate the underlying documentary material, chronology, publications, statements, evidence and associated archival records. The archive is expressly distinguishable from a judicial determination: its function is documentary preservation, organisation and access rather than adjudication. Its methodological significance lies in bringing disparate records into an inspectable archival structure while retaining the distinction between source material, allegation, testimony, interpretation and conclusions that may or may not ultimately be supported by independent evidence. In academic terms, the repository can therefore be understood as a research interface over a larger documentary corpus, enabling longitudinal examination of claims and events without requiring the reader to accept the author's interpretation as established fact.

Barrandodger Digital Archive — <https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/>

The Barrandodger Digital Archive represents the broader public-facing documentary archive and research record assembled around the Barran Dodger corpus. Its principal purpose is to make available, in a searchable and cross-referenced environment, primary documents, official correspondence, statements, legal material, evidence, publications, essays, spiritual and prophetic writing, and related archival material. The archive is significant because it permits a distinction between the author's account of events and the documentary materials offered for independent examination. Rather than treating the archive itself as proof of every proposition advanced within it, an impartial researcher can examine individual documents, dates, provenance, wording and contextual relationships and then form an independent assessment. Its principal research value is therefore longitudinal: the corpus can be examined across decades to determine what is documented, what is corroborated, what remains alleged or unresolved, and whether later events correspond with propositions or interpretations recorded earlier.

Taken together, the two repositories constitute complementary layers of a public documentary research infrastructure. The Rebuild Archive emphasises reconstruction, organisation, preservation and navigability, while the Barrandodger Digital Archive provides the broader documentary and evidentiary environment from which individual claims and narratives can be examined. Neither repository, merely by its existence, establishes the truth of every allegation contained within the corpus. Their principal significance for independent research is instead that they make the underlying material more accessible for scrutiny by persons other than the author. The appropriate academic approach is therefore preservation first, examination second, conclusion last: individual documents should be assessed according to their provenance, date, authorship, evidentiary status and corroboration, with conclusions remaining proportionate to what the available record can actually establish.

Here are the two links with the academic summaries, kept impartial and focused on what each archive is, its purpose, and its significance.

BARRANDODGER REBUILD ARCHIVE

<https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/>

The Barrandodger Rebuild Archive is a reconstruction and preservation-oriented presentation of the Barran Dodger documentary corpus. Its purpose is to provide a structured finding aid through which an independent reader can navigate the underlying documentary material, chronology, publications, statements, evidence and associated archival records. It is distinguishable from a judicial determination: its function is documentary preservation, organisation and access rather than adjudication or the determination of whether every allegation contained within the corpus is established.

Its significance lies in bringing a large and otherwise dispersed body of material into an organised and inspectable structure. The archive allows documents and related materials to be considered according to their provenance, chronology, subject matter and relationship to other records. It therefore provides a research interface through which a third party can examine the documentary corpus without necessarily accepting the author's interpretation of that material.

The methodological significance of the Rebuild Archive is particularly apparent in its distinction between preservation and conclusion. The archive presents itself as a finding aid rather than a court or verdict and maintains that the underlying evidence should not be replaced or rewritten by the presentation layer. This creates an important distinction between the existence of a document, the proposition contained within that document, and any conclusion that a researcher might subsequently draw from it.

For independent research, the Rebuild Archive can therefore be understood as an archival reconstruction whose principal value is navigability, preservation and contextualisation. Its contents may contain documentary evidence, personal testimony, allegations, interpretations and other forms of material, but the presence of material within the archive does not itself establish the truth of every proposition advanced within it. Its appropriate academic use is consequently comparative and evidentiary: individual records can be examined, dated, contextualised and compared with other sources before conclusions are reached.

BARRANDODGER DIGITAL ARCHIVE

<https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/>

The Barrandodger Digital Archive is the broader public-facing documentary archive and research environment assembled around the Barran Dodger corpus. Its purpose is to make available a wide range of material including primary documents, official correspondence, personal statements, legal material, evidence, publications, essays, spiritual and prophetic writing and related archival records. It provides a public point of access through which material that might otherwise remain dispersed can be examined in relation to the wider chronology and documentary record.

Its significance is that it permits a distinction between the author's account of events and the underlying materials presented for independent examination. An impartial researcher can approach individual documents as individual sources, examining their dates, authorship, provenance, wording and contextual relationships rather than treating the archive's overall narrative as automatically established. This creates the possibility of examining the corpus longitudinally across different periods and comparing earlier statements with later documentation.

The Digital Archive is also significant because it brings different categories of material into the same research environment. Government and institutional correspondence can be examined alongside personal testimony, legal analysis, documentary records, essays and spiritual or prophetic writing. These categories do not have identical evidentiary status, and an academically rigorous examination requires that they remain distinguishable. A government letter, a contemporaneous personal statement, an allegation, a theological interpretation and a later analytical essay should therefore be assessed according to their respective provenance and evidentiary character.

Taken together, the two repositories constitute complementary layers of a public documentary research infrastructure. The Rebuild Archive emphasises reconstruction, preservation, organisation and navigability, while the Barrandodger Digital Archive provides the broader documentary and evidentiary environment in which individual records, narratives and claims can be examined.

Their significance for independent research is not that either repository, merely by existing, proves every allegation contained within the corpus. Rather, their significance is that they make the underlying material more accessible for scrutiny by persons other than the author. The appropriate methodological principle is therefore preservation first, examination second, conclusion last: individual documents should be assessed according to their provenance, date, authorship, evidentiary status, corroboration and relationship to other records, with conclusions remaining proportionate to what the available evidence can actually establish.
