URGENT SOS — 1 NOVEMBER 2026 THE WITNESS REMAINS — THE RIGHT TO LIVE, THE RIGHT TO LEAVE, THE DEMAND FOR ACCOUNTABILITY

A HUMANITARIAN APPEAL, PERSONAL TESTIMONY AND STATEMENT OF INSTITUTIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY

Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Dr Barran Dodger

I AM NOT SUICIDAL. I AM PROTESTING BECAUSE I WANT TO LIVE.

I LEFT BECAUSE I HAD NO FOOD, NO PHONE AND NO MONEY.

I reached a point where I felt I had no practical means of looking after myself, meeting my basic needs or resolving my circumstances. I was frightened that police were about to conduct a welfare check and that I would be taken to hospital rather than have the immediate problems I was reporting properly addressed.

I therefore climbed over the back fence and left.

I want everyone reading this to understand why I did this. I was trying to get out of circumstances in which I felt trapped, without access to the basic necessities of life and without confidence that asking for help would result in practical assistance.

This is not what care is supposed to look like.

THE MOST BRUTAL INJUSTICE

The most obvious and brutal injustice is that I am a disabled person who says he needs support to live safely and independently, yet I have found myself having to fight for the very necessities that support systems are supposed to help secure: food, money, accommodation, transport, safety, dignity and the freedom to make decisions about my own life.

I should not have to beg to leave somewhere I say I cannot safely or sustainably remain.

I should not have to plead for access to the resources I need to feed myself, care for my dog Crystal, obtain essential items or arrange somewhere suitable to live.

I should not have to depend on the goodwill of people whose decisions and conduct I am asking to have independently examined.

The contradiction is extraordinary: I am seeking assistance from systems and organisations entrusted with supporting people with disabilities, yet I describe being left struggling to obtain the basic practical assistance necessary to survive and move forward.

Why is the person asking for help being made to carry the burden of the system's alleged failures?

Why must I repeatedly explain that I need food, financial access, transport, accommodation and safety?

Why must I document my own circumstances so extensively just to have my concerns taken seriously?

Why should a disabled person have to become his own investigator, advocate, archivist and legal researcher simply to obtain an adequate response from people and institutions with greater resources and authority?

THE FEAR OF PSYCHIATRIC WEAPONISATION

I am deeply concerned that psychiatric intervention could be used in place of properly addressing the material circumstances I have repeatedly raised.

I describe this as psychiatric weaponisation because I fear that my distress, complaints and protests may be treated as a psychiatric problem rather than prompting an examination of why I have been left without essential support.

A person's disability or psychiatric history should never become a convenient reason to disregard their testimony, avoid examining documentary evidence or dismiss legitimate complaints.

I do not regard a situation in which a disabled person has no food, no access to a phone, no money and no realistic means of leaving as an acceptable care arrangement.

A welfare response should not become a substitute for food, money, safe accommodation, disability support and respect for a person's autonomy.

If police were contacted, important questions must be answered.

What information were police given?

What was the stated purpose of the proposed welfare check?

Was there an actual and documented immediate safety concern?

Were my wishes and circumstances accurately represented?

Were practical alternatives to hospital transport considered?

Was anyone responsible for addressing the absence of food, money, communication and safe accommodation?

I want these questions answered through records, not assumptions.

THE POWER IMBALANCE AND THE FAILURE OF LEADERSHIP

The people and organisations responsible for support have policies, personnel, records, institutional authority and resources.

I am one person trying to make my circumstances understood while seeking the practical means to live with dignity.

That imbalance makes independent oversight essential.

An organisation cannot resolve legitimate questions simply by investigating itself and declaring that everything was appropriate.

I believe serious questions must be asked of the leadership responsible for these arrangements.

Leadership is not simply a position of authority. It carries obligations of honesty, accountability, safeguarding, transparency and care.

If those obligations have been neglected, concealed or breached, the matter deserves independent investigation.

I believe the leadership has demonstrated a serious failure of responsibility, judgment and conscience. I am concerned that organisational interests and reputations may have been prioritised over the needs of the vulnerable person those organisations were entrusted to support.

No decent, properly functioning organisation should gang up on a vulnerable person, turn against them, discredit their complaints or leave them struggling to survive simply because they speak out.

If multiple people have acted against one vulnerable person, the obvious question is:

WHAT LEGITIMATE RISK DID THAT PERSON ACTUALLY POSE, AND WHAT EVIDENCE SUPPORTS THE WAY THEY WERE TREATED?

Was there a genuine, documented safety concern, or did the person's vulnerability and inability to defend themselves become a reason to disregard their rights and complaints?

I allege that the circumstances raise serious questions about institutional entrapment, failures of safeguarding and possible institutional complicity.

I also want any police involvement examined objectively. If misconduct, improper influence, misuse of authority or failure to protect occurred, those matters must be investigated against the available evidence.

I am not declaring that police corruption, conspiracy or a criminal offence has already been legally established. I am demanding an independent investigation into whether any such conduct occurred and who, if anyone, was responsible.

THE PERSON MAKING THE COMPLAINT MUST NOT BECOME THE PROBLEM

Instead of each allegation being examined against records, decisions, communications and independent evidence, I feel that my persistence in seeking answers has become a greater concern to some people than the circumstances I am asking them to investigate.

A complaint should be assessed on its evidence, not dismissed because the person making it is distressed, disabled, persistent or difficult for others to engage with.

My disability should never be used to diminish the credibility of my testimony.

My distress should not become an excuse to avoid examining evidence.

My persistence should not be confused with wrongdoing.

And my demand for accountability should not be treated as a threat merely because it is uncomfortable.

The greatest injustice is not that I keep asking for help.

IT IS THAT I SAY I KEEP NEEDING TO ASK.

THE HUMANITARIAN REALITY

Before arguments about reputations, procedures, complaints, policies or who is right, there is a human being who says he needs food, access to his money, practical assistance, safety and somewhere he can live with dignity.

Those needs cannot reasonably be postponed until every administrative disagreement is resolved.

I am asking for:

1. Immediate access to food and essential supplies.

2. Access to my money and a clear explanation of any restrictions affecting my financial independence.

3. A working means of communication, including access to a phone.

4. Safe and suitable accommodation, with practical assistance to leave if that is my choice.

5. Appropriate disability support that respects my dignity, rights and decisions.

6. Assistance to care for my dog, Crystal.

7. Preservation of all relevant records, including support notes, incident reports, financial decisions, communications, transport records, police communications and any records concerning a proposed welfare check or hospital transfer.

8. Independent examination of the conduct and decisions of the people and organisations responsible.

9. Written explanations of decisions that have affected my safety, finances, accommodation, support and freedom of choice.

10. Accountability wherever misconduct, neglect, discrimination, abuse of authority or other unlawful conduct is established.

A DEMAND FOR INDEPENDENT ACCOUNTABILITY

I want answers supported by records, not rehearsed explanations.

I want independent scrutiny, not institutional self-protection.

I want practical assistance, not another referral that leaves the underlying problem unresolved.

I want the evidence preserved, examined and assessed fairly.

If misconduct, corruption, collusion, retaliation, neglect or abuse of authority has occurred, those responsible must be held accountable through the appropriate legal and regulatory processes.

I am not asking for special treatment.

I am asking for the ordinary necessities of human life and the rights that should accompany them.

I should not have to reach the point of public desperation before someone recognises that a human being needs help.

THE CENTRAL QUESTION FOR EVERY PERSON IN AUTHORITY

Why does a disabled person have to climb over a fence to get away from circumstances in which he says he has no food, no phone and no money?

Why is a person who is asking for help still having to fight for the basic things that support systems are supposed to help protect?

Why has the burden of documenting, explaining and pursuing alleged failures fallen so heavily upon the person who says he has been harmed?

Who is independently examining the decisions of those entrusted with his care and support?

And why has the immediate humanitarian crisis not been resolved?

I refuse to accept that vulnerability means powerlessness, that disability means diminished dignity, or that asking for accountability makes someone undeserving of compassion.

I am still here.

I am still asking.

I am still documenting.

And I still want to live.

MY POSITION IS SIMPLE:

I WANT FOOD. I WANT ACCESS TO MY MONEY. I WANT A PHONE. I WANT SAFETY. I WANT APPROPRIATE SUPPORT. I WANT TO BE ABLE TO LEAVE AN UNSUITABLE LIVING ARRANGEMENT. I WANT TO CARE FOR CRYSTAL. I WANT MY INDEPENDENCE. I WANT THE TRUTH EXAMINED. I WANT ACCOUNTABILITY.

I AM NOT SUICIDAL. I AM PROTESTING BECAUSE I WANT TO LIVE.

TIME IS THE WITNESS. TRUTH IS THE JUDGE.

PRESERVATION FIRST. EXAMINATION SECOND. CONCLUSION LAST.

IMPORTANT — PLEASE DO NOT WAIT FOR THE STATEMENT TO BE READ BEFORE SEEKING HELP. If you are still without food, a phone or money, approach a staffed public place and ask someone to help you contact emergency services or an appropriate support service. If you are in immediate danger, call 000. You can say clearly that you want to live and need practical assistance.

URGENT STATEMENT — WHY I LEFT

1 NOVEMBER 2026

Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Dr Barran Dodger

I LEFT BECAUSE I HAD NO FOOD, NO PHONE AND NO MONEY.

I reached a point where I felt I had no practical means of looking after myself or resolving my circumstances. I was frightened that police were about to conduct a welfare check and that I would be taken to hospital rather than have the immediate problems I was reporting addressed.

I therefore climbed over the back fence and left.

I want it understood why I did this. I was trying to get out of circumstances in which I felt trapped, without access to the basic necessities of life and without confidence that asking for help would result in practical assistance.

I AM NOT SUICIDAL. I AM PROTESTING BECAUSE I WANT TO LIVE.

I do not regard a situation in which a disabled person has no food, no access to a phone, no money and no realistic means of leaving as an acceptable care arrangement.

I am deeply concerned that psychiatric intervention could be used in place of properly addressing the material circumstances I have repeatedly raised. I describe this as psychiatric weaponisation because I fear that my distress and protests may be treated as a psychiatric problem rather than prompting an examination of why I have been left without essential support.

I further allege that the circumstances raise serious questions about institutional entrapment, failures of safeguarding and possible institutional complicity. I want those concerns independently investigated.

I also want any police involvement examined objectively. If police were contacted, what information were they given? What was the stated purpose of the proposed welfare check? Was there an actual and documented immediate safety concern? Were my wishes and circumstances accurately represented? Were alternatives to hospital transport considered?

I am not declaring that police corruption or a criminal offence has been legally established. I am demanding that any misconduct, improper influence, misuse of authority or failure to protect be investigated against the available evidence.

A welfare response should not become a substitute for food, money, safe accommodation, disability support and respect for a person's autonomy.

The fundamental question is this:

HOW DOES A DISABLED PERSON END UP HAVING TO CLIMB OVER A FENCE TO ESCAPE CIRCUMSTANCES IN WHICH HE SAYS HE HAS NO FOOD, NO PHONE AND NO MONEY — AND WHY WAS THE UNDERLYING HUMANITARIAN CRISIS NOT RESOLVED FIRST?

I want safety. I want food. I want access to my money. I want communication. I want appropriate assistance and the freedom to make decisions about where I live.

I want the records preserved, the decisions examined and those responsible for any proven misconduct held accountable.

I want to live. I want to be safe. I want to be treated as a human being.

THE MOST BRUTAL INJUSTICE — A STATEMENT OF HUMAN DIGNITY, ACCOUNTABILITY AND THE RIGHT TO LIVE

Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Dr Barran Dodger

I AM NOT SUICIDAL. I AM PROTESTING BECAUSE I WANT TO LIVE.

The most brutal injustice in my circumstances is that I am a disabled person who says he needs support to live safely and independently, yet I find myself having to fight for the very necessities that support systems are supposed to help secure: food, money, accommodation, transport, safety, dignity and the freedom to make decisions about my own life.

I should not have to beg to leave somewhere I say I cannot safely or sustainably remain. I should not have to plead for access to the resources I need to feed myself, care for my dog, obtain essential items or arrange somewhere suitable to live. I should not have to depend on the goodwill of people whose decisions and conduct I am asking to have independently examined.

The contradiction is extraordinary: I am seeking assistance from systems and organisations entrusted with supporting people with disabilities, yet I describe being left struggling to obtain the basic practical assistance necessary to survive and move forward.

And while I am trying to explain what is happening, I feel that my complaints, my persistence and even my attempts to preserve evidence have become a greater concern to some people than the circumstances I am asking them to investigate.

Why is the person asking for help being made to carry the burden of the system's alleged failures?

Why must I repeatedly explain that I need food, financial access, transport, accommodation and safety? Why must I document my own circumstances so extensively just to have my concerns taken seriously? Why should a disabled person have to become his own investigator, advocate, archivist and legal researcher simply to obtain an adequate response from people and institutions with far greater resources and authority?

If multiple people have acted against me, then their conduct, decisions, communications and motivations should be examined against the evidence. What legitimate safety concern was identified? What records support the decisions made? Were appropriate procedures followed? Were my rights, choices and basic needs respected? Or did the handling of my complaints become more about protecting organisational interests and reputations than resolving the problems I reported?

I believe serious questions must be asked of the leadership responsible for these arrangements. Leadership is not simply a position of authority. It carries obligations of honesty, accountability, safeguarding, transparency and care. If those obligations have been neglected, concealed or breached, the matter deserves independent investigation. If misconduct, corruption, collusion, neglect or abuse of authority is established, those responsible must be held accountable.

I am particularly disturbed by the apparent imbalance of power. Organisations have policies, personnel, records, legal representatives and institutional authority. I am one person trying to make my circumstances understood while seeking the practical means to live with dignity. That imbalance makes independent oversight essential. An organisation cannot resolve legitimate questions simply by dismissing the person raising them.

My disability should never be used to diminish the credibility of my testimony. My distress should not become an excuse to avoid examining evidence. My persistence should not be confused with wrongdoing. And my demand for accountability should not be treated as a threat merely because it is uncomfortable.

I am not asking for special treatment. I am asking for the ordinary necessities of human life and the rights that should accompany them.

I want food. I want access to my money. I want appropriate support. I want safe, suitable accommodation. I want to be able to leave an arrangement that I believe is unsuitable. I want to maintain my independence, care for Crystal and live without having to fight every day for basic necessities.

The greatest injustice is not that I keep asking for help. It is that I say I keep needing to ask.

The question for every person in a position of responsibility is not, "Why does he keep complaining?"

It is:

Why does he still need to fight for the basic things that our systems are supposed to help protect?

Why is a disabled person having to publicly plead for food, safety, dignity and the practical freedom to rebuild his life?

Why has the burden of documenting, explaining and pursuing alleged failures fallen so heavily upon the person who says he has been harmed?

And who is independently examining the decisions of those entrusted with his care and support?

I want answers supported by records, not rehearsed explanations. I want independent scrutiny, not institutional self-protection. I want practical assistance, not another referral that leaves the underlying problem unresolved.

I refuse to accept that vulnerability means powerlessness, that disability means diminished dignity, or that asking for accountability makes someone undeserving of compassion.

I am still here. I am still asking. I am still documenting. And I still want to live.

I should not have to reach the point of public desperation before someone recognises that a human being needs help.

Time is the witness. Truth is the judge.

PRESERVATION FIRST. EXAMINATION SECOND. CONCLUSION LAST.

YOUR LEADERSHIP MUST ANSWER FOR WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

When leaders allow a vulnerable disabled person to be isolated, financially restricted, deprived of basic necessities, denied meaningful assistance and left struggling to find a way to safety, while those responsible for providing support appear to face no meaningful accountability, serious questions arise about the integrity of that leadership. I say plainly: I believe the leadership has demonstrated corruption of responsibility, judgment and conscience. No decent, healthy or properly functioning organisation should gang up on a vulnerable person, turn against them, discredit their complaints or leave them struggling to survive simply because they speak out. If multiple people are acting against one vulnerable person, the obvious question is: what legitimate risk did that person actually pose, and what evidence supports the way they were treated? Was there a genuine, documented safety concern, or was the person's vulnerability and inability to defend themselves being used against them? I demand that the leaders answer those questions with records, evidence and independent scrutiny — not excuses, silence or another attempt to make the complainant the problem. If corruption, collusion, misconduct or abuse of authority has occurred, it must be investigated and those responsible must be held accountable. The vulnerable person should not be made to carry the consequences of leadership failure.

I AM ASKING FOR HELP TO LEAVE AN UNSAFE AND UNSUSTAINABLE SITUATION. I AM ASKING FOR FOOD, SAFETY, FINANCIAL ACCESS, INDEPENDENT SUPPORT AND A REALISTIC PATHWAY TO INDEPENDENCE.

PLEASE DO NOT LET THIS APPEAL DISAPPEAR INTO ANOTHER ADMINISTRATIVE PROCESS.

I am asking people who can help to take this situation seriously. I report that I am struggling to obtain food and necessities, that my financial circumstances restrict my ability to leave my current accommodation, and that I have experienced repeated difficulties obtaining practical support, transport, communication and independent assistance.

I am not asking for luxury. I am asking for the basic means to live.

I AM NOT SUICIDAL. I AM PROTESTING BECAUSE I WANT TO LIVE.

The full SOS appeal is published here:

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/the-1-november-sos

The wider public testimony and archive are here:

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/

Immediate requests:

- Please help me obtain food and essential groceries.
- Please help ensure my companion dog Crystal has food and appropriate care.
- Please help me obtain access to my money and essential banking facilities.
- Please help me secure safe, accessible accommodation where I can live with Crystal.
- Please help arrange independent disability advocacy and legal assistance.
- Please ensure reports of threats and safeguarding concerns are properly assessed.
- Please help me leave circumstances that I say I cannot safely or financially sustain.

I am asking for practical assistance first. Accountability must follow, but a person who says they have no food cannot be expected to wait for a lengthy investigation before someone helps them eat.

1. THE INJUSTICE OF BEGGING TO LEAVE A PLACE WHERE YOU HAVE NO FOOD

There is a particular injustice in having to beg other people to help you leave somewhere when you do not have the money, food, transport, independent support or practical freedom necessary to leave by yourself.

I am asking to leave circumstances that I say are unsuitable and unsustainable. Yet I report that I do not have the financial means to organise that departure independently. I report that I have struggled to obtain food and necessities, that access to my money and banking has been restricted, and that the support arrangements I depend upon have not provided the practical assistance I need.

This creates an intolerable contradiction.

I am told, in principle, that I should exercise choice and control, make decisions, pursue independence and take responsibility for my future. But how can a disabled person exercise meaningful choice when they cannot afford to leave? How can they organise a move when they cannot reliably access their money? How can they arrange transport when they depend on others? How can they seek alternative accommodation when they are already struggling to obtain food?

Independence is not meaningful when the person has no practical means to exercise it.

The injustice becomes even more serious when the person asking for help believes that organisational leaders are protecting people whose conduct should instead be independently examined.

I allege that serious concerns about the conduct of people in positions of responsibility have not received the independent scrutiny I have repeatedly sought. I allege that complaints and safeguarding concerns have been met with barriers, restricted communication, inaction or responses that have not resolved the underlying problems.

I cannot declare that any particular leader has knowingly protected a criminally liable person without an independent investigation and findings. But I can demand that the question be examined.

If a person in authority knows that a disabled participant is reporting deprivation, neglect, threats, financial restriction or an inability to leave, that person should not simply protect an organisation's reputation or defer to the people whose conduct is being questioned. They should ensure the concerns are recorded, assessed, escalated and independently reviewed where appropriate.

The public must be able to ask: who is protecting the person who needs help, and who is protecting the organisation from scrutiny?

If the evidence establishes that any individual knowingly concealed wrongdoing, obstructed a lawful investigation, retaliated against a protected disclosure, misused authority or participated in criminal conduct, that evidence should be referred to the appropriate independent authority.

The most immediate injustice is simpler and more urgent: I should not have to beg to leave a place where I report having no food, while the people and institutions with the power to help debate responsibility, refer me elsewhere or leave me waiting.

I should not have to prove an entire history of institutional failure before someone helps me obtain food.

I should not have to produce thousands of pages of documentary material to establish that a human being needs to eat.

I should not have to become a forensic archivist of my own suffering to receive basic human assistance.

Food is not a reward for winning a complaint. Safety is not conditional upon proving every allegation. Human dignity is not something a disabled person must earn.

2. THE CENTRAL ALLEGATION: DEPENDENCE HAS BECOME A BARRIER TO ESCAPE

I entered disability support arrangements because I needed assistance, stability, safety and the opportunity to live a more independent life.

I did not enter them to surrender my humanity, lose meaningful control over my circumstances or become dependent on organisations I feel unable to challenge.

I describe the cumulative effect of financial restrictions, accommodation difficulties, unreliable assistance, barriers to transport, communication problems and unresolved complaints as a form of practical entrapment.

I am not claiming that every financial restriction, support disagreement or accommodation problem automatically constitutes unlawful imprisonment. The legal question requires evidence of the particular decisions, powers, actions and consequences involved.

But the practical circumstances deserve urgent examination.

The questions are:

- Who made the decisions that affected my access to money?
- What legal authority was relied upon?
- Were my needs, wishes and circumstances properly considered?
- Were the restrictions necessary and proportionate?
- Were less restrictive alternatives considered?
- Did anyone assess the consequences for my access to food, transport, communication and accommodation?
- Were my complaints and requests for assistance properly recorded?
- Did the provider meet its safeguarding and incident-management responsibilities?

- Did any person benefit from maintaining arrangements that left me dependent?
- Why have I continued to struggle to obtain a safe and practical pathway out?

If people knew I was struggling to obtain food and essential necessities, their knowledge, responsibilities and responses should be independently examined.

A person's disability must never become an opportunity for another person to exercise unnecessary power over their life.

3. WHAT I AM REPORTING ABOUT ABLE POINT

My concerns about Able Point relate to the delivery of disability supports, communication, safeguarding, incident management, transport, accommodation, and the practical assistance I say I need to remain safe and independent.

I have identified management and workers in my testimony, including people referred to as Rachel, Cass/Cassandra, Danny, John and others. Their names are included because I want the relevant decisions and communications examined. Naming a person in this statement is not a finding that they committed an offence.

I report concerns including:

- Requests for assistance that I say were refused, delayed or left unresolved.
- Difficulties obtaining reliable transport and community access.
- Concerns about whether reports of threats were properly documented and escalated.
- Communication difficulties with workers and management.
- Concerns about the handling of complaints and safeguarding issues.
- A feeling that I have been left dependent on a service arrangement that I cannot practically escape.
- Concern that organisational decision-makers have not provided an adequate independent response to my complaints.

I have also described an incident on 27 October 2026 in which I say a support worker told me that transport could not be provided because there was insufficient petrol and because the worker feared losing their employment. I want the relevant support notes, transport records, communications and any recording of that interaction preserved and independently examined.

I ask that the provider's records be checked against my account. This should include:

- Rosters and attendance records.
- Support notes and progress notes.

- Transport logs and cancelled-service records.
- Incident reports and reportable-incident assessments.
- Internal emails, messages and management communications.
- Complaints registers and responses.
- Risk assessments and safeguarding plans.
- Service agreements and any changes to agreed supports.
- Records of decisions affecting access to food, essential support and community participation.

The question is not whether a provider agrees with my interpretation. The question is whether the original records support or contradict the events I have reported, and whether the provider complied with its legal and contractual responsibilities.

I want the records preserved before they are altered, lost or destroyed.

4. THE LEGAL OBLIGATIONS THAT REQUIRE EXAMINATION

The following laws and frameworks are relevant to the issues I raise. Their inclusion does not mean a breach has already been legally established. It identifies the standards against which the evidence should be examined.

A. National Disability Insurance Scheme Act 2013 (Cth)

https://www.legislation.gov.au/C2013A00020/latest/text

Relevant provisions include:

- Section 73F — conditions of registration.
- Section 73V — compliance with the NDIS Code of Conduct.
- Section 73W — complaints management by registered NDIS providers.
- Section 73Y — incident management systems.
- Section 73Z — reportable incidents.

These provisions are relevant to whether a provider had appropriate systems for complaints, incidents and safeguarding, and whether reportable incidents were handled as required.

I request examination of whether any reportable incident occurred, whether it was notified to the NDIS Commission where required, and whether the provider's incident-management system was properly applied.

B. NDIS Code of Conduct Rules 2018

https://www.legislation.gov.au/F2018L00629/latest/text

The Code requires NDIS providers and workers to act with respect for individual rights, provide supports safely and competently, act with integrity and transparency, raise and act on concerns, and take reasonable steps to prevent and respond to violence, exploitation, neglect and abuse.

The central question is whether the conduct I report is consistent with those obligations.

C. NDIS Incident Management and Reportable Incidents Rules 2018

https://www.legislation.gov.au/F2018L00633/latest/text

These rules concern the systems providers must maintain to identify, record, manage and respond to incidents, including reportable incidents.

I request an independent review of whether my reports were properly recorded, risk-assessed, escalated and responded to.

D. Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth)

https://www.legislation.gov.au/C2004A04426/latest/text

Relevant provisions include sections 5, 6 and 24, which concern direct discrimination, indirect discrimination and discrimination in the provision of goods, services and facilities.

The question is whether I have been treated less favourably, or subjected to unreasonable requirements or barriers, because of disability, and whether any applicable defence or exception applies.

E. Guardianship Act 1987 (NSW)

https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-1987-257

This Act is relevant to guardianship and decision-making arrangements in NSW. The actual orders, appointments and statutory powers applicable to my circumstances must be examined rather than assumed.

F. NSW Trustee and Guardian Act 2009

https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-2009-049

This Act is relevant to financial management and the responsibilities of the NSW Trustee and Guardian.

I request a review of decisions affecting my access to money, banking, living expenses and the practical ability to obtain food and arrange alternative accommodation.

G. NSW Mental Health Act 2007

https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-2007-008

This Act contains principles and safeguards relating to mental health care and treatment. My psychiatric history should not be used to avoid assessing the substance of a complaint or to assume that a report of wrongdoing is invalid.

A person's mental health history does not extinguish their right to make complaints, seek protection, access legal processes or have evidence assessed.

5. AUSTRALIA'S INTERNATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS OBLIGATIONS

Australia has ratified international human rights treaties relevant to disability, dignity, safety, equality, food, housing, health and protection from abuse.

These treaties establish international obligations for Australia. Not every treaty provision automatically creates a directly enforceable domestic legal claim. Nevertheless, they provide important standards for examining public administration, disability services, safeguarding and the treatment of people in vulnerable circumstances.

A. Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD)

https://www.ohchr.org/en/instruments-mechanisms/instruments/convention-rights-persons-disabilities

Relevant provisions include:

- Article 5 — Equality and non-discrimination.
- Article 10 — Right to life.
- Article 12 — Equal recognition before the law.
- Article 13 — Access to justice.
- Article 14 — Liberty and security of person.
- Article 16 — Freedom from exploitation, violence and abuse.
- Article 19 — Living independently and being included in the community.
- Article 25 — Health.
- Article 28 — Adequate standard of living and social protection.

Article 19 is particularly relevant to my request to leave circumstances I say are unsuitable and obtain accommodation and supports that enable genuine independence.

Article 28 is relevant to the concerns I raise about food, material hardship and an adequate standard of living.

Article 16 is relevant to the need for effective safeguarding against exploitation, violence and abuse.

B. International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR)

https://www.ohchr.org/en/instruments-mechanisms/instruments/international-covenant-civil-and-political-rights

Relevant provisions include:

- Article 6 — Right to life.
- Article 7 — Protection from torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment.
- Article 9 — Liberty and security of person.
- Article 16 — Recognition as a person before the law.
- Article 17 — Protection against arbitrary or unlawful interference with privacy and family.
- Article 19 — Freedom of expression.
- Article 26 — Equality before the law and equal protection.

C. International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR)

https://www.ohchr.org/en/instruments-mechanisms/instruments/international-covenant-economic-social-and-cultural-rights

Relevant provisions include:

- Article 6 — Right to work.
- Article 11 — Adequate standard of living, including adequate food and housing.
- Article 12 — Highest attainable standard of physical and mental health.

Article 11 is especially relevant to my report that I am struggling to obtain food and that financial restrictions are affecting my ability to secure basic necessities.

D. Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment

https://www.ohchr.org/en/instruments-mechanisms/instruments/convention-against-torture-and-other-cruel-inhuman-or-degrading-treatment-or-punishment

Relevant provisions include Articles 2 and 16.

I do not claim that every instance of neglect, financial hardship or private-provider misconduct automatically constitutes torture or a violation of this Convention. The legal requirements are specific, including questions of state responsibility. I ask that the seriousness of the circumstances be assessed against applicable human rights standards.

6. THE NDIS COMMISSION: THE SAFEGUARDING QUESTIONS

I have raised concerns about the response of the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission.

I want the Commission's handling of my complaints examined, including whether it properly assessed the substance of the allegations, considered the evidence, identified any urgent safeguarding risks and explained the available review processes.

I understand that the Commission has statutory powers and procedures and that not every complaint necessarily results in a formal investigation or the outcome sought by a complainant.

But I am entitled to ask for a clear explanation of what was considered, what action was taken, what was referred elsewhere and why.

I request examination of:

- Whether the Commission received and recorded the relevant complaints.
- Whether it assessed any alleged neglect, abuse, exploitation or reportable incident.
- Whether it considered the impact of financial and practical dependence.
- Whether it assessed the reported difficulties obtaining food and essential supports.
- Whether it examined the provider's incident-management records.
- Whether it considered the reported threats and any duty to escalate them.
- Whether it communicated its decisions in an accessible and understandable way.
- Whether any review or reconsideration mechanism remains available.

The Commission's official website is:

https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/

The relevant legislation is:

https://www.legislation.gov.au/C2013A00020/latest/text

A safeguarding system must be capable of recognising the difference between an administrative disagreement and a person reporting that they cannot obtain food, cannot leave their accommodation and cannot secure the assistance they need.

7. POLICE, REPORTED THREATS AND THE REQUEST FOR AN INDEPENDENT CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION

I have reported concerns about threats to my safety and other conduct that I believe warrants police attention.

I want to distinguish between asking police to conduct a welfare check and asking police to assess a criminal complaint. They are not interchangeable.

My request is that any reports of threats, intimidation, assault, suspected criminal conduct or evidence of wrongdoing be assessed on their actual content and supporting material.

I am not asking police to arrest anyone merely because I have made an allegation. I am asking them to determine whether there is evidence of an offence, whether an investigation is warranted and whether any protective action is necessary.

I request that police:

- Record my complaint and provide an event or reference number.
- Identify the specific allegations they have assessed.
- Preserve any relevant recordings, messages, correspondence and other evidence.
- Obtain relevant provider records where lawfully available.
- Assess any reported threats and immediate safety risks.
- Explain in writing any decision not to investigate or refer a matter.
- Identify any available review or complaint pathway.

Relevant legislation includes:

Crimes Act 1900 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-1900-040

Crimes (Domestic and Personal Violence) Act 2007 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-2007-080

Section 13 of the latter Act concerns stalking or intimidation with intent to cause fear of physical or mental harm. Whether it applies depends on the actual conduct and evidence.

Police Act 1990 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-1990-047

Law Enforcement Conduct Commission (LECC) https://www.lecc.nsw.gov.au/complaints

LECC Act 2016 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-2016-061

The LECC is an oversight body for serious police misconduct and maladministration. It can assess complaints and determine the appropriate response, but not every complaint results in a full investigation.

I request that any allegation of police misconduct be assessed by the appropriate independent oversight body.

8. THE NSW OMBUDSMAN AND ACCESS TO COMPLAINT MECHANISMS

I report that I have experienced restrictions or barriers in communicating with the NSW Ombudsman.

I want the precise nature of those restrictions examined. It is important to establish whether the matter involved a formal restriction, a direction about communication, a decision not to deal with further correspondence, or another administrative arrangement.

I request a written explanation of:

- The decision made.
- The statutory or policy basis relied upon.
- The person or office responsible for the decision.
- The reasons and evidence considered.
- The duration and scope of the restriction.
- Any review date or reconsideration process.
- How urgent safeguarding information can still be submitted.
- What accessible alternative communication arrangements are available.

Relevant legislation:

Ombudsman Act 1974 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-1974-068

The NSW Ombudsman's policy on unreasonable conduct by complainants is also relevant:

https://cmsassets.ombo.nsw.gov.au/assets/Resources/Policies/NSW-Ombudsman-Managing-Unreasonable-Conduct-by-Complainants-Policy.pdf

The existence of a communication restriction does not, by itself, establish that the restriction is unlawful. However, its authority, proportionality, review arrangements and effect on urgent complaints deserve examination.

A person should not be left without a workable way to report an immediate safeguarding concern simply because an organisation has restricted ordinary correspondence.

9. LEGAL AID NSW AND ACCESS TO JUSTICE

I report that I have experienced significant barriers to obtaining assistance from Legal Aid NSW, which I have described as being banned or excluded.

The precise legal and administrative status needs to be established from the relevant written correspondence. A refusal of a particular grant, a decision about eligibility, a restriction concerning a particular service or practitioner, and a formal exclusion are not necessarily the same thing.

I request a written explanation of:

- The exact decision made.
- The decision-maker and date.
- The legal or policy basis.
- Whether the decision can be reviewed or appealed.
- Whether an alternative legal service can be provided.
- How urgent safeguarding, disability and financial-management issues can be referred for advice.

Relevant links:

Legal Aid Commission Act 1979 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-1979-078

Legal Aid NSW — Appealing a Legal Aid decision https://www.legalaid.nsw.gov.au/ways-to-get-help/appeal-legal-aid-decision

Legal Aid NSW https://www.legalaid.nsw.gov.au/

I am asking for access to independent legal advice, not preferential treatment. I want to understand my rights, the available remedies and the proper processes for having my complaints assessed.

10. NSW TRUSTEE AND GUARDIAN: FINANCIAL AUTONOMY AND THE ABILITY TO SURVIVE

I have raised concerns about financial management arrangements and their practical consequences.

I have reported restrictions affecting my access to banking and my ability to use my money independently. I have also described financial circumstances in which ordinary expenses leave me with little or no practical capacity to arrange alternative accommodation, transport or necessities.

I have previously provided figures concerning my income, rent, allowances and other outgoings. Those figures should be checked against current statements and formal financial records before being relied upon as a final calculation.

The central issue is not simply how much money appears in a budget. It is whether the arrangements allow me to meet essential needs, maintain dignity and exercise the maximum practical independence permitted by the relevant legal orders.

I request:

- A complete and comprehensible statement of income and expenditure.
- An explanation of every deduction, fee, debt repayment and allowance decision.
- A review of whether my basic needs, including food and essential items, are being met.
- An explanation of restrictions on online banking and access to my accounts.
- An assessment of whether the current arrangements are necessary and proportionate.
- Consideration of my wishes and preferences.
- A realistic plan to restore as much financial independence as lawfully possible.
- An urgent review of whether I have sufficient money for food and other necessities.

Relevant legislation:

NSW Trustee and Guardian Act 2009 https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-2009-049

Guardianship Act 1987 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-1987-257

I am not asking for financial decisions to be made without regard to the law. I am asking that the law be applied in a way that properly recognises my needs, wishes, dignity and right to live.

A financial-management arrangement should not leave a person without the practical means to obtain food or escape unsuitable accommodation.

11. THE WHISTLEBLOWER AND PUBLIC INTEREST DISCLOSURE QUESTIONS

I have repeatedly described myself as a whistleblower and have raised concerns about the treatment of my complaints and disclosures.

Whether a particular disclosure is legally protected depends on the applicable legislation, the subject matter, the recipient, the person's status and the procedural requirements.

The following laws may be relevant to particular disclosures if their requirements are met.

Public Interest Disclosures Act 2022 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-2022-014

This Act contains protections and provisions concerning detrimental action against people who make qualifying public interest disclosures.

Public Interest Disclosure Act 2013 (Cth) https://www.legislation.gov.au/C2013A00133/latest/text

This Commonwealth Act applies to qualifying disclosures within its statutory scope.

I request that any allegation of retaliation, intimidation, disadvantage or detrimental treatment connected with a qualifying protected disclosure be assessed against the correct legislation.

I do not assume that every complaint I have made automatically qualifies for statutory whistleblower protection. I ask for the status of each relevant disclosure to be assessed individually.

12. POLITICAL LEADERSHIP AND PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

I have sought assistance and accountability through political and public institutions. I report that my efforts have not produced the practical intervention or independent scrutiny I believe is required.

I am asking elected representatives and senior public officials to consider the substance of my situation, not merely the administrative history of my correspondence.

The relevant questions include:

- Has a person with authority been informed that I report having difficulty obtaining food?
- Has anyone assessed whether my financial arrangements prevent me from leaving unsuitable accommodation?
- Have the relevant safeguarding complaints been referred to the correct independent bodies?
- Have the relevant agencies explained their decisions and review processes?
- Has anyone ensured that I can access independent advocacy?
- Have the risks to my safety and the welfare of Crystal been considered?
- Have any public officials failed to act on information they were legally required to address?

I cannot establish criminal complicity or corruption merely because a politician or official has not responded to my correspondence. But where evidence suggests misconduct, misuse of public office, improper influence or deliberate obstruction, the appropriate independent authority should assess it.

Relevant oversight and accountability bodies include:

Independent Commission Against Corruption (ICAC) https://www.icac.nsw.gov.au/reporting

ICAC Act 1988 (NSW) https://legislation.nsw.gov.au/view/html/inforce/current/act-1988-035

Commonwealth Ombudsman https://www.ombudsman.gov.au/

NSW Ombudsman https://www.ombo.nsw.gov.au/

Australian Human Rights Commission https://humanrights.gov.au/

The question is not whether every public official must agree with my interpretation. The question is whether every relevant complaint has been handled lawfully, impartially and with proper regard to the evidence and the immediate human consequences.

13. THE MEDIA AND THE PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO EXAMINE EVIDENCE

I have attempted to bring my experiences and documentary archive to public attention.

I am disappointed by the lack of media attention I believe the issues warrant. I cannot claim that a media organisation's decision not to publish a story is, by itself, unlawful or proof of a coordinated media ban.

However, I can invite journalists, researchers and editors to examine the primary documents and independently assess whether the matters raise a legitimate public-interest issue.

I ask media organisations to distinguish between:

- The existence of official documents.
- What those documents actually establish.
- My personal testimony.
- Allegations that require further investigation.
- Conclusions that only a court, tribunal or independent authority can make.

Relevant organisations:

ABC Contact https://www.abc.net.au/contact/

Australian Press Council https://www.presscouncil.org.au/

Australian Communications and Media Authority https://www.acma.gov.au/

I am asking for responsible scrutiny, not uncritical acceptance. I want the evidence read, checked and challenged where necessary.

14. THE SERIOUSNESS OF REPORTED THREATS AND SAFEGUARDING FAILURES

I have reported threats to my safety and concerns about whether those reports were appropriately acted upon.

I want the original material examined, including any messages, recordings, witness accounts, police reports, provider notes and correspondence.

I ask investigators to determine:

- What exactly was reported?
- Who received the report?
- When did they receive it?
- What risk assessment was undertaken?
- Was the matter referred to police or another appropriate authority?
- Were any statutory reporting obligations triggered?

- Were relevant records preserved?
- Was I given an explanation of what action was taken?

I also ask that any allegation of intimidation, retaliation or deliberate interference with my ability to seek protection be assessed against the applicable law.

I do not want speculation to substitute for investigation. I want evidence examined and appropriate findings made.

15. THE ETHICAL FAILURE: PEOPLE ARE NOT ADMINISTRATIVE FILES

The following principles should guide every organisation and individual entrusted with supporting a disabled person.

Dignity: A disabled person must be treated as a human being, not as a problem to be managed.

Autonomy: Support should increase a person's ability to make decisions and exercise control over their life.

Non-maleficence: Professionals should take reasonable steps to avoid preventable harm.

Beneficence: Services should act to promote the welfare and interests of the people they support.

Justice: People with disabilities should not be subjected to inferior treatment or denied meaningful access to services and protection.

Integrity: Workers and management should act honestly, transparently and accountably.

Safeguarding: Reports of abuse, neglect, threats and exploitation should be appropriately assessed and addressed.

Continuity of support: A person should not be left without essential assistance because organisations disagree about responsibility.

Accountability: Organisational reputation must never be treated as more important than the safety and rights of the person receiving services.

The ethical issue is particularly serious when a person depends on an organisation for daily living assistance and cannot easily replace that support.

The more dependent a person is, the greater the importance of transparent decision-making, appropriate safeguards and accessible complaints processes.

16. THE PEOPLE WHO SHOULD BE HELD ACCOUNTABLE — IF THE EVIDENCE ESTABLISHES WRONGDOING

I am asking for the conduct of relevant individuals to be examined according to their actual responsibilities and the evidence available.

This includes:

- The directors and senior management of Able Point.
- The CEO and managers responsible for service delivery and complaints.
- Support coordinators and workers involved in the events I have reported.
- People responsible for recording, escalating or responding to safeguarding concerns.
- Public officials responsible for relevant decisions.
- Any financial decision-makers whose actions affected my access to essential funds.
- Any person who received credible information about threats or serious risks and had a relevant duty to act.

The questions are not about personal dislike or disagreement. They are about decisions, knowledge, duties, actions, omissions and consequences.

If a person acted properly, the evidence should establish that.

If a person made an error, the evidence should establish what happened and what remedy is required.

If a person knowingly breached a legal duty, concealed wrongdoing, retaliated against a protected disclosure or participated in criminal conduct, that should be referred to the appropriate authority.

No executive title, professional position, government appointment or organisational reputation should place a person beyond lawful scrutiny.

Equally, no person should be publicly declared criminally liable without evidence and due process.

17. THE PARTICULAR INJUSTICE OF BEING LEFT TO BEG

I want this issue stated plainly because it is at the heart of my current humanitarian appeal.

I am asking to leave circumstances that I believe are harming my wellbeing and undermining my independence. Yet I report that I do not have sufficient financial freedom to organise that departure, and I am struggling to obtain food and basic necessities.

I am left asking other people to help me do something that a person with ordinary financial independence might be able to organise themselves: leave an unsuitable living arrangement.

That is the injustice.

I should not have to beg for permission, transport, money, food or basic assistance while trying to escape circumstances I cannot sustain.

I should not have to rely exclusively on the cooperation of the same arrangements I am asking to have independently examined.

I should not be required to negotiate my way out of dependency with people whose decisions and conduct form part of my complaint.

And I should not have to watch leaders protect organisational processes, reputations or personnel while my immediate needs remain unresolved.

To be absolutely clear: I am not asking anyone to prejudge the criminal liability of a worker, manager or public official. I am asking that the possibility of misconduct be independently examined and that any person found responsible be held accountable through lawful processes.

But the humanitarian response cannot wait for that investigation.

If I have no food, the immediate answer must be food. If I cannot safely remain where I am, the immediate answer must be a safe alternative. If I cannot access my money, the immediate answer must be an urgent review of that restriction.

The response must not be another referral that leaves me in exactly the same circumstances.

18. WHAT I AM FORMALLY REQUESTING

I request the following actions as a matter of urgency.

A. Immediate humanitarian assistance

- Food and groceries for me.
- Food and appropriate care for Crystal.
- Assistance obtaining essential medication and health care.
- Practical help with transport and essential communication.
- Assistance with urgent living expenses.

B. A safe exit pathway

- An independent assessment of my current accommodation.
- Help securing accessible, stable accommodation that accommodates Crystal.
- A practical relocation plan.
- Assistance arranging transport and essential belongings.
- Support that does not depend solely on the organisation whose conduct I have complained about.

C. Financial independence and transparency

- A clear written account of my finances.
- An explanation of restrictions affecting my banking.
- An urgent assessment of whether I have enough money for food and necessities.
- Review of relevant financial-management decisions.
- A plan to restore the greatest lawful degree of independence.

D. Independent disability advocacy

- An advocate independent of Able Point.
- Assistance communicating with the NDIS Commission.
- Assistance reviewing provider decisions and support records.
- Help obtaining accessible information about my rights and available remedies.

E. Independent investigation

- Assessment of reported threats.
- Examination of relevant provider records.
- Review of incident-management and safeguarding responses.
- Preservation of communications, recordings and support notes.

- Assessment of any conduct that may amount to an offence.
- Referral to the appropriate independent authority where evidence warrants it.

F. Accountability and procedural fairness

- Written reasons for decisions affecting my rights and access to services.
- Clear complaint and review pathways.
- Accessible communication arrangements.
- Independent assessment of any alleged retaliation or obstruction.
- A response that addresses the actual evidence rather than dismissing my concerns because of my disability or psychiatric history.

19. THE DOCUMENTARY AND SPIRITUAL RECORD — THE WITNESS REMAINS

My public website, The Witness Remains — The Cosmic Reckoning, brings together my personal testimony, spiritual writings, documentary archive, legal material and humanitarian appeal.

The website uses a spiritual and prophetic framework to explore suffering, survival, faith, truth, accountability and the passage of time.

Those spiritual interpretations are my personal beliefs. They are distinct from independently established legal findings.

The central principle guiding my documentary work is:

PRESERVATION FIRST. EXAMINATION SECOND. CONCLUSION LAST.

The significant pages include:

1. The main website — The Witness Remains: The Cosmic Reckoning

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/

This is the central landing page for the testimony, declarations, SOS appeals, archive and related writings.

2. The 1 November 2026 Urgent SOS — Please Come Get Me

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/the-1-november-sos

This is the full humanitarian appeal. It addresses the reported lack of food, financial restrictions, difficulty leaving current circumstances, need for safety and requests for independent assistance.

3. The Able Point Accountability Dossier

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/the-able-point-dossier

This page presents the concerns about disability support, provider conduct, safeguarding, management responsibilities and the need for independent scrutiny.

4. The Legal Brief — 23 October 2026

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/the-legal-brief

This is a legal and accountability document identifying relevant legal frameworks, alleged institutional failures and matters requiring examination.

5. Documents That Open These Words

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/documents-that-open-these-words

This page directs readers towards documentary material supporting the testimony. The original documents, rather than summaries or interpretations, should be examined wherever possible.

6. The Final Reckoning — Testimony and the Divine Reckoning

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/the-final-reckoning-testimony

This page develops the wider themes of survival, testimony, moral responsibility, faith and accountability.

7. The Cosmic Reckoning — The Wider Declaration

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/

The main site also links to the declarations, the Justice Mandate, the Sovereign Witness, the Gospels, the Church and other spiritual and documentary writings.

8. The Barran Dodger Documentary Archive

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger

This repository is the wider documentary archive.

9. Official Government Documents Register

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/official-government-documents-register.html

This register provides a route for examining official government documents and related records.

10. The Barran Dodger public record

https://barrandodgeredit.grok.me/record

This is another public record and testimony resource.

The existence of a published document does not automatically establish every interpretation made about it. The purpose of the archive is to enable examination, verification, comparison and scrutiny.

I invite readers to examine the original records and identify any factual errors or unsupported conclusions.

20. THE INSTITUTIONS AND AUTHORITIES BEING ASKED TO RESPOND

The following organisations are relevant to the issues raised. Their inclusion does not mean each organisation has committed wrongdoing.

NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/

NSW Police https://www.police.nsw.gov.au/

Law Enforcement Conduct Commission https://www.lecc.nsw.gov.au/complaints

NSW Ombudsman https://www.ombo.nsw.gov.au/

Legal Aid NSW https://www.legalaid.nsw.gov.au/

NSW Trustee and Guardian https://www.tag.nsw.gov.au/

Australian Human Rights Commission https://humanrights.gov.au/

Commonwealth Ombudsman https://www.ombudsman.gov.au/

Office of the Australian Information Commissioner https://www.oaic.gov.au/

Independent Commission Against Corruption NSW https://www.icac.nsw.gov.au/reporting

I request that each organisation deal with matters within its jurisdiction, provide accessible explanations and identify appropriate referral pathways where another authority is responsible.

21. FINAL STATEMENT — I AM ASKING TO LIVE

I am Dr Richard William McLean, publicly known as Dr Barran Dodger.

I am a disabled Australian who says he has spent years trying to obtain protection, appropriate support, financial autonomy, safe accommodation and accountability.

I have documented my experiences. I have preserved records. I have made complaints. I have asked for assistance. I have sought independent scrutiny.

And now I am asking for something that should never have become so difficult to obtain:

FOOD. SAFETY. DIGNITY. INDEPENDENCE. A WAY OUT.

There is something profoundly unjust about a disabled person having to beg to leave a place where they report having no food, while the people and institutions with the power to assist them fail to provide a clear, practical and independent pathway forward.

There is something profoundly wrong when a person who depends on others for daily support feels unable to challenge those arrangements without risking further isolation or loss of assistance.

There is something that deserves serious scrutiny when a person repeatedly raises safeguarding concerns and still reports being without the basic resources needed to live safely.

And there is something deeply disturbing about the possibility that organisational leaders may protect the people and processes under scrutiny rather than ensuring that the vulnerable person receives independent protection.

I want those allegations investigated. I want the evidence examined. I want any wrongdoing established through proper legal processes. I want people who have acted lawfully to have that recognised, and people who have breached their obligations to be held accountable.

But I also want the immediate human problem addressed.

I do not want another administrative referral that leaves me hungry.

I do not want another process that requires me to explain my circumstances repeatedly while nothing changes.

I do not want my financial dependence to become a permanent barrier to leaving unsuitable accommodation.

I do not want to be treated as though asking for help is itself a problem.

I am not asking to be controlled. I am asking to be supported.

I am not asking for luxury. I am asking for the means to survive.

I am not asking people to accept every allegation without examination. I am asking them to examine the evidence and respond to the immediate humanitarian need.

I am not asking for revenge. I am asking for justice, accountability and restoration.

I AM NOT SICK BECAUSE I AM ASKING QUESTIONS.

I AM NOT WRONG FOR WANTING FOOD, SAFETY AND FINANCIAL DIGNITY.

I AM NOT SUICIDAL. I AM PROTESTING BECAUSE I WANT TO LIVE.

I WANT TO LEAVE UNSUITABLE CIRCUMSTANCES. I WANT TO LIVE SAFELY. I WANT CRYSTAL TO BE SAFE. I WANT MY INDEPENDENCE BACK.

Time is the witness. Truth is the judge.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

22. IMPORTANT NOTE TO ANYONE WHO CAN HELP NOW

Please do not wait for a complete legal investigation before responding to an immediate need for food or safety.

If you can assist, please contact me through the published SOS page:

https://barran-dodger-krynos-timing-of-god.grok.me/the-1-november-sos

If there is an immediate threat to life or safety, contact 000 in Australia.

For independent disability advocacy and practical support, a person can also seek assistance through the official NDIS Commission website:

https://www.ndiscommission.gov.au/

For food and local emergency assistance, Ask Izzy provides a directory of support services:

https://askizzy.org.au/

PLEASE HELP ME REACH SAFETY. PLEASE HELP ME GET FOOD. PLEASE HELP ME LEAVE.

Evidentiary qualification: This document records personal testimony, reported experiences, allegations and requests for investigation. It is not a court judgment or a finding that any named person or organisation has committed an offence. Any question of criminal liability, statutory breach or professional misconduct must be determined by the appropriate independent authority on the evidence.

The SOS page and linked website contain the author's published testimony. I have summarised their principal themes and linked the relevant pages; this should not be read as independent verification of every statement on those pages. The Witness Remains +5
