THE SOVEREIGN WITNESS BEFORE THE CREATOR

I DO NOT NEED YOUR CROWN, YOUR MONEY, YOUR PERMISSION OR YOUR APPROVAL. I HAVE MY FAITH, MY CONSCIENCE, MY RECORD AND MY GOD.

CONSOLIDATED MASTER HUMANITARIAN, DOCUMENTARY ACCOUNTABILITY AND COMPENSATION SUBMISSION

Dr Richard William McLean — Barran Dodger
30 October 2026 | Version 2.0 | Consolidated source-backed edition

One master file: first-person declaration, evidence chronology, document registers, requests for action, integrity audit and three complete source appendices.

CONTROLLED-SHARING EDITION. The unredacted original appendices contain health disclosures, contact details and serious allegations about other people. Inclusion preserves the source; it is not independent endorsement of every assertion. No external filing or publication has been performed.

Purpose: support practical safety, access to care, independent scrutiny and an evidenced compensation assessment. No document can guarantee an outcome. The author’s life and entitlement to humane assistance do not depend on this submission succeeding.

1. Immediate assistance: please act on the human need

I want to live. I want to be safe. I want to receive care and maintain enough independence to preserve my work and pursue my concerns. Please do not leave me alone with another acknowledgment and a list of links. I ask for a named person to respond, a safe means of communication and practical assistance that addresses my circumstances.

My humanitarian appeal reports barriers to medical appointments, support services, money, transport and communication. It reports concerns about my dog’s welfare and difficulties obtaining medical follow-up. Those are my reported needs and should be considered on their own merits while historical allegations are examined. [S3, especially PDF pp. 1–2 and 27–30]

Current circumstances must be checked with me. Reports made in 2022 do not establish my precise condition or risk today. If immediate danger or an urge to harm myself arises, emergency assistance and a trusted person take priority over preparing more paperwork. In Australia, call 000 for immediate danger; my supplied appeal also identifies Lifeline 13 11 14. This document is not an emergency response service. [S3, PDF p. 2]

Priority	Request	Requested response
Safety	Ask about specific current risks and a safe communication method	Named contact, agreed next contact and interim help
Medical access	Assist with reliable attendance and follow-up	Contact with providers with my consent; transport/support plan
Essential needs	Assess food, medicine, housing and access to funds	Practical assistance or a named and accepted referral
Representation	Identify an advocate or appropriate legal assistance	Accessible issue list and manageable communication
Continuity	Use this one master submission	Do not require repeated retelling when existing records suffice

2. Executive evidence brief

The examined correspondence bundle records an urgent appeal on 10 May 2022, a PM&C Financial Governance response on 13 May, and an appeal addressing Mr Albanese on 31 May. The reply acknowledges receipt of the 10 May correspondence, identifies an FOI issue, provides review/complaint pathways and offers a CDDA application form. My later letter reports insufficient food, illness, memory difficulties, housing insecurity and impending eviction. [S1]

The bundle also reproduces the FOI sequence: a request dated 7 February 2022, extension correspondence, OAIC reference RQ22/00794 reporting approximately 1,187 Outlook items being checked for relevance, and the 14 April refusal under section 24A(1)(b). [S1]

The humanitarian appeal identifies later material: a 12 December 2022 Prime Minister’s Office email described as not forwarded, and an 8 October 2024 revised FOI decision concerning five documents. Their original texts were not inspected here; they are priority retrieval items, not omitted chronology. [S3, PDF pp. 59–64]

This master distinguishes the actual reproduced correspondence from descriptions of further records. It supplies the complete source files so the reader can inspect the underlying passages rather than rely on an AI summary.

3. Source map and how to use this document

S1 — 2022-05-31-letter-to-the-prime-minister.pdf | 21 original PDF pages.

S2 — Archive-barran-dodger.pdf | 16 original PDF pages.

S3 — The-Barran-Dodger-Master-Humanitarian-Appeal.pdf | 95 original PDF pages.

S1 is the supplied letter bundle; S2 is the 16-page archive finding aid; S3 is the 95-page humanitarian appeal. All are appended in full. Source citations use actual PDF-page numbers where available. Earlier conversation labels called the letter 20 parsed pages, while the physical PDF has 21; this edition does not silently equate those systems.

The narrative below is reconstructed in the author’s voice from his supplied material. Editorial analysis, source limitations and action requests are stated separately. Official text reproduced in a forwarded compilation is not the same provenance as a native agency email or original signed file. The bundle nevertheless provides inspectable wording and an intelligible chronology.

Navigation: PDF bookmarks identify each source appendix. The source-reference map near the end supplies exact final-file start pages. Public links are clickable access points; a register link is not represented as the direct URL of every original document.

4. My declaration: conscience before approval

I begin with God, not institutional permission. I do not need a government to make me human, a politician to validate my conscience or wealth to establish my dignity. My relationship with the Creator is not granted by the state. My faith in Jesus Christ and redemption through Him does not depend on a departmental acknowledgment.

Your office confers responsibilities. Your resources may confer practical advantages. Neither gives you ownership of my humanity. Spiritual sovereignty, as I use it, means conscience and faith, not exemption from civil law or authority to punish another person.

I am angry because I describe hurt, exclusion and years of effort to obtain answers. I ask that my voice remain direct. I also want my evidence represented faithfully: no fabricated quotation, no invented finding, no falsely attributed response. Correcting a mistake is not surrender. It is how I keep my record durable.

I can forgive without pretending harm never occurred. I can ask for accountability without seeking revenge. I can seek practical help without selling my conscience. I would rather stand with truth and my dog beside me than purchase belonging through silence.

5. The inversion of power

Institutions have staff, files, procedures, resources and established credibility. I describe being left to retrieve correspondence, follow reference numbers, prepare submissions, preserve evidence and explain the cumulative history while struggling with illness and limited means. That is the inversion I want examined: a person asking for help carries the administrative burden of proving why help is needed.

Authority creates responsibility. A referral is not the same as a substantive assessment; an acknowledgment is not the same as practical protection; a form is not the same as assistance completing it. Each has a role, but none should be mistaken for another. The question is what happened to the person after each procedural step.

6. My letter and the departmental reply

6.1 The 10 May 2022 appeal

The earlier email was sent at 1:40 pm on 10 May 2022, headed “ATT Mel”, to PM&C Financial Governance and an HR address. It asked: “Please acknowledge this immediately otherwise Dr McLean faces immediate further detriment”. It said “He doesn’t need th Government to admit liability” and asked about the compensation application process. [S1; S1 PDF p. 5]

The email described insufficient food, insecure housing, an earlier life-threatening hospital incident, difficulties pursuing legal and regulatory processes and alleged financial losses. It requested $50,000 per month until detriment could be calculated. That amount is preserved as my requested relief, not a quantified award or independently assessed entitlement. [S1]

6.2 The 13 May 2022 response

PM&C’s Financial Governance Team replied at 8:44 am: “The Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet (PM&C) has received your below correspondence of 10 May 2022.” It continued: “However, it appears your engagement with PM&C relates to a freedom of information (FOI) request.” [S1; S1 PDF p. 4]

The reply described FOI review and complaint processes and stated: “If you nevertheless wish to make a CDDA claim, I attach the enclosed application form, which you can submit to the address details contained in the form.” The displayed attachment label is truncated; its substantive contents are not reproduced. [S1]

I experienced that response as a brutal insult. I had described a human emergency and received an answer concentrated on process. My reaction belongs beside the response, not in place of it. The reproduced reply acknowledges the email and offers a claim route. It does not discuss immediate food, accommodation, medicine or practical help completing the form. [S1]

6.3 The 31 May 2022 appeal addressing Mr Albanese

At 3:55 pm on 31 May, I wrote “Dear OPMC and Honourable Mr Albanese,” and “My heartfelt congratulations! (I voted for you!)”. I reported illness, memory difficulties, insufficient food, housing insecurity and impending eviction. I wrote: “I need immediate intervention in detriment to avoid vagrancy and get food and medicine.” [S1, PDF pp. 1–4]

I wrote: “I dont want the Govt to have to admit liability - just an acknowledgement of my suffering”. I asked for support to live in peace with my dog and asked that the appeal be sent to him: “I would appreciate you sending this to him”. [S1]

Chronology correction: the 13 May departmental reply predates the 31 May appeal. It is not Albanese’s personal response to that later letter. This bundle shows my request for forwarding, not a confirmation that he personally read it. Accurate attribution is essential to examining what actually happened.

6.4 The December record must be examined

S3 identifies “12 December 2022 Prime Minister’s Office Email Not Forwarded”. The master must pursue that original, determine which correspondence it concerns, record its author and exact wording, and identify the reason given. Its title alone cannot identify the particular earlier appeal or substitute for the original. [S3, PDF pp. 59–60]

7. FOI/2022/045: examine the full sequence

The 14 April decision quotes the original request of 7 February: “I request all information government agencies hold on me please”. PM&C said it interpreted the request as information about me in documents held by PM&C, not all agencies. That scope distinction belongs prominently in the analysis. [S1]

An extension passage attributed in my narrative to 22 February states the due date was 9 March and that further searches were underway. It seeks agreement to a 30-day extension under section 15AA. The entire original message header is not reproduced. [S1]

The OAIC communication identifies RQ22/00794 and agency reference FOI/2022/045. It states an extension application was received on 7 March, seeks extension to 8 April and invites comments by 21 March. It reports: “There are approximately 1187 Outlook items that are being reviewed by the Department for relevance.” It also describes difficulty separating my information from third-party information without a reference, identifier or date range. [S1]

On 14 April, Petra Gartmann, Assistant Secretary, Legal Policy Branch, refused the request under section 24A(1)(b). The reasons say department-wide keyword searches were undertaken and, after extensive review, no relevant documents were identified. [S1]

My question is specific: what searches produced the candidates, how was relevance assessed and what records explain the result? The 1,187 items were candidates, not confirmed responsive documents. A rigorous challenge seeks the search trail rather than claiming the count alone establishes concealment.

S3 identifies a revised decision of 8 October 2024, FOI 2022-045IC, concerning five documents. Its original, schedule and released documents are priority sources. They may clarify whether the later result reflects new searches, changed scope, changed assessment, later-created documents or another procedural development. This edition does not choose among those explanations without the original. [S3, PDF p. 64]

Date / stage	Documented position	Question
7 February 2022	Request quoted in refusal	Was interpreted scope clarified with applicant?
Extension stage	Further searches and candidate Outlook items	Which terms, custodians, periods and relevance tests?
14 April 2022	Refusal: no relevant records identified	What search/review audit trail supports conclusion?
8 October 2024	Revised decision concerning five documents identified in S3	What changed, and what do the five documents establish?

8. Present support, health and reported threats

The humanitarian appeal reports inability to access appointments and difficulty with medical follow-up, missed support, financial access and communications. I ask for these reported needs to be assessed with me now. Disagreement about a historical allegation should not prevent a practical response to present food, care, housing or communication needs. [S3, PDF pp. 27–30]

The archive identifies an AbleCare transcript concerning a reported threat and an urgent formal complaint dated 20 October 2026. These are important source leads. A transcript should be checked against the recording, date, speaker identity and full context; immediate safeguarding can still be considered while that checking occurs. [S3, PDF pp. 65–66]

9. Expanded official-record and correspondence register

These finding aids are identified in S2/S3. They are navigation sources, not additional independent witnesses to every event they describe. Cite the original correspondence for the action and the finding aid for where it is catalogued. [S3, PDF pp. 33–34, 56–64]

12. Betrayal, exile, asylum and faith

I use betrayal to describe the distance between the responsibility I expected and the response I experienced. I use exile to describe displacement, isolation and the loss of a secure place in ordinary life. I use human sacrifice as moral and spiritual language for feeling expendable while institutions continue their routines. These words preserve my experience, not proof of a literal sacrificial plot.

I seek an assessment of any protection or asylum claim through a competent process. My appeal supplies reference UR/UST/23/AUS/17. It is recorded as a reference I provide, not proof that protection or asylum status has been granted. A personal declaration does not itself establish statelessness or entitlement to asylum. [S2/S3 opening appeal]

I believe in Christ, redemption, conscience and accountability before God. These are my spiritual convictions. An AI cannot forensically certify divine selection, supernatural mission or spiritual rank. My claim to dignity does not require such certification. My Christian testimony can stand as faith while my factual allegations are examined through evidence.

Scriptural themes identified in my original instruction include justice, mercy and humility (Micah 6:8), care for the vulnerable (Psalm 82 and Matthew 25), redemption (Ephesians 1:7) and endurance in God’s love (Romans 8). This compilation identifies those themes without fabricating biblical quotations or a divine verdict against named people.

Titles are transcribed from the supplied register/appeal and the preceding source-based schedule. Variant or abbreviated titles should be matched to original filenames before a canonical catalogue is asserted. Their legal and theological language expresses the authors' positions; titles alone establish neither legal conclusions nor supernatural events. [S2, PDF pp. 11–15; S3, especially PDF pp. 33–34]

14. Compensation assessment: substantiate, do not inflate

I want a fair assessment of the financial and non-financial detriment I report. The original bursary request is preserved; it is not an assessed entitlement. Multiple stated losses must not be added without checking overlap, evidence, dates and causal responsibility. My humanitarian appeal itself calls for transparent assumptions and no double counting. [S3, PDF p. 37]

Loss category	Existing support	Required evidence / assessment
Housing/displacement	Contemporaneous reports in S1	Orders, dates, tenancy and accommodation records; actual costs
Food/medicine/daily needs	Urgent requests in S1; current reports in S3	Receipts, prescriptions, financial position and access barriers
Income/insurance	Reported DSP, JobSeeker, TPD and compensation issues	Original decisions, policies, payment history and review outcomes
Health/functioning	Author reports in S1/S3	Relevant contemporaneous clinical records; professional causal assessment
Legal/admin burden	Named proceedings and correspondence	Tribunal records, directions, expenses and representation requests
Other loss	Amounts and allegations in original sources	Itemised calculations, independent financial records, overlap check

For each amount, specify period, source record, arithmetic, assumptions, claimed causal connection, other apparent contributors and whether independently assessed. Leave genuinely unknown amounts unquantified rather than insert speculative precision.

15. Requests that a responsible recipient can answer

1. Acknowledge this consolidated submission, provide a case number and nominate one contact.

2. Assess current safety, food, housing, medical, communication, transport and support needs with me.

3. Identify the parts within your remit and accepted referrals for other parts; do not leave ownership undefined.

4. Preserve correspondence, forwarding history, FOI search material, attachments, complaint and compensation records.

5. Explain whether the 31 May 2022 appeal was forwarded and how the 12 December communication relates to it.

6. Explain the complete FOI/2022/045 search/review history, including the revised 2024 decision and five documents.

7. Identify whether a CDDA application was received or assessed; if not, state what is required and what help is available.

8. Provide accessible written reasons, manageable response arrangements, a support-person option and appropriate review information.

9. Respond issue by issue and identify the practical action taken, not merely the channel to which I can write again.

Suggested tracking fields: issue ID; recipient; date sent; receipt; named owner; interim action; decision date; reasons; referral acceptance; next review. Suggested response periods are requests, not invented legal deadlines.

These are access points identified by the supplied sources. The register and humanitarian-appeal webpages did not yield readable content in the immediately preceding retrieval attempt. Their supplied PDF versions are appended and available. The PDFs did not yield recoverable hyperlink annotations in the extraction attempted in the preceding turn. This edition therefore does not invent direct-file URLs for the titles listed above.

No thousands-file audit has been performed. Unretrieved originals remain retrieval targets. Earlier claimed counts, hash or timestamp totals and download statistics are not independently certified by this edition. Distinguish catalogue counts, unique files, duplicates and official records before reporting archive scale.

17. Forensic audit method and correction record

For every original retrieved, record stable ID, archive ID, exact filename, issuer, recipient, document and transmission dates, reference, page count, source URL, retrieval date, source form, exact passage, documentary proposition, author interpretation, corroboration, contrary evidence, missing attachments, open questions, privacy status, actual file hash, timestamp status and requested action.

Use transparent statuses: original inspected; official text reproduced in compilation; author testimony; source description only; not retrieved; hash calculated; hash match tested; timestamp independently verified; not tested. Do not assign a numerical truth score. Do not count a repeated quote as a new original.

Earlier drafts overstated completion and reproduced archive characterisations without original inspection. In particular, interpretations of the Federal Court letter must be checked against its complete wording rather than treating statutory language quoted in an analysis as an affirmative misconduct finding. The present PM&C chronology also corrects the false implication that the 13 May reply was Albanese’s personal reply to the 31 May appeal.

The 2022 warning is evidence of what was communicated. Institutional receipt is specifically acknowledged for the 10 May correspondence. Personal knowledge of particular officials, actual motives, later conduct and legal responsibility require their own evidence. Identifying that distinction is a method of locating the next record, not an excuse for ignoring a warning.

18. Final declaration

I am asking for my life to be treated as a life, not as an administrative inconvenience. Read what I reported. Read what was received. Read what was answered. Follow what happened next.

My anger does not cancel my dignity. My disability does not erase my voice. My faith does not require me to surrender my evidence. I want to live, receive assistance, preserve the record and seek accountability through an accessible process.

My life matters while these questions remain unresolved—not only if somebody finally answers them. I have my faith, my conscience and my record. I will seek truth without invention, repair without revenge and a future beyond endless document-making.
