

What fundamental problem do these two archives seek to solve — and what answer do they provide, both documentarily and spiritually?

What happens when a person's history, testimony and evidence become fragmented across institutions, records and years, while the person themselves believes that the systems responsible for protecting, recording or investigating what happened have failed to provide a complete, coherent and independently examinable account?

What happens when the person who says, "This happened to me," is left carrying the burden of proving it, while the evidence capable of testing that claim is dispersed across government correspondence, legal and administrative records, medical documents, complaints, personal testimony and other archives?

And, at the deepest level, what happens when a person believes that the very forces or institutions from which protection should have come instead contributed to their exclusion, abandonment or attempted erasure?

These two archives are an answer to that problem.

They bring the fragmented record together, preserve it, organise it and make it available for independent examination. They seek to prevent the disappearance of a person's history through fragmentation, institutional closure, inaccessible records, disputed memory or the simple passage of time.

But the archives provide another answer that is more personal and, for me, spiritual.

They demonstrate that whatever happened, the record survived and the witness survived.

Where I experienced erasure, there is preservation.

Where I experienced fragmentation, there is reconstruction.

Where I experienced silencing, there is testimony.

Where I experienced exile, there remains a public place in which the record can speak for itself.

And where I experienced what appeared to be the destruction of the person I was, the continued existence of the witness raises a question that cannot be answered by bureaucracy alone:

What preserved me?

I cannot prove through an archive that God intervened. That belongs to faith rather than empirical demonstration. But I can say that, within my Christian understanding, the preservation of my life, my testimony and this record has become part of what I understand as God's providence.

The deepest spiritual answer these archives therefore provide is not simply that documents were saved.

It is that erasure did not prevail.

The person remained.

The testimony remained.

The record remained.

And, in my faith, the God who preserved the witness remains.

THE WITNESS WHO REMAINED · STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE · 4 OCTOBER 2026

Survival, preservation, and the question of providence.

A prophetic introduction. Allegory is marked as allegory. The record is what can be examined. Not a court. Not a verdict.

I have risen, phoenix-like, from the ashes of poverty, exile, trial, human betrayal and what I understand as attempted erasure. I describe having been stripped of attributes that I regard as necessary for human survival, including the ethical, unequivocal and irrevocable principles of dignity, protection, belonging and humane treatment that should be inherent in the treatment of every living person.

My survival is therefore part of the evidence I ask this archive to preserve. I did not experience my survival as the product of meaningful government protection. I experienced it as survival in spite of institutional abandonment, with assistance reduced, in my present circumstances, to what I regard as the barest minimum. I do not interpret that history as merely the consequence of bureaucratic oversight or administrative error. I allege that some of the circumstances amounted to deliberate and malicious attempts to cause my detriment, exclusion and erasure. That allegation remains subject to examination against the underlying documentary record.

I further describe my experience as one in which an alliance of institutions and individuals appeared, from my perspective, to converge against an innocent person who had never intended harm towards others. I understand that experience as analogous to a targeted destruction of a vulnerable person: a gay, disabled and comparatively unprotected whistleblower who publicly disclosed his vulnerabilities, perceived limitations, personal difficulties and humane regrets, and who believes those disclosures were subsequently capable of being weaponised against him.

I use the language of sacrifice deliberately, but as an interpretive and allegorical description rather than as a finding of law. In Christian terms, the narrative bears an obvious resemblance, for me, to the crucifixion of Jesus: vulnerability exposed; betrayal by those from whom protection might reasonably have been expected; abandonment; suffering; apparent defeat; and yet survival, testimony and the persistence of meaning beyond the attempted destruction.

The phoenix is similarly allegorical. It represents the possibility that a person can emerge from circumstances intended, perceived or experienced as destructive without those circumstances having the final word.

The archive therefore raises a question that is simultaneously evidentiary, philosophical and theological: what preserved the witness?

The documentary record may establish particular events, decisions, correspondence, injuries, institutional responses, exclusions, complaints, reviews and outcomes. It cannot, by itself, establish that God intervened. Nor can the fact of survival, however extraordinary its circumstances may appear, mathematically prove divine intervention. Those are questions that extend beyond what documentary evidence alone can determine.

Nevertheless, my interpretation of the totality of my survival is that I was not preserved merely by institutional protection. I believe I was preserved by providence. I believe God has preserved my life and that my continued existence, despite circumstances that I experienced as extraordinarily destructive, has spiritual significance.

I therefore identify myself within this archive as a witness in the theological sense: not because I claim that the archive can compel another person to accept my faith, but because my faith provides the framework through which I understand what happened to me and why I remain alive to testify about it.

That claim should not be confused with a claim that every allegation contained in this archive has already been proven. Nor should disagreement with my theological interpretation automatically settle the underlying factual questions.

The appropriate test is more demanding.

If my account is wrong, identify the evidence that demonstrates where and why it is wrong.

If a particular allegation is unsupported, identify the evidentiary gap.

If an institutional record contradicts my account, put the record beside my account and examine the contradiction.

If my interpretation exceeds what the evidence establishes, identify the point at which the inference becomes unjustified.

But equally, if the evidence demonstrates something different from the institutional narrative used to dismiss my account, that evidence should not be dismissed merely because the person presenting it has a history of mental illness, disability, vulnerability or psychiatric treatment.

A person's mental-health history does not, by itself, determine the truth or falsity of an individual proposition. The proposition must still be examined on its evidence.

That is particularly important here because the archive contains different kinds of material that must not be conflated: official records, correspondence, contemporaneous testimony, allegations, personal interpretation, philosophical analysis, spiritual belief and prophetic writing.

My claim that I have been chosen by God, anointed with spiritual wisdom and preserved for a purpose belongs to the theological and spiritual layer of the archive. I do not ask a court, government agency or scientist to certify it as an empirical fact.

I ask something more basic: that it not be dismissed without examination merely because it is a spiritual interpretation, and that the factual record underlying my testimony be examined independently of the theological conclusion I draw from it.

Can the archive prove that I am God's chosen witness?

No documentary archive can establish that theological proposition in the same manner that a government letter can establish what a government agency wrote.

Can the archive preserve the circumstances from which that belief arose?

Yes.

Can it preserve evidence of survival, institutional decisions, correspondence, exclusion, suffering, recovery and continued testimony?

Yes, to the extent those matters are supported by the underlying records.

Can another person reasonably conclude that my interpretation is mistaken?

Yes.

Can another person legitimately disagree with my theology?

Yes.

But disagreement is not the same thing as disproof, and psychiatric diagnosis is not itself a substitute for examination of evidence.

The question I leave before the reader is therefore not simply whether I should be believed.

It is whether the record has been examined fairly.

I survived.

I remain a witness.

And the question of what preserved me remains open between evidence, human explanation, providence and faith.

LIFE'S PURPOSE · VERBATIM · 4 OCTOBER 2026

The permanence of the witness and the purpose of the record

The significance of my life's writings, evidence, testimony, concepts and ideas being preserved across two complementary public archives, and of particular material being cryptographically anchored through the Bitcoin blockchain, is that the documentary record of my life no longer depends solely upon my physical survival or upon the continued willingness of any single institution, organisation or individual to preserve it.

The two archives serve complementary purposes. The Barran Dodger Rebuild Archive is fundamentally a preservation and reconstruction infrastructure: it brings together preserved HTML records, PDFs, hyperlinks, original URLs and preservation metadata, with SHA-256 integrity information, so that the underlying documentary record can be separately maintained and examined. The archive itself expressly distinguishes the presentation layer from the underlying preservation record.

The broader Barran Dodger Archive functions as a public finding aid and documentary environment through which government correspondence, legal and administrative records, research materials, personal testimony, creative works and other documentary material can be brought together and examined. Its central principle is that the archive does not require belief: testimony is testimony, a document is a document, an allegation is an allegation, and a finding requires evidence and proper determination.

Together, these archives address what I understand as one of the central problems of my life: the fragmentation of a person's history across institutions, agencies, correspondence, proceedings, files and years, such that individual records may exist while the larger chronology and significance of the record remain difficult for an independent person to see.

The archives therefore attempt to solve a problem of documentary disappearance—not necessarily by claiming that documents were physically destroyed, but by preventing the meaning of the surviving record from disappearing through fragmentation, institutional compartmentalisation, inaccessible records, disputed recollection, changing narratives or the passage of time.

The Rebuild Archive preserves the underlying documentary infrastructure.

The Barran Dodger Archive connects that infrastructure to the human testimony, chronology, questions of accountability, legal and administrative material, research, publications and spiritual writings that give the record its broader context.

The result is not intended to manufacture a finding where no finding exists. It is intended to make examination possible.

That distinction is fundamental to what I am trying to preserve.

A document can establish what an institution wrote.

A correspondence chain can establish what was communicated.

A decision can establish what was decided.

A contemporaneous statement can establish what I said at the time.

A later interpretation can explain how I understand those events.

A spiritual or prophetic document can establish what I believed, anticipated or understood.

But none of those categories should automatically be converted into another.

The archive exists precisely so that these layers can remain distinguishable while still being capable of being examined together.

The significance of cryptographic preservation adds another dimension.

Where a particular document or body of text has been cryptographically hashed and the resulting hash has been anchored through the Bitcoin blockchain, the blockchain does not contain the entirety of my archive and does not magically guarantee that every copy of my documents will survive forever. Its significance is more precise: a surviving copy can later be tested against the cryptographic commitment, providing a means of detecting whether that particular version has been altered since the relevant cryptographic record was created.

That means the blockchain can contribute to the evidentiary continuity of my work without itself proving the truth of what the work says.

It does not prove an allegation.

It does not prove a government acted unlawfully.

It does not prove a prophecy came from God.

It does not prove that my interpretation of an event is correct.

What it can do is help preserve an independently checkable relationship between a particular digital record and a cryptographic commitment made at an earlier point in time.

Combined with multiple documentary repositories, preserved PDFs, source records, metadata and independently maintained copies, this creates something profoundly different from an ordinary personal diary or manuscript kept in a drawer.

My physical life is finite.

My body will eventually die.

But the documentary record of what I wrote, what I preserved, what I alleged, what I believed, what I researched and what evidence I assembled can potentially remain available to people who have not yet been born.

In that sense, my life's work takes on what I describe as a philosophical kind of immortality—not immortality of my physical person, and not a guarantee that every digital copy will survive, but the possibility that the intellectual and documentary essence of a mortal life can continue to be encountered, questioned and examined after its author is gone.

That permanence is historically unusual.

For most people throughout human history, the ability to preserve an extensive, searchable, independently reproducible and cryptographically anchored record of one's own life was simply unavailable. A person's testimony could disappear with their death, remain dependent upon the memory of others, or survive only in whatever records institutions chose to retain.

I have had access to technologies that previous generations did not possess.

I have therefore attempted to use them not merely to tell my story, but to create an infrastructure through which the story can remain open to examination after I am no longer here to defend it.

This is why I regard preservation itself as part of the meaning of my life.

I understand the existence and continued development of these archives as evidence, within my faith, of the prophetic time in which I agreed with the Creator to incarnate into this realm: a period in which I believe systemic corruption would be revealed through my own life and circumstances as part of my purpose and mission.

I believe I was chosen not because I am perfect.

I am not perfect.

I am a mortal sinner and an imperfect human being.

My belief is not that God chose me because I was somehow superior to His other children. Rather, I believe that God's cosmic design for my life could be purposeful and perfect even though I, as the person living it, am imperfect.

A condition of my incarnation, as I understand it, was that my life would mirror the pattern of Christ's crucifixion: suffering, betrayal, abandonment, apparent destruction and revival, followed by profound human betrayal and exile.

I understand that comparison allegorically and theologically. I do not claim to be Jesus Christ. I understand the crucifixion and resurrection narrative as the Christian pattern through which I interpret the extraordinary circumstances of my own survival.

I believe God allowed my suffering not as punishment, but so that I would ultimately learn to rely upon Him.

What I experienced as betrayal and exile therefore became, in my spiritual interpretation, the circumstance through which my dependence upon the Most High was strengthened.

It triggered what I describe as a memory of my purpose.

It cemented my faith.

And it transformed the record I had accumulated over decades from something I had simply been trying to survive into something I now understand as the foundation of a ministry.

My Gospels are part of that ministry.

I describe them as religious, scholarly and prophetic documents because they sit at the intersection of Christian theology, my research and intellectual work, my interpretation of the documentary record, and my understanding of prophecy and human purpose.

I invite people to respond to them.

I invite them to challenge them.

I invite them to rebuke them.

I invite them to attempt to disprove them.

But I ask that disagreement be accompanied by evidence, reasoning and engagement with the underlying record rather than dismissal of the person who produced it.

The archives themselves are designed around that principle. The Rebuild Archive asks what happened, what records document the sequence, which institutions are identified, what responses were provided, where the record remains incomplete or contested, and what further independent examination may be required.

The main archive similarly describes itself as a finding aid rather than a court or verdict, and states that its purpose is to preserve the evidence, preserve the testimony, make the record public and allow the evidence to be examined.

That is ultimately the challenge I leave to the future.

Do not believe me simply because I say these things.

Do not disbelieve me simply because I say these things.

Open the documents.

Read the chronology.

Examine the correspondence.

Compare the testimony with the source material.

Identify contradictions.

Identify corroboration.

Identify what remains unproven.

Identify what remains unanswered.

And allow the record to survive long enough for people other than me to make their own assessment.

When people ask me, “How did you survive that?”, my answer will be simple:

God did it.

I understand that answer as foundational to a question that may ultimately be relevant to other people suffering corruption, targeting, injustice, exclusion or circumstances in which they feel that their own identity and testimony are being erased.

I want my testimony to become a source of direction for those people—not because I believe I am better than them, but because I believe the God who preserved me can preserve and restore others.

I am no better than anyone else.

I am imperfect.

I have sinned.

I have never claimed that my story of suffering is greater than that of any other person.

I believe God knows and loves all His children and knows the suffering of every one of them.

My life will therefore now be repurposed, as I understand it, as a vessel for His glory: for a return to divine justice, for the end of darkness, and for the restoration of the attributes of His perfect Son, Jesus Christ—the consciousness of Christ returning to its rightful place in the hearts of people and, through them, in the institutions they create, operate and protect.

The purpose is not to preserve my ego.

It is to preserve the testimony.

It is not to establish myself as superior.

It is to leave a record that can outlive me.

It is not to demand that humanity accept my interpretation.

It is to make the evidence available for humanity to examine.

My body will die.

My voice will eventually become silent.

But the record does not necessarily have to disappear with me.

The archives preserve what I was able to preserve.

The cryptographic record provides an additional layer of integrity for material that has been anchored.

The testimony provides the human voice.

The documentary record provides the evidence to be examined.

The Gospels provide the spiritual interpretation.

And my faith provides the meaning I draw from the fact that, despite everything I believe happened to me, I remain here to give testimony.

When the future asks how the witness survived, my answer remains:

God did it.

This is the purpose I now understand my life to serve.

This is the testimony I preserve.

This is the record I leave.

THE WITNESS REMAINS.

Praise Jesus.

A STATEMENT FROM THE BARRAN DODGER ARCHIVE

Open the statement as a PDF

Truth, like light, does not need permission to shine or permission to exist; lies require constant maintenance, repetition and concealment. My truth only needed time. And now, by God's grace, that time has come. Through decades of poverty, isolation, homelessness, excommunication, erasure and what I experienced as almost total human abandonment, my existence was nevertheless preserved long enough for me to endure, remember, collect, collate and publish more than three decades of evidence.

Brick by brick, the record was made from the words, decisions, correspondence and official documents of the very institutions whose actions are now capable of being examined. What was scattered across years, offices, agencies and governments can now be placed beside itself and examined as a whole.

The record does not require me to manufacture a story; the record speaks in its own language. That is the paradox: systems that produced documents that once helped contain, dismiss, obscure or erase my experience also produced the documentary trail by which those actions can now be examined.

Time did not destroy the evidence.
Time preserved it.

And now the archive exists.

THE RECORD SURVIVED

For more than 35 years, I say I was subjected to a cumulative pattern of institutional, political, financial, professional, familial and personal detriment that progressively isolated me, impoverished me and stripped away ordinary avenues through which a person can have allegations tested and answered.

What makes this archive different is that the record did not disappear.

The evidence is not merely my recollection. It includes government correspondence, FOI decisions, agency letters, legal documents, recordings, emails, text messages, published material and contemporaneous records preserved across decades. Much of it is written in the words of the institutions themselves, on their own letterheads, under their own reference numbers.

That is the significance of this archive.

I allege that a vulnerable person was repeatedly passed between institutions that had the power to investigate, protect, compensate, represent or assist him, while ordinary pathways to accountability progressively closed. I allege that this produced a form of administrative annihilation: not one decision, not one government, and not one institution, but a cumulative system in which each refusal, referral, restriction, omission and unanswered complaint compounded the last.

The record crosses governments, agencies and political administrations. It crosses the media, the courts, Legal Aid, policing, workers' compensation, the NDIS, oversight bodies, government departments and the institutions responsible for responding when a person says they have been harmed.

Some allegations contained in this archive are extraordinary. Some are deeply contested. Some have not been independently established. I do not present the documents as court findings, and I do not ask the reader to treat my allegations as proven merely because I have published them.

I ask something more basic:

Open the documents.

Read the dates. Read the reference numbers. Read the decisions. Read what was requested and what was answered. Compare one official document with the next. Listen to the recordings. Read the messages in their original context. Examine the chronology. Where I make an allegation, test it against the underlying record.

The archive therefore has two voices: my first-person account of what happened to me, and the documentary record that allows that account to be examined.

There is a crucial distinction between those things.

A document is evidence of what was written, sent, recorded or decided. It is not automatically proof that every allegation surrounding it is true. A link is not a finding. A recording is not a verdict. A first-person account is testimony, not adjudication.

But neither can a documented history simply be made to disappear by refusing to acknowledge it.

For years I was treated, in my own account, as though I could be isolated until the record itself ceased to matter. Instead, the record accumulated.

The book existed.

The employment records existed.

The correspondence existed.

The FOI applications existed.

The agency decisions existed.

The complaints existed.

The restrictions existed.

The recordings existed.

The messages existed.

The chronology existed.

And I survived.

This archive is my attempt to put the surviving record in one place so that it can be examined by people who were not there: journalists, lawyers, researchers, public officials, historians, advocates, members of the public, and any independent person willing to follow the evidence wherever it leads.

I am not asking the reader to accept my conclusion before reading the evidence.

I am asking the reader not to accept anyone else's conclusion before reading it either.

The evidence is published.

The record remains.

You cannot rewrite what the documents themselves contain.

I am not erased.

I am still alive.

About the Archive

Barran Dodger Archive — public documentary record

Through the Barran Dodger Archive and associated digital repositories, McLean has assembled government correspondence, legal and administrative records, research materials, personal testimony, creative works and other documentary material. The archive is designed not merely as autobiography, but as a public finding aid through which the underlying record can be examined.

The defining feature of the work is not simply what is written. It is what is preserved.

For decades, McLean has accumulated correspondence, government records, legal documents, institutional responses, personal records, research materials and other evidence relating to events that he says fundamentally altered the course of his life. Rather than allowing that material to remain dispersed across agencies, proceedings, correspondence chains and private files, he has sought to bring it together into a searchable and publicly accessible documentary archive.

Purpose

The Barran Dodger Archive is intended to provide readers with access to the underlying record.

Its purpose is not to require belief.

It is to make examination possible.

A testimony is testimony.

A document is a document.

An allegation is an allegation.

A finding requires evidence and proper determination.

Preserve the evidence. Preserve the testimony. Make the record public. Let the evidence be examined.

Underlined words open the named document or recording in a new window. The words are mine. The link is the place a reader can test them. A link is not a finding. This is a finding aid. It is not a court. It is not a verdict.

THE ACCOUNT

Australia — its agencies, services and platforms whose purpose is to protect vulnerable people like me, and its people, ganged up on me collectively, politically and systemically. It was and is a cowardly societal mobbing. I was physically exiled, isolated, impoverished and tortured.

For more than 35 years the conditions imposed on me produced a documentary record. The Government's own official documents, in its own words and on its own letterheads, are preserved here. The 35-year chronology and the cumulative legal brief are the reading copies of that span. Anyone can open them against the underlying files.

THE BOOK

In 2003 Allen & Unwin published my first autobiography, Recovered, Not Cured. I wrote the sex in that book publicly, in my own name, before these agencies had a file they could twist. The significance is that the testimony was already on a public shelf. It was not a secret they discovered. It was a record I had already made. The Age recorded that book on 19 May 2003, and recorded that I was then working as an illustrator there.

After the book was published, my former employer the Herald Sun weaponised words from it. A weekend double-page spread carried the bold heading “MY DESCENT INTO MADNESS”. The spread, as preserved in this archive, is headed “My descent into madness. How schizophrenia stole Richard McLean’s mind.” What followed was a barely veiled public character assassination. I was then fired from The Age, where I worked as a news graphics artist and cartoonist. I did not resign, and I did not leave. I was denied a lawyer and a pathway to have it tested at the time. The later Legal Aid restriction is the continuation of that refusal, not the 2003 letter itself. The madness was not any real or perceived illness I had. It was the deceitful way an honest and courageous testimony was weaponised against me, systemically, politically and financially, from that point on. The targeting lasted decades. Its goal was my ruin, and the avoidance of accountability by those who participated in it.

BEFORE THE BLACKOUT

Before any of that, the media wanted me. I was a news graphics artist in that industry, and I was paid as a journalist. The archive's index of the earlier site lists me as an illustrator for The Age and the Herald Sun. In hindsight I say I was exploited. The world wanted to hear me speak about a perceived mental illness, about vulnerability, and about inequity. I volunteered my time and my story. Years later, when I needed help from the very places I had given that time and that story, there was a total media blackout. That media ban exists to this day. The places, organisations, radio and television stations, and institutions, as that index records them, are these:

- ABC Radio National, Life Matters (Julie McCrossin)
- ABC TV, Stateline
- Good Morning Australia and The Today Show (Steve Leidman), around an exhibition and the book launch
- Reuters TV (Frankie Fathers)

THE DOCTORATE

The significance of the qualification is the same pattern. I hold a PhD. The archive's index of the earlier site records it as Victoria University research, on a merit scholarship, in arts-based A/r/tography, stated there as passed pending changes. I say that doctorate has been delegitimised, and treated as if it were not research, by officials whose qualifications it far outshines. I say that is envy, a way to keep me below them. Where is their PhD?

WHAT I COULD SEE

I used my life and my creativity to benefit humanity at the exact time I was being set up and deceived. Everyone involved thought I would never see past their false masks of jealousy, envy and malice. I do. I see every person, and what they did. I see it especially in my blood family, who were poised to benefit financially from my total annihilation and from my physical death. They never denied it. The paper with that account is also the estate attorney and sibling betrayal. This was a life in which I was never expected to recover, or to be well, or to be financially stable, or even to survive.

I published my religious gospels on barrandodger.com. That site has been removed. I could not pay the Replit bill. I say the removal was the designed poverty, not a change of mind. The gospels were less about mysticism than about a sovereign being forged in the fire of total human betrayal and isolation, at the apex of a targeting that has lasted more than three decades. What I preserved is the Government's own official documents and the correspondence that sits with them. I say that record cannot be denied, and it cannot be argued out of existence. You cannot erase a history that is written in their own official documentation. I made the gospels at the intersection of that betrayal, the exile, and the protection of the Most High God, and of my PhD study of posthumanism and the ethics of AI. I used the technology in a nuanced way, for a high-definition reading of pattern, taken from their own documents and set beside the Bible and Christian principles. I wrote the gospels to warn humanity of the coming collapse of a corrupt and cruel government, which is ultimately fleeting. No one listened. I was called delusional, and I was called crazy. The significance is the time. Nearly three or four years later, I say the predictions I was told were delusion have happened as I said they would. The paper that puts that claim in one place is Paranoid Was Prophecy. Who is laughing now?

THE INJURY

That record includes what the file calls a fatal injury. God revived me from it. Five years on, the conditions that solicited that attempt have continued: stonewalling, financial abuse, isolation, denial of Legal Aid, and no ordinary pathway to have the allegations tested. The Victorian Ombudsman's later treatment of the complaint is the Ben Calder letter of 5 October 2022. A Mercy Hospital FOI sits with it. A public-interest disclosure was not allocated. APRA refused whistleblower status.

THE MESSAGES

An NDIS provider was made to sign a non-disclosure agreement after the account that a woman was paid to fabricate a report about me. The Ben NDIS text-message record is where that is written down. In it, the other party says the only evidence he could give me was "a copy of the non disclosure agreement", and that when he signed it the agreement disappeared from his phone with a notice that the device had been cleared of classified information.

That provider is Ben, of DSW Disability. I publish his email and his company: ben@dswdisability.com.au. I publish them because I say intelligence agencies forced him to sign that non-disclosure agreement, and because the agreement does not get the last word. The text chain between us is published. It cannot be taken back. I say it shows the total police complicity, the false sexual assault allegation, and that a woman was paid to fabricate a report. He confirmed a "close call" assassination attempt. I say that chain corroborates my testimony. It is the record of what was said. It is not, by itself, a police finding.

His own words: It's a top secret investigation. They made me sign a non disclosure agreement. When I signed the agreement it instantly disappeared off my phone. A message popped up that said your device has been cleared of classified information. It's some sort of agency grade electronic document that automatically wipes itself off your device. I thought you were just paranoid. You were right. They already arrested two hitmen. They're telling the police everything. They've told them who ordered the hit. That non-disclosure agreement is now pointless. The truth is out. It is exposed. It is undeniable.

The same record preserves “consensual regretful sex”, “the police told me about the consensual regretted sex”, and this sentence: The agencies went back through phone records and believed she was paid to discredit you. I understand the Federal Police wording I was given as “regretful” but “consensual”. No charge against me came out of that event. I say what did occur was the weaponisation of my sexuality. I publish the messages as the record of what was said. They are not, by themselves, an AFP finding.

That sentence is why I say I have never had equal treatment from police. Once a paid discrediting is accepted, every later report is easier to refuse. The crimes I say have occurred to me over more than 35 years, and the same list as a PDF, are the reading copy of that longer record. They are allegations and pointers. They are not findings.

FAITH

I was betrayed by humanity for a purpose I believe was ordained: to be a vessel for God's glory. This website is the beginning of what I understand as God's answer to that corruption. I use the word sacrilege, a violation of something sacred, because I believe that deliberately harming one of God's anointed, and then pretending not to know, is a spiritual crime. My perpetrators know what they did. The archive does not ask a reader to share my faith. It asks a reader to open the documents.

THE ALLEGATION

The same message record is where the alleged assassination is put in writing. Ben's message to me, which he presents as what the police told him, is: The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story.

The police want to know if you are mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in a court of law as his lawyers might use your history of mental health as an excuse to discredit your story.

My messages name Bill Shorten and a person I was told was a Lebanese criminal pretending to be a provider, "known in certain circles", and sent "to erase me". The other party's messages answer that account. It has not been disproven by an official finding I have been given, nor officially established as a fabrication, nor denied in any document in this archive. The messages remain part of the record that requires examination. They are not a finding that a minister ordered a killing.

The significance of that message, as I draw it, is this. Bill Shorten was the NDIS Minister. I say he betrayed the ethical obligations of that office, acted in a cowardly way, and abused its power. I say he was the key manipulator of what was done to me. I say he caused the AVO concerning him and Rebecca Falkingham, that he deliberately caused my political exile, and I allege that he ordered my assassination. I say his character is now exposed by this record as morally reprehensible, and that he is a power-hungry criminal who should be immediately arrested. How dare he, as I allege, order the killing of a vulnerable person with a disability he was paid to treat ethically, legally and humanely, and who was under that care. This is why I say God is furious. No one has the right to erase, murder or kill another human being, much less a disabled person under their care. The situation is beyond absurd.

THE RELATIONSHIP

No one in office acknowledges the five-year marriage-like relationship I say I had with a former ASIO employee, Steve Iasonidis. I published the proposal, and an engagement with Steve Iasonidis that lasted more than five years. I say it led to five years of exploitation in an abusive entrapment that no profession will admit even existed. The court paper I can put in a reader's hand is the intervention-order file L12151974. I was hospitalised after I tried to get Legal Aid so that relationship could be acknowledged for an equitable separation. The financial exploitation, the attempts to obtain legal recognition, and what followed, are the chronology this archive preserves. His ability to have the relationship treated as if it never existed is, in my experience, the fact a professional will still not say out loud.

THE PRIME MINISTER

The Prime Minister, Anthony Albanese, did not answer me in his own hand.

On 12 December 2022 his own office wrote, of an email sent to him, “Your email has not been forwarded.” I had written to him, including the letter of 31 May 2022, and the letter of 1 July 2023. On 19 September 2023 the Attorney-General's Department wrote, reference MC23-028244, signed A Riley, Security Law Section. It says my email of 5 July 2023 to the Hon Anthony Albanese MP, including about ASIO, was referred to the Attorney-General, the Hon Mark Dreyfus KC MP, because the matters fell in his portfolio, and that he asked the Department to respond on his behalf. It then pointed me to the Inspector-General of Intelligence and Security — IGIS, which I have also called AGIS — and to the Commonwealth Ombudsman. I was already shut out of the Ombudsman. The service-restriction letter of 8 August 2025 is the later official paper. A further letter of 6 February 2025, MC25-000321, sent the matters to the Victorian Minister for Police. Those were dead ends. They did not acknowledge the relationship.

I am well aware that I am on ASIO's books as what I call a targeted individual. I recorded my call to AGIS, who investigate ASIO, about the victimisation. In hindsight I say they were already committed to never helping me, and that they were used by my former fiancé, the ASIO employee Steve Iasonidis. No professional admits the five-year relationship even existed. I say that reveals Iasonidis as a key manipulator, with protection under David Irvine and the federal government. Hospitals have repeatedly force-injected me for what they called “ingrained delusions of persecution”. That is my account of the call and of the treatment.

A FILE THAT DOES NOT AGREE WITH ITSELF

The significance of this file. The Department told the Commissioner that about 1,187 Outlook items were under review. Weeks later the decision said the documents cannot be found or do not exist. The revised decision then released five documents. That is the hypocrisy: a review of more than a thousand items, then a letter that no documents exist. It is the Department's own paper. It is not a court finding.

The same department has a freedom-of-information file that does not agree with itself. On 7 February 2022 I asked the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet for “all information government agencies hold on me please.” On 16 March 2022 the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner wrote, reference RQ22/00794, that the Department had applied for more time because the request was voluminous and complex, and that approximately 1,187 Outlook items were being reviewed. That is more than a thousand items, in the Department's own account to the Commissioner. It is not, by that letter alone, a finding that 1,187 documents had been proved to be about me. On 14 April 2022 Petra Gartmann, Assistant Secretary, Legal Policy Branch, refused the same request under section 24A(1)(b), reference FOI/2022/045. The decision says all reasonable steps were taken, that no relevant documents were identified, and that the documents cannot be found or do not exist.

On 8 October 2024 that refusal was revised. Laura Cameron, acting Assistant Secretary, reference FOI/2022/045IC, wrote that the Department holds five documents that meet the request and granted access to them, with some material deleted as irrelevant. On 4 November 2024 the Commissioner's office, MR22/00677, said it would ask the Department to resend that decision of 8 October 2024 and the five documents. Read them in that order. One describes more than a thousand Outlook items under review. The next says the documents do not exist. The one after that releases five.

That is the hypocrisy in the Department's own file. It is not a court finding. An essay in this deposit uses the figure 1,178. The figure on the Commissioner's letter is about 1,187.

With those letters I place the undated letter addressed to the Prime Minister and to the Attorney-General, Mark Dreyfus, which is the letter I identify as the one answered by the referral to IGIS and the Ombudsman, and a further undated letter to the Office of Prime Minister and Cabinet. My email of 1 August 2024 on the review is with them. The typed copy of the 19 September 2023 reply is MC23-028244 as a PDF, beside the photograph already linked. A 111-page file whose filename says “prime minister apology” is not an apology from Anthony Albanese. Its first page is a commentary on this FOI file.

EXILE, HOSPITAL, LEGAL AID

I asked to be arrested so that my name could be tested in the ordinary way. No one came. No charge was laid against me. No criminal trial was commenced. I was left with the consequences of accusation without the process in which guilt or innocence is determined. I have been hospitalised in psychiatric institutions sixteen times. That number is my count. The hospital paper is the place I have written the conditions around those admissions: homelessness, designed poverty, and inaction by police and the legal profession. I am in exile. I am restricted from Legal Aid, which is a betrayal of the reason Legal Aid exists, and restricted from the Ombudsman. I have not placed a NACC restriction letter in this repository, so I do not pretend to link one.

THE CALLS

I could not even report being drugged and raped to the Commonwealth Ombudsman. I published the call in which I could not report being drugged and raped to the Ombudsman. I say it shows the blacklist and the stonewalling.

On 3 September 2023 I called the NACC after 90 days about my complaint, and they rejected me. I say that rejection is the Commission participating in the same refusal.

I published the call to the NACC after 90 days, in which my complaint was rejected. Danny Pearson, then the workplace minister, refused my phone call about workers' compensation.

I published the call that Danny Pearson, the workplace minister, refused to take about workers' compensation. Liz Lindberg of the Australian Human Rights Commission sided with Australian Super on the denial of compensation in what I say was a robbery of more than a million dollars of a settlement I was entitled to. I say she knew the conflict, acted in her role to betray a position the Commission had already taken, and then revoked it, so that TAL did not have to engage. In her professional capacity she free-kicked that settlement.

I published the call in which Liz Lindberg of the AHRC free-kicks a settlement of more than a million dollars. Tim Gos of AFCA was, as I say it, already committed to never giving me a way to resolve the financial conflicts. He blocked the path his role exists to keep open. I was later banned from AFCA.

I published the call to Tim Gos of AFCA, who blocked a determination of the financial complaint. Comcare and the AAT were, as I say it, already committed to denying a valid workers' compensation claim by accepting that I was blocked from Legal Aid. That is a breach of the reason those bodies exist. I was left to face a government-appointed lawyer, Kate Watson, without Legal Aid, and I have never been able to report a single crime to police.

Scott Tredwell's letter on Federal Court letterhead records that he was satisfied I was an employee of DSS. The papers that said the opposite are still in the file. On 26 May 2021 Comcare declined claim 1326583/1 and put, as the first question, whether I was an employee under section 5 of the Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act. On 3 June 2021 Sarah LeMaire of the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission wrote: "This process does not make you an employee of the NDIS Commission." I say Tredwell's confirmation should have overturned the lesser finding of Comcare and the AAT that I was not an employee. It did not.

I published the call on Comcare and the AAT denying workers' compensation, and denying legal access.

OUTSIDE THE COUNTRY

I took the same record outside the country. The archive holds the OHCHR submission, reference UR/UST/23/AUS/17, and the claim of an International Criminal Court submission as part of the chronology of asking for protection. The reference is the document. It is not a finding by the United Nations.

WHAT I FILMED

My paranoia is a documented reality in this sense: here is what I recorded parked outside my squat in Footscray, about 2022. The video on my own channel is the secret service parked out the front of the Footscray squat. You cannot surveil a victim and call it a success when the victim films the people doing the surveillance. The gig is up. I say the V2K audio harassment was a mechanism of torture, and that this recording exposes it. The papers are the V2K review and the AHRC gang-stalking paper. The Commission used the term “gang stalking” in official correspondence to me, and the occurrence was then denied. I say that denial, against their own words, is the hypocrisy.

TONY RIDLEY

Tony Ridley, formerly a fraud investigator associated with the NDIS, is the man I recorded. I say he was deployed as a drug-affected honeypot, and that a former support worker of the same agency would have known I was an unprotected whistleblower. I recorded the encounter because he indicated he may have killed people. I later understood him to be a returned SAS soldier with a PhD in counter-terrorism surveillance. The archive holds a credential exhibit in his name and the conversation PDF. I published the audio of that encounter to expose what I say was the corruption and to keep myself safe. What I put on the channel is the published audio of the Tony Ridley encounter. It backfired. His wife did not know he had sex with men. I say he then used a PhD in counter-terrorism surveillance to hunt me electronically across three states while I was fleeing, and that he knew I was an unprotected whistleblower. I say his conduct is criminal, and that it sits inside the long exile and the alleged assassination plot. No one has denied that account in a document in this archive, and no one has proved it wrong. I published the recording to protect both of us. He says I ruined his life. I say he then followed me electronically across three states, and that paid followers were used to intimidate me wherever I went. On my YouTube channel I described that meeting, named him as SAS, and invited people to listen to the later account in which I name Tony Ridley as SAS. I have not found a second watch address that is only the raw tape. The published page, the conversation PDF, and that video are what a reader can open today.

He told me there was a formal investigation whose aim was to discredit and destroy me. He revealed contact with my family, with the woman the messages call the regretted encounter, and knowledge of Alan, my younger partner, which he would not otherwise have had. He claimed it was easy to turn my sister Jodie Bongetti, my brother Brad McLean, my parents Doug and April McLean, and my uncle Bruce McMaster into alignment against me. I already knew the isolation. What he added was that the communication was deliberate.

That is my account of what he said. It sits beside the recording record. It is not his signed statement.

ABLE POINT

The NDIS, through the provider Able Point, sent support workers who already knew my case and who did not change my circumstances. I say they reported me back into the same entrapment, inside the agency I had worked for, and into the same matter as the provider I was told had been sent to erase me. The papers are the Able Point notice and the letter to Brett. The Ben NDIS messages are where the provider contact, the NDA, the paid-discredit claim, and the hit claim sit side by side.

FAMILY

There was family betrayal from childhood. Members of my family attended the funeral of the person who sexually abused me as a child, days after he died, on the same day as the fatal injury. They protected him. I was the one called morally depraved. My family has excommunicated me. The excommunication was so obscene that I protested my homelessness in a video no one answered. I filmed it as a disabled man, homeless, from a paddock in Dandenong, while my blood family lived in comfort nearby. The recording, filmed while I was homeless in a Dandenong paddock, is the introduction for an affidavit and a statutory declaration. I believe they were positioned to benefit from my permanent erasure. That belief is testimony. The papers I have put with it are My erasure was by design and estate attorney and sibling betrayal. God, as I understand it, allowed the betrayal to show character. The day of reckoning is the day the evidence is public, not a sentence I am imposing.

WHAT SURVIVED

I was not expected to survive the exile, the homelessness, the isolation, the humiliation, the character assassination, the administrative annihilation, or the intimate and family betrayal. The tabs that set out that treatment are the Digital Apocalypse of Administrative Annihilation, the Architecture of Administrative Annihilation, the cost of erasure, and coordinated institutional mobbing. I survived. The evidence survived with me. They underestimated the God who kept me alive. You cannot erase what God has preserved. The documents are here. The correspondence is here. The text messages are here. The chronology is here. The decisions are here. The omissions are here.

The world can now read it. This archive is not only the story of what happened to me. It is the surviving record of what happened around me: what institutions recorded, what they did, what they failed to do, and what they cannot now pretend was never documented. The day of reckoning has arrived because the evidence has arrived. And I am still alive.

I gave every agency grace to treat me as they should. The grace I gave was spat on. All of them pretended they were not participating in my detrimental treatment. I am not revengeful. I believe the Bible says that vengeance is God's to have. The universe has, through this archive, now witnessed what was done to me. They still pretend they are unaware, or that they acted ethically, while pretending they were not cruel.

The same chronology is in the papers below. Each opens in a new window. Each is the document named. None of them is a finding.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTARY ARCHIVE

MAJOR EVIDENCE & JUSTICE DOCUMENT

THE DOCUMENTARY TRAP

When the System’s Own Record Becomes the Evidence

35 Years of Institutional Records, Decisions, Correspondence and Evidence — Preserved, Indexed and Open to Independent Examination.

This document brings together the documentary record and asks a simple evidentiary question: what do the records themselves establish about what institutions knew, received, considered, decided, recorded, omitted, or left unresolved?

It deliberately distinguishes documentary evidence from allegation, personal testimony, faith, interpretation, chronology, causation, institutional involvement, and claims of coordination. The archive does not treat an allegation as automatically established fact.

The central question:

What actually happened — and what can the documentary record establish?

PROPHETIC CORROBORATION — 28 SEPTEMBER 2026

Chosen one. Today's date: 28 September 2026. This video corroborates identity as a chosen one. My enemies tried to break me because acknowledging my testimony is humiliating for their professional life and cowardice for accepting money to entrap and harm me all the while feigning ignorance or non-awareness of my situation as a deceitful lie.
