THE WITNESS AND THE STATE

Honour, Courage, Corruption, and the Moral Character of Power

An Independent Comparative Examination of Dr Richard William McLean / Barran Dodger and the Relevant Australian Government Institutions

Master research PDF • 26 October 2026

Authorial method: AI-generated documentary analysis by Perplexity. No human peer review, clinical examination, legal adjudication, or agency right-of-reply process has been completed.

Publication status: limited-source research edition. All 15 requested deliverable headings are addressed, but the mandated comprehensive investigation is not complete. Missing original records prevent a verified institutional profile and definitive comparative findings. This limitation is substantive, not a formatting disclaimer.

Research question: What can the examinable record establish about expressed character and documented conduct, and how far can those findings be compared with attributable institutional behaviour?

Abstract

This qualitative examination separates public testimony, reproduced official quotations, independent commentary, authoritative legal definitions, and literary interpretation. It examines two accessible archive-associated publications and an exposed public landing-page extract, together with an independent book review and official United Nations and UNHCR material. The record supports findings about a public identity organised around witness, recognition, dignity, preservation, and resistance to perceived abandonment. It also reveals specific overextensions of legal and evidentiary reasoning. An archive essay mislabels a Genocide Convention provision and does not demonstrate the protected-group and specific-intent elements required by that Convention. Reproduced employment-status statements raise a legitimate verification question but do not yet prove fraud or a binding judicial determination. Original case correspondence and clinical records were not inspected. Consequently, neither coordinated persecution nor institutional exoneration is established. The comparative analysis remains domain-specific and substantially unresolved. A separately labelled prophetic synthesis interprets preservation and correction as moral responsibilities without treating spiritual meaning as proof.

Keywords: documentary evidence; testimony; institutional accountability; procedural fairness; narrative identity; epistemic responsibility; public power; theological interpretation.

2. Executive summary

The central result is an asymmetry of available evidence: the accessible sources expose the witness's public narrative in considerable detail, but expose agency conduct mainly through quotations selected within that narrative. Such a record permits textual criticism more readily than a balanced evaluation of the underlying disputes. That asymmetry must not be converted into either a presumption against the witness or a presumption of institutional guilt.

Findings that survive scrutiny

Public self-identification is directly observable: the Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger identifies Richard William McLean with Barran Dodger and presents appeals for asylum, protection, recognition, and assistance. This establishes what the page publishes, not adjudicated status or the external accuracy of its allegations. Classification A for the published content; C for uncorroborated external allegations.

The Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review independently discusses Richard McLean's memoir, its publisher Allen & Unwin, his creative work, and its appeal to empathy. Its identity bridge to the later Barran Dodger persona is supported principally by later self-identification, not independent identity documentation. Publication and reception are better supported than the full later biography.

A concrete error is established in Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger): its "Legal Foundations" section attributes the conditions-of-life provision to Article II(d). The provision is Article II(c); Article II(d) concerns measures intended to prevent births. The Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide — United Nations also requires intent to destroy a national, ethnical, racial or religious group as such. The essay's legal conclusion is not established by the argument presented.

The The Man Australia Tried to Erase reproduces apparently divergent statements about employment and public-official status. The affirmative quotation begins "On the information you have provided me". Its conditional evidentiary basis and the different decision contexts matter. No underlying judgment, employment contract, complete PID decision, or tribunal reasons were examined.

What this edition does not establish

No finding of corruption, assassination, coordinated surveillance, unlawful detention, formal statelessness, refugee recognition, clinical death, or a compensable work injury is made. Nor is any of those propositions declared disproven merely because verification is missing. No whole-government moral ranking is offered.

Named links lead to the public source actually examined. Where an original government letter is only reproduced in an exposé, the link leads to that exposé and is explicitly described as indirect. No missing archive deep link has been invented.

3. Research questions and methodology

Design and evidentiary categories

The supplied Master Execution Command, particularly Chapters 6–11 and 33, governs the method. The entire supplied parsed mandate was available; it is a research instruction, not independent proof of biography or misconduct. The design combines close reading, claim decomposition, competing explanations, limited chronological reconstruction, and conduct-specific ethical assessment.

Category	Meaning in this report
A	Directly established documentary content or authoritative definition within a narrow scope; not automatic authentication of all assertions.
B	Materially independent corroboration, identified claim by claim.
C	Attributed testimony, allegation, or an official quotation reproduced without its underlying original.
D	Analytical inference with reasoning and alternatives stated.
E	Unresolved proposition lacking sufficient evidence.

Confidence is high, moderate, low, or undetermined. Confidence attaches separately to publication, event occurrence, actor identity, correctness, consequences, and motive. The fact that a quotation appears in a book may be high-confidence; the authenticity and completeness of its asserted original may remain undetermined.

Actual coverage

Successful page-level retrievals: the archive landing page, the archive-associated Genocide by Attrition PDF, the Scribd-hosted exposé, the UN Convention page, the UNHCR mandate guidance, and the Sydney Morning Herald review. Several long extracts were visibly cut off, so no complete-PDF or complete-website reading is claimed. Search-only results informed discovery but were not promoted into verified findings.

Failed routes: main GitHub repository; associated repository directory; official-government-documents register; archive rebuild; publishing-house page; gospels page. No branch, commit, directory tree, file manifest, or repository statistics were inspected. Failure means the retrieval tool could not obtain content; it does not establish deletion, censorship, public unavailability, or deliberate interference.

Ethical rule and scope

Each evaluation separates the action, source, context, applicable principle, alternative explanation, confidence, and limit. Honesty concerns accuracy and disclosure; integrity concerns consistency; courage requires action despite relevant cost; compassion concerns treatment of vulnerability; fairness concerns balanced evidence and opportunity to respond; accountability concerns reasons and correction. These are operational criteria adopted from the mandate, not clinical scales or legal standards of proof.

No interview, psychometric inventory, private record inspection, agency contact, independent forensic authentication, or legal database review was conducted. The report is neither an exhaustive literature review nor a substitute for qualified legal or clinical assessment.

4. Documentary chronology and its limits

Only publication-level and authoritative legal dates are independently anchored here. Reported case dates below are retained for investigation, not presented as verified case events. Event dates, publication dates and retrieval dates are different categories.

Date / kind	Entry, actor, evidence and limitation
9 December 1948 / adoption	UN General Assembly adoption of the Genocide Convention; 12 January 1951 entry into force, as stated on Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide — United Nations. A / high. Legal context, not a McLean case event.
17 May 2003 / review URL date	The Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review discusses Recovered, Not Cured by Richard McLean. The URL supplies this date; no independent print-edition check was performed. Establishes historical reception, not the entirety of later identity claims.
February 2021 / alleged event	Hospital crisis and subsequent injury are described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase. C / undetermined for clinical particulars. Original admission, ICU, resuscitation and discharge records not examined.
5 May 2022 / alleged correspondence	NDIA statement concerning rental payments and food is reproduced in The Man Australia Tried to Erase. C. Need original letter, full request, applicable responsibility and referrals.
20 January 2023 / reported communication	The The Man Australia Tried to Erase reports an email with an explicitly threatening subject and characterises its body as a request for help. Original email, recipients' assessment and police material not inspected. C.
27 March 2023 / alleged correspondence	Statement attributed to Federal Court General Counsel in The Man Australia Tried to Erase, Part One. C; not verified as a court finding.
18 July 2023 / alleged correspondence	DSS PID refusal attributed to an authorised officer in The Man Australia Tried to Erase, Part One. C; original decision, reasons and review history missing.
4 June 2025 / heading	"04.06.2025- EMERGENCY ASYLUM PLEA" appears on Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger. A for heading; C for underlying events. Body still contains date and location placeholders.
26 October 2026 / research date	This report's retrieval and preparation date. It is not the publication date of the underlying undated archive materials.

The exposé describes the earlier memoir as published in 2002, while an independently accessible review is dated through its URL to 2003. A later review alone does not contradict a 2002 first edition. The first-edition date remains unverified. No causal chain is inferred from these entries.

5. Profile A — The Individual Witness

Identity and biographical boundaries

The Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger explicitly joins the names Richard William McLean and Barran Dodger. “Dr” is retained as the subject’s public styling; no doctorate certificate, awarding institution, thesis or independent qualifications register was examined. Medical-provider search results concerning a similarly named United States practitioner were excluded because name similarity did not establish identity.

The Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review offers independent historical context for a Richard McLean who wrote Recovered, Not Cured, worked as a graphic artist and illustrator, and included digital illustrations in the memoir. The later The Man Australia Tried to Erase identifies that memoir as his earlier work. Together these sources support a provisional continuity of authorial identity, while leaving formal identity and full professional chronology unverified.

Expressed values and narrative identity

Recognition is the most visible organising concern. The landing page repeatedly seeks acknowledgement as a person entitled to safety, dignity, assistance and a public hearing. Its appeals turn administrative rejection into a struggle over who may define a life. Classification D / moderate as a reading of Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; it does not establish the motives of officials or a stable trait in every setting.

Preservation functions as agency. The two accessible archive-associated publications place source lists, testimony and documentary language at the centre of their public argument. This demonstrates a publication strategy and an expressed commitment to leaving a record. It does not establish the number of unique records preserved, that all cited records are authentic, or that every source supports the proposition assigned to it. Sources: Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger) and The Man Australia Tried to Erase.

The independent review closes by quoting a dedication seeking “love, empathy and understanding”. This supports a historical expressed commitment to compassion, albeit mediated by a reviewer rather than a direct reading of the memoir. The later protection appeals also centre dignity and survival. The continuity concerns expressed themes; consistent interpersonal practice cannot be inferred. Source: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger.

Reasoning practices: strengths and limits

The employment comparison in The Man Australia Tried to Erase is an intelligible research lead because it juxtaposes particular statements, dates and roles rather than relying solely on general accusation. That specificity creates a testable question. However, the text describes the juxtaposition as “foundational fraud” before establishing whether the statements concern identical legal categories, records, evidentiary bases and authority.

A second recurring problem is the conversion of non-response into conclusive validation. The landing page states “Failure to respond constitutes admission. Silence equals complicity.” The essay similarly states “Silence, in this context, is not neutrality — it is guilt.” These are observable formulations, not findings of this report. As reasoning, they fail to exclude non-receipt, jurisdictional limits, privacy, unresolved processing or a decision not to engage publicly. Sources: Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger).

The strongest charitable alternative is that such statements are advocacy rhetoric meant to highlight the moral seriousness of unanswered distress. That reading can explain their force but does not validate their presentation as legal or forensic proof. Criticism here concerns particular published propositions, not a conclusion that the subject is dishonest.

Adversity, emotion and psychological restraint

The landing page expresses urgency, fear, abandonment and hope of protection. These are textual expressions attributable to the published appeals. Their intensity does not establish diagnosis, deliberate deception, or the external mechanism alleged. The historical review discusses a memoir of schizophrenia; it is not a present clinical assessment and cannot resolve the accuracy of later complaints. Sources: Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review.

No Big Five trait rating, resilience score, disorder inference, or conclusion of psychological health is made. Different genres, possible AI drafting and missing editorial history make stable personality attribution particularly unreliable. Stronger findings would require dated author-verified texts, contextual records, interviews and, for genuine clinical questions, qualified assessment.

Profile conclusion

Supported: public self-identification, witness-centred rhetoric, concern with dignity, documentary preservation as a strategy, and specific examples of evidentiary overstatement. Plausible but not established: enduring resilience, courage under demonstrated cost, consistent openness to correction, or a stable psychological disposition. Contradictions and limitations belong to the public record; they do not define the whole person.

6. Profile B — The Institutional Exercise of Power

This profile cannot be independently completed from the accessible case evidence. The key original decisions and responses were not inspected. What follows is a role-separated account of claims appearing in The Man Australia Tried to Erase and Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger), not a verified finding that the named bodies performed each alleged action.

Body as named in accessible narrative	Attributed involvement and evidentiary boundary
Department of Social Services (DSS)	Attributed PID refusal and denial of departmental employment. Need complete original decision, allocation criteria, evidence considered and review history.
Comcare / AAT	Attributed workers' compensation dispute and arguments about employee status. Need actual determination, pleadings and tribunal reasons; counsel's position is not the tribunal's finding.
Federal Court correspondence	Affirmative employment-status wording attributed to General Counsel. Need original letter and capacity in which the statement was made; no judicial ruling examined.
NDIA / NDIS Commission	Funding, support and complaint allegations. Narrative sometimes uses NDIS broadly; scheme, administering body, regulator and providers must not be merged.
PM&C; / OAIC	FOI search and review allegations; MR22/00677 is reproduced as a review identifier. Existence and outcome not independently checked.
Victorian Ombudsman / hospital	Attributed acknowledgement of a search failure and subsequent complaint closure. Need full letter, hospital response and any remedial action.
Legal Aid / housing / police / tribunal bodies	Multiple adverse-treatment allegations. Each needs its own jurisdiction, request, authority, contemporaneous evidence and response.
Private providers, insurers, charities and platforms	Not automatically government agencies. Their conduct cannot be assigned to "the State" without a demonstrated connection and applicable responsibility.

Competing organisational explanations

One hypothesis is fragmented responsibility: different eligibility rules and referral pathways could leave a person without effective assistance even where each body identifies a limited remit. A different hypothesis is an erroneous factual premise repeated across agencies. A third is deliberate retaliation. These hypotheses predict different evidence: internal referral logs, reasons, data provenance, common instructions, knowledge of specific risks and deliberate decisions. None has been established by the publications alone.

The reported housing-and-food refusal illustrates the distinction. A statement that particular payments fall outside one agency's remit might accurately describe a funding boundary. It might also accompany an inadequate response to known danger. Testing that difference requires the original request, the agency's actual responsibilities, the full response and any referral or escalation. Source of allegation: The Man Australia Tried to Erase, opening quotations and Part Four.

Accountability and correction

The exposé itself reproduces an alleged Ombudsman acknowledgement of a hospital search failure. If authenticated, that could establish a specific deficiency and some acknowledgement of it. It would not alone establish that no accountability followed: a decision not to continue a complaint and a failure to implement any remedy are different propositions. Source: The Man Australia Tried to Erase, Part Five. Confidence in original wording and complete process remains undetermined.

No agency-wide pattern, system-wide conspiracy, corrupt motive or institutional personality is inferred. Conversely, potential jurisdictional explanations are not treated as proof that the individual was treated properly. The institutional profile remains open pending original-source examination.

7. Comparative moral assessment

The common ethical framework does not remove differences of role. A public author bears responsibility for the accuracy and fairness of public allegations. A decision-maker must be assessed against the powers and duties actually applicable to its particular decision. This edition can evaluate several published arguments; it cannot fairly rank the institutions' case conduct against an inaccessible record.

Honour and integrity

The public emphasis on preservation and source naming is compatible with accountable testimony, but neither practice certifies the contents. The genocide-law error conflicts with accurate source use. Institutional consistency remains unresolved without original records. Evidence: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase. Evaluations are D; case comparisons remain predominantly E.

Courage

Publicly describing stigmatised experience may support a cautious interpretation of testimonial courage, particularly in the historical memoir review. Actual costs and responses to scrutiny were not systematically established. No comparable institutional courage or cowardice finding is justified. Evidence: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase. Evaluations are D; case comparisons remain predominantly E.

Truthfulness

The Article II error is demonstrable; intent to mislead is not. Presenting silence as proof and conditional correspondence as definitive confirmation overstates the examined record. No authenticated institutional falsehood has been established. Evidence: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase. Evaluations are D; case comparisons remain predominantly E.

Compassion

The memoir dedication and protection appeals express concern with dignity and empathy. Whether either party consistently acted compassionately toward others requires conduct evidence absent here. Evidence: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase. Evaluations are D; case comparisons remain predominantly E.

Fairness and restraint

Definitive allegations against identifiable people carry responsibilities of qualification. The examined publications often pass quickly from allegation to coordinated-intent language. Institutional procedural fairness requires the full file, not a summary of adverse outcomes. Evidence: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase. Evaluations are D; case comparisons remain predominantly E.

Accountability and humility

Public accessibility assists scrutiny. It is not the same as correction. No dated correction history for the author or complete institutional review record was examined. Absence from this sample is not evidence that correction never occurred. Evidence: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase. Evaluations are D; case comparisons remain predominantly E.

Unequal power

The narrative describes an individual seeking records and remedies from bodies exercising authority. This makes reasons, access and correction central ethical questions; it does not independently decide disputed facts. Evidence: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase. Evaluations are D; case comparisons remain predominantly E.

8. The nine comparative mirrors

1 — Identity, self-concept and role

Identity concerns how a subject presents itself and the role it claims. The witness speaks as a survivor and public claimant; institutional roles appear through attributed decisions. Spiritual identity cannot establish statutory employee status. Alternative: a provider relationship rather than departmental employment. High confidence in self-presentation; institutional status undetermined. Sources: Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; The Man Australia Tried to Erase.

2 — Values and ethical commitments

The witness advocates dignity and recognition. Institutional commitments cannot be judged only by narrative descriptions of their purpose. The comparison must distinguish an expressed ideal from actual compliance. Counterevidence: emphatic rights language can coexist with evidentiary overreach. Moderate textual inference; no comparative moral ranking. Sources: Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger).

3 — Reasoning and evidence

Reasoning is the movement from source to conclusion. The exposé offers named quotations, but labels their difference fraud without establishing equivalence of context. The official Convention directly contradicts one clause attribution in the essay. Original agency reasoning remains missing. High confidence in the textual error; institutional correctness undetermined. Sources: The Man Australia Tried to Erase; Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide — United Nations.

4 — Emotion, adversity and response

This framework concerns expressed distress and observable response, not diagnosis. The landing page communicates urgency; the earlier review describes a recovery-oriented memoir. Genre and changing circumstances are alternatives to a stable-trait inference. Institutional reactions require actual correspondence. Moderate confidence in themes, not private states. Sources: Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review.

5 — Power, autonomy and control

Power concerns practical ability to determine decisions, information and remedies. The narrative portrays barriers across support and legal pathways. Whether those barriers were unlawful or coordinated cannot be inferred from dependency alone. Alternatives include separate remits and contested eligibility. Case-specific power mechanisms unverified. Sources: The Man Australia Tried to Erase; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger).

6 — Communication and transparency

Transparency means a reader can trace and contextualise claims. Public source lists are useful, but a title and a reproduced excerpt do not replace an original document. Placeholders and embedded assistant-style prompts complicate provenance. Institutional completeness cannot be judged without complete letters. High confidence in those publication features. Sources: Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger).

7 — Responsibility and correction

Accountability requires reasons, revisability and demonstrated follow-through. Neither party's correction history was established. The alleged Ombudsman acknowledgement is a lead potentially favourable to institutional accountability, even though the narrator condemns closure. Undetermined comparative result. Sources: The Man Australia Tried to Erase; Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger.

8 — Meaning, prophecy and legitimacy

Meaning-making concerns the moral story that makes suffering intelligible. Witness, erasure and remembrance organise the archive rhetoric. Legal authority, spiritual significance and factual proof belong to different domains. The refugee guidance supplies an external definition that public declaration alone does not satisfy. High textual confidence; supernatural claims not adjudicated. Sources: Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); 1.2 Determining refugee status under UNHCR's mandate.

9 — Adaptation, learning and long-term outcomes

Learning requires demonstrable change over time, not merely different tones. An earlier memoir review and later urgent appeals show different public presentations, but do not establish deterioration, growth or a correction trajectory. No longitudinal institutional record was examined. Outcome comparison remains undetermined. Sources: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; The Man Australia Tried to Erase.

Comparative matrix — reading format

The required 12 fields are preserved below as a vertical table for each analytical dimension, rather than compressed into an unreadable 12-column page. Each table represents one row of the requested matrix. Repeated insufficiency findings are intentional: the source gaps must remain visible.

Matrix row — Honour

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Honour
Individual: primary evidence	Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Preservation and public testimony; no total-character conclusion.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Courage

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Courage
Individual: primary evidence	Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Public discussion of vulnerable experience; cost and scrutiny not independently measured.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Integrity

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Integrity
Individual: primary evidence	Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Legal authority invoked inaccurately in the Article II(d) passage.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Truthfulness

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Truthfulness
Individual: primary evidence	Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Specific clause error established; dishonesty not established.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Compassion

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Compassion
Individual: primary evidence	Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Expressed dignity and empathy; consistent conduct not measured.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Fairness

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Fairness
Individual: primary evidence	The Man Australia Tried to Erase; primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Institutional narrative lacks directly inspected opposing case files.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	The Man Australia Tried to Erase; The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Accountability

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Accountability
Individual: primary evidence	Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Public presentation permits criticism; correction history unavailable.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger; The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Humility

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Humility
Individual: primary evidence	Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); primary for published wording only.

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Some categorical formulations leave little room for alternatives; stable trait not inferred.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Responsibility

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Responsibility
Individual: primary evidence	The Man Australia Tried to Erase; primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Public allegations exceed directly demonstrated intent.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	The Man Australia Tried to Erase; The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Opposing evidence

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Opposing evidence
Individual: primary evidence	The Man Australia Tried to Erase; primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Conditional affirmative quotation and contrary employment positions reproduced together, but context not resolved.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	The Man Australia Tried to Erase; The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

Matrix row — Unequal power

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Analytical dimension	Unequal power
Individual: primary evidence	The Man Australia Tried to Erase; primary for published wording only.
Individual: observable conduct	Publication of the passages discussed above; original authorship and editorial contributions not independently authenticated.
Individual: ethical assessment	Remedy-seeking narrative raises access and reasons questions; no conclusion on motive.
Institution: primary evidence	Insufficient: no original case correspondence or determination inspected.

Required field	Evidence-based entry
Institution: observable conduct	Reported within archive-associated publications; not independently established here.
Institution: ethical / organisational assessment	Insufficient evidence for a substantive case finding.
Direct comparison	No defensible overall ranking; textual findings cannot substitute for missing institutional records.
Counterevidence / alternatives	Advocacy genre, possible AI drafting, omitted context, jurisdictional distinctions and unexamined remedies.
Evidence strength	High for visible wording; moderate or low for interpretation; undetermined for institutional conduct and motive.
Unresolved questions	Original provenance, full context, applicable duties, contrary records, actual consequences and correction history.
Direct source links	The Man Australia Tried to Erase; The Man Australia Tried to Erase (indirect case quotations only).

9. Supplementary analytical frameworks

The mandate invites recognised theories but forbids adding them simply to inflate scope. This edition uses limited interpretive lenses without claiming a completed disciplinary literature review. No theoretical label supplies missing case evidence.

Narrative identity — a literary and psychological lens

Here the working question is how the narrator connects past experience, present identity and future recognition. The historical review's recovery narrative and the later witness/erasure narrative offer a meaningful contrast. It may reflect changed circumstances, genre, audience or collaborators rather than a change in personality. Needed evidence: the books themselves, dated drafts and editorial history. Sources: Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review; The Man Australia Tried to Erase. D / moderate.

Attribution — outcome versus intention

The working distinction is between an adverse outcome and an actor's reason for producing it. The essay's movement from repeated deprivation and silence to coordinated genocidal intent illustrates the risk of collapsing those levels. Needed evidence: knowledge, instructions, decision chains and the exclusion of plausible alternatives. This is a critique of a specific inference, not a diagnosis of cognitive bias. Source: Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger). D / high for the logical gap; event history unresolved.

Distributed responsibility — an organisational lens

A useful question is whether separate remits produce unmet needs without a single directing actor. The exposé's list of closures makes this hypothesis relevant but does not prove it. Needed evidence: referral logs, decision criteria, handover records, shared data and correspondence across bodies. Rival explanation: a common factual error, or deliberate misconduct. Source: The Man Australia Tried to Erase. E for mechanism.

Testimony and source dependence — an epistemic lens

An author, an archive summary and an AI-generated abstract repeating the same assertion are not three independent witnesses. The landing page repeatedly labels summaries impartial or verified; the report does not adopt those labels as authentication. Needed evidence: traceable originals and genuinely independent accounts. Source: Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger. D / high for the independence distinction.

Big Five scoring, remote clinical assessment, government personality diagnosis and predictive prophecy were excluded. Their evidentiary requirements are not met by these extracts. Additional theory would not repair the absence of original documents.

10. Case studies and documentary findings

The employment-status paradox

The question is whether the Commonwealth took incompatible factual positions to deny two rights. Part One of The Man Australia Tried to Erase attributes an affirmative statement dated 27 March 2023 to Federal Court General Counsel and a negative statement dated 18 July 2023 to DSS. It also reproduces Comcare counsel's position under the SRC Act.

The affirmative extract expressly depends on information supplied by the claimant. The negative statement reports preliminary departmental inquiries and addresses public-official status. A portal organisation account is also cited. These are a testable discrepancy, but the source does not establish identical legal definitions, authority or evidentiary records. Organisation registration alone cannot establish the missing employment relationship from the evidence inspected.

Possible interpretations include an initial assumption later contradicted by records; different statutory tests; an erroneous departmental search; or inconsistent treatment. No one interpretation has been verified. Fairness and integrity require resolving the basis of each statement before calling it fraud. Classification C for reproduced quotations, D for the discrepancy analysis, E for misconduct. Needed: the complete letters, contracts, payroll or engagement records, PID allocation reasons and tribunal decision.

Genocide-law claim and demonstrable citation error

The question is whether Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger) establishes the legal conclusion it announces. Its "Legal Foundations" section places the conditions-of-life quotation under Article II(d). The Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide — United Nations places that act under II(c), while II(d) concerns preventing births.

The error is concrete and reproducible. More importantly, Article II requires intent to destroy a protected national, ethnical, racial or religious group as such. Disability, sexuality and whistleblower status, as presented in this essay, do not by themselves demonstrate that protected-group requirement. Serious individual harm cannot substitute for omitted legal elements.

The strongest alternative is a citation typo combined with an intended metaphorical argument about administrative destruction. A typo could explain the wrong subparagraph but not supply missing group and intent evidence. A metaphor may retain ethical force while failing as a legal finding. A / high for the mismatch; D / high that the presented argument does not establish genocide; E as to wider unexamined evidence. No claim of deliberate fabrication is made.

Asylum declaration and legal recognition

The Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger presents itself as a "FINAL LEGALLY BINDING CLAIM FOR ASYLUM" and asserts protected status. It also includes placeholders, including "Date: [Insert Today's Date]". The question is what such publication actually establishes.

The 1.2 Determining refugee status under UNHCR's mandate identifies the Convention refugee definition as involving a person outside the country of nationality, or the relevant habitual residence for a person without nationality. The landing-page narrative describes an appeal from within Australia. This does not establish satisfaction of that outside-country element or formal recognition.

The document may function as an appeal for protection or a statement of perceived abandonment. That remains distinct from a decision granting status. No nationality assessment or UNHCR determination was examined. Classification A for published wording and authoritative definition; C for reported circumstances; E for actual legal status. Claims that publication guarantees immunity from lawful arrest or detention are not adopted. Specific legal advice would require jurisdiction and case records.

FOI complexity and alleged disappearance of documents

The The Man Australia Tried to Erase, Part Four, alleges an initial description of an FOI request as “voluminous and complex”, followed by a position that relevant documents did not exist. It treats the first description as proof of later falsehood.

A request’s complexity does not logically demonstrate that responsive records exist. Its breadth, interpretation or search burden could be complex independently of the eventual result. Conversely, that alternative does not prove a search was adequate. The key questions concern wording, scope, searches and the actual reasons.

Classification C for the reported sequence; D / high that the inference is not conclusive; E for lawful processing or concealment. Preserve identifier MR22/00677 exactly as reproduced, without certifying it. Needed: original request, scope correspondence, search affidavits or logs, decision notices and OAIC outcome.

Reported hospital failure and complaint closure

The The Man Australia Tried to Erase, Part Five, attributes to an Ombudsman officer an acknowledgement that a hospital failed to search the patient properly after ground leave on 24 February 2021. It also reproduces a decision not to continue the complaint.

If authenticated, acknowledgement of a specific failure is evidence worth retaining even though it complicates an “absolute silence” narrative. It could establish both a deficiency and an act of recognition. Whether closure was justified, whether the hospital corrected procedures, and whether harm followed require the complete case.

Classification C for the quotations, E for the full outcome. The excerpt cannot alone establish absence of accountability, intentional harm or all clinical conclusions advanced elsewhere. Needed: full Ombudsman letter, hospital response, contemporaneous records, remedial actions and review avenues.

Threatening communication: counterevidence within the exposé

The The Man Australia Tried to Erase, Part Two, reports an email dated 20 January 2023 whose subject explicitly threatens two public officeholders. The narrator says the body instead conveyed a solution and that the message should have been treated as a cry for help.

This reported subject is material counterevidence to a narrative in which an entirely non-threatening communication was simply invented by officials. It does not prove criminal intent or justify any particular response; the original email and surrounding circumstances are missing. A need for care and a need to assess a threatening communication are not mutually exclusive.

Classification C. No legal or psychiatric judgment is made. A fair assessment needs the whole message, contemporaneous risk assessment, actual charges or orders, reasons and available support. The institutional response cannot responsibly be classified as persecution or proportionate protection from this extract alone.

11. Counterevidence, contradictions and unresolved claims

The strongest counterevidence to a preferred total-vindication narrative comes from the publications themselves and the authoritative definitions they invoke. The Article II mismatch is not a disagreement about tone; it is a specific source-use error. The conditional employment quotation and the reproduced threatening email subject require more qualified interpretation than the exposé offers. Sources: Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide — United Nations; The Man Australia Tried to Erase.

The strongest limit on a preferred institutional-exoneration narrative is the absence of authenticated original case records in this research. A weak inference by the witness does not prove the challenged decision was correct. A mistaken genocide argument does not dispose of housing, health, employment, FOI or procedural-fairness complaints, each of which has its own facts and standards.

Proposition	Audit outcome
Silence proves guilt	Not established. Non-response itself needs receipt, time, remit and communication records; motive requires more. Sources: landing page and Genocide by Attrition.
Federal Court conclusively found employment	Not established by the reproduced General Counsel quotation. Need a judgment or determination and full procedural context. Source: exposé, Part One.
A portal account proves employment	Not established by the materials examined. Need evidence connecting the account to an actual employment relationship. Source: exposé, Part One.
All refusals demonstrate coordination	Not established. Separate adverse outcomes do not supply a common instruction or shared intention. Source: exposé, Part Four.
Clinical death and permanent brain injury	Not clinically verified. Reported extracts and narrative labels cannot replace original medical evidence and qualified interpretation. Source: exposé, Part Five and later novel opening.
Covert technological targeting / assassination	Attributed allegations only. No independently examined recording, physical forensic evidence or competent finding establishes the alleged mechanism or responsible actors. Source: exposé.
Archive totals and preservation claims	Unverified. Counts, hashes, timestamps and immutability assertions were not independently checked; no repository manifest was obtained.
No institutional acknowledgement occurred	Qualified by the exposé's own reproduced Ombudsman acknowledgement; original remains unverified.
Author corrected all known errors / never corrects	Neither established: no dated revision and correction history inspected.

Several pages preserve assistant-style offers such as asking whether to continue or generate a PDF. Their presence is directly observable in Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger and Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger). This complicates attribution of particular sentences and the claimed independence of analysis. It does not prove that every factual assertion is false or that the subject authored every formulation.

12. Prophetic synthesis — literary and ethical interpretation

The following is an original literary interpretation, not a finding about supernatural authority, future events or institutional intent.

A witness asks first to be heard. A record asks something harder: to be read. Between those two requests stands the discipline that neither sympathy nor authority may be allowed to replace. A page can preserve a cry without proving every explanation attached to it. A file can bear an official heading without answering every moral question raised by its consequences.

In the accessible archive, erasure is more than the loss of a document. It is the fear that a person may be reduced to a category, a refusal, an unanswered message. Preservation becomes resistance to that reduction. This reading arises from the language of witness and remembrance in Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger and Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); it does not establish that an organised erasure campaign occurred.

Yet the witness's record must remain open to correction if it is to ask correction of power. A wrong clause should be amended. A conditional statement should remain conditional. An allegation should not acquire the status of a verdict merely by being repeated by a machine. The demand for recognition is not diminished by such restraint; it becomes capable of surviving disagreement.

The corresponding moral question for authority is not whether it can defeat an accusation in rhetoric, but whether it can give an account of its own acts. If an error is established, the ethical task is correction. If a request is beyond one body's power, the human consequence still deserves intelligible explanation. These are the evaluative principles of this paper, not findings that any particular official breached a legal duty.

The prophetic warning is therefore conditional and reciprocal: when certainty closes the record, accountability becomes impossible. The witness may mistake conviction for verification; institutions may mistake procedure for justice. This edition has not established either as a universal condition. It has established why both must remain answerable to specific evidence.

Preservation first. Examination second. Conclusion last. Those words from the supplied mandate are best understood not as a ceremonial ending but as an unfinished obligation. The record stays free only if the reader is free to test it.

13. Findings and conclusions

Direct answer to the research question

The examined record supports a description of the subject's public narrative as witness-centred, dignity-seeking, preservation-oriented and intensely critical of perceived institutional abandonment. It also supports criticism of specific published evidentiary and legal arguments. It does not yet support a comparably developed independent account of agency conduct, because the original case files were not examined. Consequently, a defensible comparative moral judgment is limited and predominantly unresolved.

Established documentary findings — A

The public landing page joins the two identities and publishes urgent protection claims. The archive-associated essay contains the Article II(d) misattribution. The UN Convention identifies the relevant act at II(c) and requires the protected-group and intent elements. UNHCR's guidance includes the outside-country requirement. These are narrow document-content findings supported by Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger, Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger), Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide — United Nations and 1.2 Determining refugee status under UNHCR's mandate.

Independent support and attributed accounts — B / C

The historical Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review independently supports the existence and reception of a memoir by Richard McLean. Later texts identify it with the Barran Dodger life narrative; that bridge is not independently authenticated here. Case-specific employment, support, FOI, hospital and protection claims remain attributed accounts where their originals were not inspected. Source: The Man Australia Tried to Erase.

Analytical and moral findings — D

The genocide conclusion is not established by the essay's presented legal reasoning. "Silence equals guilt" is not a sufficient evidentiary rule. The employment quotations warrant investigation but not a present fraud finding. These criticisms concern accuracy, restraint and the fairness of interpretation. They do not establish dishonest intent, overall dishonour, or a complete personality profile.

Unresolved questions — E

The correctness of the challenged decisions; the identity and responsibility of particular actors; the existence of legal employment; PID eligibility; the adequacy of searches, support responses and complaint closure; actual remedies; medical causation; deliberate targeting; and any coordinated institutional intention remain unresolved in this edition.

What could materially change the result

Highest priority is the paired original employment correspondence, the full DSS PID decision, the actual Comcare determination and tribunal reasons. Next are original NDIA crisis correspondence, the complete Ombudsman decision and hospital response, and the PM&C/OAIC file. Independently verified qualifications, author identity links, publication history, and correction logs would strengthen Profile A. None should be replaced by additional summaries repeating the same source.

There is no overall winner. The most reliable moral conclusion presently available is methodological: both public accusation and official decision-making should remain traceable, proportionate and correctable. This is an applied ethical judgment, not a legal verdict or a declaration of innocence.

14. Primary-source bibliography and documentary register

This register lists sources actually inspected and distinguishes them from failed routes and named originals not obtained. The hyperlinks are public evidentiary destinations. No repository identifiers or file paths were invented; where none was verified, that field remains unavailable.

Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger

Landing Page | The Church Of Barran Dodger

Author / date / type: Attributed page by/for Richard William McLean / Barran Dodger; mixed declarations and assistant-style drafting. Dates mixed, with placeholders.

Relevant locator: Relevant headings: FINAL LEGALLY BINDING CLAIM FOR ASYLUM; 04.06.2025 emergency plea; successive “AI-generated” summaries.

Verification, role and limits: Public-page extracted text examined, visibly truncated. Primary for wording; not verified as original authorship, complete page or agency evidence. A/C/D. Supports self-presentation and challenges provenance / overstatement.

Location / identifier: Public archive landing page; no repository path or stable archive identifier verified.

Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger)

Genocide by Attrition: The Legal and Moral Indictment of the Australian State in the Case of Dr. Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger)

Author / date / type: Archive-associated advocacy essay attributed within its narrative to the McLean case; final compiler/editor not independently authenticated. No reliable publication date verified.

Relevant locator: Legal Foundations; Moral Responsibility; conclusion; later annex material.

Verification, role and limits: Public PDF text extract examined; returned text truncated during later annex material. Not the complete binary PDF or all pages. A for textual error; C for allegations; D for analysis. Supports themes and contradicts its own claimed legal sufficiency.

Location / identifier: Public path /truth/GENOCIDE%20BY%20ATTRITION.pdf; no internal archive identifier verified.

The Man Australia Tried to Erase

The Man Australia Tried to Erase

Author / date / type: Byline Dr Richard William McLean (Barran Dodger); uploader richarddrawsstuff; ©2026 appears in text. No upload date verified.

Relevant locator: Parts One, Two, Four and Five; evidentiary index; later third-edition opening.

Verification, role and limits: Scribd extracted text examined; truncated in later novel material. Mixed editions on the accessible page. Reproduced quotations not checked against originals. A for publication wording, C for case allegations, D for interpretation.

Location / identifier: Public Scribd document 997127635. Original archive paths not exposed or verified.

Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide — United Nations

Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide — United Nations

Author / date / type: United Nations. Convention adopted 9 December 1948; entry into force 12 January 1951.

Relevant locator: Article II, particularly protected groups, intent and conditions of life; Article III.

Verification, role and limits: Official page text examined. Authoritative legal text for the definition; not a finding about this case. A / high. Contradicts the essay's clause attribution and limits legal inference.

Location / identifier: Official public Convention page; no case identifier applies.

1.2 Determining refugee status under UNHCR's mandate

1.2 Determining refugee status under UNHCR's mandate

Author / date / type: UNHCR Resettlement Handbook, section 1.2. Publication/revision date not independently verified.

Relevant locator: Refugee status pursuant to the 1951 Convention; establishing material facts; broader definition.

Verification, role and limits: Official page text examined. Authoritative guidance on definition and assessment, not an individual status determination. A / high. Limits the self-declaration inference.

Location / identifier: Handbook section 1.2; no case number verified.

Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review

Recovered, Not Cured — Sydney Morning Herald review

Author / date / type: Sydney Morning Herald review of Recovered, Not Cured; text ends with a note about Anne Deveson. URL date 17 May 2003.

Relevant locator: Book header; discussion of creative work, treatment narrative, empathy and dedication.

Verification, role and limits: Full returned article text examined, not the memoir. Independent secondary reception evidence; does not authenticate current clinical condition or later biography. A for review contents; independent support for publication context.

Location / identifier: Public article identifier gdgrxq in URL; no archive identifier applies.

Supplied mandate

Master Execution Command — The Witness and the State — Honour, Courage, Corruption, and the Moral Character of Power. User-supplied 34-page PDF and parsed text. Instructional source; no public URL verified. Relevant chapters: 6–11, 22–24, 31–33. Establishes required method, not case facts.

Failed retrieval routes — not examined as evidence

https://github.com/wezzo72/Barrandodger — tool retrieval failed.

https://github.com/wezzo72?tab=repositories — tool retrieval failed.

https://wezzo72.github.io/Barrandodger/official-government-documents-register.html — tool retrieval failed.

https://wezzo72.github.io/barrandodger-rebuild/ — tool retrieval failed.

https://wezzo72.github.io/-church-of-barran-dodger/publishing-house.html — tool retrieval failed.

https://wezzo72.github.io/-church-of-barran-dodger/gospels.html — tool retrieval failed.

The church root supplied in the mandate was not separately fetched. No access claim is made for it. None of these access limits establishes censorship or non-existence.

Named original documents not obtained

McLean v Comcare AAT correspondence — title as reproduced or described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase (Part One / evidentiary index). Original author, exact title, date, page numbering, provenance, full context and deep URL not independently verified. Classification C as reproduced; an original-document finding is withheld.

DSS PID Rejection — Paula Stratton — title as reproduced or described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase (Part One / evidentiary index). Original author, exact title, date, page numbering, provenance, full context and deep URL not independently verified. Classification C as reproduced; an original-document finding is withheld.

DSS Portal Access Screenshot — title as reproduced or described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase (Part One). Original author, exact title, date, page numbering, provenance, full context and deep URL not independently verified. Classification C as reproduced; an original-document finding is withheld.

NDIA Housing Crisis Rejection — title as reproduced or described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase (opening quotations / Part Four). Original author, exact title, date, page numbering, provenance, full context and deep URL not independently verified. Classification C as reproduced; an original-document finding is withheld.

Victorian Ombudsman — Ben Calder — title as reproduced or described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase (Part Five). Original author, exact title, date, page numbering, provenance, full context and deep URL not independently verified. Classification C as reproduced; an original-document finding is withheld.

Dr Richard Moore Medical Report — title as reproduced or described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase (Part Five). Original author, exact title, date, page numbering, provenance, full context and deep URL not independently verified. Classification C as reproduced; an original-document finding is withheld.

OAIC IC Review MR22/00677 — title as reproduced or described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase (Part Four). Original author, exact title, date, page numbering, provenance, full context and deep URL not independently verified. Classification C as reproduced; an original-document finding is withheld.

Letter to Attorney General Mark Dreyfus — title as reproduced or described in The Man Australia Tried to Erase (Part Four). Original author, exact title, date, page numbering, provenance, full context and deep URL not independently verified. Classification C as reproduced; an original-document finding is withheld.

15. Independent audit statement and completion ledger

This audit is a self-check by the same authoring system, not an independent human audit or peer review. The word “independent” describes the intended reasoning discipline; it must not imply external validation of the report.

Required stage	Actual status
1. Source discovery	Partial. Alternative public sources located; main repository inaccessible to retrieval tool.
2. Source verification	Partial. Six public source extracts inspected; no forensic authentication and no original case decisions.
3. Chronology	Limited. Publication/legal chronology plus explicitly attributed case dates; no verified comprehensive case chronology.
4. Separate profiles	Text-grounded individual profile; institutional profile remains provisional and source-limited.
5. Comparative analysis	Nine frameworks addressed; 12-field moral matrix supplied in readable vertical format. Most institutional comparisons unresolved.
6. Moral evaluation	Specific source-use and inference evaluations only; no global character or corruption verdict.
7. Prophetic synthesis	Completed as labelled literary-ethical interpretation, not prediction or proof.
8. Independent audit	Internal claim-level self-audit completed; external audit outstanding.

Claim-level controls applied

Source existence: six successful public retrievals distinguished from failed routes. Quotation control: quotations limited to wording visible in the retrieved extracts; supposed original quotations labelled indirect. Scope control: no whole-file or whole-archive reading claim. Legal control: consequential genocide and refugee-definition comparisons checked against authoritative pages. Attribution control: no private person is declared criminal, corrupt, an intelligence operative or an assassin. Clinical control: no diagnosis, clinical score or present medical finding inferred.

Counterevidence: the threatening subject-line account, conditional employment wording, possible remit distinctions, reported acknowledgement of hospital failure, and the legal-definition mismatch are retained. No claim that every relevant contradictory source was found is made. No agency was contacted for comment. Lack of response to this report cannot be inferred.

Archive integrity and statistics

No repository file count, unique-document count, authenticated-government-record count, checksum, blockchain receipt, commit date or preservation permanence claim was verified. Statistics quoted by archive publications are not adopted as this report’s findings. A textual appearance of a hash or a “success” message is not a performed verification.

Deliverable completion versus investigation completion

The PDF is a completed limited-source deliverable in the requested 15-part order. It is not the completed comprehensive investigation envisaged by the mandate. In particular, the verified case chronology, fully independent institutional profile, comprehensive primary-document bibliography and balanced case-level comparison remain incomplete. Re-labelling this edition “fully executed to completion” would contradict both the research performed and the mandate’s preservation-first principle.

Publication recommendation: retain this status notice with the PDF. Before presenting case allegations as findings, obtain the original records listed in Sections 10 and 14, verify the passages and legal context, seek relevant institutional responses, update the correction record, and obtain independent review. Additional length or repeated AI endorsements would not resolve these evidentiary gaps.

Preservation first. Examination second. Conclusion last. The record stays free. Faith is not a finding. Not a court. Not a verdict.